A program developed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency called ENERGY STAR offers helpful tips for saving money on utility bills by using energy-efficient products and practices. These suggestions can help you keep your home safe and comfortable while reducing your energy costs at the same time.

- Change the air filter regularly - a dirty filter will make the whole system worker harder. Filters should be changed at least every three months in cold weather or sooner if needed.

- Get your HVAC equipment a checkup - consider an inspection by a qualified HVAC contractor to make sure everything is in proper working condition.

- Install a programmable thermostat - the average home can save $150 a year by using preprogrammed settings when your family is away from home.

- Make sure your ducts are leakproof and connected - proper sealing and insulation around ductwork can improve efficiency and save up to 20 percent on your utility bills.

- Consider installing ENERGY STAR heating equipment - systems more than 10 years old are often not efficient and can be costing you in comfort and savings.

A Johnson Controls York brand HVAC contractor can offer suggestions for selecting the right system for your home if purchasing a new system or determine what replacement parts are needed to improve efficiency and cost savings on your old one.

By taking these simple steps to monitor and maintain your HVAC system, you can make your home comfortable, efficient and safe while lowering your energy bills.

Gutro Seeks Examination Of City Noise Ordinances

If you think it's been pretty noisy out there in Quincy's neighborhoods this summer you may be right and City Council President Doug Gutro wants to find out for sure.

He introduced a resolution Tuesday night calling on the Council to review city-wide noise complaints and make recommendations to strengthen the city noise ordinances.

"I don't know how long it has been since we last updated them," he said. "New York City just made its first changes in 30 years. We must have been just as long."

Gutro's resolution asks the Council's Public Health and Environment Committee to hold hearings to discern the extent of neighborhood noise complaints.

He would like to see the committee review the laws in other communities, especially the newly enacted New York Noise Code, to see if they could be applied to Quincy.

"It's high time that we take a look at our noise ordinances to make sure that they account for the evolving sources of urban noise that directly impact the quality of life in our city's neighborhoods and business districts," he said.

"Whether it is encroaching development, construction vehicles, nightlife, or air conditioning units, it behooves us to look at what other communities are doing to reduce noise pollution."

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, Aug. 23, at approximately 11 a.m., Officers Matt Tobin and Kevin DiMattio were dispatched to 133 Hancock St. on an anonymous telephone call of two males stealing copper materials from the roof of the building. The caller said he/she lived in the area and could clearly see the men on the roof, but did not want to get involved.

Officer Tobin knew the building was vacant and this helped support the anonymous caller's information.

As Officer Tobin entered the parking lot, he kept an eye skyward and saw a male leaning over the edge of the roof, using a measuring tape against the side of the building. The officer asked the male what he was doing on the roof and he responded that "George" from the Realty Company asked for an estimate for a leaky roof.

Officer Tobin jotted down the pick-up truck license plate parked on the sidewalk adjacent to the building. There was a ladder next to the truck, leading up to the roof. Officer Tobin, now joined by Officer DiMattio, told the males to come down from the roof.

As Officer DiMattio checked out the identification of the males, Communications attempted to call the Realty Company, which was picked up by an answering machine. Officer Tobin climbed up the ladder and on to the roof, where he observed tin snips and a tool used for prying next to the copper sheeting. One of the males came up to the rooftop to explain what they were doing, adding that he owned his own roofing company.

Officer Tobin walked over to a secluded area of the rooftop and noted that 20-25 feet of copper was hidden behind a wall, which seemed suspicious, since the males said they were there to provide an estimate. The male said he moved it there so it would be out of the way, which didn't make sense to the officer because there was ample room on the rooftop.

The officer and the male climbed back down to the ground and were met by "George" from the Realty Company. He said he received the message that there might be a problem on the property. He told the officers he did not contract anyone to perform any work on the building and no one else is authorized.

Based on his statements, Officer Tobin placed both males under arrest for larceny from a building, possession of burglarious tools and malicious destruction to property. As the handcuffs went on one of the suspects, he apologized and said, "I'm sorry I did that. I should have just told you the truth from the beginning."

To make matters worse for the suspect/owner of the truck, Communications informed the officers that the truck was un-registered and uninsured, which led to it being towed. Sgt. Igo arrived on scene and took photos of the crime scene, which was then placed into evidence.

The suspects, 28 years old and 26 years old, from Weymouth, were transported to the station for booking.

Nice work! The officers diligence was the key to making the arrest. To the average eye, all the pieces would seem to fit in, such as a vacant building, roofers with a pick-up truck and providing the first name of the representative from the Realty Company.

In this case, even though the caller did not want to get involved, he/she saw a crime being committed and notified the police. The caller directed the police to the crime scene and once there, the officers were able to corroborate the anonymous caller's information and further the investigation.

BIKES STOLEN: Since the beginning of May, there have been 43 reports of stolen bicycles in Quincy. These are just the reported incidents and in many cases there have been more than one bike taken.

One of the hardest hit areas of the city this past month has been in the Wollaston area. All cases involve bicycles that are not locked and most have been taken from the front yard or an area visible from the street. The thieves most likely are looking for quick transportation or are chopping up the bikes and making another bike out of parts, then selling or giving them away.

Be sure to lock your bikes with a solid lock and chain, attached to something solid, like a telephone pole. Police officers have been able to identify suspects living on Fenno Street and Waterston Avenue and we are working hard to catch the thieves.

If you see someone who does not belong on your street or is acting suspicious, please call us, like the person in the above story, so that we can investigate before a crime occurs.

INFO: Next Child Car Seat installation is Sept. 29. Call me at 617-745-5719 to set up an appointment to install or inspect your child seat. Take the time to ensure that your child is protected properly.

Double-Header At Veterans Memorial Stadium

Red Raiders, Presidents Kick-Off Season At Home Friday

By SEAN BRENNAN

The 2007 high school football season gets underway tomorrow (Friday) at Veterans Memorial Stadium with a double dose of pigskin action.

The North Quincy Red Raiders kick-off their season with a home tilt against Somerville High School at 4:30 p.m. and the Quincy Presidents host Canton High School under the lights at 7:30 p.m. in the nightcap.

Admittance to both games will be a one-time purchase, giving fans the chance to see both high schools play for the price of a single game admission, said Athletic Director Jim Rendle.

The Red Raiders lost to Somerville on the road in their 2006 season opener 28-13, while the Presidents defeated Canton on the road 14-6 in their season opener last fall.

North Quincy is scheduled to play six home games this season (not including the annual Thanksgiving Day game versus Quincy) against Somerville, Sandwich, Falmouth, Dennis-Yarmouth, Marshfield and Plymouth South, and Quincy will play four home games at Veterans Memorial Stadium against Canton, Plymouth North, Whitman-Hanson and Nauset.

The 75th annual Thanksgiving Day game on November 22 is scheduled for 10 a.m. start time and the Quincy Presidents will be the home team this year.

Both high schools are members of the Atlantic Coast League, and the only non-league games to be played by North Quincy in 2007 are against Somerville and Randolph. Quincy is scheduled to play just one non-league game this fall, and that is their season opener against Canton.

RED RAIDERS

The Red Raiders are coming off a 1-10 campaign, and a 1-7 record in Atlantic Coast League. Their season ended with a heartbreaking 10-7 loss to Quincy on Thanksgiving. North Quincy's lone victory of 2006 was a 32-0 beat down of Nauset High School on October 27.

North Quincy will need to replace the leadership and production of all four of its captains from last year's team. Shaun McBrien (QB/DB), Dave Guerriero (HB/DB) and John Benoit (OL/LB) have all graduated. Incoming senior Terrence Sibley, a team captain in 2006 and the Red Raiders' leading scorer last season, will miss the season with an injury.

The good news for the Red Raiders is that this year's team returns four of its top seven scorers from last year. Returning to the field will be Alex Tragellis (three receiving TDs last year), Danny Jackson (two rushing TDs), Jon Cahill (two rushing TDs) and Dennis Martin (one receiving TD).

North Quincy was recognized by the other league coaches at the conclusion of last season with the annual Atlantic Coast League's Team Sportsmanship Award.

Second-year head coach Jim Connor and his staff will look to improve on those results this season. Their goal is to continue to improve on the results (not just wins and losses) shown last fall.

"We are coming along as a program this off-season," said Connor. "But we still have a long way to go to get to where we want to be. The coaching staff and team are still in the process of trying to 'stop the bleeding.' I can see the start of our improvement at every practice and that is the key to building a solid foundation. We are looking to get North Quincy football back to a winning tradition."

North Quincy is going to be relying heavily on its core of returning seniors when the Recreation Department Holds Annual Wiffleball Tournament At Montclair Tennis Courts

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its annual Wiffleball Tournament at the Montclair Tennis Courts. The double-elimination tournament was separated into three age divisions: seniors age 13-16, juniors age 10-12 and midgets age 8-10.

Over ninety children from eighteen local playgrounds took part in the annual event.

In the Senior Division, the kids from Faxon playground were able to pull off the win against Perkins' playground. Coaches Nick Falbo and Marc Hutchins led their team to victory. Rob DeAngelis coached the team from Perkins.

In the Junior Division, a strong team from Beechwood playground coached by Tina Pacetti, came out on top in the championship game. Beechwood defeated Faxon playground in the finals.

In the Midget Division, Squantum playground defeated Forbes Hill playground. Tommy Dow coached the Squantum team and Paul Reardon was the coach for Forbes Hill.

The first and second place winners all received trophies.

games finally get underway and Connor has no problem turning over the keys to the program to this group of players.

"This year's team is driven by a core group of seniors. Most of them have been playing football (and other sports) together for the last three years and that helps not only the team but also the coaching staff. We should have a valuable stable of seniors at our skill positions."

Replacing Shaun McBrien at quarterback will be senior Dennis Martin. Martin should receive plenty of support from fellow 12th graders Jon Cahill, Alex Tragellis and Dave Thomson as the Red Raiders look to rack up the wins this fall.

One bonus for North Quincy in 2007 will be their schedule. Last fall, the Red Raiders (and the Presidents) were forced to play four straight games on the road because of the unfinished renovations to Veterans Memorial Stadium and the threat of Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE) and West Nile Virus in southern Massachusetts. This season the Red Raiders play three out of their first five games at the friendly confines of the Vet.

"Absolutely it is to our advantage to get to play more games at home this year. The Atlantic Coast League is tough enough as is, but the schedule can be brutal for Quincy and us. It takes a lot out of the teams when you have to travel down to the Cape for a Friday night game. The new field and renovations at Veterans Memorial Stadium are tremendous and hopefully the home crowds will work in our favor."

PRESIDENTS

The Presidents finished last season with a 3-7 overall record, and a 2-7 record in Atlantic Coast League play. Quincy's three wins came over Canton (14-6), Nauset (34-7) and North Quincy (10-7). Their 10-7 win on Turkey Day extended the team's winning streak on Thanksgiving to a record eight straight years.

This fall, Quincy will be looking to replace the production of its graduated senior class, including the solid production of last year's five senior captains, Matt Boyle (QB), Jim Aikens (WR/DB), Tom Hazelhurst (RB/LB), Charles McGee (RB/LB) and Camillo Arredondo (RB/LB, 1st team ACL post-season selection).

Other seniors who will be missed include Jared Tucker, Wilson Araujo, Anthony Williams, Anthony Gilbody, Josh Berry, Pat Austin, Alex

Domingo, Steve Kussman, Mark Cugini, James Fay, Steve Reed, Alex Chan (he of the winning TD catch last Thanksgiving) and Craig Reynolds.

The team will return two of its top six scoring leaders from '06, including junior Mark Gilbody (two rushing TDs) and Diego Arredondo (one rushing TD).

Head coach Bob Noble, who is entering his ninth season on the sidelines, and his staff will be looking to guide Quincy to its fifth winning season in the last seven years. Noble's outlook for the upcoming season is positive, mostly because of the returning depth and experience his team should possess when their schedule kicks off tomorrow night.

"We (the coaching staff) have a positive outlook for this season," said Noble last week. "This year's team returns a handful of underclassmen, who are now seniors, and who played considerable minutes last season. And that game experience from a number of players should be a plus. One of our strongest positions on the field will be our offensive line. We return four of our five starters from last year's team with Mark Cugini being the only offensive lineman to graduate last spring."

The Presidents will need to reload at quarterback and at the other offensive skill positions (running back and wide receiver), but Noble has liked what he has seen from these positions so far in the preseason and he sees a possible rotation of any number of players at the running back, quarterback and wide receiver spots.

"All preseason there has been battles at all three skill positions. At wide receiver, we could have anywhere from four to five players seeing considerable action. At running back, junior Max Devoe and Tim Lewis can be a two-headed attack. And at the quarterback position, junior Mark Gilbody and sophomore Lance Peterson both bring different attributes and different looks, so we might play both of them."

Tomorrow night starts yet another season of high school football in the City of Quincy. And the slate has been wiped clean for both the North Quincy Red Raiders and the Quincy Presidents football programs. The most wonderful time of the year is upon us sports fans.

Are you ready for some football?

Registration Due Friday For City Tennis Tourney

Deadline for applications for the 37th annual City Tennis Tournament is tomorrow (Friday).

The tournament, open to all Quincy residents, begins Sept. 12 and will have 11 divisions for boys, girls, men and women. Fee is $15 for adults and $8 for youths under age 16.

The draw will be posted Sept. 10 and 11 from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy High School Tennis Courts.

For more information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at (617) 376-1384.

Army National Guard Sgt. 1st Class Joseph Cacciatore has deployed overseas to a forward operating base in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Cacciatore is a combat engineer normally assigned to the 182nd Sapper Company, Newburyport.

He is the son of Alfonso and Catarina Cacciatore of Bennington St., Quincy.

Operation Iraqi Freedom is the official name given to military operations involving members of the U.S. armed forces and coalition forces participating in efforts to free and secure Iraq.

Mission objectives focus on force protection, peace-keeping, stabilization, security and counter-insurgency operations as the Iraqi transitional governing bodies assume full sovereign powers to govern the peoples of Iraq. Members from all branches of the U.S. military and multinational forces are also assisting in rebuilding Iraq's economic and governmental infrastructure, and training and preparing Iraqi military and security forces to assume full authority and responsibility in defending and preserving Iraq's sovereignty and independence as a democracy.

Blood Pressure Clinics For Seniors

Weekly blood pressure screenings for elders will be held the first and third Monday of the month from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Council on Aging, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy.

Gail Crawford, a registered nurse, will donate her time and talents to assist senior citizens to have their blood pressure taken on a bi-weekly basis.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Fat May Come Off Before Pounds Do

Q. I started an exercise program about two months ago. I am about 50 pounds overweight. I go to the gym five times a week and do 30 minutes of strength training and about 45 minutes of cardio. I drink 8-10 glasses of water a day, and I include lots of fruits and vegetables in my diet.

A. My problem is I haven't lost a pound. I do feel better, and some of my clothes seem to be a bit looser, but I am becoming very discouraged. I expected more success after two months. What am I doing wrong?

—Maria P.

A. Based on the information given in your letter, it seems you have all of the components in place to reach your goals. Aerobic and strength training partnered with proper nutrition are definitely keys to a successful fitness program and for seeing results.

Your concern is with losing "pounds," but that is a poor way to track your initial progress. A scale only tells how much something weighs; it does not know the difference between a person and a sack of potatoes.

When you embark on a fitness program that includes aerobic exercise and strength training, your body will begin to change, but your weight may not. The added muscle mass you develop as a result of strength training will lower your body fat, but might not make the scale move, due to the density of muscle. As your clothes get more comfortable, you'll know your body is changing for the better. The loss of pounds will follow.

Remember to stay consistent with your fitness program, and if possible, meet with a fitness or medical professional. He or she can go over your complete program, conduct a body composition analysis and offer suggestions as to the intensity and progression of your program.

When designing a fitness program, it is important to set more than one goal. Feeling better and sleeping better are wonderful goals to set. Climbing a flight of stairs without getting winded and losing a dress size are other realistic goals. Continue to work hard and don't become discouraged. Give yourself time to see change and know that all of your hard work is paying off.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates Achieves Top Clinical Quality

Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates, a multi-specialty physician group serving patients across eastern Massachusetts, announces its Quincy internal medicine and pediatrics practices achieved four-star ratings in clinical quality measures in the recently released Massachusetts Health Quality Partners (MHQP) 2007 Quality of Insights: Clinical Quality in Primary Care report.

Harvard Vanguard Quincy physicians scored at or above the 90th national percentile (four stars) in important preventive and chronic care measures including colon cancer, cervical cancer and breast cancer screening; cholesterol screening, hemoglobin testing, and kidney disease monitoring in adult diabetes care; appropriate use of medication for treating asthma in children; scheduling well visits for pediatric patients; and chlamydia screening in young women.

Harvard Vanguard is an affiliate of Atrius Health, an alliance of five medical groups collaborating to make it easier for patients to stay healthier, and preventive care is a key part of its mission.

MHQP is an independent, non-profit organization that collects and publicly reports statewide patient experience and clinical performance data for physicians to help improve the quality of health care services delivered to Massachusetts residents.

This year's report compares medical group performance for 17 of the quality measures developed by the National Committee for Quality Assurance to assess the quality of care delivered to members of health plans nationally.

Flavor Of Nectarines Now Found In Bottle Of Juice

(NAPS) — Here's the delicious news: You can now contemplate the next time you bite into a fresh nectarine and wish you could savor that taste all year round. You can now find the flavor of nectarines in a bottle of juice.

A patent-pending process means the manufacturer can extract the juice from the nectarine and bottle it so it preserves the great taste and nutrition of fresh nectarines all year round.

A nectarine is an all-natural version of the peach, and like peaches, was first cultivated in China. Nectarines were also grown in ancient Persia, Greece and Rome. Trade routes took the nectarine through Greece, where residents thought nectarine juice was so tantalizing they called it the "drink of the gods," or "nectar," the word from which nectarine is derived.

It's believed that the Spaniards brought the nectarine to the U.S. in the 19th century. The modern nectarine industry emerged in California in the 1950s when fragile, older varieties were crossed with peaches to develop harder, more flavorful fruit that could be shipped commercially.

Compared to peaches, nectarines generally have more red color in the skin, a rounder shape, smaller size, more sugars and a much higher density. They are available in both white and yellow varieties.

By drinking only 8 ounces of 100 percent nectarine juice a day, you'll get two of the five servings of fruit the USDA recommends. The juice is even sold near the fresh fruits in your supermarket's produce section.

Nectarine juice is preferred by many to orange juice for several reasons:

- It's less acidic than ordinary orange juice and the smooth, light and refreshing taste is easy to drink all day long.

- Nectarine juice is high in potassium, vitamin C, antioxidants and phytonutrients, rich in betacarotene, fat free, cholesterol free and contains malic acid, which helps muscle function.

- What's more, it offers less: An 8-ounce serving has only 90 calories, nearly 20 percent fewer than orange juice.

Called Sun Shower 100% Pure Pressed Nectarine Juice, it comes in 12-oz and 28-oz containers and in three flavors: Nectarine, Nectarine Berry and Nectarine Mango.

Get New School Year Off to Healthy Start

It's back-to-school season, which means families are busy with school year. In addition to stocking up on school supplies and helping your kids adjust to a new teacher, now is also an ideal time to schedule your child's annual health screenings.

With tips from Dr. Pamela F. Gallin, a pediatric ophthalmologist with the Morgan Stanley Children's Hospital of New York-Presbyterian and the author of "The Savvy Mom's Guide to Medical Care," let's look at ways to give your family a healthy start to a new school year.

First, have your child's vision screened. Young children often don't know if their vision is impaired, so a trip to the optometrist can diagnose any vision problems. If your child already wears glasses, make sure her prescription is correct. Children with untreated vision problems can struggle in the classroom, so don't let poor vision inhibit your child's learning.

On a similar note, have your child's hearing tested. If your child is listening to the television especially loud, or if he tends to favor listening with one ear over the other, it may be a sign of hearing loss.

Also, ensure that your children's immunizations are up-to-date. If you have moved, check state immunization requirements. Don't forget that some states are now requiring Hepatitis B immunizations.

If your child takes regular medication for a chronic condition, make sure that the school is aware of it. Talk to both the school nurse and your child's teacher about any medication requirements, and plan a course of action in case of an emergency.

Finally, check with your child's school to make sure that your emergency contact numbers are on file and up-to-date.

With these tips, the new school year can be a healthy and safe one for you and your family.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SEALING TEETH'S FATE

Parents are urged to have their children visit the dentist within six months of getting their first teeth and no later than their first birthdays. Early examinations are important for introducing parents and children to good hygiene habits, as well as for detecting decay. Everyone, including young children, need to floss because there is a buildup of bacteria-laden plaque around each tooth every 24 hours. Another very effective means of preventing tooth decay involves coating the chewing surfaces of the back teeth with a plastic resin known as a "sealant." The six-year molars are usually the first to be treated with sealants, but any tooth with a food-trapping fissure or groove is a good candidate for sealant.

Applying the sealant is a simple and painless process. Sealants can protect the teeth from decay for up to 10 years, but they need to be checked for chipping or wearing at regular check-ups. We would like to increase dental awareness and stress the importance of regular dental care. We stress preventive dentistry for the whole family. Remember that nothing is more economical than regular dental checkups. For gentle, compassionate dental care, call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. There are a number of flossing aids that make it easier for children to floss regularly and effectively.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might not like the sudden setback in your plans. But keep that headstrong Arian temper in check and wait for explanations. Things will begin to clear up by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Enjoy the respite from your recent hectic schedule, but be ready to plunge into a new round of social activities. A new contact holds much potential for the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A trusted colleague has news that could change your perception of a current workplace situation. What had seemed unfair might prove to be highly favorable after all.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You still need to watch what you say and how you say it. What you assert as honesty, others might perceive as Crabbiness. Be patient. This difficult period clears up by the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Royalties needs time away from the limelight to catch up on things, from tidying your desk to making those calls you've put off. You're back in the center of things by the weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Honesty is the best policy, of course. But you'll do better at achieving your goals if you can be less aggressive and more circumspect in how you phrase your comments.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your ability to maintain your balance in confusing situations continues to work for you. Stay on the steady course, one step at a time. The weekend shows improvement.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your indecisiveness could simply be your keen Scorpion sense warning you to be wary of making a commitment. Take this time to do a more thorough investigation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Good news: New information comes your way to help you make a more informed decision on how to deal with the opportunity that has opened up for you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a good time to reinforce your self-confidence by acknowledging your good qualities to yourself. A lull in your social life ends by the weekend. Have fun.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good time to let those recently pent-up emotions flow more freely. Why not start by letting the people you care for know how you really feel about them.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Resist offers, no matter how well-intentioned, to help with a personal decision. Only you know what must be done, and you have the emotional strength to follow through.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a talent for getting things done. You also have a gift for bringing people together in both personal and professional relationships.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

So much of what we hear about somebody is usually exaggerated. To repeat it only adds further exaggeration. Mark Twain once said that "A lie can travel around the world while the truth is still lacing up its boots."

A wit once wise-cracked, "Nothing is opened more by mistake than the mouth." It was meant in jest but is also has a serious meaning. For instance, can anyone honestly say he has never said the wrong thing at the wrong time? Hardly. When a faux-pas like that happens, one regrets it. An unthinking slip of the tongue can happen to anyone. It is understandable. However, an outright lie - especially an untrue or unconfirmed rumor spoken behind the back of someone... is not a slip of the tongue. Malicious gossip can malign, tragically taint or ruin a person's reputation and is inexcusable.

We especially like this quote that is attributed to Dr. Henry Van Dyke... "Never believe anything bad about anybody unless you positively know it is true; never tell even that, unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary and that God is listening while you tell it."

Professional Networking Group Meets At Marina Bay

The Professional Networking Group (PNG), a South Shore based referral organization, meets Wednesday mornings from 7 to 8:30 a.m. in the Cafeteria at 500 Victory Rd., Marina Bay, North Quincy.

Comedy Night Benefit At Granite Links

Bay State Community Services, Inc., will present a night of comedy featuring Lenny Clarke and his Troupe of Boston Comedians Thursday, Oct. 18 at the Granite Links Golf Club, 100 Quarry Hills Dr., Quincy.

Welcome reception begins at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m.

As part of the evening of appreciation, Bay State Community Services will honor some of the people who have helped the organization become a vital community resource.

Honorees include Carol Lee Griffin, a founding board member; and Ralph Yohe, current board member and president of the South Shore YMCA.

Attendees will also have the opportunity to take part in silent and live auctions.

Tickets are $100 each and a table of 10 may be reserved for $1,000.

Corporate sponsorships are also available. All donations are tax-deductible.

Send checks payable to "Bay State Community Services," c/o Gail Bork to Bay State Community Services, Inc., 13 Temple St., Quincy, MA 02169.

For more information, contact Gail Bork at 617-471-8400 ext. 184.

Visitors may attend the meetings free.

The networking program provides an opportunity for business owners and professionals to meet each week to exchange ideas, referrals and other information.

To attend a meeting, call Jerry O'Dwyer at Computer TX, 617-479-0012.

funding construction and repairs at Neponset Bridge and contributing funds to Quincy Center revitalization plans.

Phelan cited not only the new construction jobs and business opportunities that will now open up for the city but, particularly the increase in the commercial tax base that such new businesses will bring.

"This is good news for our residential taxpayers," Phelan said, adding that "a portion of the tax base will shift more toward the commercial side."

Davis described the difficult traffic situation at Crown Colony, especially in the winter, and said the project was an example of "everybody working together."

He predicted that a new Flowers Warehouse would open in the area now that the project is underway.

Cohen said the ramp project and the overpass would "mitigate traffic congestion in this corridor" and allow for more development. He also called the project an example of "Smart Growth," as there is regular free T shuttle service to and from Crown Colony to the Quincy T Station on Bingham Parkway. Cohen said it is important to invest in public transportation.

Cohen and others called the ramp project "an example of private public partnership."

Cohen cited the coalition of elected officials and private business leaders led by business magnate Tom Hatley of The Hatley Companies.

"Without their contributions, we wouldn't be here today," said Cohen.

of the private investors.

On hand representing the Flatley Company was Vice President John Roche who said, prior to the ceremony, that the private coalition under Flatley's leadership raised "over $2 million for the initial engineering."

"What Mr. Flatley was able to do was put in the seed money with other members of Crown Colony business community," said Roche.

Paiwonsky called the Crown Colony project one of the state's top three priorities when she became Massachusetts Commissioner. She also praised the dozen members of the project's construction crew in white hard hats who joined the 30 business, state and city leaders at the groundbreaking.

parents need to get back into their good traffic safety habits." He offered several tips from their Safety Information Center.

Tips for Walking or Biking to School

- Walk with a friend.
- Pay attention to all traffic signals and crossing guards. Never cross the street against a stoplight.
- Look left, right, and over your shoulder for traffic before crossing a street, and continue to check each direction.
- Make sure drivers see you by making eye contact with them.
- If riding a bicycle, scooter or skateboard to school always wear a helmet and ride in the same direction as traffic. Walk your bike if crossing a street.

Tips for School Bus Riders

- Do not play in the street while waiting for the bus.
- Line up facing the bus, not along side it.
- After getting off the bus, move out of traffic.
- Wait for the bus driver to signal you to cross the street. Walk away from the front of the bus so the driver can see you.

Tips for Parents & Drivers

- Everyone should wear a seatbelt, and children should be in age and size appropriate car seats.
- Stay focused on driving and don't be distracted by kids in the car or with other activities.
- Slow down in school zones. Driving just 5 MPH over the speed limit increases both the risk of hitting a child and the severity of any injuries.

- You never know if children crossing the street are paying attention, so remain stopped until the child has crossed not only your lane of traffic, but the adjacent lane as well.
- Never pass a vehicle that has stopped at a crosswalk, as they may be waiting for someone to cross.
- Do not pass a school bus when its red lights are flashing, even if it is on the other side of the street.
- Use extra care in areas where children may enter the road from between parked vehicles or other things that block drivers' view of the road. And, watch out for bicycles.

Solemn Ceremonies At Fire Stations

City Sadly Observes 9/11 Sixth Anniversary

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Firefighters and observers saluted Tuesday as Firefighter Mark Wipfler lowered the flag at the Central Fire Station during the department's formal ceremonies marking the sixth anniversary of the 9/11 terrorist attack.

Across the city, there were similar scenes at each of the department's eight fire stations as firefighters stood outside at their stations, observed silence and then listened, by transmitter, to the same prayer, at the same time as the firefighters at headquarters.

The ceremonies honored the 2,752 American civilians, firefighters and police officers who were killed at the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, and in the crash of Flight 93, downed in Shanksville, PA.

At department headquarters, Deacon John Menz, Jr., chaplain of the Quincy Police Department and a former firefighter, offered prayers for all 9/11 victims and, then, read the firefighter's prayer.

His prayers were transmitted by loudspeaker to all the city's firefighters and to the participants at headquarters. Firefighters throughout the city heard the same prayer at the same time and prayed with Menz and their fellow officers and

Three New Fire Engines To Be Delivered In Fall

The Quincy Fire Department will be receiving three new fire engines this fall, as part of the City's five-year Capital Improvement Plan.

"Through sound financial planning, we can better identify and allocate the resources we have available," said Mayor Phelan who made the announcement with Fire Chief Tim Pettinelli. "The five-year plan allows us to best spend our resources in areas that they are most-needed. The new fire engines are a vital component to our plan."

The three new Typhoon Emergency One engines will replace three engines that are approximately 25 years old in combined age. The old engines will be cannibalized and used as spare engines in cases of emergency.

Other improvements recommended by the study have been implemented. Management Contract and Capital Improvement Plan have allowed for major improvements at each and every one of Quincy's fire stations. Standard Operational Guidelines are being developed for various response scenarios. The Fire Department has been training Rapid Intervention Teams to improve firefighter safety.

"I want to thank the Fire Study Committee and the members of the Quincy Fire Department for all the work they do," said Phelan. "I believe that we have one of the finest fire department around and that is a result of the members of our department."

'A Place Of Their Own' At Merrymount Park

Seniors Complex Planned

Mayor William Phelan plans Quincy's first comprehensive senior center in Merrymount Park.

Phelan unveiled conceptual plans Monday night at the city's Parks and Recreation Board to bring a senior center and intergenerational complex to the current home of the Park and Recreation Departments within the park.

"Quincy's senior population has long been underrepresented in our park system and in the services that we provide that particular population," said Phelan.

With such a large, active population of Quincy seniors, we should provide a place for seniors to take classes, exercise, socialize and enjoy the sun and the natural beauty.

"People are retiring, more active and want to live in their golden years and have access to the city's downtown. The central location is perfect and one that our seniors will enjoy."

The city of Quincy has issued a request for qualifications. RFQ is now in effect to select a design architect to design the complex. An architect is expected to be chosen within the next 30 days.

The new center will consider using the existing buildings while contemplating

'Leadership Now' Plan

Koch Aims At Traffic Problems, Overdevelopment

Mayor William Phelan's Leadership Now plan with a series of proposals to bring huge multi-unit developments in neighborhoods and to overhaul traffic systems across the city.

"We will tackle the challenges our city faces head-on, and traffic and overdevelopment are two of the most serious," Koch said. "We can no longer wait for a crisis to deal with our problems. We need leadership, and that is exactly what I intend to provide"

Board Places Restaurant Violation On File

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board at Tuesday's meeting placed on file a violation by Acapulco's Restaurant, 1388 Hancock St. for one year.

Officer Michael Keenan and Lt. Peter Turowski told the board that on Aug. 15, at 2 a.m. persons were observed coming out of the restaurant and three persons inside with bottles of beer and half full drinks still on the bar.

Keenan said he tried to get in the restaurant, and knocked on the doors and windows and no one answered. Finally the fire department was called and got in. Persons inside said they did not hear the knocking.

The manager, Edgar Moreno told the board that the night in question was his night off and that the bartender/assistant manager was supposed to close the bar. Moreno said he "was sorry" and said he "felt bad" that it happened, but "I wasn't there."

When Health Commissioner Drew Scheele made the motion to place the violation on file, Police Chief Robert Crowley said that the motion did not send a message to Acapulco's and made a motion to issue a one day suspension with one day suspended.

However, Crowley's motion did not get a second, so Scheele's motion passed on a 4-1 vote with Crowley opposing.

Crowley said he did not believe that the persons inside did not hear the knocking on the door and windows. He said the "responsibility and liability is enormous when persons are drinking after 1 a.m."

Chairman Joseph Shea said if Acapulco's has another violation within the year, it faces a stiffer penalty.

LICENSE BOARD BRIEFS

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

• Granted a one day permit for the annual Leisure/Fun Walk to benefit the American Lung Association, Sunday Oct. 14 starting at Pageant Field at 10 a.m. and returning at 2 p.m.

• Continued until Sept. 25 a request of Mike Miller, doing business as Body Extremes, 417 Hancock St. to hold a back yard tour to benefit the Squantum PTO Oct. 16 through Oct. 31. Board members told Miller the location would cause too much traffic and to try to find another area.

• Granted a change of managers at Torre Dei Passeri Social Club, 252 Washington St. from James Papile to Joseph Puopolo.

• Continued a hearing regarding a request from Antonio Pereira Rosa for a common victualer license at 527 Washington St.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond requested the continuance.

• Granted a permit to Lucia Treggiari for the 4th Annual Chowder Festival at Marina Bay Skilled Nursing & Rehabilitation Center Sunday, Sept. 23 from 2 to 4 p.m. It will benefit the Quincy Council On Aging.

223 Affordable Units For Seniors

The Moorings A Reality – At Last

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Some 200 people applauded Congressman William Delahunt and state and city leaders Tuesday as they officially celebrated the opening of The Moorings at Squantum Garden.

Built on 14-acres at the former Squantum Naval Air Station, the Moorings offers 223 units of affordable housing for adults, age 55 and over.

Speakers repeatedly described the decade long struggle to make the dream a reality.

During those early years, plans, funding offers, and developers came and failed, then came and failed again. By the time of its completion, the project cost nearly $50 million in public and private funds.

"It's been a very, very tough project," said Catherine Racer of the Massachusetts Department of Housing Community and Development (MDHCD).

On her first visit, Racer said, "The place looked so desolate." At the time, she realized that the planners would have to work with the Department of Defense and she thought, "This is going to make HUD look like a picnic."

Delahunt was repeatedly praised for his dedication to the project and his key actions in clearing the bureaucratic hurdles in Washington.

It's been a "long saga," said Delahunt, adding there's been "a lot of pain. That makes the day of celebration that much sweeter."

Delahunt commended the developer Edward A. Fish, President of E.A. Fish Associates, LLC, for the project's final success where others had failed.

"For him, it's not just a business deal, but a quality of life issue," Delahunt said.

The crowd was delighted when Delahunt told them to save him a unit as he now has his own Medicare card. "I'm eligible."

Delahunt told the audience that moving to The Moorings would be a "major upgrade" for him in contrast to his rundown apartment in Washington. Delahunt's untidy housekeeping habits were recently spotlighted in a humorous television exposure.

"Everyone is happy to be here," said Mayor William Phelan who called the history of The Moorings development "a long hard road."

Phelan told the residents to "...enjoy the million dollar views," then noted they have the same million dollar views as the top-end condominiums and townhouses built less than a quarter mile away at Marina Bay.

"These buildings were a challenge," said Fish who chaired the event. The audience applauded when Fish recognized former Mayor James Sheets' "hard work and determination in undertaking the project."

Fish said he was, also, proud to work with Delahunt and Phelan. He then cited the contributions of Senator Michael Morrissey, Rep. Bruce Ayers and Ward 6 City Councillor Brian McNamee as well as Tom Largey, Phelan's Executive Secretary, and Jay MacRitchie, Director of the Quincy Housing Authority.

"It took a lot of years," said Archie Wahlberg, Director of Elder Housing Corporation. "I thank Mayor Sheets who started the project and Mayor Phelan. We didn't have any money. We had to do it on the cuff."

Thomas Gleason, Director of the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA), called the Moorings "a flagship, a place of security for Quincy seniors who have served us in so many ways."

Looking for a great local bank?

Have all the great local banks disappeared? Absolutely not! We're Colonial Federal Savings Bank – an independent local bank with no plans to merge. We keep things simple and we treat customers right. For example: We don't make you open multiple accounts to get our best deals. We don't make you give us your life savings to get a great rate on a CD. If you have a question, you talk to us – not some out-of-state call center. And most of our people have been with us for years, so they know what they're talking about. We offer every banking service from old-fashioned Christmas Clubs to state-of-the-art online banking, free checking, mortgages, business banking and more. We've been part of the South Shore community since 1889. And we think it's our job to make it easy for you to bank with us. Had it with big banks? Come see us! THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 14, 1814, Francis Scott Key composes the lyrics to "The Star-Spangled Banner." Set to the tune of "To Anacreon in Heaven," an English drinking song, it soon became popular throughout the nation. It was formally designated as the national anthem in 1916 after President Woodrow Wilson signed an executive order.

• On Sept. 11, 1847, "Oh! Susanna," by Stephen Foster, is performed for the first time in a Pittsburgh saloon and soon became a standard for minstrel troupes. Foster wrote several other classic popular songs, including "Old Folks at Home" and "Beautiful Dreamer."

• On Sept. 12, 1912, plans are unveiled for a 3,000-mile gravel road that would stretch from New York to California. When private funding fell through, another project was begun and completed using $1.7 million in federal funds. The paved road was christened the Lincoln Highway, which was the predecessor to Route 66.

• On Sept. 10, 1933, entertainer Jimmy Durante's radio show debuts. The show enjoyed a long run, staying on the air until 1950. Durante was nicknamed "Schnozzola" for his large nose.

• On Sept. 15, 1950, U.S. Marines land at Inchon on the west coast of Korea, 100 miles south of the 38th parallel and just 25 miles from Seoul, cutting North Korean forces in two. Allied forces then converged from the north and the south, taking 125,000 enemy troops prisoner.

• On Sept. 13, 1965, legendary jazz trumpeter and singer Louis Armstrong wins the Best Male Vocalist Grammy for "Hello, Dolly!" Armstrong was born in New Orleans in 1901 and learned to play the cornet at the Colored Waifs Home.

• On Sept. 16, 1977, celebrated soprano Maria Callas dies in Paris at the age of 53. The diva had divorced her husband of many years after becoming involved with Greek shipping tycoon Aristotle Onassis, who later left her when he fell in love with the widowed Jackie Kennedy.

Those Five Unopposed Council Seats

Has the ward councillor seat lost its old political lure?

Where are the candidates that once were willing to take on an incumbent even though the odds were against them?

This year, for the second election in a row, five ward councillors have no opposition. Re-elected even before the election is held.

The five running unopposed:

Leo Kelly (Ward 1), Dan Raymondi (Ward 2), Kevin Coughlin (Ward 3), Jay Davis (Ward 4), and Doug Gutro (Ward 5).

The same five were unopposed in the 2005 election.

Only Brian McNamee, seeking his second term, has an opponent: Jimmy Liang, who twice has run for an at-Large seat.

Ward 6 also had the only ward race in 2005. That was for the seat Alicia Gardner left after one term. McNamee defeated Mark Bracken to succeed her.

The 2003 election may have been the first sign of the apparent lack of interest in running for a ward seat.

That was when Bryan Connolly decided not to seek re-election in Ward 4, a long-time political hot bed.

An open seat in Ward 4 was bound to set off a rush to City Hall for nomination papers everyone thought. But it didn't.

Davis was the only candidate. Imagine, an open seat in Ward 4 and just one candidate walking in to claim it. Davis was unopposed for re-election two years later and again this year.

"There seems to be a growing lack of interest for people to run for public office," says former Mayor Frank McCauley.

Many, he thinks, may not have the time to campaign or the time to serve. "Maybe they are too busy trying to make a living," he adds.

Voters appear to be losing interest, too.

The 2001, 2003 and 2005 city elections are indicators. Despite the William Phelan-James Sheets mayoral thriller in 2001, the voter turnout was only 47 percent. Some 61 to 63 percent was expected.

In 2003 with a mayoral race (Phelan-Joseph Newton) the turnout was 35 percent. And only 25 percent turned out in 2005 with no mayor's race but two open council seats and three open school committee seats.

But the lack of contenders for ward council seats makes you wonder.

Could it be the incumbents are doing their job so well, so no reason to run against them? Or does it take too much time and money to challenge them?

Is it the fact that ward councillor is the toughest elective office outside of the mayor's?

They are the closest to their constituents. They live in the same ward and are easy to catch up to at church, the drugstore, supermarket, etc.

And, of course, by phone.

If a ward councillor doesn't return phone calls he (she) isn't going to be the ward councillor very long.

No matter how small the problem may be, it's big to the constituent and he wants his ward councillor to return the call and try to do something to solve the problem.

There have been several former ward councillors who discovered that too late.

A ward council seat is considered the first stepping stone to a political career.

But fewer and fewer seem interested in taking it.

IF YOU LIKE to keep track of what the candidates spent this election year you'll have to wait longer than usual.

Because there is no preliminary election action for mayor, city council and school committee, the deadline for candidates to file their contributions and expenditure reports has been moved to Oct. 29, notes City Clerk Joe Shea.

Ordinarily, there would have been a preliminary election report due in September.

QUITE A FEW brownish lawns around the city due to the lack of rain. But some of them will soon be getting what you might call "a little color."

As of last Saturday, residents can now plant political campaign signs on their lawn in support of their favorite candidates.

Signs can't vote, of course, but they are seen as sort of indicators of political strength. The more signs, the stronger the candidate.

So, they say.

SUSAN AND FRANK Strazzulla of Hull are eagerly awaiting the Boston area showing of the movie "STIFFS" starring Danny Aiello.

They are extras in a wedding scene shot at Joe Tecce's restaurant on North Washington Street in Boston.

"We just hope we didn't wind up on the cutting room floor," says the former Susan Byrnes who grew up in North Quincy.

She and her husband are the parents of Dr. Domenico Strazzulla, Quincy ophthalmologist.

Quincy's Sal Giarattani and Paul Picariello are also extras in the movie as reported earlier. And hope they survived the scissors.

THAT DOWNTOWN peanut store of the 1940s continues to bring back memories.

Latest is Marie LoCicero of West Quincy who remembers it on Hancock Street across from the old Lincoln's store.

And she recalls Mr. Peanut spooning out hot peanuts to passersby in front of the Planter's Peanuts store, hoping to get them to go into the store and buy some.

THIS IS A 1916 postcard view of what was then the Atlantic Memorial Congregational Church on the corner of Newbury Avenue and Sagamore Street in North Quincy. Built in 1910, this seam-face granite building replaced the original wooden church that was erected here in 1885. In 1994, the congregation began sharing this church building with a Pentecostal church group that called itself The Lord's Planting. In 2002, the two church groups merged and this is now known as the Evangelical Church of Atlantic. Low Turnout Seen For Primary Election

By FRANK McCAULEY

A sparse 20 percent of Quincy's 46,904 registered voters are expected to participate in Tuesday's state primary election, according to City Clerk John M. Gillis.

Gillis said that he expects the vast majority of the 9,000 who do get to the polls will be Democrats.

Quincy Republicans aren't expected to turnout in any semblance of force because there are no contests and only three candidates on the ballot.

Traffic traveled both ways on Temple Street in Quincy Center for the first time in almost a quarter of a century.

Cars were detoured around United First Parish Church along Washington and Temple Streets in a test of traffic flow as a preliminary to the establishment of a "People's Park" at City Hall.

Mayor Walter Hannon said he felt the project was "going pretty well." While Rep. Joseph E. Brett labeled the proposal a "needless expense."

READERS FORUM

Criticizes Police Chief

I am writing in response to the recent article concerning the actions of Quincy Police Chief Robert Crowley, who recently suspended an officer under his command for having an expired driver's license. There is no doubt that the officer should not have been driving and should be disciplined for having an expired license. The reasonable response would have been to inform the officer his license had expired and then discipline the officer for his infraction. Instead when the chief learned the officer's license had expired he set a trap to catch the officer behind the wheel. It is difficult, under any circumstances, to support Chief Crowley's actions in this instance. No professional and responsible manager would handle this situation in the vindictive and underhanded fashion Chief Crowley chose. Setting a deliberate trap for the officer exacerbated the situation as evidenced by the Patrolman's Union subsequent criminal complaint against the Chief.

The Chief chose a very odd course of action and seems to have taken a rather routine matter and turned it into an embarrassing fiasco. The Chief's actions really cause me to question if his personal feelings and rancorous relationship with the Police Union have compromised his judgement and ability to responsibly direct the Quincy Police Department.

As a resident of Quincy, I find his behavior bizarre, disturbing and bordering on dishonest. In any town, not just Quincy, a police chief has a lot of discretion in the performance of his job and the decisions he makes directly effect the Public. If he would treat one of his own men this way it really causes me to wonder how his dealings with the public would be. I think a chief of police should conduct himself with a lot more integrity than Chief Crowley has demonstrated in this instance.

Praise For Fire Department's Response To Faxon Park Fires

This letter is an open letter of thanks to the Quincy Fire Department. Countless firefighters have been battling the endless brush fires in Faxon Park for the past few weeks. These fires have been flaring up and at times raging at all hours of the day and night throughout the park, most notably in the area of Alton Road.

Acres of forest have been scorched and at times the flames have been only yards behind residents' homes. It has been an uncomfortable and, at times, a frightening experience for the neighborhood. Many residents had little sleep keeping one eye open for the next flare up and their children have been tremendously frightened.

Through all this, the QFD has responded repeatedly to every call. They have been professional, extremely patient and reassuring to the residents. Their calm demeanor has calmed many residents' fears. Witnessing these men trekking into the thick brush at all times of the day and night through heat and smoke, burning trees, unsure footing, limited visibility—very frightful conditions—should remind us all of the great service they provide.

The recent tragic death of two Boston firefighters underscores the great peril these men place themselves in to save our lives and property and how quickly and tragically life can change

So, from all the residents in our neighborhood that you have answered the call for, extinguished the fire, calmed the nerves and said, "just call us again if you smell smoke," we all say thank you. You have been wonderful thank you!

Residents of Alton Road,
Quincy

Third Annual Houghs Neck 'Chowdafest' Saturday

The Houghs Neck Community Council will hold its third annual Reunion Chowdafest Saturday, Sept. 15, from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Ave.

"This is quickly becoming a neighborhood tradition and is an event not to be missed," said Council President Margaret LaForest.

"We encourage all current and former Houghs Neck residents to attend.

"We are expecting a large crowd and recommend purchasing tickets in advance. We have an express admission line for pre-purchased tickets as well. Tickets will be available at the door."

The Chowdafest will have two categories of competition: restaurants and individuals.

Contributing restaurants include Berne's General Store, the Inn at Bay Pointe, The Irish Pub, Kelly's Landing, Louis Crossing, Wood Road Deli and more.

The winning restaurant will be presented with a perpetual trophy to be displayed on its premises and a complementary advertisement in the Council's October Bulletin.

The individual winner will receive a plaque and a cash prize.

Tickets for the Chowdafest are $5 per adult when purchased in advance from any member of the Houghs Neck Community Council. Admission is free for children under 12.

Proceeds will benefit the many civic activities of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Admission includes sampling of 20 chowder entries and a vote for Houghs Neck's Favorite Chowder.

Capt. Steve Holler of the fishing vessel November Gale will have steamed lobsters with drawn butter for sale at $10 each.

The event will feature a cash bar and entertainment and, for the first time this year, a Houghs Neck History Exhibit.

Anyone interested in lending photos or other memorabilia for the exhibit should contact President LaForest.

For more information, contact LaForest at 617-471-1806 or Judy Morris at 617-479-8367.

Quincy Elks Host Hospitalized Veterans On Harbor Cruise

Hospitalized veterans were treated by the Quincy Elks to a tour of Boston Harbor and a cookout on George's Island recently, continuing a tradition that was born 43 years ago.

The annual event was started 43 years ago by the captain's father, the late Dick Sutherland, and was continued by his son after the elder Sutherland's death.

After a scenic tour of Boston Harbor, The Irene docked at George's Island, where the Rangers had reserved an area for their cookout.

The veterans were entertained by Exalted Ruler Paul Tracey; his three chair officers, Jim Folk, Ben Wilcopen and Charlie Towers; and Past Exalted Rulers Walter O'Connell, Ted Naser and Sean McCardle.

Also members Paul Barry, Gary Spring and Ray Minigan, assisted by VA Chairman Tom Shepherd.

The day ended with a tour of Fort Warren on George's Island and each veteran received a T-shirt, baseball cap and pen.

Cuban Film Shown At Library Sept. 20

The recently released Cuban-made film "Viva Cuba" will be screened free of charge Thursday, Sept. 20, at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Prospective viewers are assured by the MSNBC News Channel and the Associated Press that "Viva Cuba" isn't a political film — it's a human one."

The film tells the story of star-crossed lovers Malu and Jorgito, who share a bond that transcends their families' disparate economic backgrounds, but their parents don't approve.

When Malu's mother plans to leave Cuba, the children run away and travel to the other side of the island to find Malu's father and persuade him against signing the forms that would allow it.

Although the film is not rated by the Motion Picture Association, it is not recommended for ages under 17 without parent permission.

Films for the series are obtained through the library's membership in "Film Movement," the exclusive distributor of curator-selected films from the world's top film festivals, including Cannes and Sundance.

For more information, call 617-376-1301 or visit thomascranelibrary.org.

Nationally recognized pianist Brady Millican will perform Beethoven's "Diabelli" Variations at a free concert Friday, Sept. 14, at 7 p.m. in the Edith F. Cove Fine Arts Center at Eastern Nazarene College, 23 East

Elm St. Wollaston.

The "Diabelli" Variation is dedicated to Antonie Brentano, the woman many identify as the mysterious "Immortal Beloved." Beethoven mentions in his private letters.

Millican, a professor of music at ENC, will perform the piece and explain how each portion describes a different element of her fiery and passionate personality that captured the composer.

Millican, who has performed at the White House for Rosalyn Carter and on 10 tours of western Europe, has taught at ENC since 1979 as well as lectured at Harvard, Wellesley and Fuller Theological Seminary.

An Appeal To Asian-Americans

Dear Asian-Americans;

To those who are involved in making their communities better, we are grateful for your efforts, and appreciate them.

To those who aren't, please get involved. If you want your neighborhood to be or continue to be safe; if you want your schools to be or continue to be good places to learn; if you want your streets to be or continue to be clean, participate. If you want something done, you must raise your voice and let it be heard. Don't depend on others to do everything. Clean streets, good schools, safe neighborhoods are the result of people participation and hard work.

We Asian-Americans have been stereotyped as quiet and docile, saying

"yes" and obeying whatever comes our way. And, to a degree, it's true. If you want to change this, make yourselves heard, seen...participate.

Where Were You?

On the evening of Sept. 6 my husband and I attended a public meeting regarding the MWRA's Southern Spine Distribution Mains Project which entails the installation of a new 48" water main from Quarry Street/Furnace Brook Parkway up to East Milton Square.

Since this project affects both Quincy and Milton residents, both were invited to attend the meeting. Granted we received notice only one day before the meeting, but there were a few residents and business owners from both Quincy and Milton, but we can only imagine the attendance if more notice was given.

In attendance at the meeting, was Deputy Richard

Wells of the Milton Police Department who was there to address Milton citizens' concerns regarding traffic flow and safety. Also in attendance from the town of Milton were three members of the Planning Board. They have requested that the MWRA have more police detail than what they were planning for to help facilitate the traffic flow through Willard Street/Granite Street area.

Our question to our Quincy politicians and our Police Department—where were you? Living on Quarry Street across from the contractor's (P. Caliacco Corp.) staging area/office, we have some concerns regarding this project and there was no one from the City of Quincy to answer our questions or to assure us that the safety and best interests of Quincy residents are kept in mind during this 14-month project.

We feel that the City of Quincy has let us down in this respect and will be thinking long and hard before casting our votes during the upcoming election.

Responds
To Giarrantani's Letter

Since moving to Quincy six years ago I have been a steady reader of The Sun and as such have scanned the many letters to the editor from the prolific Sal Giarrantani and have even agreed with some of his opinions.

But I never thought I would one day be the subject of a personal attack.

I wrote to The Sun expressing my opposition to a proposal by mayoral candidate Tom Koch that the current licensing board be replaced by members appointed by the mayor. I said it was a senseless proposal and I stand by that...it is indeed senseless...and I would have said the same thing had Mayor Phelan proposed it. Yet, Mr. Giarrantani took this as a personal attack against Mr. Koch.

Mr. Giarrantani said my letter "was nothing more than an ad hominem attack on Tom Koch, rather than a real discussion of the issue." Sorry, but that is absolutely untrue. If Mr. Giarrantani would take the time to reread my letter he will see that no where in it did I attack or say anything derogatory re-Mr. Koch: it was the proposal I was...and am...against, not Mr. Koch.

I do not Mr. Koch and I have never met him. I have absolutely nothing against him and would never, never personally attack or belittle him or any other candidate. As a matter of fact, I admire anyone who will put his personal life on the line to run for public office.

But this doesn't mean I do not have the right to disagree or criticize any of his policies and proposals. Actually, I appreciate the fact that Mr. Koch has come out with a concrete proposal by which the community can judge the potential of his possible administration. We have a record of accomplishments by which we can judge Mayor Phelan, but need more concrete, positive proposals by Mr. Koch to make the same unbiased judgement.

I want to state here that I do not know either Mr. Koch or Mayor Phelan personally. The only time I met the Mayor was at a large reception in which I was one of hundreds who received a passing handshake from him. I doubt very much that he even knows I exist.

The main thrust of Mr. Giarrantani's complaint implied that my letter was, and I quote directly, "dirty politics, tactics unbecoming off a positive outlook on politics, government and the upcoming mayoral race." I disagreed with Mr. Giarrantani's opinion so, ergo, I am indulging in dirty politics? Come on Sal, if you are allowed to state your opinion so often, why is it considered dirty politics when others do the same?

I agree totally with Mr. Giarrantani's belief that this should be a mayoral campaign about issues, not personalities. Let's keep it that way.

Quincy ArtsFest Set For Weekend

The Quincy ArtsFest will be held this weekend at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway (Route 3A).

Hours for the city's annual tribute to the arts are Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is free.

The event is made possible through the support of the city of Quincy and award-winning Quincy Access Television, the main corporate sponsor for the fourth straight year.

"The city of Quincy is proud to support an event that features some of the finest artistic talent in the region," said Mayor William Phelan.

"I extend my thanks to Quincy Access Television for their continued support of this events and commend their efforts and the success they continue to experience in the field of visual arts."

Awards will be presented in multiple categories, including a $500 prize for the top honor, Best in Show.

This year's display boasts more than 500 entries from the finest artists and photographers from the South Shore and Greater Boston area.

In addition to the art exhibit, there will be live entertainment throughout the weekend. The complete entertainment schedule includes:

SATURDAY
10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. - Caricature artists.

11 a.m. - Dumbo & Jumbo's Clown Magic.

Dumbo and Jumbo stroll through the crowd with some of their feathered and furry friends while performing their miraculous balloon twisting, slight-of-hand antics.

12 noon to 2 p.m. - Java Jive.

After rave reviews at this summer's "Arts in the Park" concert series, Quincy favorite Java Jive returns to the main stage at ArtsFest performing a range of songs and styles spanning the past 70 years.

2:30 to 4 p.m. - Riverside Theatreworks.

Join this charming group of exceptionally talented young folks as they sing and dance their way through the Great American Songbook.

SUNDAY

11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. - Caricature artists.

12 noon - Forbes School of Irish Dance.

Perennial favorite Forbes School of Irish Dance brings 30 to 40 children and an Irish flare to the main stage. The youthful energy of the young dancers is contagious.

1 to 3 p.m. - Bernie Allain

Join Bernie Allain on vocals, guitar and harmonica for an entertaining afternoon of Country & Western, Folk, Gospel and Popular Music. Bernie will be performing music for all ages including selections from his CD, "Rambling' Man."

Children's activities will occur all weekend, including mini sailboat decorating, pumpkin decorating, ornament design and much more.

There will be a food court at the event, featuring pizza, hot dogs, popcorn and other treats and refreshments.

Additionally, close to 20 local crafters will have their wares on display, raffles will be conducted and select artwork will be available for purchase.

Art demonstrations will take place throughout the weekend focusing on watercolor, portraits, pastels and pottery.

"I strongly encourage residents to join me in participating in the family-oriented, weekend-long celebration of the arts in beautiful Merrymount Park," said Phelan.

The 10th annual Quincy ArtsFest officially kick-off with an invitation-only awards reception Friday evening.

For more information, contact the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1251.

BEST SEAT in the house on a 90-plus degree Saturday afternoon is occupied by Darren Koss atop the dunk tank set up by the Morrisette Legion Post at the South Quincy Italian Festival to raise funds to send the "things we taken for granted" to the troops serving in Afghanistan and Iraq. Frequent dunkings plus the sale of baked goods and raffles raised a goodly sum of money with donations still coming in.

At Quincy Temple Corps Sept. 21-23 Salvation Army's Former World Leader Will Conduct Seminar Here

Salvation Army members will welcome former world leader General Bramwell H. Tillsley to Quincy where he will conduct a three-day seminar entitled "Life In The Spirit" beginning Friday, Sept. 21.

The meetings are scheduled Friday at 7 p.m., and Saturday, Sept. 22 (lunch provided) from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. with a Holiness Meeting at 10:30 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 23 at the Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St.

Local leaders consider the visit by General Tillsley and his wife, General Maude Tillsley, an exceptional honor as this marks the first time that any worldwide leader of the Salvation Army has visited this area.

In 1993 and 1994, General Tillsley led the worldwide Army in 115 countries. He was the 14th General to hold this responsibility.

"He's one of the finest teachers of holy living that I've been taught by," said Major Douglas Jones who heads the local Salvation Army with his wife, Major Linda Jones.

Both local leaders were trained at The Salvation Army School for Officers' Training in Suffern, NY under the leadership of the Tillsleys. The Tillsleys served at the Training School from 1974 until 1977.

General Tillsley entered the Salvation Army Training College with his wife Maude (Pitcher) as a cadet in the "Swordbearers" session in 1955.

COA In Need Of Bath Seats

The Council on Aging is in urgent need for bath seats for senior citizens.

If you have one to donate, call the COA at 617-376-1245.

GENERAL and MRS. BRAMWELL TILLSLEY

The Tillsleys served together as corps officers in Nova Scotia and Ontario before joining the staff of the William Booth Memorial Training College in Toronto. They also served in the United States' Eastern Territory based in New York.

After his promotion to lieutenant colonel, General Tillsley served the Canada and Bermuda Territory. In 1981, he was appointed Principal of the William Booth Memorial Training College in London.

In 1985, General Tillsley was chosen Chief Secretary, U.S.A. Southern Territory. He served in Australia before his 1991 appointment as Chief of Staff at International Headquarters. L

On April 28, 1993, the High Council elected General Tillsley to succeed General Eva Burrows. He retired in May of 1994 due to health concerns.

Mrs. General Tillsley, a Registered Nurse, has been actively involved in Army service with her husband and served as World Secretary for Women's organizations. General and Mrs. Tillsley have three children and eight grandchildren.

Those interested in the seminar events should call Quincy headquarters at 617-472-2345.

The Salvation Army is a worldwide religious denomination and philanthropic organization. Its innovative methods, especially in inner cities, have influenced evangelical and charitable work throughout the world and in numerous religious denominations.

First Rev. Peter Corea Scholarship Awarded

The first Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea Founder's Scholarship has been awarded to Mark David Paul Jr., a first year student studying electrical engineering at Bunker Hill College.

The announcement was made recently by the Scholarship Board of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, where the Rev. Corea was minister for more than 50 years until his death in 2001.

The Rev. Corea personally financed the first scholarships offered by his church in 1954. Since then, the number of scholarships has grown to 17, financed by cook book sales, Bar-B-Qs and other events.

A Scholarship Board of 14 members was formed in 1961 to set policies and procedures, supervise fund raising efforts and select student recipients from young people affiliated with the church.

REV. PETER COREA

Five other scholarship winners also were announced the other day. They included:

Ashley Flibotte, attending Simmons College, studying chemistry and pharmacy.

Bryan Logue, attending Virginia Tech, studying aerospace engineering.

Andrew Zachary "Zak" Keating, attending Worcester Tech, studying computer science.

George H. Schaefer, attending Oberlin College, studying cinema.

Members of the 2007 Scholarship Board included: Pamela Craig, president/ chairman; Edwina Robinson, treasurer; Susan Carr, clerk/ secretary; Gloria Brummitt, assistant clerk; Robert Gordon, treasurer-elect; Barbara Christie; and the Rev. M. Alicia Corea.

Applications Available For State Cultural Grants

The Quincy Arts Council is accepting applications for Massachusetts Cultural Council 2008 Local Cultural Council (LCC) grants, the primary source of state funds for community cultural activities.

The deadline for applying is Monday, Oct. 15.

This year, the Quincy Arts Council will award between $25,000 and $35,000 in grants to organizations and individuals that provide programs in the arts, humanities and interpretive sciences in Quincy.

Quincy Prepared On Sixth Anniversary Of 9/11

It's been six years since the worst terrorist attack in American history took down the World Trade Towers in New York and Quincy is ready like never before.

Since that grim day, the city has secured almost $2 million in federal grants to equip fire, police, health, public works and emergency management departments.

"We are better prepared in emergency training and response than at any time in our history," said Mayor William Phelan. "We remain prepared, but not scared, as we move ahead."

"We have been pro-active in our preparations for any type of public safety incident imaginable."

"The employees of the fire, police, health and emergency management departments have established relationships with each other and with other communities unlike any other time in our history."

"These times call for expanded planning and training and Quincy has done just that."

Quincy is one of nine communities that participate in the Boston Urban Area Strategic Initiative (UASI), a federally funded effort coordinating training, equipment and response with other communities.

The other communities include Boston, Cambridge, Brookline, Chelsea, Everett, Revere, Somerville and Winthrop.

"We have developed working relationships with all of the critical resources in Greater Boston," said Tom Gorman, the director of Emergency Management.

"The jurisdictional boundaries that once hinder public safety cooperation are long gone. We work together every day to make sure our city and our region are safe."

Phelan ticked off this list of moves which, he said, have made for a safer Quincy in the past six years.

- One of his first actions on being elected was to hire Gorman, a retired Quincy fire chief and former state trooper with years of experience and contacts in public safety.

Gorman has revamped the Emergency Management page on the city web-site (www.ci.quincy.ma.us) to help residents link with valuable information sources.

- Since 9/11, every member of the police and fire departments have been trained in National Incident Management System (NIMS), an incident command model followed by many large jurisdictions.

The massive undertaking was paid for through a federal grant with cooperation from both departments and all employees.

An elevate level of incident management training is occurring this year with higher-ranking officers in both police and fire.

"We plan on expanding our training further in the coming months," said Deputy Fire Chief Gary Smyth. "We have an enthusiastic, young department that recognizes that today's firefighter must be prepared for any kind of incident."

- The city has secured close to a million dollars in equipment to better prepare its personnel.

- Each and every firefighter and police officer was provided with personal protective equipment (PPE) at the outset of the project.

- The city provided new radio and communication equipment to every police officer and firefighter. All new radios were installed in each fire apparatus as well.

"This has been one of the biggest and most important improvements we've made," said Smyth.

"Our personnel are safer every day on the job with new interoperable radios. We can communicate better with each other and if need be, with other agencies and communities."

- Satellite phones were provided to all first-responder department heads to ensure communication in the event of a wide-scale loss of phone or cellular systems.

- The Fire Department has secured Level A hazardous materials suits.

- The Police Maritime Unit had improvements made to its boat to better patrol the shoreline, often seen as one of the more vulnerable targets in the region.

- A new Police Department SCUBA team was trained and outfitted for response and prevention.

- A new state-of-the-art hull-scanning robot was awarded to the Police Department to protect the Fore River shipping channel.

- The city has a new Emergency Operations Center (EOC), a state-of-the-art intelligence center used in case of any large scale event or emergency.

The facility is equipped with multiple technologies to connect city departments and agencies outside of the city as well.

"Communication is the key to preparation and response," said Mayor Phelan.

"We continue to improve in each area in an effort to enhance public safety. There is no better resource than an aware public that shares information with us."

TOM GORMAN

ROBERT CROWLEY

- The Emergency Management Department has outfitted a "portable shelter" trailer to be transported to sites of need, such as elderly housing complexes.

- The Health Department also has received trailers to assist any mass vaccination efforts.

"The coordination of various agencies is the key to the success of each program," said Health Commissioner Drew Scheele.

"We work constantly with the state and other communities to create coordinated plans and to improve our local plans. We have also launched a great volunteer program that has been quite successful.

- Scheele was referring to the Medical Reserve Corps, a group of volunteer doctor, nurses and health care providers organized to assist in the event of any mass vaccination effort.

There are more than 150 health care providers currently signed-on as volunteers.

- The Health Department and all first responders have participated in mock exercises preparing for an avian influenza outbreak or pandemic flu outbreak.

Police Chief Robert Crowley emphasized that prevention is the best measure of preparedness.

- The Police Department now participates in the Boston Regional Intelligence

Center (BRIC).

Quincy police personnel communicate and coordinate with other cities and towns to share information on persons of interest and gang activities in the Greater Boston area.

"We enjoy a close working relationship with all of the communities and the outside agencies such as the MBTA and the State Police," said Crowley.

"We all have the same goal and we are all working together toward that goal."

Phelan said he is encouraged by Gov. Deval Patrick's announcement of a plan to coordinate regional mass evacuation, the lack of which, said the mayor, was a remaining shortcoming in the preparations.

Emergency Dispensing Sites Drill Sept. 22

Quincy will participate in a regional exercise concerning the mobilization of the Strategic National Stockpile of immunization medicines on Sept. 22.

Purpose of the drill, said Mayor William Phelan and Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, is to have Health Department officials, the Medical Reserve Corps, and law enforcement practice an emergency drill that would require mass vaccination of citizens.

The City has eight designated dispensing sites that will be tested during the drill. An evaluation of the system and the personnel will be used to improve the plan in case of a real emergency event.

"We always hope for the best but prepare for the worst," said Health Commissioner Drew Scheele. "We have complied a great team of employees and volunteers that are ready for almost any type of emergency situation. This drill is a good way to test our systems and improve our response plans."

The Quincy Health Department has actively been participating with the Region 4B health collaborative; a 28 community organization that coordinates regional health issue response.

The Quincy Health Department has participated in past table-top exercises on avian flu epidemics and pandemic influenza.

In addition, the Quincy Health Department has provided all City departments with pandemic influenza awareness training.

"Our Health officials have been pro-active in co-operating with other communities and other government agencies in preparing for any kind of situation," said Mayor Phelan.

"The creation of the Medical Reserve Corps is a great example of the commitment people will make if you ask them. Commissioner Scheele and all the volunteer members of the Medical Reserve Corps are to be commended for their work on this project."

Council Considers Limitations On Sidewalk News Racks

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The City Council is considering enacting regulations that would limit sidewalk newsracks for daily, weekly and free publications to eight per block, and require owners to maintain each site and to register each unit annually.

"This is not about regulating content, (but to) insure they are all well kept," City Council President Douglas Gutro said last week as the Council's Ordinance Committee opened a public hearing on newsrack regulations prepared by City Solicitor Monica Conyngham.

Gutro said that he found that some newsracks were having a "negative blight impact" in certain areas of the city and "There didn't seem to be any entity to issue permits."

At this time, there are 14 newsracks in front of the Quincy Center Post Office. The racks include free and paid metropolitan dailies, as well as employment, and housing listings. Several machines are rusty with flippers pasted to their front and sides with some litter strewn on the sidewalk.

The Quincy Sun does not circulate through newsracks, but is available through retail outlets, news carrier, and mail subscription.

Conyngham explained that, under the proposal, newsrack owners would be responsible for the appearance and maintenance of their equipment as well as litter caused by their product.

Each owner would be required to show proof of insurance and be subject to fines for non-compliance when their newsrack or publication creates a public nuisance, litter, or danger.

Councillor Joseph Finn chaired the hearing on the ordinance proposed by Gutro. Representatives of all three major dailies said they approved the ordinance after recommending some technical adjustments.

"We feel the ordinance is reasonable," said James Nee, Sales and Service Director of The Boston Globe. Phil Ouellette, Circulation Director of The Patriot Ledger said he was "supportive of the ordinance."

The Boston Herald's Circulation Manager John Moon told the committee that restaurants often make requests for the Herald newsracks. He, also, suggested minor changes on the proposed application that would clarify locations.

Under the proposed ordinance all vendors or publishers would be required to apply for a permit from the city for an initial $50 fee and pay an additional $5 for the first and every subsequent year for each newsrack location.

Each application would require such details as information on the company, proof of insurance, the name of the materials to be circulated and the location of each newsrack.

The vendor sites would be eligible on a first-come, first-serve basis. To insure that, Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond said each application should be time-stamped and certified at City Hall and identified on a publicly advertised list.

Several councillors asked whether a limit of eight per block was enough in some locations and Gutro said the proposed limit could be revisited.

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly said that job and apartment listing booklets serve a legitimate purpose and he questioned whether these would be eliminated.

Conyngham assured councillors and the public that there would be no questions or restrictions on the content of a publication or the value of the content unless there were a "compelling government interest."

Finn agreed that nothing in the proposal suggested regulating the content.

"It's my hope that we pass this in the next 30 to 60 days," Gutro said after the hearing. After the proposal is revised, the Ordinance Committee will vote and then vote as the City Council.

ACHILLES TENDONITIS

The Achilles tendon, which is the thick, strong tendon that stretches down the back of the lower leg, ankle, and into the heel, is a common site of painful tendonitis. Tendonitis is the inflammation and degeneration of a tendon. Achilles tendonitis can develop without the patient experiencing any trauma, and the pain may worsen gradually. It can cause a severe pain, and sufferers feel it most acutely after they wake up in the morning and start walking or otherwise go from sitting for a long period to walking. Treat the condition by resting it and using shoes with proper cushion and a supportive heel cup. If untreated, the Achilles tendon can weaken or rupture.

ignore the pain of Achilles tendonitis and other foot conditions or injuries, especially when every step places weight and pressure on the affected area. Don't wait for the pain and the problem to disappear. It's highly unlikely that they will, and you'll be left with a worse condition than when the problem was still new and relatively minor. Complete foot care is available for everyone in your family, for treatment of a full range of foot concerns. Office hours by appointment at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER, PH: 781-986-3668. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

"You can't forget the tragedy of 9-11," said one observer Atty. Tom Clougherty who added, "It's hard to believe it's been six years."

Like most Americans, Clougherty can recall the exact moment and circumstance when he learned of the attack on the country.

Tuesday's ceremony with prayers, bagpipes and the solemn ringing of the fire department's bell echoed the memorials of years past and reminded observers of the lives lost and the sacrifices made in the minutes, hours, days and years since that day.

Firefighter Steve Sweet played "Amazing Grace" on the bagpipes.

Mayor William Phelan stood at attention with Fire Chief Timothy Pettinelli, Deputy Chief Gary Smyth and Local 792 President Ernie Arienti as Wipfler then raised the flag at the department's memorial.

Standing alongside the officials were Firefighters John Scribi, John Christiani, Ted Johnson and Ralph Blight.

After the ceremony, Menz said that it's been a sad week as he also attended memorials for two Boston firefighters who died last week fighting a fire in a burning restaurant in West Roxbury.

For Menz, it is a reminder of how fragile life is and of sacrifices of firefighters and police officers. In fact, rescue workers are now suffering health problems from exposure to chemical at Ground Zero.

Observers included Clougherty and more than a dozen of his associates from The Senior Resource Center on Quincy Avenue and Chris Welcome and Sabrina Melchionno.

Welcome said he attends a 9-11 observance every year wherever he is. "because Americans died for America." Last year, Welcome marked the day at a Dorchester ceremony.

"I came because not enough people do anymore," said Melchionno who remembers when over 100 persons annually attended the local memorial service.

"Now," she said, "It's just local business people who can find the time to get out for five minutes."

Gleason congratulated Sheets and Phelan and developer Fish who had "the ability to get this done when others were unable to do it."

"It was a complicated project," Sheets said after the formalities, noting there were "roadblocks" at every turn and the City was "fighting for scraps."

"The houses were all vacant," Sheets said of the naval officers' quarters on Naval Terrace. He said the city decided, "this land has to be secured for seniors."

The best testament to The Moorings, come from the residents themselves.

"I love it here; I am so grateful. They also accepted my doggie, Henry, and he loves it here," said Barbara Coleman. Coleman worked for decades for the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health.

Jeanne Silva agreed with Coleman. Silva worked for Quincy for 39 years in the school department's food service department.

"They keep the grounds beautifully," said Anna Madden before the ceremony. "It's right at the beach. You get a nice breeze at night."

Kathy Bramdli got the first application for a unit. She's never regretted spending a night in her car in order to be first in line for the units. Now she has a beautiful apartment and magnificent view.

"We have neighbors who will watch out for each other," said Bramdli who described the workout room and activities offered to the residents.

The residents were unanimous in praising the maintenance at the Moorings.

"They address the problem the same day," said Bramdli. Another tenant, Al

Riley, said, "The maintenance guys are great."

There are currently 19 available units at The Moorings and the marketing office maintains a waiting list.

CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM DELAHUNT and Kathy Bramdli enjoy the official opening of The Moorings at Squantum Gardens located at East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Dr. Delahunt was praised as a key figure in accomplishing the project and Bramdli was the first applicant for the new units in Marsh.

Extended Passport Hours At Quincy Post Office Saturday

The Quincy Post Office will extend Passport Acceptance Hours to 5 p.m. on Saturday in an effort to ease the pre-holiday rush for American travelers.

Passports are now required at most entry posts for all Americans, Canadians, Mexicans and Bermuda citizens travelling by air or sea from any part of the Western Hemisphere. The Department of State and Homeland Security announced these restrictions in January, 2007.

In January, new restrictions will require passports for all persons traveling in the Western Hemisphere by air or sea to Canada, Mexico, Bermuda, South America, Central America and the Caribbean.

Passport applicants should bring to the post office a proof of citizenship, such as a certified birth certificate from an official agency or a previous passport, certificate of citizenship, or naturalization certificate.

In addition, applicants must present photo proof of identity, such as a driver's license, government or military identification and two recent identical photographs.

Passports cost $97 for adults (16 years and older) with separate payments of $30 to the US Postal Service and $67 to the State Department.

For persons under 16, the total cost is $82 with separate payments of $30 to the US Postal Service and $52 to the State Department.

Photographs can be taken at the Newtonville Post Office for a $15 fee.

The passport application can be downloaded at usps.com/passport.

Baked Goods, Flowers Add Zest To Farmers' Market

It's kind of a stretch to call O'Brien's Bakery in Wollaston a farm but it'll be one of three bakers displaying its breads, pastries and pies at Quincy's Farmers Market these fall Fridays.

And Almqvist's Flowerland, the South Quincy nursery, will be displaying mums and other fall plants on the market on the Hancock Parking Lot across from the Courthouse continues through October.

The market includes three bakeries, one dairy and one nursery, offering something to everyone, but the staple is still fresh, locally grown produce.

"Summer is still very evident in the market with lots of tomatoes, corn and melons," said Anneli Johnson, the market manager.

"The root vegetables, fall squashes and apples are starting to come in too. Best of all, we offer tastings of unusual fruits and vegetables every Friday."

The Farmers' Market is open, rain or shine, every Friday through October from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A complete list of farmers and links to their websites is available at quincyfarmersmarket.com when you click on "About Us/Farmers."

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

A Tragic Loss

The other night I went to bed earlier than my wife. Not long afterwards she came upstairs to give me a hug and inform me that there was a multiple alarm fire in West Roxbury.

The hug in itself wasn't all that unusual while in this instance she did so having heard the report of the two-firefighter fatalities. Wanting me to sleep, she never conveyed the whole story to me.

Driving to work the next day, I heard the news. It was crushing! As firefighters, we all realize how easily it can occur, while we're devastated when it does. Nearly 30 years on the job, I've attended firefighter funerals in Boston, in Worcester and New York City, and will again in Boston. I wish it wasn't so.

I'd like to convey some incite into fire fighting here for you on their behalf so that you might gain some insight into the commitment these men made when they first became firefighters. I never met either of them, while I've lived and worked closely with firefighters for years. There's a common thread amongst us, a commonality in experience and in focus.

If you can't focus on the welfare of others, you shouldn't make the commitment to become a firefighter to begin with. Once you've acknowledged that step and do so, it is training and experience that propels you toward the ability to act on that commitment. Helping others can be tremendously fulfilling; most of us become passionate about the opportunity, while that experience creates a resolve.

There's a downside though. I don't doubt for one moment that these firefighters did everything right, everything. There's still an incalculable risk; however, that we know exists while hoping it won't manifest. It involves what we can't anticipate or control even after every procedure has been adhered to. Even when everything is done by the book, tragedy can still occur. Meanwhile writing this, I don't pretend to know what occurred in West Roxbury, while I can convey what can happen.

Fire can be confined within concealed spaces for quite sometime without breaking out into open air within a building. I saw it occur in a Quincy fire that I investigated years ago where an initial short circuit occurred on a Saturday, and the fire broke out of a concealed space with explosive force the following Friday.

In a concealed space as with that located behind a false ceiling, a fire can smolder for hours or days charring wooden structural members like rafters for instance. While the oxygen content within that space might no longer exist, the carbon monoxide created by the smoldering does feed the fire. Carbon monoxide is not only an asphyxiate, it is also a combustible gas. Once heated and in contact with open air the mixture is explosive.

So two things can occur long before the appearance of the first firefighters on a scene. There can be severe weakening of structural members by extended smoldering and a buildup of potentially explosive gas. If the structure is then weakened causing a collapse, the heat, and combustible gases, which can be confined under pressure, are violently released into the fresh air and oxygen causing an explosion. That's not the easiest scenario to anticipate or prepare for when every indication is you're responding to beginning stages of an interior fire.

There's no doubt in my mind that these firefighters entered the building with a charged line, standard operating procedure, while they could not anticipate that it would be overwhelmed by the sudden occurrence of a violent explosion. It's that incalculable zone of risk that can't be fully anticipated, but that exists with each response. Even preparation and adherence to state of the art procedures can leave a firefighter vulnerable.

I so often write to you about preventing fire, while I discourage practices such as storage of gasoline or propane in basements, which would substantially increase the risk to responding firefighters. I do so out of a need to reduce the potential of that incalculable risk when firefighters believe they're responding to an interior fire and encounter far more.

There is urgency when firefighters approach a fire, while safety of course is a major consideration. However, the urgency preempts seeking the input of structural engineers or acquiring a list of combustible contents prior to firefighters entering a building. That absence of information does nothing to minimize that incalculable risk that can't in reality be entirely avoided.

My deepest condolences to the families of those firefighters while words can never convey the comfort they so much deserve. My condolences to their fellow firefighters who trained, worked, ate and laughed amongst those just lost. It is their commitment to others that has led to this great loss, a loss that at times is unavoidable.

I thank them for that commitment!

Hints For Homeowners

Fighting The Battle Against Odor

(NAPS) There are simple ways to ward off unpleasant household smells that - despite homeowners' best efforts - sometimes invade a home.

The solution from experts: Go straight to the source. The odor of wet dogs, laundry and pet stains can all take over a home if left untreated - and many smells intensify in warm weather and seem inescapable during cool seasons.

To help homeowners in their battle against household odors, Clean Control, manufacturer of OdoBan Odor Eliminator, offers a few helpful odor-fighting tips for attacking odor at its source:

- Humidity can intensify one of the biggest odor-causing problems in the home: mildew and mold. By controlling the humidity in your home - through ventilation, opening windows and using dehumidifiers - water will effectively be kept out and the level of humidity will stay down.

- When clothes or fabrics smell smoky (from household fireplaces or a local establishment), throw the items in the dryer on the fluff cycle for approximately 20 minutes along with a small towel or cloth dampened with OdoBan Odor Eliminator. It will help take the smoky smell out of the clothes, and save you a dry cleaning bill.

It will also help keep the odors from getting on other household fabrics.

- Wet raincoats and shoes making the jacket closet smell? Closed-up closets and drawers that don't get a lot of ventilation are a breeding ground for offensive odors in a home. Wrap a bar of soap in cloth and place it in the closet to help eliminate damp-smelling odors.

- Too cold to open the windows to eliminate household odors? Try adding plants to a few rooms to combat air-borne pollutants and release oxygen back into your house, which will help fight unpleasant odors.

- Whatever the season or the smell, experts say to remember to attack the odor at its source and to do it quickly. Odors are easier to clean and eliminate when they are fresh.

Visit www.OdoBan.com for more information and helpful tips for fighting odors.

Your Homeowner's Policy -

Does It Cover What You Think?

(NAPS) - If you haven't looked at your homeowner's policy in a while, you may want to dust it off and give it a good read.

For example, if your home were struck by storm, fire or other natural disaster, would your policy cover everything you think it might? And if you took steps to ensure your home was fire, flood and hurricane resistant, would your insurance company give you a discount?

Homeowners Unclear About What's Covered

According to a recent study undertaken by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, homeowners are surprisingly unclear about what their policies do and do not cover, and therefore many are not carrying the correct insurance. A recent MetLife survey also found widespread confusion about insurance coverage. The study found that nearly one-third of those surveyed believe their homeowner's policy would reimburse them for the market value of their homes if they were destroyed by fire, storm or other natural disaster.

It is critical - now more than ever - for homeowners to be in touch with their insurance carriers to ascertain just what's covered and what's not. This would be the time; too, to ask for discounts for taking precautions to make sure your home is hurricane, fire and flood resistant.

Wildfire Checklist

Many insurance companies will consider giving discounts for taking precautions. For example, a recent New York Times article called attention to the fact that wildfires have caused insurance companies, including State Farm, to take a harder look at where people and trees meet, and that they are less willing to write policies for homeowners who do not meet a "wildfire checklist."

One checklist item with which you can protect your home is fiber-cement siding vs. wood or vinyl. While no building material can guarantee a storm-resistant of fireproof home, there are some preventative measures that can be taken. For example, due to its resistance to wind, fire, impact and flood, James Hardie Siding Products have been specified for homes in hurricane - and wildfire-prone areas throughout the U.S. The products can be installed to withstand hurricane-force winds up to 150 mph in 3-second gusts. James Hardie exterior and interior products are noncombustible when tested in accordance with current standards.

North Looks To Build From Somerville Loss

By SEAN BRENNAN

The North Quincy Red Raiders lost their 2007 season opener 28-14 to Somerville High School last Friday afternoon at Veterans Memorial Stadium, but the final score is not totally indicative of the progress the team has been made since the end of last year or the positives that were evident during the course of this game.

"We've got a lot of positives to look forward to and we just need to clean up the little things," said second-year coach Jim Connor. "I think the good things can outweigh the bad eventually."

"We ended up beating ourselves at the end. But the page needs to turn. If we want to be a good team we need to expect to win. We are moving on and need to get ready to play Sandwich next Friday in our first Atlantic Coast League game."

Playing in temperatures that reached the mid-90s by kickoff, the Red Raiders began the contest very hot. Somerville chose to receive the ball to open the game, and after a squib kick placed the football on the 32-yard line, the North Quincy defense made their first stand of the fall.

The Highlanders' first offensive play from scrimmage saw their quarterback, Jason Messina, fumble the snap from under center. The Red Raiders jumped all over the loose ball, and after the referees finally cleared the pile, North had taken possession of the ball 25 seconds into the contest.

With new quarterback Dennis Martin calling the play to open the drive from inside Somerville's 30-yard line, running back Joe Vailpando took the handoff five yards. After a Jon Cahill run for no gain, Martin got the crowd and sideline fired up with a five-yard scramble for the first down.

Cahill, only a junior, took over from there. Two consecutive runs of eight and nine yards brought the ball all the way down to the six-yard line. On first and goal from the six, Danny Jackson was stopped short of the goal line by inches, but on the next play Cahill (20 carries, 70 yards, 2TDs) punched it in to give North an early 7-0 lead.

"The opening drive was a positive for the whole team," Connor said. "Our defense came up big and our offense, behind Martin, our three running backs (Cahill, Jackson and Vailpando) and our offensive line moved the ball. I am not sure if we will be using three backs each game, but with the hot temperature, we used all three to keep all of them cool and fresh."

The Highlanders responded quickly on their second drive. Riding on the back of Ricardo Davis (19 carries, 138-yard, TD), and running roughly four plays all game out of its double-tight end, double-Wing T offense, Somerville went 62 yards on eight running plays to tie the score at 7-7.

The Raiders' next drive stalled out and North was forced to punt the ball back to the Highlanders. After five consecutive running plays, Somerville caught the defense off-guard. On third and long, Messina went play-action, froze the safety and found Kervin Edouard down the right sideline for a 65-yard touchdown.

Somerville's only pass of the entire game put the score at 14-7 with 6:22 left in the half.

The Raiders failed to score on their final two possessions of the first half, but the offense came close. With 2:51 left before halftime, North drove the ball from their own 39-yard line down inside the Highlanders' 25-yard line, but Martin was sacked with four seconds remaining and the game clock ran out.

North Drops Opener To Brockton

The North Quincy girls' soccer team opened their 2007 season against Brockton High School. Brockton, along with the unseasonably hot weather, presented a difficult challenge for the Red Raiders and in the end North dropped a well-played game, 2-1.

"It was a disappointing way to begin the season, losing to a non-league opponent on our home turf," said head coach Paul Gregoli. "We'll have to play much better as a unit if we are going to have the success we have enjoyed in past years."

The Boxers offensive attack produced a goal early in the first half. Junior forward Tatiana Veira beat two Red Raider defensive players at the 18-yard mark and placed her shot into the top corner of the net. North Quincy's best scoring opportunities in the opening half came off the feet of senior captains Emily Milone and Mary Kate Stille. Junior keeper Siobhan Carnell handled several Boxer scoring chances flawlessly to keep the score 1-0 at halftime.

North Quincy opened the second half with a pressing offensive attack. Freshman

GIRLS' SOCCER

Jillian Carchedi took a crossing pass from Stille and her shot from eight yards out hit the crossbar and stayed out of the goal.

At the 20-minute mark, Veira struck again to give Brockton a 2-0 lead. But Emily Milone, with 11 minutes left in the match, scored her first goal of the season, taking a pass from junior forward Michell Gardiner and nailed her shot from 10 yards out. Solid play from defender Colleen McCarthy helped key the play in the Brockton end.

Sophomore Sammy Bonnani cleared a ball off her own goal line late in the game to keep the score at 2-1. With five minutes left in regulation, Milone broke in between two Boxer defenders and was hauled down in the box. However, no call was made.

Playing well for North Quincy were senior Simone Leary and sophomore Lindsey Repucci.

Others players on the 2007 varsity roster include: 12th graders, Rene DiPietro, Paige Bonnani (captain), Kasey O'Connell, Lauryn MacIsaac, Kerry Coughlin (captain), Katie Hemenway, Maureen Randall, Tara McFarland, Anne Marie Price, Ellen Quinn and Roxanne Lydon; 11th graders, Jess Howlett, Molly Clifford, Brittany Folkins, Kerry Donaghey, Amy Carchedi and Lindsay Reilly; 10th graders, Cara Murtagh, Kristen Peterson and Devon McKay; and 9th grader Shannon Coleman.

Canton Sophomore Spoils Quincy Opener

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy Presidents took to the turf at Veterans Memorial Stadium last Friday night looking to duplicate the results from their season opener last year against Canton High School (a 14-6 win). But then plans were rudely interrupted by the play of a sophomore running back.

Quincy fell in defeat 28-7 to Canton in non-league action and in the process watched as Jordan Guyton, playing in his first varsity game, rushed for 199 yards and three touchdowns.

The game, the second of the evening at Veterans Stadium, drew a fairly large home crowd and one could feel the excitement and anticipation in the stands and on the sidelines before the whistle blew to open the 2007 season.

The Presidents kicked off to open the game, and the defense, after allowing a first down, forced the Bulldogs to punt the ball away. After getting the ball back at their own 34-yard line, sophomore quarterback Lance Peterson (10 of 15, 70 yards, two INTs) was the first of the two new QBs to come off the sidelines. Peterson, taking the spot held by Matt Boyle for the last two seasons, handed the ball off on consecutive plays to running back Diego Arredondo. Arredondo gained four yards on first down and 11 yards on second down moving the ball across midfield and into Bulldog territory.

After being stopped for no gain on first-and-10, Peterson could not connect via the air on second and third down, and the Presidents were forced to punt the ball back to Canton. Starting at their own 15-yard line, Canton's Stephen Jarvis rushed for 12 yards on third down. After three running plays produced another first down, Guyton took the handoff, eluded a President tackler in the backfield, juke left and sprinted untouched 55 yards down the sidelines to put Canton up 6-0. A botched snap on the point after attempt was picked up by the Bulldog kicker and run into the end zone for a 2-point conversion. With 43 seconds left in the opening quarter, the Bulldogs led 8-0.

"The kid's a heck of a player," said Quincy head ball coach Bob Noble. "We had him for a four or five yard loss on that play, and he bounced off him for a touchdown."

Looking to maintain the momentum from Guyton's electrifying run, Canton attempted an onside kick on the ensuing kickoff. EJ Louis recovered the kick for Quincy and the Presidents started their second drive in great field position at their own 39-yard line. A 3-yard pass from Peterson to Arredondo ended the first quarter.

Quincy started the second quarter with a 5-yard shovel pass from Peterson to Joe Reggiannini, but on third-and-2, Quincy failed to get the first and were forced to punt for the second time in as many drives.

Canton, starting at a first-and-10 from just inside their 30-yard line, went back to the well. Guyton took a third down handoff over the right side of his offensive line and found nothing but open-space in front of him. 66 yards later he was celebrating his second touchdown of the first half and the Bulldogs were up 15-0.

Quincy flashed a new offensive set when they retook the field with 7:40 left in the opening half. Starting from his own 36-yard line, junior quarterback Mark Gilbody (2 for 2, 35 yards, four carries, 38 yards) broke the huddle and handed off to junior running back Max Devoe for a five-yard gain. Devoe took the second down handoff up the middle for seven yards and a first down, and the Presidents were on the move. But a three and out on their next set of downs ended a promising drive.

The two QB look Quincy used in the game is a strategy that Noble and his staff may use all season as a way to give defenses a different look and as a way to allow both players the chance to help the offense. Peterson is more of a thrower and Gilbody can do damage with both his arm and legs.

"Both of them have different attributes and qualities that we try to take advantage of," said Noble. "Gilbody can do some damage with his legs and Peterson is more of a thrower."

After the next Canton drive was stopped by some nice defensive plays from linebackers Matt Oriol and Brian McGee, Peterson went back out onto the field. A three-yard loss on first down was followed by a 8-yard completion to Arredondo and a first down catch by

Reggiannini, but with the clock running out in the half, Peterson forced a pass into coverage and Izzy Abraham came away with the interception.

Storming out of the locker room to the sound of a boisterous home crowd, Quincy literally dropped the ball on the ensuing kickoff. A fumble by the kick-returner resulted in excellent field position for the Bulldogs.

Guyton reeled off 13 yards on first down from the Presidents 25-yard line to set up first-and-ten from just outside the 10-yard line. Three plays later Joey Douglas scored from two yards out. A second missed PAT ran the score to 21-0 Bulldogs.

The Canton Bulldogs and Guyton capped off their scoring with a seven-yard touchdown run with 4:15 remaining in the fourth quarter. He finished with 14 carries for 199 yards and three TDs.

The Presidents avoided

the scoreboard drought when running back Max Devoe scored from 10 yards out in the final minute of play.

Quincy's Diego Arredondo finished the game with 74 yards on 11 carries, and he also punted the ball well throughout the game.

The Presidents will look to rebound tomorrow (Friday) night on the road in an Atlantic Coast League showdown against Falmouth High School. The scheduled game time is 7 p.m.

Down 14-7 to begin the third quarter, North muffed the second half kickoff and had to start the drive deep in their own zone. Following two marginal running plays by Cahill and Valpando, the Raiders faced a third-and-long. Martin took a three-step drop, surveyed the defense and tried to squeeze a throw into heavy coverage. The ball was intercepted and Somerville had first-and-10 from the NQ 21-yard line.

The mistake quickly became costly. On third down, running back Chetan Sharma raced 14 yards for the touchdown. The extra point attempt was blocked, but the 20 unanswered points put up by the Highlanders made the score 20-7.

"We cannot put ourselves in those kinds of spots," said Connor. "We can not beat ourselves and turnovers will do just that. But I liked the resiliency that our team showed even after we went down 20-7. Our next drive gives us hope that we can get better."

That next drive was a 16-play, 69-yard effort that was finished off by a 4-yard touchdown run from Cahill (his second of the game). The drive took up nine minutes plus and put the score at 20-14 with just under a minute gone in the fourth quarter. The biggest play on the drive was a 13-yard completion from Martin to tight end Marcellus Lee on fourth-and-10 from the Highlanders' 20-yard line.

On their ensuing drive, Somerville closed the door on any thoughts of a North Quincy comeback with a clock killing, 15-play (all running) scoring drive that ended with a 1-yard quarterback sneak for a touchdown. The Highlanders converted three times on third down to keep the clock and the ball moving, and after a successful two-point conversion, the score was 28-14.

"If we make one stop on that drive, all of a sudden it's a game," Connor mused. "One stop and all of a sudden we get the ball back and we are driving back down field for the winning score. We are starting to get there. One win and we will get our confidence. Our running game and overall intensity are some of the positives we can take into our game next week."

North Quincy hosts Sandwich High School tomorrow (Friday) night at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Lady Presidents Basketball Open Gym

The Lady Presidents Travel Basketball Program will begin this year's season with open gym time for prospective players and parents to meet this year's coaches and prepare for tryouts.

Girls in grades 5-8 are welcome to participate while the coaches run through drills and scrimmages. The open gym sessions will be held at Broad Meadows Middle School on the following Wednesday nights: Sept. 12, 19, 26 and Oct. 3 from 6 to 8 p.m. There will be a $5 fee per session for each open gym night.

Tryouts for the four Lady Presidents travel teams are scheduled for Oct. 10 and Oct. 12 at Broad Meadows Middle School from 6 to 8 p.m. Additional information on these programs and the Old Colony League will be distributed at the open gym sessions and tryouts.

The coaching staff for the 2007-2008 season is as follows:

5th grade: Peter Papile and Rob Cerasoli

6th grade: Mike Toldness

7th grade: David Parry and Roberta Bloomer

8th grade: Chrissy Niosi and Tony Chiochio

For more information, call Kathleen Papile at (617) 770-0849 or Donna Parry at (617) 328-0885.

Registration For Women's Fitness Classes, Sept. 17

The Quincy Recreation Department, in cooperation with the Mayor's Commission on Women, will conduct registration for two Women's Fitness classes, which will take place at the Fore River Clubhouse on Sept. 17.

Both programs will be held on Monday, Wed. and Friday mornings at 8:15 a.m. or at 9:15 a.m. The instructor will be Mrs. Karen Gaughan.

Each class includes exercise to improve and strengthen flexibility, endurance and overall fitness. Adaptations in the exercise allow each participant to work out at their own pace.

The cost of the program is $60. The sessions begin on Sept. 17 and will conclude on Nov. 30. Registration is on a first-come-first-serve basis, and will be taken at the first class. Persons who cannot make registration may register weekdays at the main office of the QRD, One Merrymount Parkway, or online at QuincyRec.com.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

BMI vs. Body Fat Percentage

Q. What is the difference between the body mass index and body fat percentage? And which is more important?

A. The body mass index and body fat percentage are two assessments designed to identify health risk factors. Each assessment has a purpose and each can be used to help you stay focused on your fitness goals.

The body mass index (BMI) is an equation that gives you a numerical rating of your health status based on your height and weight. Ratings are categorized as "Underweight," "Recommended," "Overweight" and "Obese." Assessing BMI is as simple as looking at a BMI chart or using a computer BMI calculator. Just input your height and weight to get your rating.

BMI numbers in the overweight and obese ranges can identify the risk for diseases associated with being overweight such as heart disease, diabetes and even certain cancers.

Since BMI lumps all body mass (fat and lean) together, it is often not considered as valuable an assessment as body fat percentage because it does not take into account the weight of lean body mass.

Body fat percentage is an estimate of your total body mass, both essential fat mass and nonessential (storage) fat mass. Essential body fat is needed for the body to maintain life and reproductive functions.

Nonessential body fat is storage fat that is an accumulation of fat tissue in excess of essential fat.

In the obese range (above 32 percent for women, above 26 percent for men), body fat percentage can also suggest potential health risk factors. However, body fat percentage determines the amount of your body's fat mass, not just total body mass as with BMI. Many find this more useful because it can help you realize that although you may be at a "healthy" weight, your percentage of body fat may suggest that for your weight, too much of your total body mass is nonessential fat.

Body fat percentage is determined through many methods, with the most popular being skin-fold measurements (using skin-fold calipers) and bioelectric impedance. The accuracy of body fat testing can vary by up to 8 percent (plus or minus) depending on the testing form selected and the test facilitator.

Both BMI and body fat percentage have a place in assessing health risk factors and providing a benchmark to set fitness and lifestyle goals. Consider both as one part of your fitness assessment routine, remembering the purpose of each assessment.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, write Andrea in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Pointers For Parents

Knowing Where Germs Hide

(NAPS) - Knowing where germs hide can help keep your family safe. Yet a recent survey spanning 10 countries found that Americans are surprisingly unaware of the places where their kids are most likely to come into contact with germs.

Only 5 percent of Americans identified the home, as the place where children are most likely to catch an infection, when, in fact, studies show there is a greater risk of transmission in the home than outside. Worse, a mere 3 percent were aware that the bathtub is one of the germiest spots in the house.

LYSOL sponsored the survey as part of a Hygiene

Council effort to educate the public on the importance of hygiene.

Where The Germs Are
Here's a look at where the Hygiene Council says germs live:

- The Bathtub: A study found the germ most commonly responsible for serious staph infections to be in 26 percent of bathtubs versus 6 percent of garbage cans.

- The Kitchen Countertop: Counters can harbor more bacteria than the toilet seat.

- The Kitchen Floor: The floors can have more than 10,000 bacteria per square foot.

- The Bathroom Light Switch: The switch has as many bacteria as the garbage can.

- The Bathroom Countertop: The sink and faucet handles have more bacteria than the toilet seat.

- Toys: Toys host a dangerous range of bacteria.

Avoiding Germs
The Council recommends the following good hygiene practices:

- Hand Washing: Wash hands regularly, especially after going to the toilet, before and after preparing food, after touching animals and if a family member is ill. Use soap and water and dry thoroughly.

- Surface Disinfection: Commonly touched surfaces should be regularly disinfected with products such as LYSOL Disinfectant Spray. Kitchen surfaces should also be cleaned and disinfected before and after preparing food.

- Proper Food Handling: To avoid food-borne illness, cook and store food at the proper temperature; separate raw meats from fresh produce and packaged goods; and regularly disinfect surfaces to prevent cross contamination.

Space Age Workout Is Out Of This World

(NAPS) - Staying fit when you're galaxies away hinges on keeping your entire body in top form. So when researchers at the NASA-founded national Space Biomedical Research Institute sought a fitness regimen that would build astronauts' bone and muscle strength and promote healthy blood flow, they quickly realized that rowing would provide the best solution.

It's a great way to exercise the entire body and stay healthy. In fact, it might just be the best exercise in the universe.

"We choose indoor rowing for several reasons," said head researcher Dr. Benjamin Levine. "It uses a large muscle mass, and it is nonimpact so there are low chances for injury. Because of the unique cardiovascular static and dynamic work, rowers have the largest hearts of any competitive athlete."

But indoor rowing isn't just for space travelers. People of all ages and fitness levels can benefit from the full-body workout and burn 300 calories in just 20 minutes!

"Indoor rowing machines challenge you at every level, yet the low-impact nature of the workout makes rowing accessible for people of all ages and abilities," said Concept2 co-founder Peter Dreissgacker.

To stimulate the astronauts' workout, start with a "base-training session" by rowing at a moderate pace (you should be able to hold a conversation during this stage).

For more of a challenge, increase the pace. Astronauts call this "threshold training" because it requires maximum sustainable effort.

End your workout with a real push, rowing hard for one to three minutes for "interval training" and capping off with a "recovery session" - rowing one final long distance at a lower intensity.

After that you'll feel fit enough to travel to the moon and back.

Concept2 offers two indoor rowers - the Model D and the Model E - through its website, www.concept2.com. The company's rowers can also be found at most health clubs.

Women's Health:

Reducing Breast Cancer Risk

(NAPS) - Research from the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine found that black cohosh/Remifemin can lower the risk of breast cancer by as much as 60 percent.

Researchers looked for correlations between dietary supplement usage and the incidence of breast cancer, comparing products including phytoestrogens, isoflavones, red clover, soy, black cohosh and others.

Fifteen out of 17

supplements produced no significant results. But women using black cohosh/Remifemin had a much lower risk of developing breast cancer than did women who didn't use it.

Proprietary Remifemin, the world's most researched black cohosh extract, is considered safe for women who should not take estrogen.

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The cone-shaped canine teeth ("eye teeth") are the only teeth in the mouth with a single cusp. This characteristic, coupled with the fact that their roots are extra long and large, makes them particularly useful for piercing and tearing food. Ordinarily, these unique teeth erupt as permanent teeth between the ages of 11 and 12. However, if a child shows no sign of canine eruption by age 13, the teeth may be impacted. This problem may be detected initially by feeling above the gums in young patients, followed by an x-ray examination to substantiate a diagnosis. The dentist can then extract the primary tooth that stands in the way and guide the permanent tooth into its proper position.

Our friendly and professional staff takes pleasure in welcoming parents and their children to our office. We encourage you to talk to us about oral issues. Your health is our first priority. Preventing dental disease is less costly and more rewarding than correcting the problem once it occurs. We will show you how to care for your teeth. After all, teaching you how to prevent dental disease is our primary goal. We provide quality, personal dental care in a comfortable, immaculate, professional environment at 44 Greenleaf Street. Let us help you bring out that natural smile. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

Project Teamwork A Success

During the summer, the Quincy Police Department utilized a community grant to develop recreation programs for Quincy youths at both Sterling/Kincaide and Merrymount Park.

With the assistance of Mayor William Phelan, Police Chief Robert Crowley, Recreation Director Barry Welch and Park Department Director Mark Jachig, organized activities were provided by police officers and recreation leaders on a nightly basis. This new program started out slow, but once word was out that police officers were there, youths of all ages were drawn to the parks.

The officers were dressed casually to participate with recreation leaders and local youth in a wide range of activities. The program also encouraged youths to come to the park and "just hang out" in a place they wouldn't get into any mischief.

Sgt. James McNeil of the Quincy Police Department directed this innovative program and Officer Christine Hurton was responsible for obtaining the grant.

Many compliments were received from residents in the Sterling/Kincaide area about how quiet the neighborhood was all summer. Similarly, merchants and neighbors respectively commented that Wollaston Center and the surrounding homes of Merrymount Park were quieter.

Many parents liked the idea that they could leave their children at the parks, knowing they were safe and were being offered the opportunity to participate in events.

The Quincy Police Department hopes to expand the program next year if funding is available.

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, Aug. 28 at approximately 6 p.m., Officer Steven Kelly was dispatched to the area of Dunkin' Donuts in Wollaston Center on a report of a male impersonating a police officer while harassing four girls. As the officer approached the area, he spotted the four girls, who were pointing at the male suspect nearby.

Officer Kelly noted the suspect was yelling at the girls when he pulled up. He also recognized the suspect from an earlier incident in the week, where he was acting irrational. The girls told Officer Kelly the suspect approached them and identified himself as a police officer, then touched one of the girl's shoulder while asking her where she lived. She pulled away and asked him to show his police badge, and when he failed to do this, she believed he was lying.

Another victim said she was with friends in front of Papa Gino's restaurant, when the suspect approached them, identified himself as a police officer and asked for their names, addresses, place of employment and to see their "working papers." This victim also stated the suspect touched her shoulder as he questioned her, using the term, "Five-O," which is slang for police officer.

When asked to see a badge, the suspect reiterated he was a police officer, but did not show a badge. One of the victims said she gave a fake name because she was so afraid. The victim said she and her friends were very frightened and began walking away from the suspect, heading towards Dunkin' Donuts. She said the suspect followed them, continuously telling them he was a police officer and needed their information.

As the victims approached Dunkin' Donuts, they saw a male friend and told him that a man claiming to be a police officer was following them. The male friend described the victims to Officer Kelly as being "frantic and afraid." As the suspect got closer, the male friend stood between him and the victims and instructed the suspect to back off and leave the girls alone. The suspect then identified himself as a police officer again, then pushed the male friend in the chest and spit at him.

An employee at Dunkin' Donuts was outside taking a break when he observed the suspect yelling at the group, "Quincy Police, where are your working papers?" The employee went inside and called the police station to report the incident.

Officer Kelly spoke with the suspect, who stated that he was "connected" and worked for a drug task force, demanding the group he was following be arrested. The suspect denied identifying himself as a police officer. When asked why he pushed the male friend, the suspect said, "That punk got in my face."

The suspect, a 51-year-old Weymouth resident, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and impersonating a police officer.

Nice work!

In this case, the girls handled the situation well by staying together in a well-lit, visible location. They knew something was wrong when the suspect put his hand on them and he was not acting professionally. They questioned authority by asking to see his badge.

Just looking at the badge is not enough! Examine the photo identification and the police agency this person works for to determine authenticity. Fortunately, the situation did not escalate.

What would you do if you were alone and the suspect approached you? Tell the "officer" that you want a uniformed police officer on scene. If this does not happen, got into a business and stop someone going by and call "911." Usually, a suspect will flee when challenged and there is a chance that he will be caught.

When in doubt, call "911" and tell the dispatcher the circumstances and he/she will be able to confirm if the person is a police officer. Remember, it's okay to question someone who produces a badge and photo identification, especially if there is no uniformed officer and/or marked police cruiser on scene.

INFO: Next Child Car Seat installation is Sept. 29. Call me at 617-745-5719 to set up an appointment to install or inspect your child seat. Take the time to ensure that your child is protected properly.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A change that you'd hoped for is down the line. But you still need to be patient until more explanations are forthcoming. Continue to keep your enthusiasm in check.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your social life expands as new friends come into your life. But while you're having fun, your practical side also sees some positive business potential within your new circle.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your workplace situation continues to improve. Look for advantages you might have missed while all the changes were going on around you. That trusted colleague can help.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Resist the urge to hunker down in your bunker until things ease up. Instead, get rid of that woe-is-me attitude by getting up and getting out to meet old friends and make new ones.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Now that you're back enjoying the spotlight again, you should feel re-energized and ready to take on the challenge of bringing those big, bold plans of yours to completion.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A former friend would like to repair a relationship you two once enjoyed. Your positive response could have an equally positive impact on your life. Think about it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Resist making impulsive decisions. Stay on that steady course as you continue to work out workplace problems. Be patient. All will soon be back in balance.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might feel confident about taking a promising offer, but continue to be alert for what you're not being told about it. Don't fret. Time is on your side.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) People dear to you might be planning a way to show appreciation for all you've done for them. Accept the honor graciously. Remember: You deserve it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Congratulations. Your self-confidence is on the rise. This could be a good time to tackle those bothersome situations you've avoided both at home and at work.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You feel obligated to return a favor. (Of course, you do.) But heed advice from those close to you and do nothing until you know for sure what's being asked of you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your loving reassurance helped revive a once-moribund relationship. But be wary of someone who might try to do something negative to reverse this positive turn of events.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are a wonderful matchmaker who can bring people together to form long-lasting relationships.

OBITUARIES

Norman Wakeling, Jr., 85 Machinist, Superintendent Of Grounds, Buildings At 1000 Southern Artery

A funeral service for Norman Wakeling, Jr., 85, of Quincy, a retired machinist and manufacturing specialist who later became superintendent of grounds and buildings for 1000 Southern Artery in Quincy, was held Sept. 7 at the Daniel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy. The Rev. William C. Harding officiated.

Mr. Wakeling died Sept. 4 at the Marina Bay Sicilian Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Quincy.

Born in Providence, R.I., he was raised in Rhode Island and graduated from Central High School in Providence where he was a member of its hockey team. He was also a graduate of Brown & Sharpe Apprentice School in Providence, and Wilkes College in Wilkes-Barre, Penn.

Mr. Wakeling was a U.S. Navy veteran serving in World War II from 1943 to 1946. He was honorably discharged as an aviation machinist mate, second class.

During his career, he held several positions with different companies in the manufacturing industry. When he retired, he was the production manager of the former Woodruff & Stokes Company in Hingham.

After his retirement, he founded the Harbor Fish Market on Route 3A in Hingham, which he operated from 1965 to 1973. After he sold the business, he became the grounds and building superintendent of 1000 Southern Artery in Quincy. He held the position from 1973 to 1986, when he retired.

Mr. Wakeling was an avid sports fan, but was especially fond of hockey. He also enjoyed playing golf. His interests also included camping and fishing.

A Mason, he was a long-time member of Mount Vernon Lodge #4, F. & A.M. in Rhode Island.

He is survived by his wife, Ingrid E. (Ostren) Wakeling; two sons, Donald Wakeling of Quincy and Robert Wakeling of Randolph; a daughter, Norma Huntley of South Carolina; six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

He was the husband of the late Phyllis (Marcon) Wakeling and the son of the late Hilda (Foster) and Norman Wakeling, Sr.

Burial with full military honors was in Highland Memorial Park, Johnson, R.I.

Pre-arranged/pre-financed funerals make economic sense and are increasing every year...

There are many reasons for pre-arranging a funeral. ... More than anything else, one makes pre-arrangements because of those they love. It removes from the family the burden of making important decisions at one of the most difficult times in their lives. It makes one's wishes known. The family knows what to do. ... It eases the concern as to "Is this what he or she would want?" Through the years, the Deware Funeral Home has always been truthful in answering any and all questions concerning our costs/services/facilities and merchandise. We have always believed that it is our responsibility to provide a range of prices and services that provide exactly what the needs and preferences of the consumer prefer. Over the years our service shows a remarkable consistency of economy. The many, many families of all faiths we have been privileged to serve will confirm this.

Please feel free to stop by or call us any time for an appointment to discuss any pre-arrangements or pre-financing you might desire. We will be pleased to answer any questions you might have. This will be in complete confidence and is without cost or obligation, of course.

ing the need for municipal oversight of the facility.

Elements of the center could include an entertainment room, a card room, a technology classroom, a dance studio, an exercise room, bocce courts, a putting green, a "spray-ground" for young children and a technology center for teens.

A project team consisting of Elder Services Director Tom Clasby, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele and Cam Van Nguyen, the mayor's executive assistant, have been touring senior facilities around the state to gather information.

In addition, a survey was included in a recent Council on Aging newsletter to solicit information from seniors as to the type of facilities they would like to see within a Quincy senior center.

"This has long been a gated facility and we are opening it up to the entire community for their enjoyment," said Phelan.

"There will also be components of the plan that allow for intergenerational activities as well.

"I envision this complex being a health and wellness center for our seniors and a center for community activity.

"It's too beautiful a space to be used by so few people as it is now."

The plan will likely result in the adjusting of the locations of various city departments, Phelan said, but no final determinations have been made as yet.

The city is currently constructing a new $1.8 million garage facility at 55 Sea St. that will include office space and garage bays to protect trucks from the elements.

Mary Smith of the Planning Department has designed a conceptual plan to promote discussion at the Senior Conference this weekend.

"The feedback we have received to date has been overwhelmingly positive," said Phelan. "I think everybody loves the concept and the location.

"Now we begin the design of the facility and I hope as many people as possible participate in the process to help us build a fantastic home for Quincy's health and wellness facility."

Koch said the plan couples immediate action on the most pressing issues with long-term planning to meet the city's needs in coming years. The "Leadership Now" program will cover "every challenge our city faces," in coming weeks, Koch said. A full and detailed version of Koch's plan can be found on the candidate's website www.kochforquincy.com or by calling 617-773-5624.

The plan calls for: Changes to the city's zoning code that will limit residential development to one or two units in neighborhoods currently zoned as "Residence B." Any larger proposal will require approval from the zoning board of appeals.

His administration's first

appointment to the Zoning Board of Appeals "would be a professional engineer. The Zoning Board is required by law to have an engineer as a member, but has not had one for several years, Koch said.

The mayor to accept no campaign contributions from members of any regulatory board in the city in an effort to increase independence and encourage more people to seek positions.

An immediate overhaul of the computerized signal systems at more than 100 traffic intersections in the city. The system, created years ago to keep traffic flowing, would be monitored, updated and kept working for the first time in years.

The first complete study of traffic and parking patterns throughout the entire city in years. Recommendations to be released publicly no later than Jan. 1, 2008.

A call to the "Best of Quincy," architects, planners, residents and public officials to develop long-term development guidelines, including additional changes to the city's zoning code. Recommendations to be released publicly no later than Jan. 1, 2008.

Koch contrasted his plan, which he framed as "a starting point, not a dictate," about the city's future with what he described as Mayor William Phelan's "troubling" record on traffic and development over the last several years.

Koch said Phelan allowed the traffic engineer's job to remain vacant for nearly two years; let traffic systems around the city deteriorate because of a lack of attention; ignored overdevelopment in neighborhoods for four years, and forced the City Council to take the lead on the issue with a one-year ban on multi-family housing developments; and appointed a "smart zoning committee" in January, 2006 that has produced no results 20 months later.

Koch, who worked under Phelan for five years as Park Commissioner before resigning in January to run for mayor, said the traffic and development proposal was developed through discussions with several planners, architects, residents and other experts over the last several months.

"We have a huge responsibility today to shape the Quincy we want for tomorrow, and it is time for leadership," Koch said.

Phelan Appoints Energy, Recycling Committee

A citizen group has been appointed by Mayor William Phelan to serve as the City Recycling and Energy Conservation Committee.

The group will be charged with encouraging residents to recycle more and to investigate ways that they can improve energy efficiency in their own homes.

The formation of the group is part of Phelan's "Act Locally" program.

"Act Locally" was a series of municipal environmental initiatives aimed to improve the City's environmental efforts.

They include an energy efficiency overhaul of all 42 municipal buildings, new procurement policies encouraging "green" products, investigation of renewable energies, reconstitution of the Recycling Committee, and achieving "green" status for the new Quincy High

Wollaston Beach Rehab Project Nears Completion

The year-long rehabilitation work on Wollaston Beach will be completed within a week and the popular beach is ready to take its place as what Rep. Bruce Ayers called "the jewel of the city."

"The planning on the Rice Road gateway, the adoptable planting beds as well as the indoor foot and body showers will all be finished and operational this week," said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

"With the improved facilities, better water quality and new parking, Wollaston Beach has been dramatically improved for the enjoyment of all."

Although the project extended longer than anticipated, the city's legislative delegation expressed satisfaction with the result.

"The new and improved Wollaston Beach will be the jewel of the city and could not have been accomplished without the hard work and cooperation of many residents and state agencies," said Ayers.

"This is far more than simply aesthetically pleasing, the beach should draw local residents and therefore bring more economic opportunities to local businesses."

"A group of dedicated Quincy citizens went above and beyond to ensure that this beautification of Wollaston Beach was completed," said Rep. Stephen Tobin.

"Wollaston Beach is a beautiful natural resource of the city and this project allows the citizens to take full advantage of the beach and what it offers," added Morrissey.

State Plan Acceptance May Be Delayed

Unions, Councillors Want More Time On Insurance Decision

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The teachers' union governing board has instructed their president, Paul Phillips, not to participate in the Group Insurance Commission (G.I.C.) for this year.

That vote last week appears to end any possibility that Quincy will join the state's employee health insurance program this year for coverage in 2008.

Phillips, president of the Quincy Education Association (QEA), said his union which represents 900 teachers is not against the state program but needs time to review the plans.

Other union presidents said this week that they, also, need time to evaluate the state's employee health insurance program and alternative plans.

"We won't be looking at it until we have a contract," said Bruce Arenti, president of the firefighters union whose contract expired in July.

"Health care is a major issue to every single person," Arenti said, adding, "To educate people in a matter of 18 days, you could never do it. It just can't happen."

Arenti pointed out that, in previous years, a switch in insurance carriers took two years of study by city officials and employees.

"We don't know much about it," Police Union president Bruce Tait said, adding that he'd only received e-mailed information on the program last week.

Tait said "We're certainly not opposed to it in principle. We need more time." Tait said that he has no hard copy on the G.I.C. to distribute to his 153 members.

"We're investigating it. We want to know where our members stand," Phillips said. "We're not going to move in haste to join this."

As an example of the details, Phillips said, "Right now, there is no G.I.C. plan that would fit Quincy's HMO plan unless you want to drive to Worcester to visit your doctor."

The Sun Begins Its 40th Year

The Quincy Sun begins its 40th year with this issue as "Historic Quincy's Home Town Weekly Newspaper."

The first issue of The Sun appeared Sept. 26, 1968 and since then we have focused our news coverage exclusively on Quincy.

We are proud to carry the name Quincy in our banner.

We have been blessed with loyal readers down through the years who like having a newspaper devoted to their community and interests.

We also have readers in just about all of the 49 other states, former Quincy residents, who want to keep up on what's going on "back home." As they say, "Once a Quincyite, always a Quincyite."

The Sun has won a number of New England Press Association awards through the years.

It was also designated a National Blue Ribbon Newspaper for its high standards of service to the community.

And, it has also been recognized by many local organizations for that service to the community.

A newspaper has a responsibility to the community and its readers to report the news fairly and accurately. This has been our guide and commitment since 1968 and will continue to be.

The Sun is now one of the few remaining independent newspapers and not part of a multi-chain.

As we begin our 40th years, we again want to thank you—our readers and advertisers—for your continued support and encouragement these past 39 years.

And a special thank-you goes to our faithful newsmen and women who bring The Sun to Quincy homes.

All of you are as much a part of The Quincy Sun family as we, the staff.

We look ahead to the future with optimism and faith in Quincy.

Thank you, all of you, most sincerely,

Clasby Cites City's Services

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

It may pass unnoticed in the headlong rush of Generation X, but senior citizens, in the opinion of Ray Flynn, still have an important role to play in life.

"Senior citizens have inspired the world," the former mayor of Boston and ambassador to the Vatican told the John D. Noonan 12th annual Senior Conference Saturday.

"We all have these people in our lives, whether it's our mothers or fathers or some person who has shown an extraordinary amount of leadership and courage in moving forward in life.

"Words of inspiration and encouragement are the most important things you can give in life."

Flynn cited as an example of the enormous and important contributions seniors can make to society his personal encounter with 73-year-old Mother Teresa, who he helped set up a center for unwed mothers in Boston.

"Leaders are built," he said. "No one is a born leader. You become a leader because of the people that you represent. They inspire you."

Flynn, who spends a lot of time with his grandchildren in Quincy, commended Mayor William Phelan and the city for initiating and maintaining their programs for seniors.

More than 170 seniors attended the conference in the Broad Meadows Middle School, sponsored by the Mayor, the Council on Aging and the Mayor's Office of Constituent Services.

They participated in such workshops as "Eat'n' Healthy," "Understanding a Reverse Mortgage," and "Come Dance With Us."

Council on Aging Director Tom Clasby discussed the conference theme, "The Greatest Generation," a phrase coined by broadcaster Tom Brokaw to describe Americans who came of age during the Great Depression and World War II and went on to build modern America.

"We have 18,000 seniors in the city," said Clasby, "and we have services available to all of them — transportation, blood pressure and hearing screenings, legal assistance, financial planning — all free of charge.

"Our goal is to keep the seniors living in a high quality of life. If they wish to live in their own homes, we want to assist them to do that for as long as possible.

"This annual meeting is a little sprinkling of what we offer throughout the year."

Kay MacPherson, a parttime assistant and the outreach contact at the Council on Aging, spoke about SHINE (Serving Health Information to Elders).

"We ensure that elders have the right insurance policies and prescription coverage," she said. "Anything that comes under Medicare we try to help them with.

"This job gives me great satisfaction. At the end of the day, you just feel wonderful working with the elderly."

Philip Huang, community liaison to the Mayor's Office of Constituent Services, said he was pleased with the large turnout for the event and even had to relocate one of the dance workshops when the number of participants exceeded the space allotted to them.

Congruent with Quincy's diverse population, much of the program's written material was translated for Asians and an interpreter was provided at the cha-cha lesson, bring a whole new dimension to ballroom dancing.

Information on a person's lifestyle can be gathered in advance and a data base built, including photos, to assist the department in locating loved ones.

Deputy Fire Chief Gary Smyth reviewed valuable fire-prevention tips about cooking, smoking and the use of candles in the home and urged members of the "Safety for Seniors" workshop to use 911 for medical emergencies.

"Our 911 system is the best in the state," said Smyth. "If you are having a heart attack, you will get a minimum of three firefighters, one police officer and two paramedics in less than four minutes. Our system is second to none."

Ellen Prothier of Mass Pro shared her extensive knowledge of Medicare rules and procedures in her workshop and encouraged seniors to ask these three questions when seeing a doctor, nurse or pharmacist:

What is my main problem? What do I need to do? Why is it important for me to do this?

She also discussed the importance of obtaining second, and even third, medical opinions, which are covered by Medicare. And when surgery is recommended, she urged participants to ask if there is a way to handle the condition medically and avoid surgery.

Other workshops focused on Tai Chi, on activities available at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Veterans Services and protecting one's financial assets.

At the Discover Quincy workshop, Director Mark Carey announced plans for a new ferry service out of Marina Bay to the Boston Harbor Islands, which should be running next spring.

Orchard Beach Nature Tour Sunday

Naturalist Peter Fifield will lead a free tour of Orchard Beach, Sunday, Sept. 23 at 1:30 p.m.

Fifield will explain the stories behind the "bones" of a shipwreck and the mysterious pilings near Moon Island. He'll also identify birds, some marine life and "biological invaders" that threaten the habitat.

Participants will be walking to a sandbar in muddy water and should wear tie-on shoes that can get wet, according to Fifield.

The tour is sponsored by the Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program. Participants will meet at Huddins Ave. and Bayside Rd.

For more information call 617-472-0799.

Acacia Rizzo Benefit Sept. 30 She Is Just 16 And Needs Double Lung Transplant

Sixteen-year-old Acacia Rizzo is now waiting in Pittsburgh for a double lung transplant to help her fight a rare blood disorder that has damaged her lungs.

Now Acacia and her single mother Lisa must cope not only with the worry of waiting and the medical procedures, but also the medical bills and living expenses. The operation will take place at University of Pittsburgh Medical Center in Pittsburgh, PA.

To help them out, friends and family have opened The Acacia Fund and will hold a silent auction and raffle benefit Sunday, Sept. 30 from 1 p.m. to 5 at the Gazebo at The Best Western Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Organizers are now selling tickets at $25 each and seeking raffle items and donations for the silent auction. The final goal for the Acacia Fund is $100,000.

Acacia has Primary Pulmonary Hypertension, a rare blood vessel disorder that is incurable and can be deadly.

The disorder affects only one in two million people and Acacia's doctors believe that double transplants will improve her quality of life, but will not cure her.

Acacia would rather be just a teenager like all the other 16-year-olds at Carver High School where she just began her junior year. She dreams of studying at Johnson & Wales University to become a chef.

"You would never know she was sick," said her uncle, Dean Rizzo, Executive Director of Quincy 2000 Collaborative. "She's a very strong little girl. She tries to deflect attention from herself."

Acacia attended high school for a few days this year but she was struck down before she completed the first month.

"She had a setback and had to go to Children's Hospital," said Rizzo. The medical staff in Boston immediately sent Acacia to Acacia's on the priority list in Pittsburgh. While she waits, she and her mother Lisa Rizzo must also worry about finances. Lisa's an elementary schoolteacher at the Lynch School, Middleboro.

Gardner Leaving After 24 Years Red Cross Quincy Office Not Closing, But Won't Be The Same

Red Cross volunteers will still answer fires and emergencies in Quincy, and offer training in its downtown Quincy office.

Nothing will change in that respect but the personal touch will be gone next month. As of Oct. 31, the Hancock Street office will no longer be open on a daily basis with two staff members.

In fact, there will be no staff members to meet and greet, answer questions or sign up volunteers. There will be live persons manning the Quincy telephone line out of a Cambridge office, but no one in Quincy.

The staffers in Quincy, Jacqueline (Jackie) Gardner, South Area Director for the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay, and her assistant, Cindy Stebbins, program manager, will be laid off next month.

JACKIE GARDNER

"The office is not closing," Gardner said, noting that Red Cross instructors will continue to use the Quincy office for training and teaching CPR, first aid, and health care basics.

However, Gardner will leave the Red Cross office on Oct. 31 for the last time after serving 24 years as the local director. Right now, she said that she has no plans. Stebbins has worked there three years.

It will be a sad day for Gardner who believes it will, also, be a sad day for the city.

"Quincy will lose something in the mix, that personal contact with volunteers and businesses," said Gardner who believes that personal contacts strengthen the Red Cross presence.

Locals remember the Red Cross badge she wore at leadership conferences, business meetings and Kiwanis Club luncheons. She believes such activities keep people aware and supportive of the Red Cross.

"People forget," said Gardner who remembers the "No Name" storm of 1991 as one of the major disasters

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 22, 1598, playwright Ben Jonson is indicted for manslaughter after a duel. He was very nearly hanged, but his ability to read and write saved him. He claimed "benefit of clergy," which allowed him to be sentenced by ecclesiastical courts. Jonson became a successful playwright with his comedy "Every Man in His Humor," which featured William Shakespeare in a leading role.

• On Sept. 18, 1904, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gidden complete the first crossing of the Canadian Rockies by automobile, arriving exhausted from their 3,536-mile trip. The couple had driven from Boston, Mass., to Vancouver, Canada, in their 24-horsepower Napier.

• On Sept. 21, 1938, a powerful Category 3 hurricane slams into Long Island and southern New England. All told, 700 people were killed, 9,000 buildings destroyed and nearly 3,000 ships sunk or wrecked. The storm created 12 new inlets on Long Island.

• On Sept. 20, 1946, the first Cannes Film Festival opens at the French resort city of Cannes. The outbreak of World War II had forced the cancellation of the inaugural 1939 festival.

• On Sept. 19, 1960, "The Twist," by Chubby Checker, hits the top of the charts. The song was one of the most successful singles in history, launching a national dance craze. It topped the charts again in 1962.

• On Sept. 17, 1976, NASA publicly unveils its first space shuttle, the Enterprise. Development of the aircraft-like spacecraft cost almost $10 billion and took nearly a decade.

• On Sept. 23, 2004, Hurricane Jeanne slams into Haiti, killing an estimated 3,000 people. Jeanne's heavy rains proved to be more destructive than her winds, as flash floods swept through entire villages, carrying away hundreds of people. Jeanne eventually made landfall in Florida, becoming the fourth major hurricane to hit the state that year.

That Sneaky One

It sneaked into town 69 years ago tomorrow. No legitimate name. No warning. It's remembered simply as the Hurricane of 1938 but there was nothing simple about its fury.

There have been others here since. But they had real names like Carol, Diane, Donna, Gloria, Hugo, Bob, Bonnie, Danielle, etc. And we knew they were coming and had time to prepare.

Hurricanes prowling the East Coast were rare around 1938. And back then they weren't tracked from as far away as Africa as they are with today's sophisticated technology.

But this one slipped into the area when no one was looking.

Before it left, it claimed over 600 lives in the New England area-fortunately none in Quincy-and caused millions of dollars in damage.

You could buy a pretty nice house for something like $3,000 back then. Considering that, those millions of dollars in damage would translate into billions of dollars today.

The late Tom Burgin, Quincy's mayor at the time, in an interview remembered it this way:

"It came in around 5:30 p.m. We had no advance warning. It just arrived announced.

"Trees and wires came crashing down. Utility poles were scattered about. Windows in the stores downtown were blown in. Boats were torn loose off the yacht clubs.

"There were 3,900 trees down city-wide and all the fire alarm boxes and police boxes were out of commission. There was no electricity.

Burgin called in the National Guard-for the first time ever here in peacetime.

"We were afraid of the stores being looted. And we needed extra help and patrols in other areas," he said. Squantum, Houghs Neck and Germantown were cut off from the rest of the city by mountainous high flooding tides.

Winds were 90 to 100 miles per hour with gusts topping that at 120 or more.

"As I remember," Burgin said, "the eye of the hurricane came right over Quincy.

"It took us weeks to recover and get back to normal. It was a horrible storm and certainly left a lasting impression on me. I will never forget it."

The East Coast in recent years has been spared Mother Nature's fury as hurricanes like Katrina went elsewhere.

It wasn't until 1953 that the National Hurricane Center began using female names for hurricanes and in 1979 started alternating between female and male names.

But that no name one in 1938 is still one of the biggest and best remembered hurricanes.

WONDERING WHAT THOSE campaign posters for Mayor William Phelan are doing in the Bank of America building in Quincy Square?

The signs are in the street-floor windows on the Chestnut Street side of the bank because the Phelan committee has rented the unoccupied space as its campaign headquarters.

The campaign headquarters for Tom Koch, who is challenging Phelan, is at 680 Hancock St., Wollaston, in the former Wollaston Credit Union building.

TWO CAMPAIGN fundraiser receptions coming up Thursday, Sept. 27.

One for Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee, 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The other for Jennifer McCauley Logue, candidate for councillor-at-Large, from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Common Market Restaurant, 97 Willard St., West Quincy.

McNamee is seeking his second term in the Ward 6 seat. Suggested contribution for his event is $50.

Logue, former executive director of Discover Quincy and daughter of former Mayor Frank McCauley, is making her first run for elective office. Tickets for her reception are $50 and available at the door.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: Uncle Sam Rounseville was asked to be a greeter mingling with the crowd that attended the recent AARP Conference at the Boston Convention Center.

When it was over, he was handed a check for $500. In the tradition of Uncle Sam, he turned it over to the Quincy Public Schools Partnership to go toward scholarships.

OOPS! Last week we mentioned that Susan and Frank Strazzula are extras in a wedding reception scene in the new movie "STIFFS."

Only instead of reporting that they live in Squantum, we accidentally moved them to Hull.

Don't know how we did it but we're sorry for the mix-up.

Child Raising Forum At Library Sept. 24

Parenting expert Lynne Reeves Griffin will share her theories, studies and experience on proactive child raising at a forum Monday, Sept. 24 at 6:30 p.m. at Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

According to Reeves Griffin, some behaviors are non-negotiable whether you are raising toddlers or teenagers. Griffin will offer pointers on reclaiming parental authority without punishment by using a proactive child raising approach.

The program is co-sponsored by Quincy Family Network and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Reeves Griffin is founder of the Proactive parenting workshops and the author of "Negotiations Generation: Take Back Your Parental Authority Without Punishment!"

During the program, Reeves Griffin will share true stories from her 20 years of parent counseling. She said she understands the struggles facing parents today. Her tips tell parents how to step out of the negotiation-generation back into control.

THIS SEPTEMBER 1938 real photo postcard is a view of Flynt Street looking south from Billings Road in Norfolk Downs. The devastation of the infamous 1938 New England hurricane can be seen in the fallen trees and raised sidewalks. At the Great Blue Hill observatory, only five miles from Flynt Street, wind gusts were recorded at 186 miles-per-hour. While the elevation of the observatory is over 600 feet higher than Norfolk Downs, wind gusts here were estimated to be over 120 mph. There was little or no warning of this severe storm as it approached New England and Long Island. Its devastation killed 688 people and damaged over 75,000 buildings. Quincy lost hundreds of its beautiful Elm trees as shown here, and it took months to clear the trees and repair the damage to sidewalks, power lines and buildings. The photo for this postcard was taken by a resident who lived in the house marked by the asterisk in the left center. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Hurricane Of 1938 Catches City By Surprise

By FRANK McCAULEY

WEATHER FORECAST – WEDNESDAY SEPT. 21, 1938:

Continued rain, possible heavy this afternoon and tonight, probably followed by clearing Thursday.

The forecast was wrong. We got the Hurricane of '38 instead.

Battered and ravaged when nature ran amok early last night and in her crazy fury imposed a tropical hurricane of savage violence of New England, the City of Quincy still stunned and shaken, is gradually recovering from the effects of the most terrible storm in its history.

More than a dozen persons were injured, several seriously, and damage to property will probably run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars in Quincy alone. The City of Quincy, through a miracle of luck, suffered no fatalities. Fifteen trees on Acton St. in Wollaston alone were uprooted, as were trees throughout the city.

MAYOR BURGIN PRAISES VOLUNTEERS

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin publicly expressed his appreciation to every volunteer from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and other military groups, together with all civilian volunteers who assisted during the storm emergency. The Police, Public Works and Forestry Departments and many other city workers, did remarkable service under tremendous odds, Mayor Burgin said.

In a direct appeal to the citizens of Quincy, he asked them to cooperate with the emergency crews working in every section of the city.

FALLON GIVES PRAISE FOR AID IN STORM

Quincy Police Captain George Fallon, in charge of storm activities in Quincy, praised National Guard troops who assisted during the storm. There was not one case of looting during the night nor were there any reports of housebreaks in the city, Captain Fallon said. All nights off for police officers were cancelled and day and night officers did extra duty during the storm and its aftermath.

QUINCY-ISM

Mrs. Mary R. Lyons was in charge of arrangements for the first meeting of the fall season of the Business and Professional Women's Club. A dinner at Ships Haven will precede the meeting... READERS FORUM

Sal Bids Fond Farewell

I'm starting to feel like Bob Hope singing "Thanks for the Memories." Shortly, I will be leaving the City of Quincy, crossing back over the Neponset Bridge.

Nearly, 23 1/2 years ago, I left Charlestown for Quincy, Wollaston to be exact. The South Shore has been a part of my life so long; I have mixed feelings about leaving. I won't be far away. Just over the bridge in the Clam Point neighborhood of Dorchester.

I've enjoyed doing

Quincy politics. I remember fondly my run for school committee in 1995. I've had the best state representative anyone could have in Bruce Ayers. I've enjoyed reading The Quincy Sun and writing all those letters to the editor over the years to Henry Bosworth.

I've grown much and learned much in these past two plus decades. I'll miss much and I'll keep hold of all the memories.

I'm sure some pols ill

miss me and some pols will be glad to see me go. Mayor Bill Phelan and I haven't always got along but I still think of him as a friend. I'm sure I've been a pain in the side to many in Quincy politics but I've always done it with a dose of humor.

I'll be gone before the political duel between Tommy Koch and Bill Phelan happens. Good luck to both of them.

Hey, lots of pols do like me, like Joe Finn, Frank McCauley, Joe LaRaia, Mike Bellotti, etc.

Good luck to Victor Ng in the council at-Large race. He's an up and coming Quincy pol.

I even have some kind words for Jim Sheets. He was pretty good most of the time. I always liked to keep him guessing.

I will miss Quincy and await my future in Dorchester.

He Would Invite Bin Laden To The White House

Ever since I began to be interested in politics, I have never heard a more powerful political message than when I read in the Boston Globe, on Sept. 14, a statement by the Russian President Vladimir Putin, made at a meeting with Western journalists and academics.

Although the statement was made sarcastically, in its non-sarcastic meaning, the statement could initiate a salvatory chapter for the present barbaric and hopelessly chaotic state of the world.

Here is what Putin said: "Why don't you, Americans, meet Osama bin Laden? Why don't you invite him to Brussels or to the White House and engage him in talks, and ask him what he wants and give it to him, so that he would leave you in peace!"

At the first instance, such as gesture could be labeled as being "totally insane." At the second instance, such a gesture could be labeled as "Christ's own." As JFK would have said "Our work on Earth should be Christ's own," who came to Earth to reconcile us with one another and thus reconciled to reconcile us with God.

This radical suggestion, although in appearance contrary to all common sense-it realized would serve to end the endless human bloodshed around the globe, without a parallel in human history.

Council Honors QATV As National Award Winner

The City Council saluted Quincy Access Television (QATV) last week for winning a prestigious 2007 national award and for its more than a decade of service to city residents.

"QATV has set the standard (for local stations)," Council President Douglas Gutro said before presenting Certificates of Commendation to eight of the station's staff members and congratulating QATV's Board of Directors.

"I know that all of us on this council and this city are proud of the work that they do to help inform, educate, and entertain Quincy residents with their outstanding programming," he said.

Gutro turned the chair of the council meeting over to Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly before he and Councillor Michael McFarland began the ceremony.

In just the past two years,

Gutro said that QATV has worked hard to make public meetings more understandable and meaningful by such efforts as increasing the number of microphones and stepping up the use of graphics to clarify council discussions.

He also noted that the station covers local events like Flag Day and the Christmas parade, high school sports and concerts and provides training workshops for video production.

The National Alliance for Community Media recently recognized QATV for excellence for the second time in 10 years. The station was chosen winner of the 2007 Hometown Video Awards for "overall excellence in public, education and government access."

McFarland who has served as treasurer of the QATV Board of Directors for the past 10 years recalled the history of the independent station. In 1996, the Quincy Telecommunications Corporation, Inc. was organized as a private, charitable organization.

Gutro presented certificates to QATV Executive Director Betty Campbell, Government Access Coordinator Mark Crosby, Public Access Coordinator Jon Calin, Production Coordinator Liz Clancy, Instructor Bill Earley, Administrative Assistant Carol Themmen and Operations Manager Chris Potter.

Gutro also recognized the Board of Directors which, in addition to McFarland, includes James Mullaney, president; Barry Welch, secretary; and members Terry Bellotti, George Cappadona, Thomas Gorman, David Murphy, Robert Noble, Catherine Roeder, James Tansey and James Timmins.

Worship Book Author To Visit Wollaston Church This Weekend

The Wollaston Congregational Church will host the Rev. Dr. Thomas G. Long, the Presbyterian author of Beyond the Worship Wars and 13 other books on preaching or worship, this weekend.

In his book, Dr. Long, a resident of Atlanta, Ga., discusses the nine characteristics of vital and faithful worship practiced by a wide range of "third way" congregations.

The nine characteristics include experiencing mystery, practicing hospitality and recovering a sense of drama.

A reception for Dr. Long will be held Friday, Sept. 21, from 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday will begin with a continental breakfast at 8 a.m. after which Dr. Long will lead a workshop on his book from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Dr. Long will be the guest preacher during the worship service Sunday at 10 a.m., his sermon entitled "A Great Chasm" from Luke's Gospel, Chapter 16:19-31.

There will be a follow-up book discussion on Beyond the Worship Wars Tuesday, Sept. 25, at 7 p.m. at the church.

For more information, call 617-773-7432.

The program is made possible through a Worship Renewal Grant from the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship of Grand Rapids, Mich., with funding from Lilly Endowment Inc.

Kids Fair Sept. 29 At Quincy Wal-Mart

Quincy Police and Wal-Mart will sponsor a Kids Fair Saturday, Sept. 29 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Quincy Wal-Mart, 301 Falls Blvd.

The fair will be an exciting and informative event. Participants can meet many police officers. The fair will also feature fingerprinting of children, a K-9 demonstration as well as child car seat installations and auto etching - both by appointment only.

There will be literature and handouts on a variety of child related topics.

Other agencies planning to attend are the YMCA, Fallon Ambulance, the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office and Quincy Fire Department. Children's Hospital will also conduct a blood drive as part of their "pints for half-pints program."

There is no rain date.

Chowder Fest Sunday At Marina Bay Center

Marina Bay Skilled Nursing & Rehabilitation Center will host its fourth annual Chowder Fest Sunday, Sept. 23, from 2 to 4 p.m. at 2 Seaport Drive, North Quincy.

Among those competing for the title of "The Best" are several popular South Shore eateries. Award winners will be given the "Chowder Bowl" trophy.

There will be music by the KADIMA Band and face painting and balloons by LauraBelle the clown.

Admission is $10 with children under the age of 12 admitted free. Proceeds will benefit the Quincy Council on Aging.

Seaside Gardeners Plan 'Faire For All Seasons'

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum are holding a fundraising fair, "The Faire For All Seasons," Saturday, Sept. 29 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd., Squantum.

Luncheon will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Craft and boutique tables will offer an array of gift articles and handy items for children, home and office.

Visitors can get a head start on holiday shopping or year-round giving at the craft tables. The "Hostess Gift" tables will feature dressy aprons, wreaths, flower arrangements and many hand-made articles with a seaside theme.

In addition, the "Second Hand Rose Boutique" will offer gently used articles, as will a children's table that will also feature new toys and games.

Pat's Clam Chowder will be the specialty of the house but other homemade soup, as well as steamed hot dogs and assorted back goods will be available along with coffee, tea or hot cocoa.

Proceeds from the fair benefit the club's civic projects.

For more information, call Pat McGilvray, the Fair's Chairperson, at 617-328-0355.

Logue Makes Environment A City-Wide Priority

Councillor-at-Large candidate Jennifer McCauley Logue is calling on the city to move forward with acquiring the controversial Cobblestone Lane parcel on Sea Street before the property is cleared or otherwise threatened by development.

Logue also urged city officials to make a commitment to preserving more passive recreation areas, where residents can enjoy Quincy's parks, marshes and coastal areas in their natural state.

"As I make my way around the city, I've noticed that the environment is one of the first issues residents bring up when asked about their concerns for Quincy's future," Logue said.

They're concerned about the never-ending construction of condos and townhouses on every available piece of land. They're concerned about shade trees that are dying throughout the city. They're concerned about invasive plants that are choking our wetlands and destroying the natural habitat of wildlife. And they're concerned that Quincy is running out of passive recreation areas."

To address some of these concerns, Logue said the city should waste no time in purchasing the 3.5-acre Cobblestone parcel on Sea Street, which the newly formed Community Preservation Committee recommended the city purchase with a portion of the $2.2 million in CPA funds expected to be available this year.

When it comes to preserving what's left of Quincy's open space, there's really no time to lose," Logue said. "I urge the city to negotiate the purchase of this property, and to move forward with the CPA committee's other recommendations, as soon as possible."

Other environmental initiatives Logue supports include bringing state programs to Quincy that would rid the city's wetlands of dangerous invasive plants and establishing "resident-friendly" policies for replacing neighborhood trees removed by the city or contractors for road repairs or other construction projects.

"If the city or one of its contractors removes trees from a street, there should be a process in place for automatically replacing those trees," Logue said. "This one shouldn't be on the resident to call up the city and ask to be put on a waiting list to get those trees back."

"As a councillor-at-Large, I'd work with the Park Department and other councillors to cut through the red tape and lengthy waiting periods to address environmental issues like these."

The daughter of former Mayor Francis McCauley, Logue, 40, is the former executive director of Discover Quincy.

Voter Registration At Farmers' Market Friday

The city of Quincy will have a booth at the Farmers' Market in the John Hancock Parking Lot Friday, Sept. 21, but it won't be selling fruit or vegetables.

A registrar of voters will be on hand from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. to sign up new voters for the coming municipal election in November.

All you will need to bring in order to register is some identification and the last four digits of your Social Security number.

While you're at it, you might check out the pumpkins and fall squashes that are showing up at the market with a new frequency.

And there is still a plethora of tomatoes and corn.

Want More Time On Insurance Decision

summer approved a bill allowing employees of cities and towns to join the state employees' health program.

On July 25, Governor Deval Patrick signed the bill which includes an Oct. 1 deadline for cities and towns to join the program.

As of last week, 20 regional school systems had signed on joining the Springfield and Saugus in the program, according to G.I.C. Executive Director Dolores Mitchell who said she'd had inquiries from 20 cities and towns.

Mayor William Phelan has said that joining the state's health insurance program could save Quincy taxpayers $8 million dollars annually and employees at least one million dollars. The city currently pays $39 million a year for employee and retiree benefits.

In a Sept. 4 letter to the City Council, Phelan urged councillors to act quickly. "The deadline of the Oct. 1 notification is fast approaching and requires swift action by all parties involved."

The city's Personnel Director Roberta Ketty outlined the G.I.C. program to the City Council at their last meeting.

Ketty said that the G.I.C. is currently covering 272,000 individuals through the program and that gives the state considerable bargaining power in cutting employee benefit costs.

In addition, Ketty cited the 12.4% increase in Quincy claim costs versus the 5% increase in the state's claim costs. High claim costs adversely affect insurance premiums.

The teachers' union governing board acted last week. They will study the issue and consider joining next October for coverage in 2009.

"It's dead in the water," Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said this week, adding that the teachers' vote gives the City Council time to better prepare for examining the state health care program for a vote next year.

However, Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis thinks there's still a chance the city could join the state plan for 2008 coverage.

"Stranger things have happened," said Davis who believes the state could permit an extension of the October 1 deadline, allowing city officials and union members sufficient time to review the program.

Davis called an Ordinance Committee meeting last night (Wednesday) at which G.I.C. Communications Director Cynthia McGrath and Joel Barrera of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council were invited to speak.

Davis said all union officials were notified.

Under the current deadline, the City Council, the mayor, union leaders and retirees had to decide by Oct. 1 whether all of the city's 2,375 employees and 1,765 retirees and their families should join the state health insurance program for a minimum of three years.

In addition to the employees, retirees and their families, another 700 active retirees, individuals and families with benefits, currently under commercial health plans, would be moved to G.I.C.

The employee decision to join must be voted by a Public Employee Committee (PEC) which, under the law, must have a representative from all city bargaining units and may convene at any time after 30 days' notice from the city.

The PEC must approve the move to the state's program by a 70% vote. Each PEC vote is weighted according to the number of employees represented.

For example, the QEA vote would be a decisive factor as the teachers' vote would count for 39% of the required 70% majority. Under the law, the retirees would have a 10% vote.

Several city councillors said this week and, at their last meeting, that the Oct. 1 deadline offered little chance to examine the state's employee health plan. Now there will be time to study the state plan in time for next year's deadline.

The City Council has to approve membership in the G.I.C. but their vote is not binding on the city employees.

Coughlin said Monday that the Council was "...not prepared to entertain moving to the G.I.C. in such a compressed time frame, just from a rational point of view."

"It's important for (City Council) to do our due diligence," Coughlin said.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymond said there's a lot to learn and now council members can study the state health plan and consider all alternatives for a later vote. "We need to educate ourselves about the whole process."

At the last meeting, Ward 6 City Councillor Brian McNamee said that he's always wary when told that he can pay less and get more of anything.

"This is a very ambitious task to make this work," McNamee said.

McNamee fears that G.I.C. rates and coverage decisions will be moved to Beacon Hill and the city would "lose a lot of control." He cited data that suggested prescription co-pay could go as high as $90 in some circumstances.

"The G.I.C. is good for me," said Coughlin, who with his family is insured by the state program. Coughlin said the plan has been very successful for them. He could have chosen a city plan but preferred the stability of the state insurance program.

"I think it's a complex issue," said Coughlin. "It's not something you can rush into. Once you're in, you can't get out."

However, Coughlin said that he does pay more in co-pays than a city plan may require and that his premiums have fluctuated.

"I've paid as much as 20%," said Coughlin who said the employee premiums percentage is set by the legislature and approved by the governor.

Coughlin, also, pointed out that employees do have a lot of choices and his plan is only one of the eight plans available to those covered under the G.I.C. The array of plans offers members a wide range of choice in payments and coverage.

The City Council had planned a public hearing on the health insurance issue next Monday. The question may be moot by then.

Koch Calls For Improving Communication With Residents

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch has proposed a series of steps to improve communication between City Hall and residents, saying major projects and other matters should never happen with the public kept in the dark.

Part of Koch's "Leadership Now" plan, the proposal includes an overhaul of the city's website to provide up-to-date and useful information; a new emphasis to use Quincy Access Television as a communication tool; phone system improvements to make informing residents easier; and a new program to keep ward councillors up-to-date on projects so written notice can be provided to residents.

"Keeping residents informed is the most basic leadership function of City Hall, and we must do better," Koch said. "We're seeing so many things happen around our city without the public's knowledge, and it speaks to a larger failure to lead that we plan to change. It's the same leadership with the high school project, taxes, public safety, and development."

Koch highlighted a series of examples the last few months as evidence of the need to repair a disconnect between the public and City Hall. Koch cited road projects in Wollaston, a gas main project on Hancock Street in North Quincy, and most recently a major MWRRA project in West Quincy that started, he said, with virtually no information provided to the public.

"People woke up in the morning to find streets were closed—this is unacceptable," Koch said. "The administration suggested that the MWRRA started the work without any city approval, but that simply does not and should not happen. We need leadership that ensures residents are informed about what's happening in their neighborhoods."

The communication breakdown doesn't lend with public works projects, Koch said, pointing to a series of house break-ins over the summer in the Wollaston area. The public was only informed about the rash of break-ins by a chain email that spread around the neighborhood, he said. Koch also highlighted the professional volleyball event at Marina Bay this summer, noting that the mayor held a meeting in the neighborhood without informing them of the event.

Koch said his administration would immediately overhaul the city's website to become an informational resource for residents, providing announcements on major projects and other issues in the city. The city would use the resources of QATV for the same purpose, and will explore a number of options to communicate with residents by phone and by email.

"The city's website will become the website for the entire city, not a publicity page for the administration," Koch said. "There is so much more we can do to keep our residents informed, and just about all of it is free and easy to implement. It's a simple function of leadership, and that's exactly what we intend to provide."

Koch announced the first part of his "Leadership Now" program last week, calling for changes to the city's zoning code to stop neighborhood overdevelopment and major improvements to traffic systems around the city. The plan can be obtained by calling 617-773-5624.

In accordance with M.G.L. Chapter 30B, the City of Quincy requests proposals for furnishing and delivering to the City:

PLANNING DEPARTMENT

RESIDENTIAL DESIGN GUIDELINES FOR OCTOBER 5, 2007 @ 10:30 a.m.
 MULTI-FAMILY EXTENSION AND/OR CONVERSION
 IN RESIDENCE B ZONING DISTRICTS IN QUINCY

The City of Quincy is seeking proposals from qualified Planning and Architecture firms to study and draft residential design guidelines, and related zoning amendments, to help regulate construction and/or extension of multi-family structures in the Residence B zoning district. The City seeks to have this project implemented rapidly and has established a date of November 1, 2007 for submission of proposed zoning amendments and draft design guidelines. A copy of the specifications may be obtained at the Purchasing Department, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, on or after September 20, 2007, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Non-Price Proposals must be in a sealed envelope and price proposals must be in a separate sealed envelope. The outside of the sealed envelopes are to be clearly marked "RFP - NON PRICE PROPOSAL ENCLOSED" with time/date of RFP and "RFP - PRICE PROPOSAL ENCLOSED" with the time/date of RFP opening.

Proposals will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent until the time and date stated above, at which time and date they will be opened and registered. Late proposals, delivered by mail or in person, will be rejected.

The right is reserved to reject any or all RFP's or to accept any part of an RFP or the one deemed best for the City, and waive any informalities in the bidding, if it is in the best interest of the City to do so.

"We are doing our part to improve our environment and encouraging residents to do the same," said Phelan. "As a whole, our recycling efforts are favorable and our numbers are increasing, but we can always do more. This committee will educate residents about the environmental and economical impacts of recycling and energy conservation."

"I sincerely appreciate the time and talents that each member lends to the committee," Phelan said. "The work of our city's volunteers boards and commissions is of great service to the community and I am humbled by the community spirit that exists in Quincy. I look forward to the great success of the committee and our community."

"I am proud to be appointed to this committee by a mayor so committed to our environment," said Foley, a leading community environmentalist. "The energy conservation program and the exploration of renewable energies have made Quincy a bit of a pioneer community in this area. I am excited and proud to serve on such a worthwhile committee."

The City's Purchasing Department has adopted an environmentally friendly purchasing policy, avoiding any products that are deemed unsafe for the environment, Phelan said. Cleaning products and light fixtures are an area that the city has made immediate improvements in their procurement policies.

Quincy is the first community in the Commonwealth to take advantage of the State's new Energy Savings Law, whereby every municipal building is being studied and improved. Working with Honeywell, Inc., the City is making $32 million worth of improvements to roofs, lights, plumbing fixtures, windows, and heating systems without costing taxpayers any outlay. The new components are guaranteed to be paid by Honeywell through savings in electricity and water bills.

"This program is one of the city's most successful undertakings," said Mike Ryan, Director of Buildings. "We are improving the environment in every school, we are conserving energy and reducing our carbon footprint, and we are saving taxpayers money. This is a win-win for everyone."

The City is approaching completion of a 12-month study of wind data at the Quincy Police Station and at Quarry Hills. The scientific information will be analyzed to see if Quincy has the right environment to support wind power nearby those locations.

QMC Respiratory Therapist Benefits From Partnership With Conway Co.

Howard Paisner is the latest employee of Quincy Medical Center to benefit from the new partnership between the hospital and Jack Conway & Co. Realtors.

The respiratory therapist utilized the services of Jennifer Kern, an agent in the Wollaston office of Jack Conway & Co. to purchase his Quincy home.

"She was the consummate professional and made the whole experience stress free," Paisner said.

Under the new program, each time a Quincy Medical Center employee uses the services of Jack Conway & Co. Realtors to buy or sell a home, they receive discounted real estate services, and Conway Co. makes a donation to the hospital.

Several medical center workers have already benefited from the new partnership.

"This is really a win-win-win," said Quincy Medical Center president Dr. Gary Gibbons. "Our employees win with excellent real estate services, Conway Co. wins with new customers, and the hospital wins through generous donations from Jack Conway Co."

Quincy Police, Wal-Mart To Sponsor Kids Fair

Quincy Police and Wal-Mart will sponsor a Kids Fair Saturday, Sept. 29 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Quincy Wal-Mart, 301 Falls Blvd.

The fair will be an exciting and informative event. Participants can meet many police officers. The fair will also feature fingerprinting of children, a K-9 demonstration as well as child car seat installations and auto etching - both by appointment only.

There will be literature and handouts on a variety of child related topics.

Other agencies planning to attend are the YMCA, Fallon Ambulance, the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office and Quincy Fire Department. Children's Hospital will also conduct a blood drive as part of their "pints for half-pints program."

There is no rain date.

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, Sept. 4, at approximately 4 p.m. the Quincy Police Department received a telephone call that there was a break in progress on Albion Road. The dispatcher kept the caller on the line as he dispatched cruisers to the area. At the time, the area cars were tied up in a horrific domestic violence call involving injuries and arrests.

I (Lt. Minton) was on my way home, so I informed the dispatcher that I would be on the scene shortly. Detective James Lencki, just coming on shift, said he was on his way. The witness provided constant updates to the dispatcher and as I turned onto Albion Road, I was able to see two males walking away from the address given.

LT. DAN MINTON

DET. JAMES LENCKI

As I drove up behind them, I saw a person on a cell phone watching the suspects. I pulled over and spoke to the person on the cell phone confirmed that the two males walking away were the suspects. He said they were two of the three who were trying doors and windows attempting to get inside.

I radioed Detective Lencki, who came up Albion Road in the opposite direction, from Hancock Street, that they were two of the suspects. We pulled our vehicles on each side of them, in the event that they tried to run.

Detective Lencki asked the suspects what they were doing at the house and they said they were looking for a friend. The suspects provided a name that did not match with the residents of the home where the attempted break occurred. As Detective Lencki held the suspects, I returned to the witness, who said two of the suspects first tried to open the front and back door while the third acted as the lookout. After an initial try at gaining entry, the suspects briefly walked away from the house and down the street, then returned to the back yard.

The witness said the suspects then tried the screen window in the rear of the house, pushing both the screen and the window up. When sirens were heard in the distance, (ambulance heading toward the domestic disturbance) the suspects walked away from the house and down the street, briefly out of sight of the witness.

The witness walked out into the street and covertly observed two of the three suspects walking on Albion Road toward Hancock Street. Based on this information, I returned to Detective Lencki's position, now joined by Officer Curtis and informed him of the witness's account. Detective Lencki told the suspects they were under arrest.

I searched suspect #1 and found a pair of needle-nose pliers and pills in an unmarked prescription bottle. This suspect (1) said the pills were his, but could not identify the name of the pill. When asked what he used the pills for, he said, "For neck pain." I asked him what the problem was with his neck and he then said, "It's for sore throats." When asked why he was carrying pliers, the suspect did not respond.

Suspect #2 had a pair of rubber medical gloves in his pocket. Drug Unit Detective Brian Coen arrived on scene after searching for the third suspect and identified the drug as commonly used with heroin. Both suspects were transported to the station for booking. During the booking process, the suspects gave false names to the desk sergeant, but the true identity was discovered through the submission of their fingerprints to the FBI.

Suspect #1, a 29-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with possession of burglarious tools, breaking and entering, possession of Class B drugs, false information to a police officer, along with multiple warrants.

Suspect #2, a Dorchester resident, was charged with possession of burglarious tools, breaking and entering and false information to a police officer.

Nice work! In this case, most of the credit goes to the witness, who immediately recognized something was wrong and observed the suspects while notifying the police. The witness made observations from a safe viewing area and provided updates to the responding units via the dispatcher. The suspects were taken into custody without incident, and as for the third suspect, another witness provided a license plate of a vehicle that sped away.

Detectives are following up on the lead. If you are a witness to a possible crime, give us a call and let the officers check it out. Too many times, people say they weren't sure or didn't want to bother the police. It was through the efforts of this witness that we were able to catch the suspects!

Red Raiders Win Thriller Over Sandwich

By SEAN BRENNAN

Now that is what you can call progress.

One week after opening the 2007 football season with a hard-fought, but unrewarding 28-14 loss to Somerville High School, the North Quincy Red Raiders responded to head coach Jim Connor's call for positive change, with a thrilling 13-12 come-from-behind victory over Sandwich High School last Friday night at a charged up Veterans Memorial Stadium.

With the win, North Quincy improved its early season record to 1-1 overall, and 1-0 in the highly competitive Atlantic Coast League. The victory was the team's first since October 20, 2006, when the Red Raiders knocked off ACL foe Nauset High School by a score of 32-0.

"If we want to be a good team we need to expect to win," Connor said after his team's loss to Somerville High School two Fridays ago. "We are moving on and need to get ready to play Sandwich."

Get ready they did. But it took them until there was about eight minutes remaining in the final quarter to finally get it jump started.

The Raiders came out of the locker room to begin the night's festivities to a loud and supportive home crowd, but the opening half did little to quell the notion that North Quincy may be a ways away from being competitive in the tough Atlantic Coast League.

The offense struggled throughout the first half as quarterback Dennis Martin and running backs Jon Cahill, Danny Jackson and Joe Vialpando found it tough to gain any significant yards against the stingy Sandwich front line.

With the offense attack being kept in check early, the Red Raider defense played like a unit on a mission. Senior linebacker Sekou Benjamin and senior defense lineman Jesse Skomial, along with seniors Marcellus Lee (defense end) and Christian Arredondo (linebacker) kept the Sandwich running attack grounded while the defensive backfield of Dave Thomson, Alex Tragellis, Danny Jackson and Jon Cahill kept the passing game in check.

RUNNING BACK DANNY JACKSON (#3) follows the lead of offensive lineman Jon Benoit (#73) for a big gain against Somerville High School in the season opener. Jackson scored on a 60-yard fourth quarter touchdown run against Sandwich last Friday to help give North Quincy a come-from-behind 13-12 victory. The win was North's first since October 20, 2006.

Bob Hanna-Running For Dana Farber Cancer Institute In Chicago Marathon

Quincy resident Bob Hanna will be running in the Chicago Marathon on Oct. 7 as part of the Dana Farber Cancer Institute Marathon Team. Hanna is running as part of the "team" but, more importantly, in recognition of his brother-in-law Larry Butler.

All the proceeds raised by Hanna will be in honor of Butler, the former Manager of Patient Services at Quincy Medical Center who died in December of 2001.

"For years, Larry held this job and was 'the lion' of Quincy Medical," Hanna said. "Larry was responsible for so many projects that served so many people at the hospital. In addition, he was generous and hard working in support of many fund raising events that took place at Quincy Medical Center."

Hanna's employer, Safety Insurance Company, played a large role in support of his training and fund raising. The employee support and employer match of all funds by Safety Insurance allowed Hanna to surpass his goal for Dana Farber.

In addition to running as part of the DFCl team, Hanna will also be running with several members of the Trinity Irish Running Club of Dedham/Westwood. An estimated 45,000 runners will weave their way through the streets of Chicago when the 30th running of the event takes place in two weeks.

The Fours Finish Season Undefeated, Champions

Quincy's U12 travel softball team, sponsored by The Fours, ended their summer with an undefeated regular season and a championship title in the Norfolk County Girls Softball League.

The Fours entered the playoffs as the number one seed and quickly dispatched of the team from Westwood behind solid pitching from Erin Chiochio. The finishing blow in the opening round playoff game came in the fourth inning with Natasha Sautter kicking off four consecutive runs with a leadoff homerun.

In the semifinals, the match up was Quincy vs. Quincy for the second straight season. The Fours and Coughlin Club battled it out for seven innings, but in the end, it was The Fours who advanced to the championship game behind the pitching of Nicole Parry and run scoring doubles by Jacki Hughes, Taylor McKay, Parry and Rachel Selbert.

Hosting the championship game at Mitchell/McCoy Field in Quincy, The Fours faced off against a strong and determined Newton squad.

The team struggled early, allowing Newton's first batter to reach base and score on a fielding error.

Trailing 4-0 in the home half of the fourth inning, Quincy turned to one of its best offensive weapons to help change the tone of the game. Caitlin Bulger, who had started the season with her wrist in a cast, laid down a perfect bunt and advanced to second on an errant throw to first base. Erin Richardson followed with another successful bunt, putting runners on the corners with no outs.

Liz Kelly's two-run hit to centerfield brought The Fours back to within two runs and consecutive hits by Parry, Emma Ainsley, and Selbert tied the score at 4-4.

In the top of the sixth inning Newton had runners on second and third with no outs. The battery of Parry and Richardson stood tall and struck out the next two batters. Facing Newton's cleanup hitter, Parry threw a pitch in the dirt that Richardson could not stop, but with Parry covering the plate, Richardson pounced on the ball and flipped it to Parry who tagged out the incoming runner from third for the final out of the inning.

In the home half of the sixth, Richardson bunted her way on base, stole second and third and scored the go ahead run on a wild pitch. Liz Kelly would later come around to score the second run of the inning to make the score 6-4.

The Fours closed out the championship in the seventh behind a Jacki Hughes heads up play in right field. With their leadoff hitter aboard, Newton's next batter smashed a line drive to right field that Hughes chased down on the fly. Seeing the runner too far off first base, Hughes fired the ball to Chiochio covering first to complete the double play. A routine groundball to Selbert at third base ended the game and finished off their undefeated season.

The team and coaches would like to thank all those who helped make the 2007 season so successful, including Travel Coordinator Mary Ainsley; the special assistance from Kyle Ainsley, Kori Sorenson, Barry Needham and Quincy Youth Softball.

Final U.S. Marshal William F. Degan Memorial Road Race Sunday

When the 15th annual U.S. Marshal William F. Degan Memorial Road Race gets underway on Sunday, Sept. 23, it will mark the beginning of the end for this 15-year charity event in the City of Quincy.

The Degan Memorial Road Race has been held annually since 1993 as a community event to preserve the memory of U.S. Marshal Bill Degan, who lost his life in 1992 in the line of duty.

The road race draws close to 1,300 runners each year, including U.S. marshals from around the country, and not including this year, has raised more than $250,000 in support of scholarship funds and local organizations, including Quincy Cares, Mayflower Pediatrics, Quincy After School, and the police D.A.R.E. program.

The proceeds from this year's race will go to help fund scholarships for a graduating senior from Quincy High School and North Quincy High School, and this year's race is shaping up to be the biggest one in the 15-year history of the event.

"The numbers for this year's road race are currently more than any other prior year," said Rick Fitzpatrick, Degan's brother-in-law and race coordinator. "At the same time as the Quincy road race, there will be a simultaneously road race by about twenty to thirty members of the Marine Corps in Baghdad."

Next year, the road race will be replaced by a similar event in memory of Quincy police officer James "Jannie" Cochrane, who died in a motorcycle accident last September.

"The family has decided to move forward although they are appreciative of everything that has been done in Bill's honor the last fifteen years," Fitzpatrick added. "As a committee we had that in mind that at any point if they decided to move forward, we would respect that."

Dick and Rick Hoyt, known in the local running circles as Team Hoyt and as annual participants in the Boston Marathon, will be competing in this year's race. For more than 25 years, Dick Hoyt has pushed his wheelchair-bound son through the streets of Boston and has become an inspiration for runners and fans alike.

The races begin at 10 a.m. outside of Adams Field on Merrymount Parkway, but there is also a free Kids Fun Run starting at 9:15 a.m. at Pageant Field. The main course is a USATF Certified fast flat course, which includes three miles of beachfront road. Spiller Race Systems do timing for the races. There will be five races including a 10K, a 5K, a 10K Law Enforcement Officer race, 5K Law Enforcement race and a 10K Wheelchair race. Prizes will be awarded to all the winners in the 10K and 5K races. All participants in the Kids Fun Run receive a prize.

Early registration (strongly encouraged) for the 10K and 5K races begins on Sat., Sept. 22 at the Koch Complex, One Merrymount Parkway, from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. Race day registration and BIB pickup begins at 8 a.m. until 9:30 a.m.

For more information, visit the Web site www.deganroadrace.com or email Rick Fitzpatrick at rfcithall@comcast.net.

At half time, Sandwich held a slim 6-0 lead.

The second half did not start off the way the Red Raiders would have hoped as the kickoff was fumbled away and recovered by Sandwich. That turnover turned costly almost immediately as Sandwich took the ball from the North Quincy 31-yard line and drove it all the way down inside the 10-yard line. Two plays later, Sandwich punched it in for their second offense touchdown of the game.

But it was here when the tide started to turn in North Quincy favor. Sandwich lined up for the point after attempt, and missed badly. It was the second time in as many tries that they coughed up the PAT. So instead of a 14-0 third quarter advantage, it was a 12-0 lead.

The Raiders' offense continued to sputter on its next two offensive possessions. Martin could find little space to complete a pass and his trio of running backs (Cahill, Jackson and Vialpando) continued to be knocked back for little to no gain on most of their running attempts. A promising scoring drive at the beginning of the fourth quarter came up empty, and North Quincy was forced to give the ball back to Sandwich.

With the game clock running down in the fourth quarter, Sandwich took the ball deep in their own end looking to run the ball and eat up what valuable time was left, but the Raider defense was not having any of that.

Senior captain Dennis Thomson's bone-charring tackle on a play in the left flat forced a fumble that was recovered by North Quincy at the Sandwich 24-yard line. The turnover not only got the Raiders sideline and coaching staff pumped up, but also the home crowd. The silence that had engulfed Veterans Memorial Stadium after the second Sandwich touchdown made it 12-0, quickly became one loud and supportive voice.

Martin huddled up his offense and on the first play from scrimmage, handed the ball to Cahill who gained three yards. The offense followed that with another short run up the middle. Facing a third down, Martin went back to the ground game, this time handing the ball to Danny Jackson. Jackson knifed his way through the line and into the open space in the Sandwich backfield before being tackled at the 3-yard line.

On first-and-goal from the three-yard line, Jon Cahill followed his blocks and walked virtually untouched into the end zone. Zac Deegan's successful PAT drew North to within 12-7 with just under five minutes to play in regulation.

Sandwich could not respond on its next offensive possession as the Red Raider defense seemed to build off the momentum from the Thomson forced fumble and the Cahill score. After a punt by Sandwich gave the ball back to the offense, North faced a long field and little time to score.

Facing a second-and-long from their own 40-yard line with just over one minute remaining, North called running back Danny Jackson's number again. Jackson broke free of two tacklers, cut back to the middle of the field, and then back towards the sidelines and left two Sandwich defenders in his wake. His 60-yard TD run put the Raiders up 13-12. North went for the two-point conversion and missed (a successful attempt would have given them a three-point lead).

On Sandwich ensuing drive, Dennis Martin (playing free safety in a pinch) intercepted the first pass thrown by the Sandwich quarterback with 45 seconds remaining, sealing the victory for the Red Raiders. And averaging last year's 26-6 loss on the Cape.

"I'm not one to gloat or anything, but this is one of the best games that you'll see in the ACL all season," said an elated Connor. "The game was unbelievable. People were honking and beeping. It was great."

North Quincy will be looking to keep their winning streak intact today (Thursday) when they travel to Randolph High School to play a non-league game beginning at 4 p.m. North lost 20-16 last year to this team, but nothing gets a team heading on the right track like a big league win.

Progress made.

North Girls Record 1-1-1

By SEAN BRENNAN

The 2007 North Quincy varsity girls soccer roster is deep, and after last week's games against Fontbonne Academy and Falmouth High School, that depth is going to be tested immediately.

North took to the field last Thursday to play its Atlantic Coast League opener against the Clippers of Falmouth High School. The Raiders and the Clippers played to a 1-1 draw, but in the process, North lost starting goalkeeper Siobhan Carnell to a knee injury (she is day-to-day) and sophomore striker Cara Murtagh to a busted nose.

"I told the girls after the game that they all showed heart and great character against a very good league team," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "After losing our starting keeper and our starting striker, the team didn't fold, but instead played with passion and heart. It is early, but this game could be an turning point in our season."

North got on the board first on a goal from senior captain Emily Milone just 11:15 into the contest. After a breakdown on defense late in the first half allowed Falmouth to tie the score at 1-1, the Red Raiders and that deep roster buckled down in the second half.

Junior Jesse Howlett replaced Carnell, who was injured on a routine play just ten minutes into the second half. Howlett, a standout basketball player for North Quincy, made eight saves, including a beautiful stop on a late Clippers scoring chance.

"Jesse played great in the second half," said Bregoli. "She made the saves, cut off a handful of balls and late in the game reached out like she was grabbing a rebound and saved us from defeat."

"When Carnell and Murtagh went down, the rest of the team stood up. Lindsey Repucci, Shannon Coleman, Simone Leary and Anne Marie Price all stepped up their games to help preserve that tie. We have the depth, but it is inexperienced depth. I told the underclassmen that they needed to play better and they did against Falmouth."

Last Wednesday, the Raiders traveled into Milton to play against Fontbonne Academy in a non-league game and came away with a convincing 4-2 victory.

Senior captain Mary Kate Stille took a throw-in in the seventh minute of play from Murtagh and buried the pass into the back of the net for her first goal of the young season. Junior Lindsay Reilly followed Stille's goal with her first career varsity goal to up the score to 2-0.

With just under five minutes remaining in the first half, Milone scored off of a feed from sophomore midfielder Kristin Peterson, and solid defense on the back line by Simone Leary and Shannon Coleman in the waning minutes of the half, helped preserve the 3-0 lead.

Milone continued her hot scoring start with her second goal of the game (and third of the season) early in the second half. Senior midfielder Kasey O'Connell assisted on the goal. Fontbonne would later go on to score two late goals, but the damage was done and North Quincy was on its way to its first win of 2007.

"This was a good win against a strong non-league opponent," said Bregoli. "Fontbonne's home field is on the smaller-side, and add that component to the fact that we were playing on the road, and it was a solid victory."

Bregoli, entering his thirteenth season as head coach, is cautiously optimistic about what lies ahead for his team this fall. The team has strong senior leadership and the potential to become an explosive scoring machine, but as was mentioned above, has inexperienced depth.

"We will be young in experience, so we will be relying heavily on our returning varsity players. Emily Milone is a three-time EMASS all-star and has recently been selected to the U19 Regional Team," he said. "Stille (15 goals, 10 assists in 2006), Kerry Coughlin, Simone Leary and Paige Bonnani are other seniors whose leadership will be beneficial."

"Other returning starters include senior Tara McFarland, and juniors Amy Carchedi, Brittany Folkins, Kerry Donaghey and Murtagh."

The team's ultimate goal is to qualify for the Division I post season for the eleventh straight season under the direction of Bregoli.

"We have undoubtedly the best player to have played for North in Milone. Our success, however, will depend upon the development of our inexperienced players," Bregoli stated. "We will be a work in progress but our end result should be fine."

North's next scheduled home game at Pea Field is Sept. 25 at 4 p.m. against Plymouth North.

Red Raiders Anticipate A Successful Season

BOYS SOCCER

The North Quincy Red Raider boys soccer team opened the 2007 fall season with a 2-2 tie against Milton High School, followed by a tough 6-1 loss to Atlantic Coast League foe Falmouth High School. But head coach Rich Hanlon is excited about his team's prospects this year.

"This is by far the deepest team we have had since I've been associated with the program," said Hanlon. "Coming off a somewhat disappointing season last year with three wins and an equal number of ties, the team knows this is the year they can reach the MIAA tournament, something we have not accomplished since 1999. We have 16 seniors who all play, and we won't run out of gas late in games as we have in the past and we have tremendous leadership."

Senior quad-captains Dan Richards, Sean Clifford, John Ciccariello and Ryan Keane all return to the pitch this year. Joining them in the starting lineup for the season opener against Milton were seniors Alex Breen, Tim Schow, Marc DeLucia on defense; seniors Eoin Kenny and Zach O'Hara in the midfield; junior forward Shane Regan and sophomore goalkeeper Ryan Louis. Seniors Besmir Sulejmani, Matt Johnson, Chris Doyle, Pavli Permeti, Luis Escobar, Elbara Ziade and Kwasi Osei, as well as juniors Mike Prioli, Paul DeLucia, Florian Mustafhi and Danny Russell round out the varsity squad.

The second game of the season started with a long bus ride down to Falmouth. Several Red Raiders were nursing leg injuries, forcing Hanlon to pull freshman Nick Carbone up from the jayvee squad. The Clippers scored in the third minute when an attempted Red Raider clear in their own end bounced off a Falmouth player and past the North keeper.

North could never find their rhythm on either offense or defense and as a result, Falmouth carried the majority of play in the first half. At half time, the Clippers held a 4-0 lead.

Shane Regan scored North's lone goal of the contest late in the second half (his third goal in two games) in an otherwise dismal effort by the visiting Red Raiders.

"Losing 6-1 was not what we had in mind coming down here," Hanlon lamented. "It's a long ride and we had four offensive players out with injuries, but we can't use that as an excuse. I'm disappointed in how we responded to the early goal and our lack of effort in general. We're better than that."

Both teams played a closely held possession game throughout the second half, with numerous Milton runs up the left side of the field

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Family Fitness

Q. This summer I focused on fun activities for my family to do together to help us lose weight and get fit. Now that the kids are back in school, how can I keep the exercise and activity schedule my family enjoyed this summer with our hectic school and work schedules. Not only did we enjoy the quality time, my family actually stayed fit during summer break. Any suggestions?

A. You have the right idea. It is a fact that families who exercise and are active together lower their risk of obesity and other medical conditions associated with obesity. Busy schedules and other forms of entertainment have placed exercise on the back burner. With creative thinking you can get your family up, moving and staying fit even during the busiest times.

Begin by making time within your family's schedule to meet together. Set aside time that will be uninterrupted and allow for everyone to be involved. This may be challenging at first, but do your best to motivate the whole family to participate.

Be creative with the type of activities you find for your family to do. Get everyone involved in the planning to include the interests of each family member. Be sure that everyone can participate in the chosen activities. If you have children of varying ages, be sure that the youngest to the oldest can all enjoy the activities.

Walking or bike rides after dinner, swimming, skating and roller blading, and sports such as tennis, golf and basketball are great ways to get moving, but don't forget to consider the fatigue and tiredness of your family after school and work. You may decide to engage in these activities on the weekends.

Other ideas include signing your family up for a charity 5K road race. The family can run together while helping a good cause. Most 5K races even offer kids runs for younger participants to run in shorter distances by age. This can include everyone in the family.

Although your concerns are with your family staying active during the school year, you are ahead of the game by preparing to continue these habits year-round. Make it a part of your family's lifestyle to stay active with each other when possible. As your schedules become busier with other responsibilities, continue to find time to play with each other, even if it's not for as long. An overall healthy lifestyle for your family is an activity for all seasons.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, write Andrea in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Ophthalmologists, EyeCare America
Promote Save Your Sight Month

Five Tips For The Aging Eye

The Massachusetts Society of Eye Physicians and Surgeons in partnership with EyeCare America, a national non-profit organization that provides eye exams and eye health information to medically underserved communities, is providing five tips for a healthy aging eye in honor of September's Save Your Sight Month.

"We find that many people don't pay attention to their health until something goes wrong," said M. Lisa McHam, MD, president of the Massachusetts Society of Eye Physicians and Surgeons. "By providing tips for a healthy aging eye during Save Your Sight Month, we are hoping to encourage seniors to be more proactive in the care of their eyes and vision."

EyeCare America's 5 Tips for a Healthy Aging Eye:

1. Vitamin A is great for your eyes and will help you maintain healthy vision. Foods rich in vitamin A include carrots, yams and dark leafy greens.

2. Find out your family history of eye disease. In many cases, having a family member with an eye disease, such as glaucoma, greatly increases your chance of getting the disease.

3. Protect your eyes from the sun. Over exposure to the sun's rays can lead to cataracts. Your sunglasses should have UVA and UVB protection.

4. If you are over 65 years of age, have your eyes examined annually.

5. Call EyeCare America's Seniors EyeCare Program 1-800-222-EYES (3937) to see if you qualify for a free eye exam.

The Massachusetts Society of Eye Physicians and Surgeons encourages people to call the EyeCare America Seniors EyeCare Program. This program offers eye exams and up to one year of medical care at no out-of-pocket cost for seniors who are without an ophthalmologist (a medical eye doctor). To see if you, a loved one or a friend, 65 and older, is eligible to receive a referral for an eye exam and care, call 1-800-222-EYES (3937). The Seniors EyeCare Program help line operates 24 hours a day, every day, year-round.

EyeCare America's Seniors EyeCare Program is designed for people who: - Are US citizens or legal residents - Are age 65 and older - Have not seen an ophthalmologist in three or more years - Do not belong to an HMO or the VA

Volunteer physicians have agreed to accept Medicare or other insurance as payment in full, resulting in no out-of-pocket cost to the patient. Individuals without insurance of any kind are seen at no charge.

The Seniors EyeCare Program is designed for seniors without an ophthalmologist and is co-sponsored by the Knights Templar Eye Foundation, Inc. and Alcon. Visit EyeCare America's website at www.eyecareamerica.org.

Four Out Of Five Americans Say:

Current Culture Makes It Hard For People To Exercise

(NAPS) - Overworked? Overloaded? Feel like you're taking care of everything and everyone but yourself? You may not be alone.

According to a survey recently released by the International Health, Racquet & Sportsclub Association (IHRSA), 99 percent of Americans believe that exercise helps preserve good health. Yet most feel they have a battle current culture to exercise regularly. A full 79 percent say the current culture in America, including the pressures of work, family and financial demands, makes it hard for people to exercise regularly and maintain healthy lifestyles.

"Virtually all Americans view exercise as a critical component of preventive health care," says Joe Moore, President and CEO, IHRSA. "But most are losing the struggle to balance the demands of work and family with personal health and they need greater support."

More than eight in 10

Americans say it would make it easier for people to incorporate exercise into their daily routine if employers had programs to encourage exercise. And more than three-fifths of Americans believe the government should do more to promote physical activity."

The Workforce Health Improvement Program (WHIP) Act (H.R. 1748 and S.1038) could make a difference too many. This legislation promotes wellness in the workforce by making fitness center memberships tax-free for employees when provided as an employee benefit. Current law requires workers to pay income tax on such wellness benefits.

Diabetes, heart disease and other chronic diseases are the U.S. and account for the vast majority of health care spending. Research has shown that exercise is a key factor in preventing chronic disease.

"If we're to make any meaningful progress in improving America's health and controlling the cost of health care, we need to create a national environment that supports health," says Moore. "That starts with federal initiatives like WHIP that remove that barriers to exercise and other forms of preventive health care."

Three-quarters of Americans say they'd encourage their member of Congress to vote to pass WHIP. Are you one of them? To encourage your member of Congress to pass WHIP, visit www.healthclubs.com and click on "Take Action!" under "Exercise Your Rights!"

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

ORAL HYGIENE IS KEY

While adhering to good oral hygiene practices at home is essential to the health of teeth and gums, the preventive and maintenance services provided by dental hygienists during routine dental visits help ensure good dental hygiene. Aside from scaling and polishing patients' teeth, dental hygienists apply topical fluorides and sealants, take x-rays, chart dental conditions, record case histories, take impressions, etc. The dental hygienist also sees to it that patients have a clear idea of how to brush and floss their teeth most effectively. Because hygienists have accumulated a considerable amount of dental and periodontal experience and expertise, patients are encouraged to avail themselves of this knowledge. Have the hygienist show you ways to improve your cleaning technique.

Your smile is something you can change. Our committed passion is to assist our patients to reveal a healthy, beautiful smile in a relaxed atmosphere. We discuss all the treatment options available, and our recommendations are always in the best interest to our patients. We feel a deep responsibility and commitment to provide you the very best care with state-of-the-art technology. We are located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment for high quality dental care. Let us help you keep your teeth for a lifetime. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If you are concerned about your breath, ask the hygienist to show you tongue-scraping techniques, which eliminates odor-causing bacteria from the back of the tongue.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your ideas earn you the respect of your colleagues. But you'll have to present some hard facts and figures if you hope to persuade those who make the big decisions to support you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Keep those bright Bull's eyes focused on the project at hand. Avoid distractions. There'll be lots of time for fun and games later. Expect to get welcome news this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You soon might have to decide about moving a relationship from its current status to another level. Don't let anyone influence your decision. It must be yours and yours alone.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You finally can get off that emotional roller coaster and get back to focusing on your goals without interruptions through the rest of the week. A nice change is due by the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Trying to make an impression on some people runs into a bit of a snag at first, but it all works out. An old and almost forgotten personal matter once again needs attention.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A rise in your energy level helps you finish an especially demanding task. Take some time now to spend with family and friends before starting a new project.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) This is a good time to re-establish contact with trusted former associates who might be able to offer good advice regarding that career change you've been contemplating.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your resourcefulness combined with a calm, cool approach help you work your way out of a knotty situation and avoid a potentially serious misunderstanding.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A calm, quiet period allows you to recharge your energies. But you'll soon be ready to saddle up and gallop off in pursuit of your goals.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family matters need your attention. Check things out carefully. There might still be unresolved tensions that could hinder your efforts to repair damaged relationships.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good time to take a stand and show as much passion on your own behalf as you do when arguing for the rights of others. You might be happily surprised by the reaction.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You bring sense and sensitivity to a confusing situation. Things soon settle down, leaving you free to enjoy a weekend of fun and relaxation with friends and family.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a talent for being able to perceive possibilities where others see only problems.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

One of the things that makes life interesting and at the same time turbulent is the prevalence of different viewpoints.

Someone once said that there is a good chance that if you believe what everybody else appears to believe, you are probably wrong. As times change and the world changes, opinions strongly held at a certain point in time might now be invalid. A lot depends on where one is standing when he makes his observation.

If one looks at the palm of his hand, he could describe a hand as being smooth-skinned and without hair, pores or nails. The back of the hand presents a different picture, so do the two sides of a coin.

Next time you get to thinking that your idea is the only one that possibly be correct, take another look. There just may be something in the way the other fellow sees it.

Incidentally, your views on this or any other thought you read here are always welcomed and appreciated.

thwarted by the solid defensive containment from Schow and Keaney. But late in the second half, a high arcing Milton pass from 40 yards out bounced too high for Louis to clear successfully from his goal line. A trailing Milton forward pushed the ball across the goal line to tie the game at 2-2.

This fall, two new members joined Hanlon's coaching staff. Rick DeCristofaro, Jr. takes over the junior varsity and Chris Ranft joins the NQ coaching staff as the freshman/assistant varsity coach. DeCristofaro is a Guidance Counselor at NQ High School and Ranft teaches seventh grade science at Atlantic Middle School.

"Rick and Chris have been tremendous additions," Hanlon said. "They are really helping us develop the program in the direction we would like to go. We were hoping to build a freshman program but so far haven't had enough boys come out for soccer to field a team. Hopefully that will change next year, but for now Chris has been helping with the varsity and in conditioning for the whole team."

Coach DeCristofaro's junior varsity team opened their season with a 4-1 win over Milton before falling to Falmouth in a close game, 2-

School Committee candidate Nick Puleo, proposes a new computer technology initiative in Quincy's schools, aimed at increasing students access to modern computers and high-tech programs.

"Walk into any office today, and every desk will have a computer on it, he said. Computers and the skills to use them, are essential for success in the 21st century."

"We need to reflect the increasing importance of technology when making decisions for our schools."

"We have come to the point now where this is a necessity. Placing advanced technology in our schools will not only give students the chance to learn about computers, it will also give students and teachers the chance to access new information."

Diabetes Lecture Starts Health Series At Library

A free seminar on "Diabetes & Your Family: What You Need to Know" will be held Wednesday, Oct. 3, at 9:30 a.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The program, presented in both English and Chinese, will include a lecture by Dr. Cheryl Lin of the Quincy Medical Center, followed by a question and answer period.

Dr. Lin, a board-certified endocrinologist whose expertise is on diabetes, will discuss the risk factors and prevention techniques as well as the latest treatments for the disease.

The program is the first of a monthly health series at the library, co-sponsored by the Quincy Medical Center, South Shore Elder Services and the library.

For more information, call 617-376-1301 or visit thomascranecolibrary.org.

Blood Pressure Clinics

Weekly blood pressure screenings for elders will be held the first and third Monday of the month from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Council on Aging, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy.

Gail Crawford, a registered nurse, will donate her time and talents to assist senior citizens to have their blood pressure taken on a bi-weekly basis.

For more information, call 617-376-1506.

Puleo Proposes New School Technology Initiative

Puleo said that when gauging a city or town's performance in computer education, the most important factor to analyze is the number of students per modern computer. According to the published statistics, Quincy ranks 210 out of 327 districts. He said that means 209 school districts across the Commonwealth give students broader access to computers and other related technologies.

"In looking at the direction of other districts, it is clear that more can be done to enhance the Quincy school system's technology infrastructure," said Puleo. "Providing children with these skills will give them a competitive advantage in both college and the workplace."

The plan developed by Puleo would be phased in through four stages. The first stage would increase the district's internet capability and web usage. Included in this would be a web-based grading system and tools to allow parents and teachers to communicate with each other more effectively. In the second stage, computer labs would be modernized and expanded. The third stage would be to provide new language labs in middle and high schools for students studying foreign languages, and those learning English as a second language.

The fourth stage, which Puleo called the most aggressive, would be to install modern computers with internet access and projectors in every classroom in the city. He said that doing so will give students access to new ways of learning, and would allow teachers to stay on the cutting-edge of their subject areas.

"I realize that this plan sets some aggressive and difficult goal for us as a city, and for the school system in particular," said Puleo. "But I am not running for School Committee because I want to do the easy thing. I really believe this will be a tremendous benefit for our city."

Puleo said that the scope of the plan would require that it be phased in over five years. Part of the plan would be paid for by the new $1 million quality fund he proposed, he said. Other funding would be raised through grants and business partnerships.

Quincy Police To Sponsor Blood Drive At Kids Fair

The Quincy Police Department will sponsor the "Glennon Family Blood Drive" during its Kids Fair at the Quincy Wal-Mart, 301 Falls Blvd., Saturday, Sept. 29 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The drive is being held in honor of Avery Glennon, a three-year-old who has been a cancer patient at the Jimmy Fund Clinic and Children's Hospital since 2004.

The drive's purpose is to thank Children's Hospital for the care provided to Avery and countless other sick children.

Donations are appreciated since Children's Hospital is in dire need of blood for treatment of their sick young patients.

Grandpa loved gardening, baseball, and playing the harmonica.

Your memories are precious. That's why, at Keohane Funeral Service, we take the time to find out what made your loved one special.

Whether it's gathering some of the flowers he so tenderly cultivated or finding a musician to play "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" on the harmonica, you can count on us to help you plan a service that will be just as unique as the person you love.

Quincy Community United Methodist To Celebrate Methodism Birthday Sunday

To celebrate the 300th birthday of Charles Wesley, Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will host a special worship service Sunday at 10:30 a.m.

The service will celebrate the 300th birthday of Charles Wesley, the younger brother of the founder of Methodism. It has been said that what makes United Methodism unique is the fact that it was born in song. The words to those songs were written by the younger brother of Methodism, Charles Wesley (Dec. 18, 1707 to March 29, 1788).

Charles Wesley, composed on average three hymns a week, and sometimes a hymn a day. The minimum number of Wesley's hymns is 6,500; some experts believe the number could be as high as 9,000.

During the 18th century, congregations did not sing; they were expected to sit and listen to the professional choirs and musicians hired to perform at worship services. Charles Wesley's imagination and creative genius changed that.

Most of Sunday's worship service will consist of Wesley's music. Some of the hymns that will be sung appear under the title "X-treme Wesley", they were actually banned from the hymnal. These hymns were finally reprinted during the past year, and, although they are over 200 years old, they could have been written yesterday.

The coffee hour following the service will include a birthday cake in Wesley's honor.

For more information about the birthday celebration or Quincy Community United Methodist Church, call 617-773-3319.

Houghs Neck Congregational Church

Pastor John Castricum will give the sermon "Lifting Up Prayers" at the 9:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy.

Janice Hughes and Marty

Gordon will serve for the Diaconate.

The choir will sing under the direction of Lois Zulauf.

Carol Hallett will host the coffee hour featuring refreshments prepared from the "Recipes of the Heart" cookbook. The cookbook, created by Mothers Club, is available for $8. To order, call Sue Rheault at 617-479-2311.

The choir rehearses Wednesdays at 7 p.m. New members are welcome.

First Baptist Church Of Wollaston

The First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave., in Wollaston, will mark the "Worldwide Day of Prayer" Friday, Sept. 21 with a prayer service at noon. All are welcome.

Squantum Christian Fellowship

Weekly worship service meets Sunday at 10 a.m. at Squantum Christian Fellowship inside Squantum Elementary School, 50 Huckins Ave.

Pastor Mike Fehan is focusing on the life and teachings of Jesus in the Gospel of Matthew. Sunday school for children has began a new season.

Squantum Christian Fellowship offers several different Bible groups from beginner to experienced Bible scholars.

The women meet Tuesday mornings at 9 a.m. to explore the book of Genesis; the men meet Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the Gospel of John.

Everyone is also welcome Wednesdays at 7:45 p.m. for the Community Bible Group which is studying the Gospel of Matthew.

For more information, call 617-773-5878.

Quincy Point Congregational Church

The Rev. Ann Suzedell will preach the sermon "Aching Backs and Breaking Rules" at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

Sheri Pitts will be the deacon of the day.

All are welcome to the fellowship hall for coffee and light refreshments following the service.

All Quincy residents can tune in to the church's television broadcast Wednesday nights at 6 p.m. on Channel 8.

Communion will be on Wednesday, Sept. 26 in the chapel at 1000 Southern Artery.

On Sunday, Sept. 30 the church will hold a "Bite of Apple" brunch after worship service. The deacons will sponsor a quarter a dip buffet.

All are welcome to bring an apple dish to share, enter an "apple pie contest" or contribute some apples to the apple crisp that will be served for dessert.

Bethany Congregational Church

Bethany Congregational Church, 18 Spear St., Quincy Center, will have a Sunday worship and Sunday school at 10 a.m.

The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "God's Community."

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers.

Following the worship service there will be Fellowship.

Quincy Community United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., will have Sunday worship at 10 a.m.

Church pastor, the Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Gridden, will conduct the service. Adult Bible Study class begins at 9 a.m. Sunday school starts at 9:30 a.m.

Lector will be Ardy Peterson. Ushers are Margaret Buckley and Ginny Hawes.

The church yard sale will be held Saturday, Sept. 29 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the front lawn (inside if raining.)

That won't change now, Gardner said, noting that volunteers for local emergencies are already called from the Cambridge headquarters.

John Lavery, the chief operating officer for the Red Cross Massachusetts Bay chapter, said that services will remain the same for Quincy and there will be no change in disaster relief.

He said he believes the staffing change is "a way to centralize our support services. The bottom line is we want to be most efficient in the use of donor dollars."

As for Red Cross emergency calls, Lavery said the response is already coordinated out of Cambridge where the Red Cross vehicles used for the Disaster Response Team are garaged.

Post Island Road Dog Issue Being Brought To Mayor's Meeting Tonight

By TOM HENSHAW

An owner or keeper of an animal shall remove, and dispose of any feces left by such animal on any sidewalk, street, park or other public area, or on any private property which is not owned or occupied by such owner.

If an animal defecates on property other than that of the owner or keeper, the owner or keeper of the animal is responsible for the immediate removal of the feces.

That's Ordinance 6.04.030 in the city of Quincy bylaws, but to Mrs. Dianne Kane-McGunigle it's just so many words on another piece of paper, more honored in the breach than in the observance.

For the past 10 months, Mrs. McGunigle and her husband, Joe, a Quincy police officer, have been at odds with some of their neighbors in the Post Island Road section of Houghs Neck.

McGUNIGLES, Dianne and Joseph, take their year-old Rottweiler, Boris, for a walk outside their home at 44 Post Island Rd. in Houghs Neck. McGunigles are engaged in a dispute with the city over what they say is lack of enforcement of leash and excrement ordinances.

The neighbors' dogs, say the McGunigles, are roaming unleashed, leaving fecal calling cards on the beaches and public ways and have bitten a mailman, terrorized other dogs and "lunged" at a 6-months-old baby.

The McGunigles hope to bring the problem to a head tonight (Thursday) when Mayor William Phelan holds a "Neighborhood First" meeting from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Adams Shore Public Library, 519 Sea St.

For the past week, Dianne has been sending notes to "everyone I could get to in Ward 1" urging them to attend the meeting and "ask the Mayor why he told the McGunigles to let it go and not do anything to stop the offenders."

She said her husband was suspended by Police Chief Robert Crowley for writing citations on the "guilty irresponsible dog owners" and when she complained to the

Unions Ask More Time City Council Wants More Study On Insurance

By LAURA GRIFFIN

After over three hours discussion Monday, City Councillors sent the state's health insurance back to the Ordinance Committee for further study and education of the council and the public.

In addition, councillors voted not to consider any further vote on joining the state health insurance program, known as the G.I.C., until two additional requirements are met.

The first is that the city's Public Employees Committee (PEC) be officially organized in accordance with the state law which requires each union to be designate a representative.

The second is that the mayor and the union representatives must execute a signed agreement on the health insurance decision.

The motion was made and amended by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi at the conclusion of the Council's Public Hearing on the health insurance issue.

Councillors, also, approved Mayor William Phelan's request for a Home Rule Petition which asks the legislature to extend the city's deadline for joining the G.I.C. until Dec. 3.

Council Observes Moment For Boy Stunned By Power Line

City Councillors Monday observed a moment of silence for a young Squantum boy who was stunned unconscious when he touched a 13,800-volt power line while climbing a tree Sunday.

At the meeting, Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee described the incident which almost killed ten-year-old Danny Marks.

Danny had climbed beyond 20 feet above ground in the tree at Huckins Avenue and East Squantum Street when he touched a power line that is strung between two poles. He was shocked, but luckily he survived.

Once Danny was stricken, his friends ran to the nearby home of Paul Adamson who climbed the tree and opened Danny's air passages before firefighters arrived.

McNamee praised the boy's rescuer Adamson as did the firefighters at the scene of the accident. Firefighters said that Adamson saved the boy's life.

"I can't say enough about the people here," Danny's grandmother, Marguerite

City Will Buy 'Cobblestone' Parcel For Open Space

The City Council Monday authorized the purchase of the nearly 3.4 acre property at 271 Sea St., Houghs Neck, known as "Cobblestone," for $1.2 million.

The purchase is part of $2,974,789 in expenditures recommended by the Community Preservation Committee, and approved by Mayor William Phelan and the City Council's actions this week.

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis is chairman of the committee which oversees the preservation expenditures. He described the property as a wooded upland parcel that contains some wetlands.

City Solicitor Monica Conyngham told councillors that the city encountered difficulty bargaining for the Sea Street property which had qualified for a condominium development.

According to Cunyningham, the 148,706 square feet owned by Cobblestone Lane, Ltd. was actually assessed for $250,000 while the owners never budged from a $1.2 million asking price.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond asked why the owners weren't paying the higher taxes for higher land value and Conyngham said the property was actually under a conservation trust.

Conyngham also said that, at the end of negotiations, the owners had a building permit and gave the city 72 hours to make a decision or they would begin clearing the land.

If the land on the marsh border were cleared, the city would lose all the vegetation, according to Conyngham who also noted the potential cost of litigation on the issue.

The appropriation included $300,000 for historic preservation and $92,000 for additional open space projects in Houghs Neck.

The City Council also approved a $220,000 appropriation under the preservation committee's Affordable Housing Projects. That grant will fund affordable housing at a Holmes Street, North Quincy apartment complex.

3 Restaurants Get License Warnings In Police 'Sting'

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

As a result of a 'sting' on Sept. 1, by Lt. Peter Turowski and Officer Ken Yee, conducted at 40 pouring establishments, the License Board Tuesday issued warnings to three restaurants for serving alcohol to minors.

The China Pearl Restaurant at 237 Quincy Ave., formerly the International Buffet, received a written warning effective for one year. If there is a second violation within the year, then it would be considered a second offense requiring a suspension.

Lt. Peter Turowski said when asked why the underage person was not asked for an ID, he replied he was "too busy".

Owner Brian Moi told the board that he warned his employees, that no matter how busy, they are responsible and need to ask for an ID.

The Fuji Restaurant, 1546

Hancock St., was issued a one day suspension with one day suspended for serving alcohol to a minor, and placed on file.

Fuji had a previous violation in 2005 for having alcohol on the tables after hours.

Tony Liang, manager on duty the night of the violation said he was "upset and surprised" and has taken "multiple steps" that it not happen again.

Liang told the board he has confiscated "many fake ID's" and has sent them to Turowski.

Callahan's Tap, 296 Copeland St., was given a written warning. Owner Edward P. McNulty said he has owned Callahans for 18 years and never had a violation.

He said that his place usually caters to a more "mature group" and was surprised when he heard the underage person was "only 17".

At Krabby Joe's at Marina Bay which was not part of the sting, received a written warning in effect for one year for a violation on Aug. 22 when officer Ken Yee found four persons outside on the deck with drinks at 10 p.m. When asked for an ID, only one out of the four had one.

Kristie Hendriksen, owner of Krabby Joe's said they were "definitely at fault" and apologized. She said it was "very frustrating and embarrassing". She said she has since fired the waitress who served the alcohol for not asking for an ID.

Chairman Joseph Shea read a letter from the Marina Bay Civic Association stating that Krabby Joe's received an extension of hours in May which was to be reviewed in the fall. In the letter, it stated that they hoped that when it is reviewed, that the violation would be considered.

Hendriksen said she was "surprised" at the letter saying that she had joined the civic association in the hopes of improving relations and said she knew nothing about the letter until Tuesday's meeting.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said it will "definitely come up" during the review.

Shea sent out a list of the new schedule of meetings of the License Board which will now take place at 4 p.m. instead of 10 a.m. starting in October.

Would Double Police Drug Unit

Koch Unveils Aggressive Crime Fighting Plan

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch announced an aggressive plan to combat the city's drug dealers, noting that new federal statistics show a sharp spike last year in burglaries, larcenies and other property-related crimes in Quincy.

"Property crimes are directly related to the drug trade, and its high time that the mayor's office demonstrated real and honest leadership in tackling the drug crime issue in Quincy," Koch said.

The Department of Justice released FBI statistics Monday showing an 18-percent increase in 2006 property crime overall in Quincy, with a 22-percent jump in burglaries and a 19-percent increase in larcenies. Criminologists say addicts seeking money to buy drugs commit the majority of property crimes, Koch said.

As part of his "Leadership Now" program, Koch pledged to double the size of the police department's drug unit and add drug-sniffing dogs to the department. The department's sole police dog is not specially trained to detect drugs.

"Again and again, this mayor has refused to acknowledge the drug problem in our city. These statistics make very clear what he doesn't want to admit. It's time we show the dealers and users that we're not going to let them harm our neighborhoods any more," Koch said.

Also in Koch's public safety plan:

Restore partnerships with state and federal law enforcement agencies, which have lapsed in recent years. The city no longer has a detective assigned to joint drug task forces led by either the federal Drug Enforcement Agency or the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office, said Koch.

Double the size of the police department's drug unit using existing resources, including shifting detectives from other assignments and using the Community Police Unit as part of drug investigations per discussions with department leaders.

Revisit an agreement with the MBTA Transit Police that called for more cooperation in patrolling T-stations in the city but has largely been ignored.

Begin making use of available grant money for additional training and resources to combat drug abuse and dealing in Quincy.

Designate a public information officer to be available during every shift to provide timely and thorough information to the public and the media, without interference from city hall. The public information officer will also be responsible for alerting the public to situations that deserve their attention, such as the series of house break-ins in Wollaston earlier this summer.

Support an evaluation by the Massachusetts Police Accreditation Commission as a joint exercise to improve morale and determine the department's strengths and long-term needs.

Koch added that strife within the police department has "gone on three years too long," adding that City Hall has an obligation to step in for the sake of the department's future.

"The silence from City Hall on these issues is positively deafening, and that is exactly what we plan to change," Koch said. "I'm under no delusion that seeking certification will end the turmoil in the police department immediately, but it is a starting point. With a mayor willing to lead, I know we can do better."

Koch also said:

The statistics the mayor uses are two years old.

Quincy's overdose rate is nearly 60 percent higher than the state average.

Quincy had more drug overdoses reported than any other community on the South Shore, including Brockton.

The police department made a record number of drug-related arrests last year. In April, the mayor said of the drug problem in Quincy: "We have a real good handle on that issue in Quincy."

In August, the mayor stated that it does not appear the drug issue is affecting the city's crime rate.

Koch said the mayor's record on public safety reflects the same failure to lead that will cost taxpayers an additional $46 million to build a new Quincy High School; lost state funding for a new Central Middle School; has refused to be honest about rising taxes; and has not addressed traffic and overdevelopment in city neighborhoods.

Koch, who resigned as Phelan's park commissioner in January to run for mayor, challenged what he called Phelan's "bizarre" standard response when questioned about public safety issues, in which he touts a private firm's crime rankings for cities and towns.

"Reciting a two-year-old report by a for-profit publish-

One of the three original homeless shelters that joined forces to become Father Bill's Place closed its doors for good Tuesday morning.

The Homeless Women's Shelter in the basement of the old St. John's School at 44 School St., hadn't seen a client in some two years.

"For years, 38 women slept in the basement of St. John's School," said John Yazwinski, executive director of Father Bill's Place.

"Closing this shelter shows that our housing program works. We're not here to manage homelessness — we're here to end it."

Closure of the former shelter spotlighted the success of Quincy's 10-Year

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 27, 1854, the luxury ship Arctic slams into the steamer Vesta off the coast of Newfoundland. Desperate Arctic crewmembers took lifeboats from women and children attempting to escape. When one of the ship's high-ranking officers tried to stop them, the crew killed him. The final 70 people left on board crowded onto a makeshift raft as the Arctic sank. Only one survived.

• On Sept. 28, 1918, a Liberty Loan parade in Philadelphia prompts a huge outbreak of the flu epidemic. By the time the epidemic ended, an estimated 30 million people were dead worldwide. The most likely origin of the pandemic was a bird or farm animal in the American Midwest.

• On Sept. 29, 1930, filming begins on the classic horror film "Dracula" starring Bela Lugosi, who was identified with the role for the rest of his life. When he died in 1956, Lugosi was buried with his Dracula cape.

• On Sept. 30, 1955, actor James Dean, 24, dies in a car crash. Although Dean appeared in only three movies, he made a deep impression on American audiences with his portrayal of the angry, restless young man. His three films were "Rebel Without a Cause" (1955), "East of Eden" (1955) and "Giant" (1956).

• On Sept. 26, 1960, Massachusetts Democratic Senator John F. Kennedy and Republican Vice President Richard M. Nixon face each other in the first nationally televised presidential campaign debate.

• On Sept. 25, 1981, Sandra Day O'Connor becomes the first female U.S. Supreme Court justice. After graduation from Stanford Law School in the 1950s, no law firm would hire her because she was a woman.

• On Sept. 24, 1996, best-selling author Stephen King releases two new novels at once. The first, "Desperation," was released under King's name, while the second, "The Regulators," was published under his pseudonym, Richard Bachman. He wrote six novels under the name Richard Bachman.

A Black Cat?

Could there be a black cat lurking in the background in this year's mayoral election?

One you might call "Jinx."

And, one Mayor William Phelan and challenger Tom Koch wouldn't want to have cross their path along the campaign trail.

Koch, with deep roots in North Quincy has a footnote in Quincy's political history to overcome. No one from Ward 6 has ever been elected mayor.

That's something he'd like to change.

Phelan, who is seeking his fourth term, also has a footnote to contend with.

Six incumbent mayors have lost re-election bids under Quincy's Plan A charter.

Three of them in recent years:

Walter Hannon to Joseph LaRaia by 483 in that famous recount of 1975. LaRaia to Arthur Tobin in 1977. And James Sheets to Phelan by 17 votes in 2001, the city's closest mayoral election.

The three other mayors who were defeated for re-election, notes former Mayor Frank McCauley, the city's political historian were:

William Bradford to Gustave Bates in 1922, Bates to Perley Barbour in 1924 and Thomas McGrath to Charles Ross in 1932.

What will be the new footnote come Tuesday, Nov. 7?

MAYORAL TRIVIA: Did you know that Ward 1 has produced seven mayors-the most in the city's history?

The seven, all of whom rose from ward councillor: Charles Francis Adams, elected in 1896, Joseph Whiten (1917), Perley Barbour (1925), Thomas McGrath (1927), Thomas Burgin (1935), David McIntosh (Plan E, 1952) and Frank McCauley (1982). William Phelan would have made it eight but is Monroe Road home, which was once in Ward 1, was redistricted into Ward 5.

And that made him the fourth mayor from Ward 5. The other three: Henry Fairbanks (1890), Charles Bryant (1902) and Walter Hannon (1922).

The latter three came up from ward councillor but Phelan jumped to the mayor's office from the school committee.

Three mayors came out of Ward 3: James Thompson (1906), Charles Ross (1934) and Amelio Della Chiesa (1958).

Ward 2 and Ward 4 have two mayors each. Ward 2's Eugene Stone (1912) and Joseph LaRaia (1976). Ward 4's William Shea (1910) and James Sheets (1990).

GOING INTO THIS year's election, as noted above, no one from Ward 6 has been elected mayor.

Joanne Condon-Walsh, the second woman elected to the council, and serving Ward 6, tried in 1985 to become the first from that ward and the first ever woman mayor, but was turned back by incumbent Frank McCauley.

ARE YOU REGISTERED to vote in the Nov. 7 city election?

SHEA

If not, you have until Wednesday, Oct. 17 to get aboard, reminds City Clerk Joseph Shea. The City Election Department will be open from 8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. that date to accommodate you. Meanwhile you can register during regular City Hall hours.

Remember: every vote DOES count. Including yours.

QUINCY NATIVE Ron Della Chiesa is still doing his part to keep popular and classical music alive.

Ron hosts a "Strictly Sinatra" program Saturday's 7 to midnight on WPLM (Easy 99.1 FM) in Plymouth.

And there's plenty of Sinatra to fill those hours.

Ron notes Sinatra recorded something like 2,000 songs and 120 albums during his career.

Ron, of course, was a mainstay at WGBH for 35 years, playing the music of and interviewing such notables as Ella Fitzgerald, Rosemary Clooney, Tony Bennett, Mel Torme, Buddy Rich, Lionel Hampton, Margaret Whiting, John Williams, Robert Merrill, etc.

He is now writing a book about his career, the stars he has met and interviewed, and growing up in Quincy.

He and his wife, Joyce, now live in Dorchester but his heart and roots are still very much in Quincy where his father, Aldo, was Ward 3 councillor and his uncle, Amelio, was one of Quincy's all-time popular mayors.

Environment To Be Topic Of Candidates' Night Oct. 9

The Quincy Environmental Network (QEN) will hold the first of two candidates' nights Tuesday, Oct. 9, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Lodge, 120 Quarry St.

Mayor William Phelan and his challenger, former Park Commissioner Thomas Koch, will be present as well as all six ward councillors and Jimmy Liang, the challenger in Ward 6.

The format will consist of a moderated question and answer period in which the QEN will pose questions dealing with environmental issues affecting Quincy.

The questions will be selected from a representative sampling of those offered by members of the QEN and the public at large.

The second candidates' night will be Thursday, Oct. 25, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St. and will feature the candidates for councillor-at-large and state legislators.

For more information, contact Steve Perdios at 617-877-5975.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1916 real photo postcard is a view of Sea Street from near the end of South Shore Ride, looking east towards The Willows in Houghs Neck. Kilby Street is just out of view on the right. All of the cottages that can be seen here were built on land that was known then as Rye Island. Post Island, mistakenly noted on the postcard, is to the left and behind the photographer. Ten years before this picture was taken real estate developers had bought Rye Island and laid out waterfront lots on the left and small lots for cottages along with the short "alphabet" streets on the right of Sea Street. The streets dead-ended at the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission's high-level sewer main known as the dike, which is visible on the right. Rye Island was the easternmost portion of the Adams family's Mount Wollaston Farm at Merrymount. Today, most of the cottages in this view are still standing, albeit enlarged and converted into year-round homes. Sea Street is a few feet higher along here now as the city raised it and built seawalls to keep it from being under water at high tides. The people shown here were standing in the unpaved street waiting to board the approaching electric trolley on its way to Quincy Square. The trolley is just about at the boardwalk to the dike where many Neckers claim The Willows begins. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Says School Committee Change Needed

Recent events cry out for change on the Quincy School Committee.

Construction of the new Quincy High School is finally underway after decades, but, at a cost of tens of millions of additional dollars to taxpayers. Contract negotiations with school personnel have left a sour taste in everyone's mouth.

The school year started out short on supplies and with ongoing technology issues. These are just a few of the issues that show the School Committee needs someone with skills in the area of budget management. Candidate Nick Puleo, a senior budget analyst for the state, is just the person to fill that need.

Nick's professional expertise would bring much-needed experience that could help squeeze more out of the school department's current budget. He has the skills to find new funding sources to help bring our school system into 21st century. His vision of a $1 million Quality Fund, using money reimbursed to the city by Medicaid for services provided to students, is a great start. Also, someone who thinks the School Committee and City Council should work more closely together for the benefit of Quincy's students is really on the right track.

Nick's plan to find new funding sources at no cost to taxpayers; to provide the best opportunities to students both during and after school; to improve technology; and to build a cooperative and support relationship with school personnel will be a great benefit to our city. It tells me that he has what the citizens of Quincy need in a School Committee member.

One More Letter And The Communist Chinese Flag

Here I am in my last few days still somewhere between North Quincy and Dorchester and I couldn't help sending out just one last letter as still an actual Quincy resident.

On last Saturday, while travelling down to St. Ann's for the 4 o'clock Mass, I passed by Wollaston Center. As I stopped for the lights next to Papa Gino's, I looked up across the street to find the Communist Chinese flag once again flying on a flagpole near the American flag. Maybe because I'm a Taurus the color red gets a bad reaction out of me.

The flying of the flag of the People's Republic of China bothers me. I wish I could be oblivious to it, but I can't.

China is the largest dictatorship in the world today. They are also the largest trading partners in the world.

The same freedom that allows someone in the Quincy's growing Chinese community is non-existent in China since the world's largest country is a no-show when it comes to democracy.

As I watch the two young Asian candidates running for public office in Quincy, Jimmy Liang for Ward Six councillor and Victor Ng for councillor at-Large, I am hopeful that the growing Americanization of Quincy's Asian community will make the flying of the Communist Chinese flag irrelevant.

It is one thing to remember your roots. Liang is a naturalized American and Ng is a first-generation Asian American.

These two candidates represent the future political picture of Quincy and not the foreign flag of Chinese dictators.

America is strong enough to allow flags we don't like to see flying. It says something about America.

The flying of the People's Republic of China flag is less an insult to America and more an embarrassment of our growing Asian population.

Tobin, LaRaia Top Spending In City Preliminary Election

By FRANK McCAULEY

Those candidates in the Sept. 20th preliminary election, who have filed financial reports, raised at least $118,000 and spent $84,449 prior to Sept. 1.

The leading money raisers and spenders were the two top mayoral candidates, Joseph J. LaRaia and Arthur H. Tobin, who between them, collected more than $75,000 and spent more than $40,000.

Tobin raised $41,755 and spent $21,185, leaving him with a balance of $20,185, to carry into the final campaign.

LaRaia raised $24,517 and spent $18,418, leaving him with a $5,899 kitty.

State election laws require candidates to file financial statements eight days before the preliminary election.

TOBIN: SHIPYARD UNION READY TO TALK ANYTIME

Local 5 of the Shipbuilders Union can negotiate with General Dynamics anytime, according to City Council President Arthur Tobin.

Tobin said that he had got that word from Arthur Batson, formerly of Quincy and now an official of the International Union, during a trip to Washington, D.C. early this week.

Tobin also met with Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) and Senator Edward M. Kennedy to urge new efforts to end the strike at the shipyard, which entered its 74th day today.

Manet Health Center Auction, Reception Oct. 18

Manet Community Health Center (CHC) will host its fourth annual Autumn Auction and Reception Thursday evening, Oct. 18, at the Blue Cross/Blue Shield (BC/BS) Conference Center, One Enterprise Dr., 7th floor, North Quincy.

Master of ceremonies will be Jay McQuaide, BC/BS director of Internal Communications. McQuaide was formerly a news anchor and reporter for WBZ radio and television, the CBS stations in Boston.

The 28-year old Manet CHC is a non-profit community-based organization dedicated to providing access to primary medical care for the community, particularly those in financial need and those who face social, cultural or language challenges. At this time, 70% of the enrollees fall below 200% of the poverty level.

The Center annually serves some 14,000 patients during 52,000 visits at their five clinics across the South Shore. Of those patients, 27% have no health insurance and 37% are covered by Medicaid or Medicare.

Historic Quincy Photos On Display At Library

Little did young Bruce Packert realize when he pointed his camera and tripped the shutter for the first time that he was recording for posterity a period in Quincy's history.

The result is the Photos by B. D. Packert exhibit that will be on display during the month of October at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The photos include the original Howard Johnson's store in Wollaston and scenes from the long-gone Squantum Naval Air Station as well as other locations from 1938 to the 1950s.

After Packert's death in 2002 his widow Joan had many of his photos reprinted and launched Photos by B. D. Packert.

The exhibit will be open, free of charge, during library hours, Monday through Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

A reception will be held Tuesday, Oct. 2, from 6 to 8:30 p.m. during which Joan Packert will give a brief presentation at 7 p.m. The reception is also free of charge.

For more information, call 508-942-3463.

North Quincy High School will host FMA/Live, an award-winning hip hop science education concert, today (Thursday). The concert will feature original music and dance moves performed by professional actors.

Hip Hop Science Education Concert At NQHS Today

North Quincy High School will host FMA/Live, an award-winning hip hop science education concert, today (Thursday).

Three performances are scheduled (but are schedule to change). Times are 9 to 9:45 a.m., 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. and 1 to 1:45 p.m.

Students from the city's middle schools and elementary schools have also been invited to attend.

Show highlights include: • Interactive science demonstrations: a Velcro wall, hover chair, "extreme" wrestling, dragster cars and rocket launchers.

• Original music and dance moves performed by professional actors.

• Music videos and rockumentary about life and work of Sir Isaac Newton.

• Involvement of students, teachers and Principal Earl Metzler, the former principal of Sterling Middle School.

Named for Sir Isaac Newton's Second Law (Force = Mass x Acceleration), FMA Live! is designed to inspire students to pursue careers in science, technology, engineering and math.

Developed by NASA and Honeywell, FMA Live! uses live performers, music, videos and interactive scientific demonstrations to teach students about Newton's Laws of Motion and the Universal Law of Gravity. These topics have been identified by the National Science Education Standards as key learning objectives for students in grades 5-8.

Nordic Ski Patrol Open Meeting Oct. 3

All are welcome to attend the Wednesday, Oct. 3 meeting of the Blue Hill Adventure Nordic Ski Patrol which begins at 7 p.m. in the Conference Room at Presidents Plaza.

"Skiers helping skiers." is the slogan for the Nordic Ski Patrol (NSP) which has 25,000 members nationwide. The patrols aim to prevent accidents and to provide ski areas and ski tours with trained volunteers who can offer safety services with skill, diplomacy and dedication. The NSP is celebrating its 40th anniversary.

At the October meeting, the Blue Hill Adventure NSP will offer training in emergency outdoor care and CPR as well as an on trail refresher.

DOVE 'Harvesting Hope' Fundraiser Set For Tonight

DOVE's annual fundraiser, "Harvesting Hope," will be held tonight (Thursday) from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Granite Links Golf Club.

Tickets at $100 each can be purchased at the door or interested persons may call 617-770-4065.

The program will feature a live auction and raffle, a light dinner, cash bar, dancing and live entertainment by Java Jive. All proceeds, after expenses, will benefit DOVE's educational and outreach program, as well as shelter services.

DOVE is now in its 29th year offering help to women and children affected by domestic violence. DOVE is the only agency of its kind offering these services to the Norfolk County's 28 cities and towns and to areas beyond Norfolk County.

Auction items include a one-night stay at the Clarion Hotel on Nantasket Beach. This item includes a gift certificate to Raffael's Restaurant and a one-hour Swedish massage at the Clarion Hotel's Spa.

Participants will, also, have a chance to bid on a Boston Harbor sailboat cruise, Red Sox tickets, four one-day passes to Walt Disney World worth $448, dinner for eight persons at Tosca in Hingham, two Celtics' VIP tickets worth $200 and two Bruins' suite tickets worth $300.

The event is co-sponsored by First American Title Insurance Company.

Honorary committee members include:

Veteran Boston newscaster Chet Curtis, Congressman William Delahunt, State Rep. Joseph Driscoll, retired Buffalo Bills linebacker Chris Keating and his wife Nancy; Dist. Atty. William Keating, Sen. Michael Morrissey, Mayor William Phelan and his wife Tracey; Denise Reneghan of Bay State Charitable Foundation, Matthew Reneghan of Captain Fishbones in Marina Bay and WBZ anchor Scott Wahle.

DOVE's Development Committee includes Judy Kiley, Karen Ellsworth, Laurie Kelliher, DOVE Executive Director Stephanie Flaherty and DOVE Development Director Kathy Norris.

Francis, Elizabeth Trubiano Celebrate 60th Anniversary

Quincy natives Francis and Elizabeth (Pica) Trubiano, currently of Randolph, recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

Over 80 relatives and friends attended the anniversary celebration planned and given by their children at the Venetian Room of Lombardo's, Randolph.

The couple was married on August 23, 1947 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church on Sea St. Both were born and raised in Quincy. They are currently residents of Randolph where they have lived for 19 years.

A replica of the original wedding cake served as a very special treat for the anniversary couple and their guests at the party. They also received salutations from the White House.

Mr. Trubiano, a former pipefitter, retired from the Quincy Shipyard. His wife is a homemaker.

The couple's four children are Francis Trubiano, Marshfield; Louis Trubiano, Canton; Ellen Donaghey, Plymouth and Linda Silvia, Walpole.

Free Movie For Seniors

The Council on Aging will show the movie of the month free to seniors on the third Thursday of every month at the River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St.

The movie is provided by West Coast Video at no charge. Refreshments will be provided. Call Ann at 617-376-1506 to reserve a seat.

Sukkot Celebrated Sunday At Hingham Quincy Chabad

Sukkot, the Feast of the Tabernacles, commemorating the desert wanderings of the Jews during the Exodus, will be celebrated Sunday, Sept. 30, at 4:30 p.m. at the Hingham Quincy Chabad, 1356 Quincy Shore Drive.

The family celebration will include shaking the Lulav and Etrog, holiday arts and crafts, jumping castle, music and pizza. The cost is $10 per person, $36 per family.

Originally the People of Moses wandered in the wilderness for seven days, surrounded by the Clouds of Glory. Now those clouds are the greenery of the festive hut called a Sukkah.

All meals are eaten in the Sukkah and all the common activities, when they happen inside the Sukkah, become holy acts and the whole person is encompassed in this mitzvah.

Simchat Torah, the time when the yearly cycle of Torah reading is completed and begun anew, will be celebrated Thursday and Friday, Oct. 4 and 5.

All the scrolls of the Torah are carried from their ark around the bimah seven times with dance and song.

A dinner buffet will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Sukkah. RSVP to shevybronstein@gmail.com.

Torah reading will begin Friday at 10 a.m. Dance with the Torah, special Aliyah for the children. Buffet Kiddush.

Torre Dei Passeri Society 85th Anniversary Oct. 6

The Torre Dei Passeri Mutual Benefit Society will celebrate its 85th anniversary, Saturday, Oct. 6.

A dinner-dance will be held at 7 p.m. in the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St.

Tickets may be obtained by calling 617-472-9360 or 617-472-0449.

Gino Stracco, Jr., is president of the society and James P. Papile is vice president and dinner chairman.

The society, located at 262 Washington St., was founded in 1922 by a small group of men who had immigrated from the Italian town of Torre Dei Passeri which means "Tower of Sparrows."

The society's purpose is to provide mutual financial assistance to one another's families in times of sickness and death.

In addition to the need for financial support, there was also the need to socialize and to carry on the customs and culture of their homeland.

Today, the society has a third generation membership helping to carry on those traditions and customs.

In addition to Stracco and Papile, the other officers are Richard Vena, Recording Secretary, Enrico Salvaggi, Treasurer, Richard Vena, Jr., Orator, Robert Mariani and Robert Pettinelli, Masters of Ceremony, Carmillo Della Barba, Arthur Della Barba and Emilio DiNardo, Trustees; Gary DiNardo, Guard and Anthony DiNardo, Chaplain.

Past presidents, in order of succession, are Raffaele Papile, John Papile, Luigi Masciarelli, Salvatore Della Barba, Alfonzo Papile, Fiorenzo Fertile, Victor D'Olympio, Enrico Salvaggi, James Papile, Richard Vena and Robert Mariani.

Mount Wollaston Cemetery Walking Tour Oct. 13

Quincy historian Tom Galvin will lead a Historical Walking Tour of Mount Wollaston Cemetery Saturday, Oct. 13 at 1 p.m.

The walk, focusing on the Quincy granite industry, will include graves of the granite industry leaders, Quincy mayors, and civic leaders and granite monuments.

Those participating in the walk will meet at the Greenleaf Street gate off of Southern Artery.

Rain date is Sunday, Oct. 14 at 1 p.m.

A QUINCY CREDIT Union member has some of her personal financial documents shredded at Quincy Credit Union. At left are employees of Cintas Document Management Company, a shredding service, which provided a state-of-the-art mobile shredding unit in the QCU parking lot.

Quincy Credit Union Holds Fall Shredding Day

In an effort to raise awareness about Identity Theft, Quincy Credit Union recently hosted a Fall Shredding event.

QCU Members and the public brought their personal financial documents to the Credit Union for free shredding, just in time for fall cleaning.

Cintas Document Management Company, a shredding service, provided a state-of-the-art mobile shredding unit in the QCU parking lot. The unit enabled the public to view the destruction of their documents by looking at a monitor located on the outside of the truck.

In addition, a raffle was held and one lucky participant, QCU Member, Marcia Zandarelli, won a deluxe personal shredder. All participants were given ID Theft Prevention brochures from the Federal Trade Commission. Additional brochures and resources are available at the Credit Union. Due to the success of the event, QCU hope to offer this service again in the spring. A special thanks to Cintas Document Management Company.

Quincy Credit Union is located at 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy and currently serves over 22,000 members.

Credit Union Membership is available to those who live or work in Norfolk and Plymouth Counties, Dorchester and any family Member.

Quincy Credit Union is celebrating its 70th anniversary in business this year.

The newly posted website for the Committee to Reelect John F. Keenan is www.votekeenanan.com.

The name was inadvertently misspelled in last week's edition of The Quincy Sun.

Chairman Steve DesRoche said the website contains information on Keenan's background as well as his record on the Council and position on other issues.

"I'm excited about the website," said Keenan, who is seeking another at-large term on the Council. "It will be a valuable tool in the re-election campaign."

3-Day Spiritual Event Draws Local Faithful

Quincy Salvation Army Welcomes Former World Leader

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The world may know the Salvation Army from its good works to millions of needy nearby and across oceans and continents, but the foundation is in the Bible and the teachings of Jesus Christ, states General Bramwell Tillsley, former worldwide leader of the Salvation Army. "What the world sees are the good works," the retired General said during a meeting last week. "They don't always see the spirituality."

General Tillsley and his wife, General Maude Tillsley, are the first worldwide leaders of the Salvation Army to visit Quincy. Last weekend, they conducted a three-day workshop and ministry on "Living Life in the Spirit" which nearly filled the Chapel at the Quincy Temple Corps on Baxter Street for sessions from Friday to Sunday.

At the heart of the Salvation Army is the spiritual life of its members, according to General Tillsley who describes the Salvation Army as "a spiritual movement with an acute social conscience."

Mrs. General Tillsley noted that the Salvation Army was founded by a 19th century Methodist minister, General William Booth, who tried to bring Christ to the slums of London where Dickensian horrors abounded.

However, General Booth soon learned that "It's useless to talk to a man about the spirit if he has a toothache," said Mrs. General Tillsley. First, the Salvation Army attends to the urgent needs of food, clothing and housing, and then the spiritual.

People know the Salvation Army from the holiday bellringers whose collections fund a great number of Army programs.

What people forget, said General Tillsley, is that the Salvation Army's founder and ministers, through the generations, preached in parks and on street corners.

Unfortunately, the public doesn't frequent parks in the same way so there are few rallies now, he said. As a result, the Army has lost some visibility.

Major Douglas Jones and his wife, Major Linda Jones, as leaders of the Quincy Salvation Army, hosted the Tillsleys. It was a special treat for the Jones as the Tillsleys had been their teachers when they started out in the 1970's.

Like other ministers in the Salvation Army, both the Jones and the Tillsleys are ordained ministers. Each couple at the higher level must work as an ordained team in the Army. The ministers must wear the familiar military uniform in public.

At Quincy headquarters, the Salvation Army not only offers Sunday Services over the statement, "Put God First," but, also, programs for senior citizens, pre-schoolers and, on Friday nights, for teenagers. A local Army group offers substance abuse programs.

The need is great in Quincy, according to Jones who said, "There's just so much that we're able to do. It's never ending." He stretches the holiday giving, donations and endowments across twelve months each year and networks with social agencies.

Jones attributes some of the heavy demand now to inflation, which is affecting rents and food. The tightness, this year, comes even before the cost of heating oil is factored in.

So successful has General Booth's philosophy been that the Salvation Army is known throughout the world for similar good works.

Today, there are over 1.5 million members in 110 countries and the Army's uniform is instantly spotted in any public place. The Tillsleys always travel in uniform, as do all ordained ministers of the Army. Inevitably, they are stopped.

The Salvation Army was in New Orleans before, during and after Hurricane Katrina and at Ground Zero on 9/11 "before the first building fell," she added.

She recalled speaking to a Port Authority employee who said of 9/11, "I was there and I turned and the Salvation Army was right beside me."

"We've tried to respond where the need is," said Mrs. General Tillsley who noted the Salvation Army is sought by so many that the leadership in London must make hard choices and weigh every request.

"You can only cut the pie in so many pieces," she said. Just recently, the Army expanded to Greece and Poland at the request of those governments.

"There's a very big Army in India," General Tillsley said, noting that the majority of worldwide members are now in India and Africa where the Salvation Army has developed a base of native leadership.

Today, the Army's work in India focuses on medical needs in that country where leprosy and its after-effects are still a problem.

In Africa, General Tillsley said that the thrust is education and work on the AIDS scourge. Many such Salvation Army projects are funded through contributions from the United States.

And in the United States and big cities all over the world, there are major problems.

During their 52-year ministry, the Tillsleys have seen seismic changes in society where drugs now dominate as a major problem and the family unit is often broken.

"People really trust the Salvation Army," said General Tillsley who noted, "There's no big high salaries being paid to our people."

The general served as worldwide leader for over a year starting in 1993 before health problems forced his retirement. He and Mrs. Tillsley now live in Toronto.

Morrissey Seeks 60-Day Extension On State Insurance Plan

By LAURA GRIFFIN
 Senator Michael Morrissey said Tuesday that he will seek a 60-day extension of the state health insurance deadline for all the Commonwealth's 349 cities and towns now eligible to join the program.

Morrissey said he has been working on the extension with Dolores Mitchell, Executive Director of the Group Insurance Commission known as the G.I.C.

Under Morrissey's proposal, the October 1 deadline for joining the G.I.C. would be extended to December 3.

"She's helped draft the amendment," Morrissey said referring to Mitchell who originally planned to advertise the state health insurance for bidding in October.

Morrissey spoke in response to questions regarding the City Council's vote Monday. Councillors unanimously supported a Home Rule Petition requested by Mayor William Phelan to extend the deadline to Dec. 3.

Phelan has said that joining the state health plan could save the city $6 to $8 million and that employees, themselves, could save over $1 million in premiums.

The city's petition, approved unanimously Monday, asks the legislature for an extension of the October 1 deadline for the City of Quincy only.

Morrissey said that the only way the Home Rule Petition could be considered would be as an amendment to a supplemental budget. It couldn't be considered until after October 1.

"The chances between now and October 1 are nil," Morrissey said, then described his plan to seek a statewide extension.

Rep. Ron Mariano said the city would have a better chance if the 60-day extension is sought for Quincy alone, rather than through a extension for the entire state.

"It's easier to go through this as an individual item," Mariano said

As for a blanket extension for the entire state, Mariano said that he didn't think it would pass the legislature. "No. I don't think so. It puts a burden on the G.I.C."

Mariano said the original time restrictions were deliberately put in place to allow those cities and towns which are ready to join sufficient time to prepare paperwork.

The rest of the state's cities and towns would then have a year to consider joining the program.

On July 25, Governor Deval Patrick signed legislation allowing employees of the state's cities and towns to join the G.I.C.

That legislation gave cities and towns and their employees 67 days to form the required Public Employees Committee (PEC), meet notification requirements and to vote on joining.

The October 1 deadline allowed the state's G.I.C. to begin the bidding process for the state's insurance program, according to Dolores Mitchell, Executive Director of the G.I.C.

A 60-day extension may not be long enough for the city's employees and retirees, according to testimony offered at Monday's City Council meeting.

Speakers noted that 13 of the city's 19 unions are without contracts since July 2006. They said that health insurance is a major negotiating issue and that they can not consider the state plan until they have contracts.

Original Father Bill's Place Closed For Good

is to reduce the number of our emergency shelter beds and to increase the number of our permanent supportive housing units."

A letter from Sen. John Kerry noted that "all American cities and towns could benefit from modeling their own approach to addressing chronic homelessness after the one pioneered by the City of Presidents."

"What you are accomplishing is resounding loud and clear down in the nation's capital as other cities and towns learn about Quincy's success," said a note from Rep. Bill Delahunt.

Father Bill's Place, now located at 38 Broad St., was formed in 1984-85 as a union of the St. John's shelter with those of the Salvation Army and the Wollaston Lutheran Church.

The basement haven sheltered the homeless women of Father Bill's Place in its final days from 2000 to 2005 when it closed temporarily due to lack of clients.

Father Bill McCarthy himself, the former pastor of St. John's Church who was injured in a fall at his Cape Cod retirement venue, appeared at the closing celebration and delivered a reflection.

Besides Phelan, Mangano and Yazwinski, the speakers at the event were Peter Forman, executive chairman of the Quincy Leadership Council on Homelessness and Normand Grenier, executive director of Neighborhood Housing Services.

"Folks have been skeptical about our 10-year plan but we can clearly see that it's actually working," said Phelan.

"Our chronically homeless population has decreased by over 50 per cent in just three years. We are truly ending homelessness in Quincy."

Power Outage Sends QHS Students Home

Students at Quincy High School were sent home early Monday morning after a construction crew working on the new high school struck an electrical duct bank, knocking out power.

School Building Maintenance Director Michael Ryan said a jack hammer disrupted a line in the foundation, blowing three fuses in the light pole and a transformer, shutting down the power.

National Grid workers repaired the transformer during the night and the school was reopened Tuesday morning. The high school was the only building affected.

Bay State Family Project Aids Substance Abusers

Bay State Community Services of Quincy has embarked on a study to determine if family counseling added to one-on-one counseling increases sobriety rates among alcohol and drug abusers.

The Family Project, conducted by researchers and clinicians at Harvard Medical School as well as Bay

State, offers free counseling to abusers by licensed masters-level therapists.

Half the participants in the program are randomly assigned to receive both family and one-on-one counseling. The other half receives one-on-one counseling but no family counseling.

Treatment includes 24 counseling sessions over 12 weeks for all participants.

Dr. Daurice Cox, director of Clinical Services at Bay State Community Services, said she is excited that Bay State can offer this innovative treatment to patients and their families.

For more information, call the Family Project at 617-694-2602.

Helen Bailey Celebrates 103rd Birthday With Party At Wollaston Manor

Helen Bailey, a resident of Wollaston Manor, 91 Clay St., Quincy, recently celebrated her 103rd birthday with a party at the senior citizen housing complex surrounded by friends and other well-wishers.

This remarkable lady is still living independently there. Many of her friends from her women's group from the Quincy Community United Methodist Church came to share cake and ice cream with her.

Also a group of Freemasons were there representing Rural Masonic Lodge of Quincy. These men came to honor Helen as she is their oldest widow. Her husband Albert, who was a Lodge member, died in 1961. Both groups gave her gifts as well.

Helen Fisher Bailey was born Aug. 6, 1904 at Waquoit, Massachusetts and the home in which she was born is known as the Bourne-Fisher House and is a registered historical

East Coast Petroleum Wins National Diversity Award

DiversityBusiness.com, the nation's leading multicultural internet site, has named East Coast Petroleum of Stoughton as one of the "Top Diversity-owned Businesses in the United States".

East Coast Petroleum and its CEO, Loretta DeGrazia, represent the country's top female and/or multicultural earners and challenge the long-held notion that a diversity-owned business is limited or insignificant.

Diversity members are sought after by major corporations wishing to increase spending with diversity-owned companies. Diversity businesses are found in such varied sectors as technology, manufacturing, food services, professional and industry categories.

Affected by recent eco-conomic and demographic trends and changes, Fortune 1000 corporations throughout the country have recognized that buying products and services from diversity-owned companies positively impacts their business. Diversity-owned businesses contribute over $1.4 trillion in sales to the U.S. economy.

"Diversity businesses and consumers are a growing force in the U.S. economy, and a force to be reckoned with," said Kenton Clarke, CEO of Computer Consulting Associates International, the company that built DiversityBusiness.com. This is a whole business segment that can carry its own, that provides jobs, products and services, and generates wealth for their communities. These are the new leaders in American business."

Gloria Bohan, CEO of Omega World Travel in Fairfax, Virginia, commented, "This group represents the entrepreneurial spirit that drives our economy and even more. They offer insights into a vastness of cultures and an exchange of ideas that are so valuable in helping me to understand how to reach the needs of today's consumers".

East Coast Petroleum, founded by DeGrazia in 1985, is a full-service company providing oil delivery, furnace installation and servicing, and air conditioning installation and servicing. It conducts business on the entire South Shore and in East Massachusetts.

FOOT AND ANKLE INJURIES COMMON IN SOCCER

Do the changing leaves remind you that it's time to pull your chair up to the local soccer field and start cheering on your little player? With fall soccer in full swing, it's important to be aware of the common foot and ankle injuries that soccer players sustain. Ankle sprains are common in soccer, when players run and hit a rut in the field, turn sharply, or get their foot and ankle tangled with another player. Soccer players also tend to get shin splints and plantar fasciitis, and both are more common in the female player than the male. Male soccer players are more likely to end up with bruises on the foot and ankle than female players.

Young or old, athletically inclined or not, no one can afford to play games with foot injuries, fractures, diseases, and disorders. Don't let painful foot conditions keep you on the sidelines. Consult with us instead. We offer treatment of specific problems as well as preventive care to keep you on your feet. Our full service, state-of-the-art foot care facility is located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. If you have questions about any topic we cover in our column, or if you'd like an appointment, please call us at 781-986-3668. Post Island Road Dog Issue Being Brought To Mayor's Meeting Tonight

Mayor about it, Phelan told her to "Drop it! Let it go!"

The McGunigles say their troubles began last November, two months after they moved from Merry Mount into their "ocean front dream house" at 145 Post Island Rd. "It took us 30 years," said Dianne, "and it has turned out to be a nightmare."

She was walking the family's 14-year-old Rottweiler when a Great Dane, unleashed, charged at the elderly canine, who, said Dianne, could barely walk. The dog's owner, she said, "couldn't have cared less."

"I saw the same dog drop feces on the beach," she said. "We have video tape to prove it. The dog officer (Donald Conboy Jr.) has witnessed it himself. That got his attention."

Conboy talked to several of the dog owners, Dianne said, and told her "I am trying to avoid a civil war." I never saw Don after that."

On Jan. 3, said Dianne, she was attacked by a Golden Labrador that tried to bite her new puppy, a 9-month-old Rottweiler named Boris, who is so friendly, she said, that "a little dog can beat him up."

The same dog, she said, bit a mailman in September and, less than a month later, "lunged" at Joanne

O'Connell's 6-month-old baby, who was saved from harm "because myself and Joanne have fast reflexes."

Their fears were not taken seriously at a hearing down at the police station, she said. Dianne has asked for another hearing to "reevaluate the dangerousness and temperament of this dog."

"The dog owners do not take the city's ordinances seriously," she wrote in a letter to Chief Crowley. "They feel that the ordinances are a joke. There is no accountability when citations are given."

"Why should I be petrified walking my dog? Why are these dog owners getting away with breaking the law? Please explain this to me."

A week after Dianne's confrontation with the Golden Lab, Dog Officer Conboy sent a note to residents of Post Island Road pointing out it was illegal to walk their dogs on the beach from May 1 to Oct. 31 and they were required by law to clean up after them.

Joe McGunigle, the police officer, began writing citations for dog owners who allowed their pets to run unleashed, citations that carry fines of $50 for the first offense, $75 for the second and $100 for the third.

He had written up 11 of them and, said his wife, the dog situation on Post Island Road was improving when Joe was directed to stop "intimidating and harassing his neighbors" by writing the citations.

He was suspended for five days and the Police Patrolmen's Association has filed a grievance over it, a complaint that is currently being processed.

"It's more than a Post Island Road issue," said Dianne Kane-McGinagle, "or even a citywide issue. There are federal laws against allowing feces to drain into the harbor and pollute the waters."

Whatever happens at tonight's meeting, Dianne doesn't plan to give up her campaign.

"Did you know there is no dog officer working on weekends?" she said. "I would like to see two people from each ward appointed to help the dog officer. I want to stay active in it."

10 More Streets To Be Paved

Mayor William Phelan and DPW Commissioner Steve O'Donnell announce that 10 more streets will be paved this fall under the City's Pavement Management Plan.

The streets will be:

"We continue to work on improving the quality of our roads and sidewalks," said Phelan. "We are investing our resources in the areas that our residents have stated as their priorities. We are making great strides but we always have more work to do."

The work will include cold planning and overlaying the roadway as necessary. The contractor will also install reflectorized thermoplastic as necessary.

"We are moving forward into the neighborhoods now and I appreciate the cooperation and patience of our residents," said O'Donnell. "The work will last a couple of months but the benefits will last years."

Keohanes Thank Quincy On 75th With Day For Kids

It was 75 years ago, in the depths of the Depression, that Cornelius Keohane opened a storefront funeral home on Hancock Street in North Quincy.

Now the owners of three homes in Quincy and Hingham, his son, Edward, and grandsons, John and Dennis, observed the anniversary Saturday with a Kids Day of family fun at Pageant Field.

"We wanted to say thanks to the community," said Ed Keohane. "We thought we'd get 5 or 600 people. We got well over 4,000. We ran out of hot dogs and cotton candy."

The party, free to anyone who could get there, ran from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and featured all manner of kids' activities and games, carnival amusements, pony rides, food, beverages and a DJ.

There was even a demonstration of a hot air balloon, too, but, for safety's sake, no one went for a ride. "It was too windy," said Ed Keohane.

Keohane Funeral Homes at 333 and 785 Hancock St. were going concerns in 1970 when Cornelius turned the business over to the next generation, his son, Ed.

The original storefront home had moved into 333 Hancock St. in 1943 and the home at 785 Hancock St., was built in 1959, one of the first to be constructed specifically as a funeral home.

Ed Keohane, who joined his father in 1965, added Hingham's Pyne Keohane Funeral Home in 1981 and his sons, John and Dennis, joined the family enterprise in the early '90s.

Through its 75-year history, the Keohane Funeral Home has become known for its charitable endeavors, notably its sponsorship of youth sports teams and aid to the schools.

It is in a business/school partnership with North Quincy High School and has made generous contributions to private schools on the South Shore.

City Council Wants More Study On Insurance

Phelan has said the city could save $6 to $8 million and city employees could save one million dollars by joining the state's health insurance plan.

That 60-day extension may not be long enough for the city to reach agreement with its unions or retirees who said they need time to study the G.I.C., to consider alternative plans and to educate their members.

"It's going to be a long process," Stephen Moynihan, president of the Quincy Retiree Association (QRA) said Tuesday. As for being ready in 60 days, Moynihan said, "Absolutely not."

"There has to be negotiation between the City and PEC," Moynihan said of changes in the insurance structure.

Speakers Monday repeatedly noted that 13 of the city's 19 unions are without contracts since July 2006 and that health insurance is a major negotiating issue.

Several union representatives said that they could not consider the state health insurance plan until they have contracts.

Ernie Arienti, president of the 205-member firefighters' union, said that his union has been without a contract since July 2006 and mayor had "put the cart before the horse."

As for passing the G.I.C. now, Arienti said, "It would negatively affect negotiations."

Arienti objected to the way the issue has been framed so as to "pit the citizens against the employees."

In fact, Arienti pointed out that unions sought coalition bargaining for health benefits two years ago and were rebuffed by Phelan.

"We do not want to rush into this plan," said Carol Evans who spoke for the 39 city bus drivers. Evans said it was like, "They blindfolded us and are making us walk into a room."

"A majority of the unions are working without contracts," said Dominic Venturelli who represents the 136 members of the Quincy Public Employees Association (QPEA).

Venturelli, Arienti and Paul Phillips, president of the Quincy Education Association (QEA) all described unsuccessful efforts two years ago to bargain collectively for health benefits in a coalition effort.

"The mayor turned it down," said Venturelli, "You never saw it because it never got past the mayor."

"We were told that the city was not interested," said Paul Phillips, president of the Quincy Teachers Association (QEA).

Like most speakers, Venturelli said, "I'm not against the G.I.C." He also warned that it's not an $8 million savings for the city and could, in fact, cost more if employees all chose a more expensive plan.

Phillips acknowledged that his union is the key to the city's decision on the state insurance plan as the QEA represents 890 teachers and 40 Quincy College employees.

Those membership numbers give the QEA a decisive 39+ percent vote on the city's decision to join the state's health insurance plan. The employees' committee must approve joining the G.I.C. by a 70% majority.

He said the QEA hired a consultant to study the G.I.C. plan, the current plans and alternatives, but must wait because the consultant is preparing data for another municipality.

Phillips quoted G.I.C. Director Dolores Mitchell who suggested that communities "study this seven ways to Sunday" and get "a lead time of six months."

"I am not authorized to sit in on a PEC," Phillips told the City Council describing a decision by the QEA governing board. "They made a statement about the other unions not having contracts."

He indicated that the QEA would not participate in G.I.C. discussions until the city finalizes contracts with the 13 union currently without contracts. Most of those contracts expired in July 2006.

"Let's do it in an intelligent reasonable way,"

Phillips said who also said of the state health legislation, "it's written in a muddled way."

"They had real problems with this in Springfield," Phillips said, referring to Springfield's decision to join the G.I.C. as part of its financial bailout last year.

"I've got 900 people that all have lives," Phillips said. "We need time. We can't have this shoved down our throat."

Terrence Downing represented the 148-member police patrolmen's union because the president, Bruce Tait, had a death in his family.

"We don't want to go rampaging down the road," said Downing who said they were "very concerned about the process."

Downing echoed other union leaders when he said the patrolmen were not against the proposal but needed time.

The health insurance legislation signed by Governor Deval Patrick on July 25 requires 30-days official notice to each union before the PEC can meet officially.

None of the city's previous meetings with employee representatives have met that criteria, according to speakers on Monday.

Speakers also said that their unions have not had a chance to delegate a representative to Public Employees Committee (PEC) which plays a major role in joining the G.I.C.

The state's health insurance programs now cover 272,000 employees, retirees and beneficiaries.

On July 25, Governor Deval Patrick signed legislation allowing employees of the state's cities and towns to join the G.I.C.

That legislation gave cities and towns and their employees 67 days to form the required Public Employees Committee (PEC), meet notification requirements and to vote on joining.

After leaders spoke, David Murphy, Phelan's Director of Operations, said that none of the speakers had considered the taxpayers.

Hints for Homeowners

More Consumers Going 'Green' With These Fall Lawn Care Tips

(NAPS) – Autumn is a busy time for outdoor enthusiasts, especially those fast at work putting the final touches on their lawns and gardens. Thanks to an array of environmentally sensitive new products, homeowners can still go "green" while preparing their turf and planting areas for the cold months ahead and to jump-start next season.

Going "green" through the use of organic and/or organic-based fertilizers and weed, grass and insect killers is a leading trend in the lawn and garden marketplace, as consumers look for alternatives to standard synthetic fertilizers and pest control products to help protect themselves, their children, pets and the environment.

"We are seeing a growing market of consumers who are looking for ways to 'Green Responsibly' through the latest organic and organic-based technologies," said Jeff Jerousek, director of sales for Garden Way LLC. "Our society is becoming more cognizant of the potential effects of some chemical-based products, so they are far more interested in trying more responsible alternatives that can still deliver the results the consumer is looking for."

One of these new alternatives, Nature's Touch Natural Organic-Based Lawn & Garden Fertilizer, is formulated to "green" the average lawn in just seven to ten days and continue nurturing the treated area for up to 12 weeks. The product also is available with a "power package" of 300 enzymes that work in harmony with the environment to produce a deeper, thicker turf root structure.

Jerousek offers these fall maintenance tips for a stronger, healthier lawn:

1. "Fall is the best time to strengthen an ailing lawn, thanks to cooler nights and increased rain, both of which promote turf recovery and rooting," he said. He recommends fertilizing with the Nature's Touch 15-1-3 formulation for thicker, greener turf.

2. "Drop your mowing cut height to 2 inches for the last mowing of the season. This helps thicken the root structure and can protect the lawn from winter-related stress."

3. "Fall aeration helps feed oxygen to the lawn's root structure, which sets the stage for enhanced color and density. Bagging also helps to prevent excess thatch buildup and allows turf to thicken and choke out weeds."

Putting Your Lawn Mower to Bed

Q. In one of your winter-preparation columns last year, you mentioned storing lawn mowers and removing the spark plug. Why do that, and what else is involved in storing a mower for the winter? — Pauline S., via e-mail

A. Removing the spark plug keeps the mower from starting up as you go through the task of storing it away for the winter. The mower's exterior should be clean and free of grass clippings and dirt, while the motor interior should be protected by a coating of oil. Storing a lawn mower properly will increase its lifespan while maintaining its efficiency. As soon as the grass-cutting season is over, take the following steps to put your mower to bed for the winter:

- Place the mower in a well-ventilated area.
- Leaving the spark plug in for the moment, drain the gas from the mower tank into an approved fuel container.

- Start the engine for a few seconds to burn off any remaining gas, then turn it off and remove the spark plug.

- Squirt a little oil into the cylinder, then pull the starter cord a few times to distribute the oil evenly. (After this, you can either replace the spark plug, or tape it on the side of the mower to replace next spring.)

- Drain the oil from the crankcase. Once the motor is dealt with, use a hose to spray grass and dirt away from the underside of the lawn mower. This is a good time to remove the mower blades, clean and sharpen them. Let the mower dry out completely before storing in a dry, out-of-the-way spot.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, Sept. 1, at approximately 3:20 p.m., Officers Dan Francis and Tom Pepdjonovic were dispatched to Hannaford Brothers Supermarket on a report of a store employee being assaulted in the parking lot. Sgt. Patrick Faherty was in the area and arrived in the parking lot first. He informed Communications an assault had occurred and that the suspect fled southward toward Berlin Street, providing a physical and clothing description.

The suspect was last seen being followed by a store employee because the suspect had shoplifted. The suspect fled out the store with a full red basket used to hand carry groceries. An employee in the parking lot saw the suspect run out of the store and tried to stop him.

The suspect then assaulted an employee who attempted to stop him. Officer Francis and Officer Pepdjonovic performed a systematic search in the backyards in the area of Hancock Street and Berlin Street. Officer Francis spotted a man matching the description of the suspect in a backyard and recognized him from numerous incidents involving domestic violence.

As Officer Francis approached the suspect, the noted the suspect was breathing heavily, sweating profusely and reeking of alcoholic beverage. When asked what he was doing in someone else's backyard, the suspect yelled back, "I'm helping you look for a guy that just ran through here."

Based on the officer's knowledge of the violent past of the suspect, that he did not live nearby and that the suspect matched the description, Officer Francis placed handcuffs on the suspect until he could have the witness identify him.

The store employee saw Officer Francis with the suspect and spontaneously said, "That's him." The suspect was placed under arrest and transported to the station for booking.

Sgt. Faherty, while searching the area, found the basket of food, which was located between the store and where the suspect was discovered. Officer Francis then interviewed the store employee in depth and learned the employee saw the suspect run out of the store with unbagged items still in the red basket, so he ran toward the suspect and told him, "Just drop the basket."

The suspect then moved toward the employee and punched him numerous times, then fled. The employee blocked most of the punches and did not require medical attention.

The items stolen were tallied at $71.47 and the receipt given to the police to be used for court purposes.

The suspect, a 40-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with shoplifting and assault and battery.

Over 1,500 Run In Final Degan Memorial Road Race

More than 1,500 runners took part in the 15th and final U.S. Marshall William F. Degan Memorial Road Race last Sunday at Adams Field in Quincy.

The race, which has been held annually to honor the life of Deputy U.S. Marshall William Degan, who lost his life in 1992 in the line of duty, consisted of a 5K and a 10K road race.

This year's race raised close to $56,000, according to race coordinator Rick Fitzpatrick.

The following are the results for the top-ten finishes for each race and the top Quincy resident finishers.

5K (Men)

Peter Gallimore won the five-kilometer race in a time of 17:40, followed in second place by Stephen Putman (17:51) and Kyle Fredericks in third place (18:27). Sean Kelley of Winchester, MA finished in fourth place with a time of 18:45, followed in fifth place by Daniel Sheehan (19:05). The rest of the top-ten were Luke Dodge (19:07), Michael O'Malley (19:23), Victor Moran-Cunniff (19:46), Jay Weaver (20:03) and Chris Kelly (20:28).

Three Quincy residents finished in the top-50. Jim Quinn finished in 26th place with a time of 23:26. Patrick Cummings finished in 36th position with a running time of 24:12 and Michael Buckley finished in 41st place with a time of 24:22.

5K (Women)

Janette Drake finished in first place with a time of 21:43, followed in second place by Courtney O'Conner (22:09) and Quincy resident Sarah Zelechowski in third place with a time of 23:22. Tamala Sweesy finished in fourth place with a running time of 23:36, followed in fifth place by Ashley Betts (23:41). The rest of the top-ten were Quincy resident Maureen Lydon (23:49), Cindy Jolliemore (23:51), Jo Ann Harrington (24:11), Beth Hackett (24:27) and Stacy Beaudoin (24:30).

Nine other Quincy residents finished in the top-50. Veronica Kelly finished in 16th place with a time of 25:28. Tracey McCormack finished in 22nd place with a time of 26:06. Marie Stewart finished in 26th place with a time of 26:29. Joanne Minton finished in 27th place with a time of 26:34. Delia Devane finished in 31st place with a time of 26:59. Meradee Jowder finished in 32nd place with a time of 27:15. Robyn Quinn finished in 38th place with a time of 27:33. Enn Molgaard finished in 45th place with a time of 28:07 and Christina Conley finished 50th with a time of 28:31.

Jason Bialka won the ten-kilometer race in a time of 34:35, followed in second place by Andrew Lee (36:40) and Kevin Loughlin in third place with a time of 36:56. Doug Presley finished in fourth place with a time of 37:13, followed in fifth place by Prentice Zinn (38:10). The rest of the top-ten were Justin Renz (38:15), Nick Sousa (39:17), Michael Devaney (39:55), Stephen Warren (40:01) and Stephen Crane (40:32).

Two Quincy residents finished in the top-50. Hassan Haydar finished in 15th place with a time of 41:34 and Kevin Griffin finished in 46th place with a time of 46:49.

10K (Women)

Heather Cappello finished in first place with a time of 39:05, followed in second place by Marybeth McCarthy (41:19) and Quincy resident Lisa Bina in third place with a time of 42:54. Krystin Newsom finished in fourth place with a time of 43:17, followed in fifth place by Jill Leonard (46:52). The rest of the top-ten were Natalie Herald (46:59), Tanya Buzzianey (47:38), Carrie Healy (47:53), Tricia O'Donnell (47:55) and Liz Allard (48:19).

Three other Quincy residents finished in the top-50. Carol Whalen finished in 25th place with a time of 51:52, Ellen Lyons finished in 32nd place with a time of 52:53 and Joanne Morris finished in 47th place with a time of 53:58.

THE KIDS FUN RUN kicked off the festivities before the beginning of the Degan Road Race. Pictured here is the 2-3 age group running through the outfield at Adams Field.

THESE RUNNERS are putting it into another gear as they approach the finish line of the 5K-road race. Peter Gallimore and Janette Drake finished first in the men and women's races.

Presidents Clip Clippers For First League Victory

By SEAN BRENNAN

No matter if it is high school football or professional football, if your team wins the turnover battle, a victory is usually in the cards.

The Quincy Presidents took advantage of three Falmouth High School miscues — including two in the fourth quarter — last Friday night on their way to an 18-6 league win. With the victory, Quincy improved its record to 1-1 overall, and 1-0 in the highly competitive Atlantic Coast League.

"Anytime you travel all the way down to the Cape and come away with a league win, it is big," said head coach Bob Noble. "The travel can make for a long day for the kids, but we did some good things and capitalized on the opportunities."

And capitalize the Presidents did. Quincy forced those two fourth turnovers and scored two touchdowns on their ensuing possessions to break what had been a 6-6 tie through three quarters.

Senior running back Diego Arredondo finished off his great night (16 carries, 100 yards, 3 TDs) with touchdown runs of eight and eleven yards to seal the game for Quincy. Arredondo also scored on a 1-yard TD run in the second quarter, which at the time had given the Presidents the early 6-0 lead (Quincy missed all three point after attempts).

Arredondo, who is also the Presidents punter, averaged 45 yards per punt and according to Noble that may have been the most significant aspect of the game.

"Diego had an outstanding game on offense," he said. "He scored three touchdowns and had an even 100 yards on the ground. But he also punted well. His punts continually pinned Falmouth back deep in their own end and as a result, we were able to force their offense into making mistakes late in the game."

Both offenses started slowly, and after the first quarter of play, the score was 0-0. Arredondo and the Presidents scored early in the second quarter, but right before the halftime whistle, Falmouth knotted the game at 6-6 on a David Martinho six yard touchdown run.

Entering the second half and playing in a hostile environment, Quincy decided it was about that time to start and dominate the line of scrimmage on both offense and defense. Working exclusively out of a one-back formation, Arredondo, fullback/H-back Tim Lewis and the offensive line took control of the Clippers' defensive front. On the other side of the ball, the defense led by Lewis (sack, forced fumble, INT) and senior captains Matt Oriol and Zack Olhson wore down Falmouth with smash mouth football.

"It was a hard fought game throughout," said Noble. "In the second half we started to dominate the line play on both sides of the football and you could tell that it was starting to wear them down. I think that this showed up in the fourth quarter as we forced those turnovers and were able to run the ball effectively and then Diego scored those two touchdowns to put the game away."

Noble was quick to point out the play of Lewis. Only a junior, Lewis stands at 6'1 and 220 pounds, and it was

Quincy Girls' 16-Year-Old Travel Softball Team Wins Norfolk County League Championship

The Quincy girls' 16-year-old travel softball recently won the Norfolk County League championship for the second year in a row. The team finished their regular season in first place and as a result received a first-round bye in the playoffs.

In their first playoff game against a team from Needham, the Quincy offense took over. Jessica Ainsley and Samantha Bonanni both hit grand slams to lead the offensive attack. Amanda Kelley, Catherine O'Connell and Britney Folkins each finished the game with two hits, while Rene DiPietro and Carolyn Ainsley scored three runs each. Kathleen Lynch had a hit; a run scored and played solid defense at third base.

Quincy squared off against Newton in the championship game and won with the help of some stellar defense and clutch RBIs by Kasey O'Connell at shortstop, Kerry Coughlin behind the plate and Mary Kate Stille at first base. A sixth inning rally, started by Katie Sheridan's single, put Quincy up 4-2. Paige Bonanni allowed just two hits to earn the win on the mound.

The team would like to thank its long-time sponsor, Michael Cowas of Cowas Law Offices, and travel league coordinator Mary Ainsley.

Raiders' Record Falls To 0-4-1

A tough week for the North Quincy Red Raiders boys soccer team may have put a dent in their post-season dreams. The Raiders dropped a 4-2 game to Whitman-Hanson, a 2-0 game to Marshfield and a 2-1 defeat to Nauset.

Last Friday, North's game against Nauset was delayed due in part to the 89-mile bus trip that is required to bring the two schools together. When the game finally got underway, North controlled much of the early play, looking to avenge last year's 6-0 loss on the Cape

BOYS' SOCCER

However, in the 18th minute, the Warriors got on the scoreboard first. A high cross was headed in the box and over the outstretched arms of North goalie Ryan Louis to give Nauset the 1-0 lead. The Warriors would score again early in the second half as the ball was slid under the diving Louis.

Down 2-0, North Quincy fought back six minutes later. Ryan Kearney sent a crossing pass from near midfield to Dan Richards on the right side of the penalty area. Richard's low rocket shot deflected off a Nauset defender to close the gap to 2-1. North Quincy could not closer and dropped their third decision of the week.

After the game, in his address to his team, head coach Rich Hanlon reminded the Raiders that there is much soccer left to be played in the season.

On Sept. 14, North hosted Marshfield High School in a

Raiders Defeat Randolph, Best Start In Decade

That's two wins and counting for the North Quincy Red Raider football team.

The Red Raiders, who are off to their best start in over a decade, defeated Randolph High School 34-2 last Thursday to run their early season record to 2-1 overall and 1-0 in Atlantic Coast League play. This win was a combination of both offense and defense, and the results speak to the steady progress head coach Jim Connor's team is making in 2007, but he is not ready just yet to prepare his team for a Super Bowl appearance.

"It's hard to process, because I feel like we are not 2-1," Connor said. "I feel like we have so much work to do that I don't feel like we are a 2-1 team yet. We can be a 2-1 team and I am proud of the kids and they did a good job, but we have to keep moving, we can't end our season now."

But with his suddenly explosive offense and a defense that has given up just 14 points over the last eight quarters, Connor just may have to get used to his team winning big games when they count.

Junior running back Jon Cahill continued to punish opposing defenses with his hard running and his uncanny ability to find the end zone. Over the first three games, Cahill has amassed close to 300 yards rushing and has scored five touchdowns. Against Randolph, he ran for 82 yards and scored two TDs. But it was senior Danny Jackson who scored first to put the Red Raiders up 7-0.

Jackson, flanked out to the left, caught a perfect pass from quarterback Dennis Martin, and raced 19 yards into the end zone to put North Quincy up 7-0.

Martin (4 for 6, 79 yards) showed he belongs behind center on his team's second offensive possession. On third down and ten, he connected with Alex Tragellis for 25 yards and a first down, and followed that with a big seven yard completion to Patrick Watkins on fourth-and-6. After he was sacked on third down, he connected with Watkins once again on fourth-and-18. The pass went for 28 yards and set up a first-and-goal at the Randolph 5-yard line. Sophomore Brian Donaghey ran it in from three yards out to put North up 13-0.

Randolph blocked the extra point attempt and returned it 85 yards for their only points of the game.

"That builds his (Martin) confidence and he was tre-

North Quincy Goes 0-2-1

By SEAN BRENNAN

The North Quincy girls soccer team will need to pick themselves up off the carpet after a week that saw them go 0-2-1 against three Atlantic Coast League opponents.

With losses to Whitman-Hanson (4-2) and Marshfield (5-0) and a tie against Nauset (1-1), the Red Raiders' record currently stands at 1-3-2.

"We need to get healthy fast," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "Injuries have become a huge factor in the early part of the season. We are not where we thought we would be at this point, and if we want to get (to the post-season) we need some of our key players to get back on the field."

North has lost junior goaltender Siobhan Carnell (lower leg injury), sophomore forward Cara Murtagh (broken nose), sophomore midfielder Devon McKay (undisclosed injury), backup goaltender Jesse Howlett (leg injury), senior defender Kerry Coughlin and their leader both on the field and off in senior midfielder Emily Milone.

"We played pretty well against a strong Whitman-Hanson team, but we did start that game missing three of our starters," Bregoli added. "The remaining players have played well, but there are times that their inexperience has shown, so getting our starters back will be critical. But at the moment we are what we are."

Last Friday at Teal Field, the Raiders matched up with Nauset, and just 15 minutes into the game senior captain

GIRLS' SOCCER

Mary Kate Stille scored her second goal of the season off an spectacular pass from senior forward Anne Marie Price.

"Mary Kate took a beautiful pass from Price and came in alone on their keeper," Bregoli said. "Stille just chipped the ball over her head and into the back of the net. It was a nice play all-around."

North held serve throughout the rest of the first-half and deep into the second-half, but with a little under ten minutes to play in regulation, Nauset gained possession of the ball deep in their own end and started a counter attack up the field. The result was a goal that tied the game.

"We got Coughlin back in this game, but we lost Milone in the second-half and near the end of the game a Nauset player took a run at McKay, taking her down in the process," he added. "It was a dirty play, and their coach gave the player a lashing."

Bregoli noted that seniors Simone Leary and Tara McFarland both played solid games for the Raiders against Nauset.

On Sept. 19, North squared off against Marshfield High School and quickly found themselves down 1-0 just five minutes into the game. At the half, Marshfield held a 2-0 lead.

"They got to us early and that really changed the pace of the game," said Bregoli. "Being down 2-0 at halftime put us in a tough spot with the injuries we are dealing with and because they are a good team."

The news went for bad to worse on the injury front after the Rams took a 3-0 lead early in the second half. Howlett, playing in place of Carnell in net, was forced to leave the contest with leg cramps, leaving Bregoli with no choice but to insert Brittany Folkins in goal.

With the score 3-0, North emptied their bench and gave their younger players some run. Marshfield, on the other hand, decided to keep their starters in the game throughout.

"We cleared the bench after it was 3-0 and after we lost Howlett in net," he added. "But their coach decided to keep the starters in and they scored two more times. Seems like they wanted to pad their stats."

Sammy Bonanni, Roxanne Lydon and Ellen Quinn all played solid games in the 5-0 loss.

On Sept. 17, Emily Milone scored twice on penalty kicks against Whitman-Hanson, but the Raiders lost 4-2.

North will look to get back in the win column this week. The team played Plymouth North on Tuesday afternoon, and are scheduled to play Brockton today (Thursday) on the road at 5:15 p.m. The will play against Medford High School tomorrow (Friday) at Teal Field beginning at 4 p.m.

his size and strength that enabled the Quincy offense and sophomore quarterback Lance Peterson (5 for 10, 75 yards) to set the pace of the game in the second half.

"Lewis had himself a game," added Noble. "He did not play in our season opener, but he made his presence felt against Falmouth. He finished the game with a sack, forced fumble and an interception, and we scored off both of those turnovers. And on offense he led the way for Arredondo. His blocking was solid."

After the season opener (a 28-7 loss to Canton High School) on Sept. 7, Quincy had a week off before their Atlantic Coast League opener, and according to their coach, the team responded to the extra week of practice.

"We were significantly better in this game than we were in the opener. The extra week helped us improve on some things that needed improving, including our tackling. I thought that we tackled better in this game."

With the win, Quincy started off the ACL portion of its schedule with a bang. And it gives the Presidents some momentum entering this week's game against a tough Plymouth North squad.

"We have another big game this weekend and it helps to have some confidence heading into it," Noble stated. "The next two weeks (against Plymouth North and Whitman-Hanson) are at Veterans Memorial Stadium and hopefully we can keep it going."

If they can keep it going, and if they can continue to capitalize on turnovers like they did last Friday against the Clippers, the Quincy Presidents could be poised to have a winning season.

The game against Plymouth North on Saturday begins at 7 p.m.

mendous," Connor said about his QB. "This is the first game where I saw Dennis really have control of the huddle."

With Martin and the offense hitting on all cylinders, the Red Raider defense showed they are for real, too, with a momentum stopping goal-line stand at the end of the first half. The Blue Devils took the ball all the way down inside the North Quincy five-yard line trailing just 13-2, but could not punch in what would have been a huge touchdown. On fourth-and-goal from the two, Randolph's Ricky Ighani went left on a fake pitch to the right, but was stopped just short of the goal line. It was close, but NQ held its ground and entered the locker room with a 13-2 lead.

The Raiders would pile it on in the second half, making a close game a blowout. Junior Joe Vialpandro scored on a 34-yard run, and Cahill scored twice in the final two quarters to account for the 34 points North Quincy put on the scoreboard. But with their second victory in as many games, Connor knows he needs to keep his team on the level because they now enter the meat of their Atlantic Coast League schedule and need to get ready to face a tough Falmouth team on Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"Whatever the score is, a win is a win and we are obviously very happy with having it at that at North Quincy. I like the way we are moving right now, but we have a lot of work to do. We were good (against Randolph), but we could have been better. We are the kind of team that can go anywhere right now; we can go in any direction. These kids are good athletes, but they can do even more. They can be something special."

At 2-1, the Red Raiders may not be where they want to be, but it sure beats the alternative.

North Quincy kicks off against Falmouth High School tomorrow (Friday) at 7 p.m.

divisional Atlantic Coast League game. The Raiders got off to a fast start against the perennial league powerhouse and the score was 0-0 until the 41st minute of play.

At that point, a Marshfield midfielder sent a hard right to left shot across the face of the NQ goal. Louis made a terrific, diving stop, but he could not control the rebound. The loose ball was put away by a Ram forward to give Marshfield a 1-0 lead. The defensive tandem of Louis and Richards stopped a Marshfield breakaway right before the halftime whistle to keep the score 1-0 at the break.

North Quincy came out flat in the second half and Marshfield took advantage with several point blank shots on Louis. In the 65th minute, a low header off of a corner kick forced another diving save by Louis, but the rebound was put into the back of the net for a 2-0 Ram lead. Alex Breen and Ryan Keaney both played well on defense for the Raiders.

Against Whitman-

Hanson on Sept. 17, North carried much of the early play, but in the 12th minute, W-H broke through the Raider defense and scored to make it 1-0.

It wasn't until the 38th minute that NQ found its stride on the pitch. Junior midfielder Danny Russell broke free of the W-H defense and deposited the ball behind the goalie to tie the score at 1-1. North had several chances by Shane Regan and Richards later in the half, but could not score the go-ahead goal.

The Panthers scored three times in ten minutes late in the half to take a commanding 4-1 lead, and with little time remaining in the game, Regan scored his fourth goal of the season to account for the final score of 4-2.

The Red Raiders will look to get their first win of the year when the travel to Marshfield today (Thurs.) and host Brighton High School tomorrow (Friday) at 4 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy/North Quincy Girls, Boys X-Country Teams Win Season Opener

The Quincy/North Quincy boys and girls cross-country teams both came out victorious down at Nauset High School in their season opening Atlantic Coast League tri-meet with Plymouth North High School.

The boys eked out a 27-28 win over Plymouth North and easily defeated Nauset 21-34.

The top five finishers for Quincy/North Quincy were Matt McGroarty (overall winner), Rob McGroarty (fifth), and Casey Conley (sixth). Greg Gaffney and Dio Covais rounded out the rest of the top-five for the Quincy/North Quincy squad.

The girls' team averted disaster on the course with the help of some quick thinking from coaches and members of the boys' team. The top four women runners made a critical wrong turn about 600 yards from the finish line, but all four recovered in time thanks to help of their coaches and teammates.

In the end, Quincy North Quincy topped Plymouth North 20-37 and knocked off Nauset 17-42.

Erica Brady finished the race as the overall winner with Jess Davis, Mary Schwartz and Lauren Brooks all close behind. Other scorers for the girls' team included Rachael Kasanoff and Emily Zamoch.

"We did well on a tricky course," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. "It was a good opener. And we're excited for both squads up coming meets."

Both teams now sport a 2-0 record. The teams hosted a tri-meet at Pageant Field on Tuesday (9/25) against Whitman-Hanson and Dennis-Yarmouth.

Quincy North Quincy will travel to Goddard State Park in West Warwick, Rhode Island this Saturday to compete in the Inaugural New Balance Ocean State Cross-Country Festival. The festival is expected to host 200 high school and over 3,500 runners.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Fit for a Bride

Q: I'm in the midst of planning my wedding, which is six months away, and I really would like to lose some weight before the big day. I currently walk two days a week, but would like to work really hard until the wedding to feel and look better in my wedding dress. Is six months enough time for me to lose weight?

A: Planning a wedding can not only be the best time of your life, but also the busiest and the most stressful. Wedding details can overshadow other priorities such as exercise and eating healthy. Whether it is to look your best in your dress or deal with the pressures of premarital preparations, exercise is an excellent way to help you stay sane and look good.

Just as you are making plans for your wedding, you also have to plan to exercise and make healthy eating choices. Schedule time for yourself several days a week to complete workouts. Six months is ample time to make significant progress toward your fitness goals. Take advantage of the time you have from now until the wedding, and pace yourself.

It is important to remember that although you desire to look and feel your best at your wedding, you want to take a safe approach to get there. Get-fit-quick gimmicks might seem like a great idea, especially if they involve just taking a pill and not exercising, however, steer away from what might appear as a fast way to fitness and believe that your hard work will pay off.

Begin to incorporate additional cardiovascular training into your current twice-weekly walking routine. Each day, try to push yourself to walk the same distance quicker or increase the distance you travel. If possible, begin to strength train at least three times a week. This will not only help increase lean muscle mass, but also help decrease unwanted body fat. Devoting 60 minutes four days a week to a total-body fitness routine could produce positive results over six months.

Look for a bridal boot-camp class in your area or seek the advice of a fitness professional who can develop a training program specifically to meet your needs. Bridal boot-camp classes are becoming more and more popular due to the demand from brides-to-be and their wedding parties. DVDs of total-body workouts can also be helpful.

Your wedding is a great time to start making exercise and proper nutrition a lifestyle choice. By establishing these positive exercise and healthy eating habits as you are planning your married life, you can truly live happily ever after.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, write Andrea in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Health Q & A

Nutrition, Exercise Key To Healthy Weight Management

(NAPS) — Every year, millions of American adults make an effort to lose weight. While dropping the extra pounds is beneficial for overall health, some people may have questions about how to start and stick with a healthy weight-loss program. Here are answers to common questions about nutrition and tips on a healthy approach to weight loss.

Q: Starting a weight management regimen can be a worthy yet sometimes overwhelming effort. What are some key things to consider when setting out to lose weight?

A: You'll have more success with sticking to a new regimen if you don't try changing everything at once. Experts agree that it takes 21 days to establish a healthy habit. Start by making simple changes to your daily routine and setting goals that will help you stick with and support your weight-loss efforts. Things we can all do include eating a well-balanced diet, exercising regularly, making time for a good night's sleep, drinking plenty of water and taking a daily multivitamin.

Q: What are the right foods to eat when dieting?

A: Keep in mind that there are no miracle foods. And, there is no particular food or food groups that should be eliminated from anyone's diet. Protein, carbohydrates and even certain healthy fats, such as olive oil, play an essential role in overall nutrition. According to the USDA's dietary guidelines, a healthy diet includes fruits, vegetables and whole grains, as well as fat-free and low-fat milk and milk products. Experts also recommend choosing proteins such as fish, poultry and leaner cuts of red meat. Try to avoid processed foods, which lack many of the essential nutrients needed for a healthy diet, and often contain saturated fats, salt and foods with added sugars.

Q: I've heard about the new diet pill called alli that limits some of the fat the body absorbs. How does this affect the nutrients the body gets from food?

A: When taking a weight-loss product designed to limit fat absorption, you are likely to lose a certain amount of fat soluble vitamins, namely vitamins A, D, E and K. That's why experts recommend taking a daily multivitamin as part of your weight-loss regimen.

Q: What should be considered when adding exercise to a weight-loss plan?

A: First, exercise doesn't have to mean going to the gym and pumping iron. A simple activity like walking and tracking your steps with a pedometer is a great way to maximize your results and exercise your heart. Also, taking a multivitamin like One-A-Day WeightSmart Advanced is a good idea because it's a complete daily multivitamin containing 100 percent of key vitamins and minerals plus a unique guarana blend, B vitamins and other important ingredients to offer nutritional and energy support for those who are working to manage their weight through diet and exercise.

Visit www.one-a-day.com for more information.

Q: What could people do to stave off hunger while on a diet?

A: Dieting does not mean going hungry. Incorporating more fiber into meals will help curb cravings by keeping you fuller longer. Also, eating smaller meals throughout the day rather than three larger meals can help reduce cravings that may lead to overeating.

American Liver Foundation Charity Walk, Sept. 30

The American Liver Foundation "Football Walk for Liver Wellness" is a 5-mile fundraising walk to be held on Sunday, Sept. 30.

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. The Walk begins at 10:15 a.m. The scenic course on the South Boston waterfront begins and finishes on Day Boulevard across from Moakley Park.

Denise (Marnell) Gurshin, a Quincy native, is walking and fundraising for the American Liver Foundation. Her husband was in need of a liver transplant after more than a decade since his diagnosis with PSC (Primary Sclerosing Cholangitis). In March 2005, the surgeons at Tufts-New England Medical Center transplanted part of Denise's liver to her husband Chris.

Thanks to their efforts, Denise and Chris celebrate two anniversaries every year, their wedding and transplant. The advances in liver medicine and transplantation gave Chris and Denise a second chance on life.

A little over a year after their surgery, Denise completed the 2006 Boston Marathon with the Run for Research, the American Liver Foundation team. This year, Denise and Chris are walking in their second "Football Walk for Liver Wellness." They walk and fundraise to support the American Liver Foundation (ALF) in achieving their goals to 1.) Raise awareness of the prevalence of liver disease, 2.) Reach out to people with liver disease, 3.) Educate the public about the liver and its importance, 4.) Promote liver wellness, and 5.) Raise funds for critically needed liver disease research and education.

They hope others will come out to support the ALF goals on Sept. 30.

The American Liver Foundation welcomes patients, organ donors, family members, friends and volunteers to participate in the "Football Walk for Liver Wellness." For more information, contact Elizabeth Buell at (617-527-5600) or visit <http://www.liverfoundation.org/chapters/newengland/events/21/>.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

TOOTH MAKEOVER

While body reshaping may involve strenuous exercise and/or modification surgery, tooth reshaping is a relatively easy matter. It involves removing small amounts of enamel to eliminate or minimize imperfections. For instance, the points of upper canine teeth can be blunted somewhat to eliminate their fang-like appearance. Tooth reshaping (or enamel recontouring) can also help improve the look of a smile by altering the shape, length, contour, or position of a tooth and its relationship to adjacent teeth. The technique can be used to reshape chipped, overlapped, or fractured teeth, as well as to minimize the appearance of crowding. In addition, tooth reshaping may be undertaken to correct developmental imperfections and abnormalities, such as pitting and grooves in the enamel. Your smile is something you can change. Our committed passion is to assist our patients to reveal a healthy, beautiful smile in a relaxed atmosphere. We discuss all the treatment options available, and our recommendations are always in the best interest of our patients. RELIGION

Bethany Congregational Church, 18 Spear St., Quincy Center, will have a Sunday worship, baptisms and Church at 10 a.m.

The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "Follow Me."

Child care is available for infants and toddlers.

Following the worship service there will be a fellowship time in the Allen Parlor. Light refreshments will be served.

All are welcome.

The church is handicapped accessible.

Union Congregational Church

Union Congregational Church, located at the corner of Beach St. and Rawson Rd., Wollaston, will hold its annual Block Party Saturday, Sept. 29 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The event will include a moonwalk, basketball and other games, food, a book table and baked goods table and more.

The Quincy Fire Department will visit and display one of its fire trucks.

Contemporary Christian singer Mark Bishop Evans will provide inspirational music throughout the day.

There will also be tours of Union Church and detailed information about the many special events the church offers to the community.

The public is welcome to attend.

Quincy Medical Center Bereavement Seminar Nov. 5

Quincy Medical Center will offer a bereavement seminar Monday, Nov. 5 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the medical center, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy.

The seminar, entitled "Coping with the Holidays," is for individuals who recently experienced the death of someone close to them.

Grief counselors say it is not uncommon for people who have experienced the death of a close relative or friend to feel a heightened sense of loss around the holidays. Talking about feelings of loss, particularly with people who are going through a grieving process, is part of the healing process.

The Rev. Esther Bowen, certified bereavement counselor and director of pastoral care at Quincy Medical Center, will facilitate the seminar.

Pre-registration is required. Call 617-376-5502 for more information and to register.

Quincy Point Congregational Church

"Shape Up" will be the theme of the sermon preached by the Rev. Ann Suzedell at the 10 a.m. service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Jack Sweeney will be the deacon of the day.

The church will hold a "Bite of Apple" brunch after the worship service. The deacons will sponsor a quarter a dip buffet.

All are welcome to bring an apple dish to share, enter an "apple pie contest," or contribute some apples to the apple crisp that will be served for dessert.

Oct. 7 is Worldwide Communion Sunday.

Quincy residents are invited to tune into the church's television broadcast every Wednesday night at 6 p.m. on cable Channel 8.

Catholic Women's Prayer Group

The Quincy Catholic Women's Group invites the public to join in prayer on the third Tuesday of every month beginning Oct. 16, from 7 to 8:15 p.m. at St. Joseph Rectory.

The group will use the prayer method of Lectio Divina where Sacred Scripture is read, reflected on and shared by those who gather.

For more information, contact Sister Pat Boyle at 617-479-5400 or Dorothy Ruggiero at 617-472-6321.

The church is located at 556 Washington St., Quincy Point.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Since the earliest times anger has been a concern to religious people. Primitive rituals frequently centered around the problems caused by the anger of people or of the gods. Anger separated Esau and Jacob. Moses, in anger, smashed the tablets containing the Law. Saul threw a spear at David. And so on.

In our own time we continue to be concerned with anger because, as in Biblical times, there is still a lot of anger felt and expressed. Children angry at parents; parents angry at children; anger in the home; anger in the privacy of our own thoughts. Politicians angry at one another.

The Biblical attitude toward anger is quite realistic. On one hand, anger is recognized as potentially destructive. Admonitions directed toward the control of anger are recorded; as examples, "A soft answer turns away wrath" (Proverbs 15:1) and "...do not let the sun go down on your anger" (Ephesians 4:26). On the other hand, anger is recognized as a normal human emotion: "Be angry but do not sin" (Ephesians 4:26), and even at times as a divine attribute: "...God's wrath has come upon them at last!" (1 Thessalonians 2:16). God is, however, also pictured repeatedly as being "slow to anger," and Christians are encouraged to avoid angering either God or other people: "Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger..." (Ephesians 6:4). Couldn't it be said that a better life is in store when these Biblical expressions are understood and practiced? ...

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good time for the usually outspoken Lamb to be a bit more discreet. You still can get your point across, but do it in a way less likely to turn off a potential supporter.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Good news: All that hard work you put in is beginning to pay off. But you need to watch that tendency to insist on doing things your way or no way. Be a bit more flexible.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might want to delay making a decision on the future of a long-standing relationship until you check out some heretofore hidden details that are just now beginning to emerge.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your reluctance to compromise on an important issue could backfire without more facts to support your position. Weigh your options carefully before making your next move.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) This is a good time for ambitious Leos or Leonas to shift from planning their next move to actually doing it. Your communication skills help persuade others to join you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Relationships — personal or professional — present new challenges. Be careful not to let a sudden surge of stubbornness influence how you choose to deal with them.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might need more facts before you can decide on a possible career change. But you should have no problem making a decision about an important personal matter.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You're respected by most people for your direct, no-nonsense approach to the issues. But be careful you don't replace honest skepticism with stingy sarcasm.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A newly emerging situation could require a good deal of attention and some difficult decision-making. However, close friends will help you see it through.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family matters need attention. Check things out carefully. There still might be unresolved tensions that could hinder your efforts to repair damaged relationships.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Of course you deserve to indulge yourself in something special. But for now, tuck that bit of mad money away. You'll need it to help with a looming cash crunch.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A temporary setback in your financial situation is eased by changing some of your plans. You'll be able to ride it out quite well until the tide turns back in your favor.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for understanding people's needs. You have a low tolerance for those who act without concern for others.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel! Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven! Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, here, you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. O, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee three times. Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say the prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. K.A.L."

THE FAMILY of National Guard member Ciara Durkin honored her courage by participating in the Quincy Medical Center Walk even after they had learned that she had been killed in Afghanistan. Funeral Saturday At St. John's Church

Quincy Soldier's Family Wants To Know How She Died In Afghanistan

By TOM HENSHAW

A funeral Mass for Cpl. Ciara M. Durkin, 30, of Houghs Neck, an Army National Guardswoman who died under mysterious circumstances in Afghanistan, will be celebrated Saturday, Oct. 6, at 10 a.m. in St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy.

Visiting hours will be Friday, Oct. 5, from 4 to 9 p.m., at the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., with burial at a later date in Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia.

Mayor William Phelan ordered flags in Quincy to fly at half staff in Cpl. Durkin's memory and the City Council Monday night offered a moment of silence for the Irish-born Quincy girl who died in the service of her adopted country.

CPL. CIARA DURKIN

Ward 1 City Councillor Leo Kelly called her death "a great loss to her family and to the Houghs Neck community. Ciara was born in Ireland and she leaves five older sisters, three brothers and her mom. It is a tremendous loss for the city of Quincy."

Cpl. Durkin leaves her mother, Angela (Cloherty), sisters Maura and Dieder Durkin and Fiona Canavan, all of Quincy; Aine Durkin of County Donegal; and Angela Conneely of County Galway, Ireland.

Also brothers, Pierce Durkin of Cambridge, Tom Durkin of Long Island, N.Y. and Owen Durkin of County Galway, Ireland. Their father, Tom, died in 1986 when Ciara was 9.

Meanwhile, details were sketchy in the death of Cpl. Durkin, an Army payroll specialist assigned to Bagram Air Base, Afghanistan, whose body was found, shot once in the head, near a church Sept. 28.

At first, the Massachusetts Army National Guard said she was killed in action but later the Defense Department changed that to say she died in a "non-combat related incident."

The National Guard then clarified its original announcement to say that "killed in action" simply meant she died while de-

Call It 'A Political Sound Bite'

Councillors Take Issue With Mayor On State Health Insurance Status

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Six City Councillors Monday sharply criticized Mayor William Phelan for using the city's employees' health insurance as a "political soundbite" and blaming the City Council, instead of himself, for not joining the state plan.

The councillors repeatedly lashed out at Phelan for what they called his failure to properly prepare and educate city employees regarding the state health insurance program so that they would be ready for the state's October deadline.

"We've had nothing to do with this," said Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond who said that Phelan publicly blamed the City Council for "not getting something done."

Raymond said that Phelan told viewers on a local television program to call city councillors and "tell them to change their vote."

Raymond said that he and his fellow councillors would be happy to vote to join the state health insurance plan once Phelan and the city employees agree to join and meet the state requirements.

City Council President Douglas Gutro said the City Council was "unjustifiably castigated by the mayor."

Councillors repeatedly said that they have not opposed the state plan which Phelan has said could save the city $6 to $8 million a year and employees another million dollars.

"If anybody has to be blamed, it's him," said Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis who described his own personal efforts at the State House where he worked to get an extension of the legislature's Oct. 1 deadline on the health insurance decision.

Davis was particularly stung by the mayor's criticism because he has worked hard for the health bill's passage and for a Beacon Hill extension of the deadline.

"You can only kick a dog so many times," said Davis who added that it was "ridiculous that he would think of blaming the council. They have one person to blame. That's him."

As for using the health insurance issue as a political tool, Davis said that voters "don't buy into finger-pointing."

Davis, along with others, (Cont'd On Page 14)

Two New Sweepers

Fall Street Sweeping To Begin Oct. 9

The city's fall street sweeping will begin Oct. 9 and continue through mid-December with two brand new sweepers in action.

The sweeping schedule, announced by Mayor William Phelan and DPW Commissioner Steve O'Donnell, appears below.

The new sweepers were purchased as part of Phelan's five-year Capital Improvement Plan (CIP). The CIP aims to invest in vehicles and building repairs in a systematic fashion to maximize the city's limited capital funds. The sweepers were purchased as part of the year two investment approved by the City Council last spring.

"The new sweepers will help our DPW work more efficiently and effectively," said Phelan. "While other communities are cutting services, we are able to achieve these goals because we have sound financial planning practices in place. The new sweepers will help keep our city looking clean and beautiful."

The city purchased two new Elgin pelican sweepers. The three-wheel sweepers have one engine instead of

In Post Island Controversy

Residents Want Cease-Fire, Dog Law Enforcement

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Some 60 residents attending last week's "Neighborhood First" meeting in Adams Shore appeared equally divided between those who want a cease-fire and peace in their neighborhood and those who want stronger enforcement of dog regulations in Adams Shore and throughout the city.

Mayor William Phelan who hosted the meeting at Adams Shore Library opened by saying, "Nobody wants to have a dog running loose or defecating on the beach." However, Phelan stopped short of promising tougher enforcement of leash and pick-up laws.

Later in the meeting, Phelan reprimanded Shellfish Warden Andrew Ayers after he described seeing eight dogs running loose on the nearby mudflats.

Ayers said he was in the area with two Marine biologists to check on the newly seeded clamflats. "There were eight dogs running wild. Their owners were standing by the walls...."

Ayers' companions asked whether there was a leash law in Quincy. As soon as Ayers described the incident, Phelan chided him for not using his cell phone to call for enforcement.

All but two or three speakers last week supported enforcement of laws on dog control, but decried the publicity methods that, they said, have embarrassed a wonderful neighborhood.

"The problem is how you went about it," said one resident directing her comments to Diane McGunigle.

McGunigle and her husband, Police Officer Joseph McGunigle, have spearheaded the campaign to improve enforcement of dog regulations in the Post Island Road area where they said they finally found their "dream house."

More than two dozen participants, including Jack and Judy Barry, wore t-shirts supplied by Diane McGunigle. They were designed with an unleashed dog defecating and no owner in sight. Several persons were from other areas of Quincy.

Diane McGunigle said they experienced dangerous episodes with dogs, as did other residents. She said that, on arrival, they found the neighborhood littered with dog droppings and tried futilely to contact the proper authorities.

McGunigle said that one video taken by her husband shows an elderly woman screaming for help as a large unleashed dog approach the woman and her tiny lapdog.

Several speakers last week complained that the Post Island Road neighborhood and Quincy has been unfairly depicted in news articles because of the McGunigle campaign.

At last week's meeting, Phelan introduced Lt. Brian Tobin who said there had been successful efforts in other neighborhoods to clean up and harness the dog situation. Tobin described success when neighbors and the police worked together in the Curlew Road neighborhood. He suggested that might work in the Post Island Road neighborhood.

Tobin said that, "With cool heads, it does work."

After the meeting, McGunigle said she got no support when she contacted Tobin, the mayor, the city's Dog Officers and other officials over a period of six to eight months.

The few speakers at the mayor's meetings who said they don't want enforcement described running their dogs free on the beaches for decades as a way of life.

Dan McGuire said that the dogs described were loose only on a private beach. He also said he'd been cited with a $100 ticket when his girlfriend's dog was in New Jersey.

After the meeting, Diane McGunigle said that state law does not allow owners to leave dog droppings on a public or private beach.

"We've never received one phone call to put it on the agenda," said Mike Cotter of the local community group. He added, "We totally support that issue, but not the tactics."

Tammy Quinlan who works at the North Quincy Post Office said there is a bigger issue and described problems on Palmer Street, day and night.

Police Chief Robert Crowley recently suspended Officer McGunigle for five days. McGunigle has said that Crowley ordered him to stop writing dog citations.

The suspension was appealed by the patrolman's union and is now on a third level of review.

Asked about the suspension, Phelan told the community meeting last week that the suspension was not ordered because of McGunigle's citations.

Crowley has said the suspension was ordered because of McGunigle's "abuse of authority."

After the discussion, Phelan invited the participants to enjoy a barbecue on the library patio.

For the McGunigles, the meeting appeared to have created even more problems as a flier was posted on Houghs Neck telephone poles early this week, calling McGunigle and his wife "nasty neighbors."

Council Plans November Decision On Wind Power Regulations

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Wind power is here to stay and Quincy best be prepared, speakers told City Councillors Monday at a public Hearing on a proposed by-law on wind facilities.

"We need wind power in Quincy," former City Councillor Larry Chretien said, but suggested that the proposed bylaw needs considerable tweaking to address height, setbacks, noise and visual impacts.

"There's growing enthusiasm for wind power in Massachusetts," said Chretien, adding, "Wind power in Quincy would be a good thing."

"You must have a process so that it is regulated and controlled," Chretien said, adding, "I don't think it would take more than a week or two (to adjust the proposed bylaw)."

Chretien, executive director of Mass Energy, a non-profit organization, volunteered to help draft a more comprehensive by-law for the city as did Atty. Benjamin N. Spruill, a project developer at Patriot Renewables, LLC.

Patriot Renewables is owned by Jay Cashman who applied for a permit for a wind turbine facility in Quincy. Cashman hopes to erect one at Fore River Shipyard.

"We'll want to work with the City of Quincy," said Spruill who noted that his firm builds private wind facilities as well as state facilities, including one at Massachusetts Maritime Academy at Buzzards Bay, Cape Cod.

Spruill also noted that the new Quincy High School will have a windmill as a green environmental project.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi sought the public hearing after learning of Cashman's application, the first in the city. Raymondi said he wanted to put a rough draft out for review.

Chretien and Spruill were the only speakers at the public hearing.

"They thought that they could build this as a matter of right," Raymondi said, adding, "Our zoning ordinances are silent in this particular area. It is my intention to get something done before the end of the year."

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly told the council that wind facilities are also being studied for his area.

"For over a year, P. J. Foley has been gathering material, taking wind counts and speeds. Something has been going on in the city for over a year," Kelly said.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin volunteered to work with Raymondi, Spruill and Chretien on a comprehensive bylaw that is expected to be reviewed on Oct. 15 and passed by late November.

Written comments will be accepted until October 15. Persons interested in discussing the wind facility issue may call Raymondi, Coughlin, Spruill or Chretien.

John Quincy Adams Returning To Russia 200 Years Later

By TOM HENSHAW

John Quincy Adams is returning to St. Petersburg this month, the land of the czar where he served as the first recognized American minister to Russia nearly 200 years ago.

He'll go back in the person of Jim Cooke, the Quincy actor-writer-historian, who travels the nation and now the world impersonating prominent persons from the past.

The occasion is the 200th anniversary of the establishment in 1809 of diplomatic relations between the 20-some-year-old United States and centuries-old Czarist Russia.

Cooke will leave Saturday, Oct. 13, for what is now the Federal Republic of Russia where he'll spend 10 days reflecting on his (Adams') diplomatic years with Czar Alexander I.

"This bicentennial is taken much more seriously in Russia than it is in the United States," said Cooke, as JOHN QUINCY ADAMS who is making the trip at the behest and expense of the State Department.

JIM COOKE

He'll be in early 19th century costume as the sixth president of the United States seven or eight times in four cities, Yekaterinburg, Chelyabinsk, Moscow and St. Petersburg.

While some of Cooke's performances will be translated into Russian for his audiences, many of them, chiefly students, speak pretty good English.

Presentations in Moscow are scheduled at the Lomonosov School (a high school), the Russian State University and the Slavic-Anglo-American School "Marina" (another high school).

There will be a 20-25 minute program during which he will explain John Quincy's unprecedented relationship with the czar in his years (1809-1814) as minister.

"He had been there before in 1782 at the age of 13 as a translator for Francis Dana, the American minister who was not recognized by the Russians," said Cooke. "He spoke French and French was the language of the Russian court."

"Catherine the Great was the czarina and she had no reason to recognize the United States. Democracy was a challenge to her throne

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Oct. 6, 1683, encouraged by William Penn's offer of 5,000 acres in the Pennsylvania colony and the freedom to practice their religion, the first Mennonites arrive in America. By the American Revolution, there were 100,000 Germans in Penn's former colony.

• On Oct. 3, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln announces that the nation will celebrate an official Thanksgiving holiday on the fourth Thursday in November. It remained that way until 1939 when President Roosevelt, hoping to boost the economy by providing shoppers a few extra shopping days before Christmas, temporarily moved Thanksgiving to November's third Thursday.

• On Oct. 1, 1890, an act of Congress creates Yosemite National Park. More than 3 million people visit Yosemite annually to view such stunning landmarks as the 2,425-foot-high Yosemite Falls, one of the highest waterfalls in the world.

• On Oct. 5, 1902, Ray Kroc, founder of McDonald's, is born. When Kroc died in 1984 there were more than 7,500 McDonald's golden arches around the world.

• On Oct. 4, 1927, sculpting begins on the face of Mount Rushmore in South Dakota. The first face chiseled was George Washington's, with Jefferson's to the right. But, within two years, Jefferson's face cracked, and it was blasted off the mountain. Sculptor Gutzon Borglum then started over with Jefferson situated to the left of Washington.

• On Oct. 2, 1951, Gordon Sumner (better known as the musician Sting) is born in Newcastle, England. He picked up his nickname because of the black-and-yellow-striped shirt he frequently wore.

• On Oct. 7, 1960, television program "Route 66" airs its first episode, relating the roadside adventures of Buz and Tod as they cruised around the country in Tod's Corvette. Americans tuned in to the popular program for four years, continuing their love affair with the nation's most celebrated federal highway.

Election Results – 8 Days Later

City Clerk Joseph Shea would like to have the Nov. 6 city election results all wrapped up nice and early.

Which he has done the past few years.

If he has his way, you'll know by 9:30 p.m.-maybe sooner-if Mayor William Phelan has a fourth term or the city has a new mayor named Tom Koch.

That's only an hour and a half or so after the city's 30 polling places closed.

Quincy's present opt-scan voting system and computers make voting and counting pretty much a breeze.

A big improvement over the old days of counting paper ballots by hand when there always seemed to be a precinct or two straggling in the following morning.

And a far, far cry from Quincy's Plan E days when it could take all week to find out who was elected.

Quincy operated under Plan E from 1950 to 1957 with a city manager elected by the city council as chief executive. The mayor was actually a city councillor elected by his colleagues. He presided over council meetings and was the city greeter and ceremonial head.

It was a stormy political marriage with Plan E advocates and Plan A supporters feuding for seven years.

Plan E came in on a referendum and went out the same way.

Instead of today's nine councillors (six wards, three at-large) there were only seven, all elected at-large. And six school committee members.

The method of voting was by proportional representation known as PR and was pretty complicated.

In the first Plan E election in November 1949 there were get-this-59 candidates for the seven council seats and 15 for the six on the school committee.

Under the PR method, voters made their selections by number. They could, if they wanted vote for all 59 council candidates and all 15 school committee candidates by numbering their preferences 1 to 59 and 1 to 15.

If their first choice candidates didn't make it, they could keep their second choice in the running.

In that first election, a quota to win was set at 3,612 first choice votes.

BURGIN

The vote counting started the following morning.

Former Mayor Thomas Burgin was the only one elected on the first count. He had 5,934 votes-2,322 more first choice than needed to meet the winning quota.

Those 2,322 votes then went into a lottery and allotted to candidates who were the voters' second choice.

Amelio Della Chiesa and Edna Austin, first woman councillor, were declared the winners on the 46th count and Alfred Helfrich on the 47th.

Three who didn't make the quota were declared winners as having the next highest vote: Carl Anderson (3,531), Frank Orcutt (3,473) and David Crowley (3,167).

DELLA

AUSTIN

All of that took six days after the election. But that wasn't the end.

The school committee counting was then begun and took two more days to complete. Elected in the order of their votes were:

Dominic Chiminello, William Anderson, Dennis Ryan, A. Wendell Clark, Annie B. Forsyth and Ethel Wiley.

When Quincy returned to Plan A in 1957, Della Chiesa was elected mayor, defeating Laurence Curtin who played a major role in bringing Plan A back.

Those results were known that election night.

There must have been some smiles in the Election Department among those who remembered that Plan E eight-day count.

CATALANO

He has joined Cape Cod Broadcasting Company's WQRC (99.9 FM) and WOCN (104.7 FM) anchoring news and covering local meetings and other community events.

Something he did so well at WJDA before the station was sold and went off the air on April 30, 2006.

Joe was public relations director for the Jack Conway Real Estate Company for the past year and a half, a job he enjoyed, but broadcasting is his first love. Joe, who was program director and morning host at WJDA's end, muses:

"I also served as news director, conducted hundreds of Party Line interviews, produced commercials, covered elections, shoveled snow from the satellite dish on the roof and took out the trash. At a small station you get to do it all."

Sounds a little bit like a weekly community newspaper.

All the best, Joe.

NOW THAT Jenna Bush is engaged many are wondering: will she be married in the White House?

An item in a recent issue of Parade Magazine said nine children of presidents took their vows in the White House.

Including, it indicated, sixth President John Quincy Adams, son of second President John Adams. The wedding year, it said, was 1828.

"Not so," says Arthur Ducharme, historian at United First Parish Church where the two presidents and their wives, Abigail and Louisa Catherine are entombed.

"John Quincy Adams and Louisa Catherine were married July 26, 1797 at All Hallows Church next to the Tower of London in England."

In case you're interested, Parade lists eight daughters of Presidents as being White House brides:

Maria Monroe (1820), Elizabeth Tyler (1842), Nellie Grant (1874), Alice Roosevelt (1906), Jessie and Eleanor Wilson (1913 and 1914), Lynda Bird Johnson (1967) and Tricia Nixon (1971).

But John Quincy was definitely not a White House groom.

Norfolk County.

At each clinic, a panel of attorneys experienced in all areas of the law will be available for one-on-one consultation on legal issues. All consultations are strictly confidential.

Legal clinics will be held on Tuesdays from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the court on the following dates:

Oct. 23; Dec. 11; April 29; June 3; June 24; July 8; July 22 and Aug. 26.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 postcard view of the Adams Elementary School on Abigail Avenue in South Quincy. This was the second Quincy school named Adams; it was built in 1913 to replace the first Adams School on Phipps Street. This school was of the same design as the Wollaston School on Beale Street that was built the year before. Sold in the 1980's to private developers, this building is now home to the Academy Park Condominiums. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

The Other Side Of The Post Island Dog Issue

Readers of The Sun front page report on Sept. 27, "Post Island Dog Issue Being Brought To Mayor's Meeting Tonight" are likely to come away with an incomplete picture of the dispute and mistaken conclusions about our neighborhood.

Herewith, an abbreviation, due to space consideration of the rest of the story. Officer McGunigle and wife, Dianne, received a hearty welcome to Post Island at our annual association Christmas party in our home in December 2006. On Sept. 13 of this year, fully 30 neighbors gathered in that same home sharing a litany of confrontations and concerns related to the McGunigles. What happened in that short interim?

There was an initial unfortunate incident with a neighbor's dog, which eventually moved from a private resolution to an episode on "The People's Court," the case being found against the McGunigles. Please watch the segment; the embarrassing reprimand given by the judge especially to the plaintiffs, perhaps fueled the events to come.

Clearly the irresponsibility of some dog owners has been and continues to be an issue in our neighborhood and throughout the city. Residents are of course obligated to supervise and clean up after their dogs. However, for the record, dog feces are not "everywhere" as the McGunigles contend, on the beach or properties of Post Island where families swim, boat and recreate, and the neighborhood was quite safe and clean long before the McGunigles arrived less than a year ago. The Post Island Beach Association, in existence for 110 years, continually encourages dog owners/walkers to be responsible and respectful of the rights of all.

At issue here is the extremely aggressive and intimidating campaign Officer McGunigle pursued of writing citations to errant dog owners, within the neighborhood, which is outside his assigned patrol area. This is the Animal Control Officer's duty citywide; related resources and effectiveness are another issue.

When ordered to cease by his superiors, Officer McGunigle persisted in writing citations and was suspended as a result. Along the way, Officer McGunigle has drawn the scrutiny of the State Police and Social Services on innocent residents with whom he has had disagreements, launched a series of frivolous, annoying property and legal disputes, even calling for members of the Association (really a community "sunshine" club) to be expelled on a technicality! Numerous residents have expressed their outrage, and well-founded anxiety about this public servant to the Police Chief and Mayor.

The McGunigles' response to this? A publicity campaign declaring that he is a blameless persecuted Officer, "just doing his job." Certainly "his job" (or his wife's job) is not walking our streets and beaches in and out of uniform to affront and intimidate everyone from children to seniors whom do not fit his agenda with his methods.

The centennial memorial stone on the Post Island waterfront is inscribed, "In gratitude to all those who have made our neighborhood this beautiful and friendly home." According to the McGunigles, they have "just begun to fight." We suggest that Officer McGunigle might be retrained as a more friendly "peace officer" rather than the severe "law enforcer" and "fighter" he has been, and that the couple might realize their "dream home" if they stopped creating nightmares for their neighbors.

Praises Mayor Phelan's Open Space Record

Open space and overdevelopment are critical issues here in Quincy, and I have worked hard in our city to protect and improve our environment.

I am proud to serve on Mayor Phelan's Open Space Committee, Planning Board, Community Preservation Committee, Wind Energy Research Committee, the Beaches Commission and the newly formed Recycling and Energy Committee.

The Open Space Committee recommended, and Mayor Phelan implemented, the largest open space preservation effort in Quincy's history. He purchased, with hotel/motel money and a state grant, the long contested Lot 23 property at Marina Bay, and the Bayswater Boatyard in Houghs Neck. These parcels were ready for development, which would have had a negative impact on our environment and our quality of life.

Recently, the Community Preservation Committee recommended the protection of the Cobblestone property, the Joyce property and the Hazeltine property. Cobblestone is now protected, and Hazeltine would already be developed were it not for Mayor Phelan. He personally discovered a deed restriction that prevented 150 condos from being built on Quincy's largest remaining piece of unprotected open space. He also discovered a secret easement that would have kicked open the door to even more development in the area.

Developers with good plans are welcome in Quincy. Developers with bad plans want Mayor Phelan out of office.

The protection of open space is directly tied to the control of development in our city. As a Planning Board member, I'm thrilled with Mayor Phelan's efforts to focus development in our downtown and at Crown Colony, areas that need development and can sustain it. This takes the heat off our neighborhoods while providing much needed business tax growth, lowering residential property taxes.

Considering the fiscal state our City was in when Bill Phelan took office, it is amazing that not one employee has received a pink slip, not one firehouse has closed and we are finally building a new high school. And still Mayor Phelan has done more to protect open space, and encourage smart growth policies than any other Mayor in Quincy's history!

Quincy's Yesterdays

Della Chiesa, Djerf Top Winners In Preliminary Election

By FRANK McCAULEY

All office holders seeking reelection were nominated in Quincy's Plan E preliminary election which found Councillor Amelio Della Chiesa topping the ticket for the third consecutive time.

The election will result in at least one recount.

The election, despite the inclement weather, brought 14,713 voters to the polls or 32 percent of the registered vote.

Atty. Louis A. George, former city councillor who was edged out by one vote by Charles L. Shea for the 14th and last place on the list of successful candidates, said he would ask for a recount.

DJERF VOTE A SURPRISE

The tremendous vote given to first time candidate Dr. Charles Djerf, who topped the ticket with 8,334 votes, was the surprise of the contest for school committee. Five school committee incumbents were nominated, finishing in the following order: A. Wendell Clark, Dr. Joseph E. McDermott, Ethel B. Wiley, Paul K. Duffy, and Carter Lee.

Church Camp For High School Youth To Celebrate 50th Year

The South Shore Youth Conferences will celebrate 50 years of camping for junior and senior high schoolers with a dinner Saturday, Nov. 3, from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight at the Lantana, 43 Scanlon Drive, Randolph.

Tickets are $50 per person and include dinner, entertainment and DJ and a "camp momento." All former campers and counselors who graduated by 2006 are urged to attend.

Diners will be met and greeted from 7 to 8 p.m., dinner will be served from 8 to 9 p.m., a camp show will be staged from 9 to 10 p.m. and there will be dancing from 10 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Space is limited to 700 diners so response should be made before Oct. 15.

The Conferences began in 1958 as an outgrowth of the Pilgrim Fellowship Camps, which were unable to handle the number of campers from the South Shore.

The founding churches were Quincy Point Congregational, Wollaston Congregational, First Church of Squantum and East Congregational Church of Milton. The first camp, in Moultonborough, N.H., drew 116 youngsters.

Over the past 50 years, no less than 15 South Shore churches have been involved in the program.

The current members are Old South Union, First Church of Braintree, First Church of Weymouth, Union Congregation Church of Weymouth and Braintree and Bethany Church of Quincy.

For the past seven years, the camp has been located at the Ossipee Lake Conference Center in New Hampshire, also known as Camp Cody, which can easily accommodate the current 400 campers, a new high.

Koch Calls For Full-Time Rescue Truck

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch said that he will work to ensure that the Quincy Fire Department's critical "Rescue One" truck is in service at all times.

As part of his "Leadership Now" plan, Koch said it is "unacceptable" for a city of Quincy's size not to have a fully equipped rescue vehicle available at all times. Koch said, for the last several years, Rescue One has been staffed only sporadically, according to officials.

"We've been talking about Rescue One since January-and it is a simple, common-sense step forward for our fire department," Koch said. "We have one of the best fire department's in the state, and we owe it to our taxpayers paying higher tax bills every year to provide the best public safety possible."

When manpower is available, Rescue One responds to virtually every emergency in the city, including car accidents, fires, and other emergencies. Koch said, thanks to state Rep. Ronald Mariano, the department recently took ownership of a new rescue truck donated by the MWRA. "It is time to put its capabilities to full use," said Koch.

In addition to providing rescue services, Koch said Rescue One plays a critical support role to engine and ladder companies responding to fires.

Koch said placing new emphasis on training in the department will be a key counterpart to restoring Rescue One to full service. The department has been without a functional training office for some time, Koch said. Making sure that firefighters are adequately trained for different kinds of scenarios is vital, he said.

Whether it's one of the many kinds of incidents in which a citizen needs to be rescued or a life-threatening situation faced by a fellow firefighter, there are special kinds of training needed for the firefighters who staff Rescue One, Koch said.

"It is not just about public safety, but about the safety of our firefighters who can face any number of dangerous scenarios," Koch said. "City Hall has an obligation to do everything in its power to allow the fire department to do its job, and that's what we plan to do."

When in service, Rescue One keeps equipment and specially trained firefighters to respond to the wide range of unique scenarios that Quincy can face. Currently, the equipment is spread among different engine companies in the city.

Koch's announcement is the fourth part of his "Leadership Now," program, which can be found on www.kochforquincy.com, or by calling 617-773-5624. The first three parts addressed traffic and development, communicating with the public, and the police department.

Abby Gone Five Weeks

Neighbors Help Search For Missing Puppy

Neighbors in the Hudson Street, Merrymount, area have pulled together to help find Abby, a nine pound ball of white fur with tan ears.

Abby, part poodle and part Shih Tzu, has been missing for five weeks.

Abby's neighbors have been helping the puppy's owner, Cindy Farnsworth of Hudson Street, by giving out fliers, posting notices on telephone poles, and on Craig's List but the search continues.

Farnsworth, a registered nurse at Cambridge Hospital, said all her friends and neighbors, especially the Jordans and Peter Williams, have pitched in and worked so hard.

"We walked Mount Wollaston Cemetery," Farnsworth said of one of the many futile searches that have taken her around the city chasing down leads.

To date, there's been no trace of the now 11-month old pup who disappeared from her backyard on Aug. 31 when she was playing with Roman, her natural brother.

Farnsworth has offered a reward with no questions asked just for the return of the tiny pup.

"She's the friendliest little thing," said Farnsworth, who believes, "Somebody obviously came by and took her. I implore anyone who has seen her to get in touch."

MISSING PUP ABBY is shown with her constant companion and brother Roman. The white mixed poodle-Shih Tzu has been missing since Aug. 31. A reward is offered. No questions asked.

Farnsworth now believes that Abby squeezed out a small hole in her fence and went "bopping down the street" with her leash dragging behind. Abby's collar is black and white and her leash is red.

Abby may have a little limp as she underwent hip surgery several months ago, according to Farnsworth.

"I have a large backyard with a fence," Farnsworth said, describing the area where her two puppies played. "Behind the fence is Black's Creek but they never go in the creek or play in the bushes."

When Abby didn't come in from the backyard with her brother, Roman, that Friday, Farnsworth feared the worst. "I was terribly afraid she'd been caught in the underbrush."

Firefighters and Bill Tanguay of the Animal Rescue League (ARL) searched the underbrush and Black's Creek for the dog to no avail.

"He actually got in the creek and walked the full length of the creek," Farnsworth said, describing Tanguay who spent over an hour walking the muddy waters in boots.

Tanguay told Farnsworth, "She's not there."

While Farnsworth misses her beloved pup, the little dog's brother, Roman, misses her even more.

"She's Roman's natural sister," said Farnsworth who described the two pups as inseparable. For days, Roman who is two years old and 17 pounds went running around the house sniffing under furniture and all over the backyard yard looking for Abby.

"He slept 20 hours of the day and did not eat for three days," said Farnsworth of Roman who has black and white coloring in contrast to his sister. Farnsworth has received some calls in response to her advertisements and posters, particularly from her Quincy Sun ad, and she said she's followed every lead with no success.

Once again, she implores anyone with any information to call her at 617-471-6387.

City Will Pave 100th Street This Fall

The city will pave its 100th street this fall under the Pavement Management Plan begun in 2004.

The project includes main roads and neighborhood streets, Mayor William Phelan and Department of Public Works Commissioner Steve O'Donnell note.

The plan was created and adopted as a way to maximize the city's limited paving dollars. The plan analyzed every street in Quincy and prioritized based on condition, need, and usage. The plan as served as the blueprint for the city's investment in road repairs since 2004.

O'Donnell said the city saved tens of millions of dollars by adopting the preventive maintenance principles of the plan. By acting soon, the city prevented millions and millions of full-depth reconstruction costs that would have been necessary absent the preventive maintenance procedures completed in the last three years.

"One hundred streets in just over three years is an aggressive schedule, but we've had the support of the mayor and the council all the way through," said O'Donnell.

"We are proud of the work we have done to bring our roads up to respectability," said Phelan. "But we are committed to finishing the plan. We are now a year ahead of schedule and we plan on continuing to maximize our paving dollars and repairing as many streets as possible."

FAMILY AND FRIENDS of Susan Coyne of Quincy, a cancer survivor, walked along Wollaston Beach to honor their mother and friend.

QUINCY CREDIT UNION went all out to support this year's Walk with numerous fundraising events leading up to the event. Their team included some canine walkers.

QMC Cancer Walk Raises Record $185,000-Plus

More than 1,200 walkers raised at least a record breaking $185,000 at the 10th Quincy Medical Center Cancer Walk Sunday.

"We are still counting donations and are overwhelmed by the generosity of our community," said Gary W. Gibbons, MD, CEO and President of Quincy Medical Center. "These funds help ensure that our community can get cancer treatment right here in Quincy. It means we can work together to raise awareness about early detection and save lives."

Walkers covered the spectrum as children and their parents, church groups, local businesses, friends and neighbors, and many family dogs strolled the four-mile route down from Pageant Field via Wollaston Beach and back again for a family fun day complete with face painting, entertainment and food.

Funds raised support the Marie A. Curry Fund, which provides free screenings and education to the community, in addition to supporting cancer programs at QMC. More than $1.5 million has been raised to support the fund.

A sad story came to light at the walk. The Durkin Family whose team was called "Positive Thinkers" had just learned their sister, Ciara Durkin, was killed in Afghanistan.

"Everybody there was so moved and inspired that this family found the strength to come and participate in the walk," said Dr. Gibbons. "They had raised over $5,000 already and the Medical Center and Curry family agreed that we would use these funds to set up a special fund in honor of Ciara to raise cancer awareness."

Food was donated by Out back Steakhouse and area Dunkin' Donuts, entertainment was by DJ Suzie Cue and the Freemasons conducted the MYCHIP (Child Identification) program. Many area businesses were major sponsors of the event.

To make a donation for this year's Cancer Walk send a check to QMC Development Office, 114 Whitwell Street, Quincy or call Amy Klotz, Development Officer at 617-376-5493.

FOUR MEMBERS of Cub Scout Pack 42 provided a color guard to lead off the walkers at the 10th Quincy Medical Center Cancer Walk.

MORE THAN 300 staff members and volunteers from Quincy Medical Center made up the "QMC Team," not all of whom could fit in the photo.

Logue Says Concourse Will Financially Hurt Homeowners

The Quincy Center Concourse project will hurt Quincy homeowners by taking more than $16 million in commercial business properties off the tax rolls, Councilor-at-Large candidate Jennifer McCauley Logue says.

Logue said she has researched the assessed property values of those Quincy Center businesses slated to be demolished, and the concourse will have a direct impact on the city's homeowners, who likely will be forced to make up the tax revenue lost when dozens of downtown businesses are demolished or displaced to make way for the concourse.

"One of the biggest issues facing Quincy residents is rising home property taxes - and the best way to keep those increases in check is to expand our commercial tax base," Logue said. "But instead our city leaders are planning to demolish dozens of businesses that together are assessed for more than $16 million. That means for the foreseeable future, Quincy is going to be losing commercial tax revenue at a time when we need it most."

Without that commercial tax revenue, Logue said, the city will be forced to try to make up the lost revenue from other sources - and that likely will mean either an increase in home property taxes or cuts in city services.

And that doesn't even take into account the $30 million the city is borrowing for the concourse, she added.

"Financially, this project simply doesn't make sense," Logue said. "Our elected officials are borrowing $30 million at the same time they're taking $16 million in businesses off the commercial tax rolls. Common sense indicates that the city is going to be losing money on this project for years to come."

"Quincy homeowners need property tax relief now - not a decade from now."

If elected, Logue said she would advocate for a two-pronged economic revitalization strategy: In addition to recommending that the city participate in the National Trust for Historic Preservation's Main Streets revitalization program, she would also work to develop a strategic, proactive marketing plan to attract new businesses to Quincy Center.

For too long, Logue said, Quincy's economic development activities have lacked focus, resulting in a glut of restaurants and nail salons and a dearth of clothing and specialty shops.

"Quincy needs to be more strategic," Logue said. "Drawing on my marketing and public relations skills, I'd work with city and community leaders to develop a proactive strategy for expanding our commercial tax base. Instead of giving out loans to any type of business that wants one, we need to set priorities, determine which type of businesses to come to Quincy."

The former executive director of Discover Quincy, Logue's community service includes serving on the Mayor's Leadership Council on Homelessness and on the Quincy High School Siting Commission charged with selecting the site for the new Quincy High School. She is a past president of the Quincy Lions Club, and served as a Registrar of Voters from 2003-2006.

Pastor James Kimmell Retiring After 38 Years

Pastor James L. Kimmell, PJ to his parishioners, is retiring after 38 years of service to Faith Lutheran Church, 201 Granite St., and its predecessor.

His last sermon will be preached Sunday, Nov. 4.

A special appreciation dinner, scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 13, at 6 p.m. in the Quincy Masonic Temple, has already been sold out.

Kimmell and his wife, Gail, a teacher now retired from the Quincy school system, arrived in Quincy in 1969, fresh from a Lutheran seminary in Pennsylvania.

He was named to administer to the Trinity Lutheran Church on Roberts Street and remained when it merged with Salem Lutheran to form Faith Lutheran.

Over the years, he served on the Quincy Housing Authority, the Fire Department as Protestant chaplain and was a member of the South West Community Council.

He was well known for his frequent visits to patients in local hospitals and served as pulpit supply giving sermons in sign language to hearing-impaired.

noted that the council had quickly passed Phelan's request for a Home Rule Petition extending the Oct. 1 deadline by 60 days.

On Sept. 24, the councillors voted unanimously to require the mayor to organize the Public Employees Committee (PEC) and get a written agreement between the city's employees and the mayor.

According to Davis, the council engaged in meaningful discussion while the mayor dropped the ball. "He didn't send out a letter when he should have sent out a letter."

Councillors noted that the health insurance issue had been under consideration since last spring but Phelan never educated the city's employees.

Opening up the G.I. C. to cities and towns was part of Governor Deval Patrick's election platform.

Other councillors accused the mayor of using the City Council as a scapegoat for his failings on the health insurance issue.

Members repeatedly noted that the Council voted within minutes on Sept. 24 to approve Phelan's Home Rule Petition for a 60-day extension of the health insurance deadline.

Councillors noted that Phelan still has not organized the required employees' committee nor had he gained the required support from any employee group by Monday, the state deadline for a decision.

Councillor Joseph Finn said the council had insisted on the process and that it was "unconscionable" to use health insurance as an "easy political soundbite."

On Monday and at previous meetings, Finn asked councillors to do considerable research before approving the state health insurance program.

"It's been a decade since the city went out to bid," Finn said, adding that there could be new, better and, possibly, less expensive insurance lines in the future.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said that the health insurance remains "a complex issue.... Beyond the fingerprinting and the politics, this issue deserves more respect than the political sound-bites."

"We didn't vote no," said Councillor John Keenan who added that any council vote "...would have had no practical effect. Communication will now improve."

Keenan suggested that everybody get "away from the finger-pointing."

Councillor Michael McFarland, Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee and Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly were present but did not discuss the issue.

played in a war zone. A lid was clamped on further information.

Was she picked off by an Afghan sniper while walking in the safety of an otherwise secure air base? Did she die by friendly fire, deliberately or accidentally? The Durkin family of Houghs Neck would like to know.

And so would the government of Ireland, where most of the Durkin family was born, which has asked to be "kept up to date" on the investigation. Military officials say could be as long as eight weeks.

Rep. Bill Delahunt also has asked the Defense Department to "fully explain" the circumstances of Cpl. Durkin's death, which occurred Friday about 6:30 p.m. Afghan time or Saturday at 4 a.m. Quincy time.

Cpl. Durkin was born in County Galway and moved with most of her family to the United States as a little girl, settling in Dorchester and then Quincy. She attended Fontbonne Academy in Milton.

She joined the Massachusetts Army National Guard in 2005 and had been in Afghanistan since February when she was killed, the second Quincy soldier to die in the Afghan-Iraqi conflicts.

The first was National Guard Sgt. Todd Charles Caldwell, who was killed Sept. 12, 2003, in Iraq.

two and require less maintenance than the existing two-engine sweepers. The Pelicans also cost $150,000 less than the two-engine, four-wheel sweepers, Phelan said. "The Pelicans are a great machine for city use," said O'Donnell. "They are durable and the added sweepers will take the pressure of the entire fleet. We will now have more sweepers out on the road keeping our city looking clean."

Signs will be posted mid-day the day prior to sweeping.

To ensure that all streets are properly cleaned, residents should make every effort to remove all motor vehicles from the street on the day it will be swept. This schedule is in effect as noted below, weather permitting.

Sen. Michael Morrissey has filed a bill in the State Senate that would exempt disabled veterans and the parents and spouses of those who died in action from paying state taxes on certain annuities.

"This legislation will benefit Gold Star parents and spouses, as well as 100 per cent disabled veterans, many of whom live on fixed incomes and can't afford to have these annuities taxed," he said.

"This bill is an attempt to exclude the small state annuity granted to Gold Star parents, spouses and certain veterans. Currently, these annuities do not exceed $2,000."

The bill also requires housing authorities exclude such annuity payments when calculating net income for residents

"It seems unfair to me that local housing authorities are using these annuities for calculating rent," said Morrissey. Essentially, they are taking money from the pockets of the citizens that need it the most."

Keenan Cites Need To Fund City Stabilization Account

Councilor-at-Large John Keenan has called upon Mayor William Phelan to further fund the city's stabilization account or "face a dramatic increase" in property taxes.

Keenan, who serves as chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee, pointed out that when the financing package for the new Quincy High School and capital improvement plan was presented to the City Council, it was noted that the stabilization fund had to be increased.

"At the time the high school bond was approved," said Keenan. "I expressed my concern that the city must have sufficient cash reserves in order to meet the city's overall future bond obligations, including those associated with the new high school and the Capital Improvement Program."

Keenan was instrumental in having $4.5 million transferred to the city's stabilization account in February, 2007.

"I'm calling upon the mayor again to transfer the city's 'free cash,' once certified by the Department of Revenue, to the stabilization account," he said.

Keenan said that the city's bond advisor, First Southwest, recommended that the stabilization account be funded with approximately $20 million to offset the increases in the budget necessary to pay the increased borrowing costs associated with the high school.

"Presently, the city has approximately $12.3 million in the stabilization account. It's not enough," said Keenan.

"If we do not make a major effort to increase that fund over the next two years, the taxpayers will see a dramatic increase in their property taxes in Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011.

"We can avoid this situation if we act wisely now, and I urge the mayor to introduce the transfer request to the City Council as soon as possible."

and recognizing the US would get England down on her.

"Czar Alexander was different. He was interested in trade with the United States. New England ships carried our products to Russia and brought back the iron and hemp we needed for our ships.

"The czar himself received Adams as minister which was not the way things usually were done. Usually it was done through a chancellor. Adams and the czar were very friendly."

Adams was named to the post of minister to Russia by the fourth president, James Madison, who succeeded Thomas Jefferson, to whom the Adams family was temporarily anathema.

John Quincy had just finished a term as senator and Madison had just been sworn in as president when he asked Adams to take the post of minister to Russia. Adams quickly accepted.

"The nomination was sent to the Senate in March, 1809," said Cooke, "but the Senate said 'No.' Having a minister in Russia was too expensive. Then Napoleon came along and they relented."

Cooke, who is 71, was drawn to John Quincy Adams by "the extraordinary inspiration that can be gained from what he did at the end of his life."

"He experienced an enormous self-doubt," he said. "He was always asking 'What have I accomplished?' He didn't see the good he had done. He was always holding himself to high standards.

"I started out to concentrate on the last decade of his life. But I found myself going backward. Now I've gotten back to 44, his age when he was minister to Russia."

John Quincy Adams is only the latest of the array of historical personages Cooke has in a repertoire that includes Calvin Coolidge, Daniel Webster and the orator Edward Everett.

It began in 1985 when Cooke, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire with a masters degree from Emerson, was portraying the 30th president in a play, "The Calvin Coolidge Follies" in Cambridge.

"People never let me forget it," he said. "The Calvin Coolidge I played was a stereotype. I did some research on him. I found him very different. He may have been taciturn but was a very witty man."

"Calvin Coolidge: More Than Two Words," a solo act, was born.

Since then, Cooke has performed at the White House, the Library of Congress and the National Archives and has appeared on The Today Show, C-Span and National Public Radio.

The Cooke version of "John Quincy Adams in Russia" has already been tested at the Old South Meeting House in Boston and the Amherst College Center for Russian Culture in conjunction with Adams' biographer, Dr. Lynn Hudson Parsons.

And, just a week before his departure for Russia, he will portray Calvin Coolidge as featured speaker for the Mount Rushmore Memorial Society in South Dakota.

Coolidge helped dedicate work that was about to begin in 1925 on the famed memorial to four presidents — said to be the last time a president traveled on horseback to deliver a major address.

MWRA Pipeline Work May Cause Discolored Water In Adams, Beale Street Area

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority will be performing pipeline work from the period Oct. 4 through Oct. 19 that may cause discolored water in the vicinity of Adams Street and Beale Street.

If discolored water does occur, it will result from a small amount of iron in the pipes. While safe for drinking, cooking and other uses, iron will stain light colored items in laundry, especially when bleach is used. Therefore, residents should check water clarity before washing any white or lighter colored laundry during this period of work.

This work is associated with the MWRA's Southern Spine Distribution Mains project which involves the rehabilitation and/or replacement of three water transmission mains serving the communities of Boston, Milton and Quincy. This project is needed to modernize the water distribution system, provide adequate capacity for these communities, and service the new Blue Hills Covered Storage Facility.

For more information, contact Gary Webster at 617-660-7977.

Building a Student-Centered, Urban Public University

It is such a pleasure for me to address our Quincy neighbors through this newspaper column. I hope that through these monthly columns, our neighbors will feel both informed and invited to visit our campus and be a part of our vibrant campus community.

We are having a fantastic fall semester. We recently held our 2007 Convocation and Opening Week activities. For the students, there was a vibrant array of welcome week GameOn! activities, and on Convocation Day, I was inspired by Dr. Judy Ann Bigby, our state's secretary of health and human services, who presented an address titled "Striving for Equality." On that day, I was also tremendously honored to deliver my first convocation address as the eighth chancellor of UMass Boston: "Toward the Student-Centered, Urban Public University of the New Century."

In so many ways we are achieving this vision. So much is already taking place. This summer, we welcomed back Camp Shriver, which was hosted for a second year by our Center for Social Development and Education, and we are thrilled that one of its primary organizers at UMass Boston, Professor Gary Siperstein, has been selected as a recipient of this year's President's Award for Public Service. We were also pleased to kick off a brand-new research and training center, GoKids Boston, a site for collaborative research conducted by experts from Children's Hospital Boston and our College of Nursing and Health Sciences.

I am happy to say that there is a new vibrancy that has attracted a surge of new interest in our university. We had a terrific year in applications, and saw an increase of nearly 17 percent in freshman applications. We increased our financial aid to students by nearly 23 percent to a total of $4.3 million. Our research funds reached nearly $42 million. Also, we raised nearly $12 million in FY 2007, which was 3 percent over our goal for the year and 21 percent more than we raised in 2006. The Honors Program grew to 275 students, a third of whom are students of color.

In July, the College of Public and Community Service hosted international scholars for a four-day conference, "Rebuilding Sustainable Communities in Iraq," which drew extensive local and international media coverage. Now, professors Rajni Srikanth of the English Department, Eleni H. Chowdhury of Women's Studies, and Leila Farsakh of Public Health Science have organized a five-day conference, "Engaging Islam: Feminisms, Religiosities and Self-determinations," which recently took place in our Campus Center. Also, African Studies professor Chukwuma Azuonye convened the Christopher Okigbo International Conference, celebrating the work of the acclaimed Nigerian poet.

These achievements and others reveal our success in moving UMass Boston toward becoming the student-centered, urban public university of the new century. We are so happy that members of the community are with us on this exciting journey.

When Adjustable Mortgages Reset

Subprime. When a lender loans money for a mortgage under less than ideal circumstances.

Two years ago, in a lending frenzy, buyers with less-than-perfect credit were given subprime adjustable mortgages with extremely low teaser interest rates, typically for a period of two years. Because the housing market was going strong a few years ago (the economic bubble), buyers assumed that values would continue to rise and that at the end of the low-interest period, they would be able to refinance when the interest rate adjusted.

Now, just when those interest rates are resetting, many of those homeowners are finding that they're unable to refinance. Perhaps their personal credit situations are no longer in good shape (or never were to begin with). Perhaps they're out of work. Or, more often than not, home values have fallen and the house can't be sold for what's still owed on the note.

With the increased interest coming due, many of those formerly hopeful buyers are going to be forced to make much larger mortgage payments. Many can't afford the extra hundreds of dollars per month.

Delinquencies are already soaring, and the peak for this is likely to be in October. It's thought that the interest rates of $50 billion in mortgages are going to reset.

This can create a vicious cycle. With so many homeowners defaulting, lenders have tightened up on how and when they loan money, leaving homeowners unable to refinance their loans. When buyers default and lose their homes to foreclosure, it leaves vacant dwellings in a neighborhood. This in turn affects the selling prices of other homes in the area, many of which have likely been on the market for a long time already.

Enter the scammers. For a big upfront fee, they promise to deal with the mortgage company for the homeowner. Unfortunately, all too often homeowners are discovering that the scammers just take the money and run. Meanwhile the mortgage company moves ahead with foreclosure plans because the homeowner doesn't contact them.

If you're caught in this situation and know you can't make the increased payments when your interest rate goes up, contact your lender. Depending on your payment history, it might be able to help. A scammer certainly won't.

David Uffington regrets that he cannot personally answer reader questions, but will incorporate them into his column whenever possible. Write to him in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475, or send e-mail to columnreply@gmail.com.

Public Invited To See Easy Ways To Beat High Energy Costs

Energy-Efficient Building At 221 Manet Ave.

Michael Berry invites the public to visit 221 Manet Ave., in Quincy for the 2007 Green Buildings Open House Saturday, Oct. 6.

The Northeast Sustainable Energy Association (NESEA) invites the public to visit "green" homes and businesses, and see clean renewable energy systems.

More and more people are recognizing the harmful effects of global climate change and the need to reduce carbon emissions.

Saturday's Open House, part of the American Solar Energy Society's National Solar Tour, is an opportunity to learn first-hand how incorporating green elements can help reduce heating costs, increase energy conservation, and even generate surplus clean energy.

Private homes, businesses, public buildings, and renewable energy installations throughout Massachusetts will open their doors and welcome the public to tour, ask questions, and discover ways people are conserving energy, saving money, and protecting the environment.

Examples of green features that are used in homes and buildings include passive solar heating (advantageous placement of windows), solar hot water collection and storage, radiant floor heating, the generation of electricity using photovoltaics (solar panels), or wind, the use of energy-saving appliances and techniques (super-insulation and sealing air spaces) use of sustainable and healthy building materials, and the use of water-saving fixtures.

To improve indoor air quality, green building materials that address allergy/asthma-sensitive people include paints, insulation and carpeting. Also demonstrated is the use of local, sustainable-harvested wood products.

Facts To Help You Find Out If You Have The Right Mortgage

(NAPS) - Buying a home is the largest purchase many people ever make. So it's important to find a mortgage that's the right fit.

If you're a new homebuyer or if you're considering refinancing your current mortgage-test your own expertise with simple quiz:

True or False

1. Borrowers who choose an adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM) need to be confident they can continue monthly payments even if their payments increase significantly. T/F

2. People who choose a fixed-rate mortgage are typically those who prefer steady and predictable payments over the term of the mortgage. T/F

3. Balloon payment loans make sense only if you're sure you will move or refinance, or can otherwise pay off the balance before the balloon payment comes due. T/F

4. When you choose an ARM and interest rates drop, your payments may also become lower without refinancing. T/F

5. Prepayment fees can help lower your interest rate, but they will cost you more money if you need to refinance during the time they apply. T/F

Check your answers at the bottom and be sure to fold these four tips into your mortgage hunting.

• Talk to multiple lenders and compare various mortgage types to find one that will work well with you and your situation.

• Know your credit score. Get prequalified so you are aware of what rate and payments you qualify for and what home you can afford.

• Take time to learn important terms, don't hesitate to ask questions, and make sure you understand the answers you get.

• Thoroughly investigate the terms of each mortgage type you're considering.

• Learn what the additional costs are up front and during the life of the mortgage.

• Find out what all your settlement costs are and how much your insurance and taxes will be each year.

• If you chose an ARM, make sure you know when and by how much the loan rate may change, and how much your payments might increase.

You don't really have to become a mortgage expert-but you do need to understand and compare the various loan options out there.

One source of plain-language, impartial information is The Simple Facts (www.simplefacts.com), created by the Mortgage Bankers Association in English and Spanish. The Simple Facts includes descriptions of many types of mortgages, plus The Simple Calculator that lets you see estimates of what you'll pay in all kinds of different scenarios. It even lets you compare four different loan types at one time.

Liang Presents Ideas For Older Adults Programs

Jimmy Liang outlined his ideas to better serve older adults of Quincy. At a recent coffee hour hosted by Sharon Gamache of Glover Ave.

Liang promised to organize an intergenerational program that will serve older adults in their homes and in community centers by coupling them with high-school students who can run errands, do small household jobs, and help lift things.

The older adults would serve the students as a kind of recorded history program, telling them about their experiences growing up and about what effect major historical events had on their lives. The students would get community credit for their projects.

Liang said his other plans is to make sure that the streets and sidewalks are safer for older adults from both a pedestrian safety viewpoint and from a fall prevention perspective. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, falls are the leading cause of death from injury for older adults, and 30 percent of people 65 and older will experience a fall in a year.

"Just as the City of Quincy has a program in which people can nominate their neighbors for keeping a neat and beautiful yard in the summer, there should be an award program for people who keep their driveways and sidewalks clear of ice and snow, making a less likely that people will fall," said Liang.

"I will also provide fall prevention information through my community office, and I'll work with the city to make sure that get fall prevention information out to older adults through community centers and other programs.

To discuss ideas with Liang, visit his campaign office at 38 Billings Road on Wednesdays from 2 to 4 p.m. or call the office at 617-331-2081.

WATER SYSTEM FLUSHING

Squantum
Houghs Neck
Germantown

Starting Tuesday, October 9

The Quincy Department of Public Works in conjunction with the Quincy Fire Department will begin testing fire hydrants in the Squantum, Houghs Neck and Germantown areas on October 9, 2007. The water main flushing will occur on weekdays between the hours of 10:00 AM and 3:00 PM and will last for four weeks. The testing may temporarily cause the water in the surrounding area to be rusty and discolored. Customers are advised to limit water use and to avoid doing laundry while the testing is taking place, as clothes could become stained due to the discolored water. We apologize to those affected for any inconvenience that the flushing may cause and thanks you for your understanding during this temporary nuisance. Please call 617-376-1910 if you experience excessive discolored water.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, Sept. 22, at approximately 2:25 P.M., Officers' Matt Miller and James Dentremont were dispatched to the Stop N' Shop on the Southern Artery to investigate a call of "a man trying to sell jewelry to customers" at the entranceway.

The manager of the store told the dispatcher that the suspect was walking toward the area of Yellow Cab on McGrath Highway after attempting to sell jewelry to three customers of the store. Sergeant Sean Duggan located the suspect in the rear of the Yellow Cab parking lot and informed headquarters. For his safety, Sergeant Duggan pat-frisked the suspect and asked him if he had "anything" on him.

The suspect said, "I have a half joint in my shirt pocket." Sergeant Duggan then retrieved the marijuana joint. Sergeant Duggan read Miranda Rights to the suspect, who stated he understood and expressed a willingness to answer questions.

The suspect was asked about the zip-bag of jewelry he was carrying and the suspect said that it was "fake" and that he gets the jewelry from New York. He said that he buys the rings for $20 each, and then re-tags them at a higher price. In addition to three rings, the suspect also had eight necklaces, nine gold colored bracelets and one gold colored charm. Each gold colored piece of jewelry was stamped "14K."

Officer Miller went into Yellow Cab and spoke to an employee who stated that the suspect tried to sell her necklaces and bracelets. She said the suspect assured her that the jewelry was "real gold" and he would sell her a necklace for $80. When she said she was not interested, the suspect offered a lower price of $40, but she declined and the suspect left.

The suspect, a 61-year-old Dorchester resident was arrested and charged with "Possession of Class D (marijuana) and Attempt to Commit a Crime by False Pretense." The jewelry was seized as evidence for court purposes.

Nice Work!

In cases like this, buying a product from an unknown person is very risky. The quality of the product is unknown as well as where it came from - the jewelry could have been stolen in a house break and now, you the buyer could be involved in the crime of "Receiving Stolen Property." Remember, when you open your wallet or purse to pay this unknown suspect, you are also exposing how much money you have and you could be victimized as part of a robbery. Why do people continue to go door to door selling fake and/or marked up merchandise? Because there are enough people out there willing to buy at the risk of being swindled - simply put, there is a market out there and until people say no and report this activity to the Police, it will continue.

Quincy resident scammed; one of our citizens recently was swindled out of $7,000 via the "Bank Examiner" scam. The 80-year-old victim received a call from someone identifying himself as a Police Officer investigating corrupt bank employees, stating that she was needed to help catch them.

The victim was instructed to withdraw the money so that Officers could mark the dollars and track it to the corrupt employee. She was directed to meet the Officer in the parking lot of the Library in Quincy Square at noon (Sept. 24th) and asked what kind of car she drove.

Once in the lot, a man approximately 50 years old in a tweed jacket, who identified himself as Officer Carmichael, approached her. The victim asked to see a badge and the suspect quickly showed a gold badge with the name "Carmichael" on it. After she turned the money over to the suspect, she was instructed to keep the investigation quiet so that they could catch the criminals.

The victim went home and received a follow-up call from the suspect, who told her that the money would show on her statement that it was missing from her account, but it was actually there. Her final instructions were to wait a few weeks and the "Police" would contact her again.

If anyone has any information on this case, please contact me so that we can get this elderly woman her money back and get this criminal off the streets.

North Quincy Gives Falmouth The Boot, 24-22

Raiders Red Hot; Post Third Straight Win

By SEAN BRENNAN

North Quincy won its third straight game and its second straight Atlantic Coast League contest last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium on a 23-yard field goal with just under ten seconds to play in regulation.

But here's the kicker. The winning boot came off the foot of a senior who had never attempted a field goal ever and it was the first attempt at three points by a Red Raider team in almost five years.

Senior Zac Deegan's kick split the uprights and gave North Quincy an improbable 24-22 come-from-behind victory over Falmouth High School. It marked the second time this season that the Raiders had rallied in the fourth quarter to beat an Atlantic Coast League opponent (North knocked off Sandwich High School 13-12 on Sept. 14). With the win, the Red Raiders upped their early season record to 3-1 overall, and 2-0 in the ACL. The 3-1 record represents the best start by a North Quincy football team in over a decade.

Trailing 22-21, head coach Jim Connor had a decision to make on second down and goal from the six yard line. Did he keep his offense on the field and try to throw it into the end zone, or did he put the onus on the untested Deegan?

"It came to a point where we played well, but I thought our best chance to put points on the board was to kick a field goal," he said.

The Clippers used a time out to try and freeze Deegan, but when play resumed, his kick wasn't a thing of beauty, but it was good enough.

The winning kick was set up by an impressive drive that began at North Quincy's own 35-yard line. With seven minutes to play, North Quincy quarterback Dennis Martin (6-for-13, 148 yards, one touchdown) and running backs Jon Cahill, Danny Jackson and Joe Vailpando led the offense down into the Falmouth red zone. The Red Raiders, using their running game as the primary weapon chewed up the clock to set up the climatic kick.

The biggest play on the final drive was a 16-yard pass completion from Martin to senior tight end Marcellus Lee on third-and-11. The completion kept the chains moving and North Quincy finished off the Clippers.

Martin showed his mettle early in the game with another huge completion early in the first quarter. After Falmouth took the opening kickoff 75 yards for a touchdown and a 7-0 lead, quieting the home crowd, the offense and Martin responded in kind.

After leading his team down to the Clipper 32-yard line, Martin faced a long fourth-and-17. He dropped back in the pocket and fired a bullet to Deegan for 29 yards to set up a first-and-goal. Two straight runs by Cahill produced two yards, but Connor went back to him on third-and-goal, and Cahill delivered with a one-yard touchdown plunge to tie the game at 7-7.

On Falmouth's last possession before the North Quincy game-ending drive, the Clippers went down the field in nine plays and scored to overcome a 21-14 deficit. The two-point conversion was good. But this gusty North Quincy team would not be denied.

"I didn't think it could get any better than that (coming back to beat Sandwich). Apparently it can," Connor said.

North Quincy will look to run their winning streak to four games when they travel down to Plymouth North to take on the Blue Eagles on Friday night. Plymouth North knocked off Quincy High School last Saturday 21-7 to run their record to 2-2, and 2-0 in the Atlantic Coast League. Kick off is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Ice Skating Registration Begins Oct. 9

The Quincy Recreation Department is pleased to announce that its popular Instructional Ice-Skating Program will once again conduct its nine-week lesson program at the Quincy Youth Arena.

This traditional Learn-To-Skate program has for more than thirty years offered boys and girls ages 6-14 the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of skating in a low-cost program with quality instruction.

Walk-in registration will take place at the main office of the QRD, One Merrymount Parkway, beginning Oct. 9 at 9 a.m. Registration will continue on weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as long as openings exist. Online registration will begin the same day (Oct. 9) at QuincyRec.com.

The program will have two separate classes beginning at 3:10 p.m. and 4:05 p.m. on Wednesdays starting Oct. 17, according to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation. Instruction will again be under the supervision of Mrs. Anne Eagles, a United States Figure Skating Association professional, and she will utilize the basic program of instruction designed by the U.S.F.S.A.

Both classes offer the same levels of instruction and will run for nine weeks.

The cost of the program is $73, and this cost includes instruction and ice time. Participants need to provide their own skates, and may be either figure or hockey skates with a single blade.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the Quincy Recreation Department at (617) 376-1394.

Presidents Youth Basketball Open Gym Dates For 5-8 Graders

The Presidents Youth Basketball League will be holding registration and open gym nights for boys in grades 5-8 at the Broad Meadows Middle School on the following dates: October 15, 22 & 29 and November 5 & 12 from 6 to 8 p.m.

There will be a one-time registration fee of $15 and boys are welcome to come on any or all of these nights and participate in drills and scrimmages.

For additional information, call Bob Cochran at (617) 471-2746 or Adam McGhee at (617) 773-4191.

Hofbrau Wins Third Merchant's League Title

The Hofbrau, owned by Michael Novak, recently won its third straight Quincy Merchant's Modified Pitch League championship.

The Hofbrau defeated Malachy's in Game 7 of the best-of-seven championship series. The championship games were played under the lights at Kincaide Field.

Throughout the finals, Malachy's received great hitting and defense from Billy McDougall and Mal Higgins, but the Hofbrau was just too much and too tough as pitcher Steve Lannan was impressive in each game.

The Hofbrau is now 50-3 over the past two seasons. "This is probably the best team I have ever assembled," said skipper George Murphy. "I'm pretty sure this was my last year, and I wanted to go out on top."

Nelson Feliciano, Tommy Fratolillo and Scott Logan split the three-way tie for the MVP of the playoffs, as they all combined with timely hitting.

"We couldn't just give it to one of them, as they all deserved the honor," said tri-captain Jim Dennis.

The team will be hosting a cookout on Oct. 13 at Coach Murphy's house in Houghs Neck. At this time, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly will hand out trophies and awards to the team.

Presidents Fall To Plymouth North, 21-7

The Quincy Presidents hung around till the end in their Atlantic Coast League game against Plymouth North High School last Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium, but in the end, fell in defeat 21-7.

The loss dropped Quincy's overall record to 1-2, and 1-1 in Atlantic Coast League play.

The Presidents trailed 13-

7 with just under one minute to play in the fourth quarter, but the Eagles' Tommy Carr scored his second touchdown of the game from one yard out and Plymouth North converted successfully on its two-point conversion attempt to finish off the scoring.

The Eagles got on the scoreboard first in the opening quarter on a fifty-five yard touchdown run by running back Joe Flynn. Quincy quickly responded to the Plymouth North score when sophomore quarterback Lance Peterson connected with junior wide receiver Anthony Raddatz on a 21-yard touchdown pass. Diego Arredondo's extra point attempt tied the score at 7-7.

In the second quarter, Plymouth North took a 13-7 lead on a one yard touchdown run from Carr. They missed the extra point and entered the locker room at halftime with a 13-7 lead.

Arredondo, running behind the solid play of his offensive line, finished the game with 105 yards, but neither he nor the rest of the offense could find the end zone after their first quarter score. It was Arredondo's second straight game with 100+ rushing yards.

The Presidents have been competitive on both offense and defense the last two weeks in league games against Plymouth North and Falmouth, winning two weeks ago 18-6 over the Clippers, and will play seven more games against Atlantic Coast League opponents before meeting North Quincy on Thanksgiving Day.

Quincy will play host to Whitman-Hanson High School at 7 p.m. tomorrow night (Friday) at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

2-1 Week Gives North Quincy Momentum

By SEAN BRENNAN

The North Quincy Red Raiders capped off a 2-1 week with a 1-0 shutout of Medford High School last Friday. The team, which lost to Plymouth North 4-2 on Sept. 25, also earned a payback victory over Brockton High School on Sept. 27 to run its overall record to 3-4-2.

"We came out flat in the beginning of the week against Plymouth North, in a game we probably should have won," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "But the girls responded big time against Brockton on the road and again last Friday against Medford. I am pleased with the way the week turned out overall."

Against Medford, North Quincy's Emily Milone scored her eighth goal of the season on a great pass from fellow senior Mary Kate Stille for the lone goal scored by either side. Brittany Folkins earned the shutout win in goal. Folkins had replaced goalkeeper Jesse Howlett in net midway through the team's game against Plymouth North, and against Medford, Folkins made a number of key steps to preserve the win.

"Brittany came in to replace Jesse after she was injured against Plymouth North," Bregoli added. "Jesse had replaced Siobhan Carnell in net earlier in the year after she got hurt, but Folkins really stepped it up for the team in both of our victories last week."

GIRLS' SOCCER

North traveled to Brockton to play in an all-important non-league game and came away with a solid 3-2 win. The Boxers had defeated the Raiders on their home turf 2-1 in the season-opener.

Brockton opened the scoring with a goal early in the first half, but freshman sweeper Shannon Coleman tied it at 1-1 with a blast into the upper left-hand corner of the net from thirty yards out with eight minutes to play in the half.

The Milone-Stille combination struck again with twenty minutes to play in regulation to give North the 2-1 advantage. Brockton would come right back to knot the score at 2-2 five minutes later, but sophomore midfielder Devon McKay found Milone open in the penalty box late in the game, and Milone drew the foul. On the ensuing PK, Milone buried the game winner by diving Boxer goalkeeper.

"This was a huge win for the program," said Bregoli. "They had come into our place and beat us in our season-opener and we went down there and responded."

Bregoli noted the play of seniors Tara McFarland and Simone Leary, and juniors Brittany Folkins and Amy Carchedi as being a major reason why his team left Brockton with the win.

"The star of the game was Leary," he said. "She marked their best player (Veira) all game long and didn't allow her to get anything going. Veira had scored both of their goals when we first played them. Simone was outstanding. And Folkins played really well in goal."

The Raiders fell behind 4-0 early against the Eagles of Plymouth North in an Atlantic Coast League match up and did not have enough time to recover. Junior midfielder Lindsay Reilly scored off of an assist from Stille to draw the Raiders to within 4-1 and senior Rene DiPietro scored her first varsity goal late, but time ran out on North Quincy.

"This was a tough loss, and when we got down early it was hard for us to get back into the game," Bregoli said. "The one bonus was I got a lot of our roster some playing time. Ellen Quinn and Katie Hemenway both played solid games."

At 3-4-2, the Raiders are starting to pick up some momentum as they hit the meat of their 2007 schedule. The team played against Sandwich on Monday, and is scheduled to play Whitman-Hanson Friday. On Saturday, North Quincy and Quincy will play the first of two games this fall. The game is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Red Raiders Net Two Wins

BOYS' SOCCER

The Red Raiders got their season back on track with two victories last week, including their first Atlantic Coast League win. With their 2-0 week, North Quincy upped its overall record to 2-4-1.

On Friday at Veterans Memorial Stadium, the Raiders hosted the Bengals of Brighton High School and came away with a 1-0 win. The Raiders started off the game with a handful of solid scoring chances as Dan Richards, Sean Clifford and Shane Regan all had chances stopped by the Bengal goalkeeper. After the fast moving first minutes of play, the game settled into a defensive battle and at halftime the score was 0-0.

In the 47th minute, Richards sent a shot on net from 35 yards, which the Bengal goalkeeper deflected back into the box. Danny Russell, manning his position on the right flank, collected the rebound and scored from 12 yards out. It was the junior midfielder's second goal of the season.

North Quincy would have a chance to extend their lead in the 70th minute, but missed on a penalty kick.

Midfielder Zach O'Hara and goalkeeper Ryan Louis stood out for the Raiders against Brighton.

Last Tuesday, the Red Raiders traveled to Plymouth North to play in an ACL matchup, and once again the team got off to a fast start. After Sean Clifford's low blast from 18 yards out was stopped in the first minute of play, Shane Regan took a pass two minutes later from Kwasi Osei. Regan attacked the right side of the net, faked a shot and then calmly put the ball into the open goal to give North an early 1-0 lead.

In the 17th minute, defender Ryan Keaney made a run with the ball from his left back position and found Regan just outside the 18-yard mark. Regan broke in alone on the defenseless Eagle goalkeeper and scored his second goal of the game to give the Raiders a 2-0 lead.

Plymouth North would score right before the halftime whistle to put the score at 2-1.

The score would remain 2-1 throughout the second half despite several solid scoring chances from the Raiders. But in the 78th minute, goalkeeper Ryan Louis punted the ball thirty yards onto the foot of Regan, who broke past the lone Eagle defender to notch his third goal of the contest (and seventh goal of the season), to bring the score to the 3-1 final.

Marc DeLucia and Alex Breaun were defensive standouts for North Quincy in their first league win.

The Red Raiders and the Quincy Presidents square off this Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 5 p.m. The North Quincy girl's varsity and Quincy girl's varsity will play at 7 p.m.

11 & 12-Year Old Quincy Presidents Win South River Crown

The Quincy Presidents 11 & 12-year old travel baseball team recently won the South River Baseball League championship.

The team dominated the regular season, finishing with a 9-1 record, and went into the single-elimination playoffs on fire.

In the first round, Quincy defeated the Hanover Nationals 4-1. Coleman McCarron hit a three-run homer in his first at-bat and followed that with a solo homer in his second at-bat. Peter Giunta, Anthony Capone, Mike Augustine and John Johnson-Tatelbaum also produced offensively against Hanover. On the defensive side, Quincy received a great outing from Conor Doyle behind the plate.

In the second round, the Presidents beat Brant Rock 4-2. Mike Steele led the offense with a home run and Brendan Cunningham and Jonathan Manning played well defensively.

Playing in the National Division championship game, Quincy downed Ocean Bluff 3-2 behind a solid offensive and defensive game from the entire roster. Mike Augustine (double), Peter Giunta, Mike Steele, John Johnson-Tatelbaum, Will Storer, Jerry Verrill and Dan O'Brien all played well on offense.

In the League Championship the Presidents squared off against the Hingham Americans. Quincy came through in extra innings behind superb pitching from Giunta, Steele and McCarron. The play of the game came when Dan

FALL CAR CARE

Different Vehicles Require Different Winter Driving Habits

Motorists should be aware that different types of vehicles have particular operating characteristics that change the way they handle on icy or snow-covered roads, according to AAA

Slick Facts About Oil

It's time to change the oil on your trusty car and you decide to do it yourself. You find yourself at the auto parts store staring at the assortment of oil on the shelves, trying to decide which one to buy and trying to decipher all the numbers and letters on the containers.

Cracking the oil code requires some basic understanding of what your vehicle requires. In every owner's manual there is a chart with a recommendation of oil type for that car.

The right engine oil is important to cold weather starts, says AAA. Oil can become thick and gluey when cold and can make it difficult for engine parts to move. Some oil grades are thinner than others, and thinner is better for winter weather.

The Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) rates oil for its viscosity in both cold and hot conditions. The first number, usually a 5W or 10W, is an indication of how thin the oil stays when cold.

Southern New England.

"Knowing the different winter-weather capabilities of a vehicle can mean the difference between a safe trip and serious trouble," said John Paul, AAA's Car Doctor. "Motorists should carefully read their owner's manual for information on their vehicle's equipment and handling characteristics."

Front-wheel-drive vehicles generally handle better than rear-wheel-drive vehicles on slippery roads because the weight of the engine is on the drive wheels, which improves traction. The back end rear-wheel-drive cars tends to slide from side-to-side during turns on icy roads.

While many motorists are now driving sport-utility vehicles and light trucks that can be excellent for driving in difficult conditions, AAA warns drivers not to become over-confident.

"Sport-utility vehicles and pickup trucks with four-wheel-drive make it easier to get moving on snow-covered roads, but they don't stop any quicker than other vehicles," Paul said. "Drivers still need to slow down and keep a safe distance behind the vehicle in front of them."

Drivers of pickup trucks with rear-wheel-drive need to be especially cautious on slick roads because these vehicles have very little weight over the wheels that are propelling the vehicle and are prone to rear-wheel skids on slippery roads.

A vehicle's braking system also determines how motorists should operate in winter weather. Anti-lock brake systems (ABS) can provide a significant stopping advantage on slick roads, but are only effective if properly used. When stopping a vehicle with anti-lock brakes in slippery conditions, motorists should apply steady pressure to the brake pedal. The ABS will automatically pump the brakes to keep the wheels from locking and the vehicle from skidding.

Drivers of cars without ABS should gently apply pumping to the brakes on slippery conditions to avoid wheel lock-up.

Additionally, many new cars feature traction control, which prevents wheel spin during acceleration. This is very helpful when initially trying to get moving on slippery roads. Many cars are equipped with stability control, which helps prevent skidding.

Improving Bad Posture

Q In the past few years my posture has become terrible. My shoulders have started to slump forward, and my back is becoming rounded. Are there any exercises I can do to strengthen my shoulders and back, and improve my posture?

A Yes, there are exercises you can perform to strengthen the muscles of your shoulders and back, but that may not improve your posture. To improve your posture, you first have to learn where the problem lies. Muscle strength and balance, structural abnormalities and being conscious of your body alignment are all considered when doing a postural analysis. Discovering which one or more of these needs to be corrected is the first step in getting things "straightened" out.

A big reason for poor posture among many people is bad habits. The muscles of your back and shoulders can be strong, but if you don't control those muscles and hold them in the proper position it can result in rounded shoulders and a rounded back. Slouching in a chair at work or while driving can develop poor postural habits that then transfer into everyday situations. Being conscious of keeping your spine in proper alignment may take some time and a lot of work.

Use the following tips to help improve your posture:

- Keep all of your muscles strong, flexible and in balance. Strong abdominals, lower back, chest, shoulders, back, neck and legs all play a role in developing good posture. If there is a muscle imbalance, you may find it more difficult to hold yourself in proper alignment all day.

- Analyze your posture. Look in the mirror (or have someone else look at you) from the front and the side, as you would normally stand. Look for your head falling forward, rounded shoulders and back, relaxed abdominals, overly arched lower back, hips pushing forward and uneven shoulders. Try to correct any discrepancies by striving to place your feet shoulder-width apart, knees slightly bent, hips in a neutral position, abdominals and lower back supported, shoulders up and back and your head not leaning forward. Practice holding this position for as long as possible. If it becomes uncomfortable, find a middle ground, but strive to hold this position until it becomes a new habit.

- Discomfort and pain in your back or shoulders from inactivity or injury can keep you from trying to straighten those muscles out. If this is the case, seek professional care to alleviate your pain and properly heal your injury. Also, with age and certain bone conditions, the compression of your spine can cause rounding at your shoulders and back. If you feel this might be the issue, consult your physician.

Participating In 3-Mile Walk For Nephew Andrew

Quincy's Erin Nickerson Walking For Autism Research

Erin Nickerson of Quincy will walk for her nephew Andrew Nickerson and other families in the Autism Speaks' Walk for Autism Research fund-raising event.

The 3-mile walk will take place on Sunday, Oct. 14, in East Boston at the Suffolk Downs.

Walk for Autism Research is the signature fundraising event of Autism Speaks and is the nation's largest Walk program dedicated to autism research. Since its inception in May 2000 they have collectively raised tens of millions of dollars to fund autism research.

"They have come far in this period of time however, so much remains to be done," said Erin Nickerson who is Andrew's Auntie Yaya.

Autism is a complex brain disorder that often inhibits a person's ability to communicate, respond to surroundings, or form relationships with others. First identified more than 50 years ago, autism is typically diagnosed by the age of two or three. Currently, the causes of autism are unknown and there are no specific medical treatments or cure.

Physicians have no blood test or scan that can definitively diagnose the disorder. As such, the diagnosis of autism is based solely upon observations of behavior. Despite increasing national interest and high prevalence, autism research is one of the lowest funded areas of medical research by both public and private sources.

"For any of you who may know my nephew Andrew, you know he is the sweetest little boy," Erin Nickerson said. "When Andrew was first diagnosed with PDD/Autism, he wouldn't even look at you or even acknowledge you were in the room."

"Since September 2006, he has been receiving services through the Quincy Public School and with the help of his family, he is improving everyday. He is able to say more than a dozen words, know we are in the room and he is able to communicate with us.

"For his mom, dad, aunts, uncles and grandparents this is a tremendous miracle. For me, when Andrew says Auntie and tells me that he loves me, I get very emotional and it means the world to me. Many children with autism will never be able to tell their parents they love them.

Erin Nickerson is seeking support for her fundraising efforts with a tax-deductible donation. Donations, payable to Autism Speaks, should be dropped off or mailed to Erin Nickerson, 76 Shoreham St., Quincy, MA 02171-1049.

Nickerson also said "there is room on our fast growing team if you should want to walk with Andrew and his friends and family."

Talking Blood Clots With Your Doc

(NAPS)—Blood clots can be a serious concern for those who have had a harmful clot in the past. If you have a history of certain types of blood clots, you have a higher chance of getting another blood clot. Understanding your risk of recurrence is important. Talking with your doctor can better help you get on the right path to preventing harmful clots.

Clots normally form to help stop bleeding after you've been injured. Clots that form for other reasons, like those outlined below, can be dangerous. Many potentially serious clots originate in a vein in your leg or pelvis. They can cause serious swelling in the legs or block blood flow in the lungs.

About half the people who develop abnormal blood clots have an inherited tendency to do so. Other factors that may cause harmful clots to form include, but are not limited to:

- Surgery: Operations are one of the leading causes of blood clots. Especially operations to replace major joints such as the hip and knee.

- Long periods of inactivity: Inactivity caused by prolonged bed rest or long trips increases your chances of developing a blood clot. Patients immobilized after surgery are more likely to develop clots than those who are able to get up and walk around.

- Certain medical conditions: For example, people who have had cancer, a heart attack or stroke are more likely to develop clots in their veins.

- Vein injury: This may occur during certain types of surgery, especially hip or knee replacement surgery. It may also be a result of direct injuries to the legs.

- Increased levels of clotting factors in the blood: Some types of cancer cause increased levels of blood clotting substances. Also, the female hormone estrogen, which is found in birth control pills and hormone therapy, increases clotting factors in the blood.

If any of these factors apply to you, be sure to talk to your doctor. Your doctor may recommend prevention and treatment options based on your medical history and current risk factors. She may prescribe an over-the-counter drug such as low-dose aspirin. Aspirin interferes with the blood's ability to clot. Stronger medicines, known as blood thinners or anticoagulants, may also be prescribed. There are also benefits of staying active.

Talking blood clots with your doctor should be an open dialogue—one in which all of your concerns are addressed.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

NON-SHRINKING POSSIBILITIES

When a tooth is extracted, the ridge of alveolar bone that once held it in place begins to shrink (resorb). As a result, an overlying denture will increasingly find itself on an unstable foundation. This leads to the denture becoming looser and looser until it eventually has to be refitted/refabricated. For this reason alone, many patients turn to dental implants to replace lost teeth. This prosthetic device so closely approximates the look and function of a natural tooth root that it minimizes bone resorption. Once the titanium anchor is placed in the bone to function much like a natural tooth root, it becomes integrated with the bone, thereby minimizing bone loss. This provides a solid anchor for replacement teeth.

Are your dentures loose? Are you a candidate for a tooth implant? Our commitment is to provide you the highest standard of personalized dental care. You will find our dental services exceptional. Good dentistry is more than excellent clinical skills and state-of-the-art equipment. Establishing lasting relationships with our patients based on mutual trust and open communication is an equally important factor. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we work together, so you can have the smile you've always wanted. We're currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Implants can be used to anchor a denture (containing several teeth) in place, or it can hold a single replacement tooth.

Quincy Medical Reserve Corps Information, Registration Nights Oct. 10, 25

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Expect to hear more about an offer that has piqued your interest. You earn respect for insisting on solid facts, not just a fancy talk about potential opportunities.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) What seemed to be a reasonable workplace request might need to be defended. Don't fret. You have both the facts and a surprise ally on your side.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A bit of capriciousness might be just what you need. Plan to kick up your heels in a round of fun and games with family and friends this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Although some of your plans might have to be put on hold, things do begin to take a turn for the better by midweek. Your financial crunch also eases.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your financial picture begins to brighten by week's end. There are also favorable changes in your personal life. Someone you care for has good news to report.

BORN THIS WEEK: You seek balance, but not at the expense of justice. You would make a fine judge.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

A. Leslie Parrott, 85

President Emeritus Eastern Nazarene College

Memorial services for A. Leslie Parrott, Ph.D., 85, former president of Olivet Nazarene College and Eastern Nazarene College, were held Tuesday at the College Church of the Nazarene in Bourbonnais, Ill., and Sept. 28 at Biltmore Church of the Nazarene, Phoenix, Ari.

Mr. Parrott died Sept. 23 in Phoenix following a brief illness.

His tenure at Olivet Nazarene University (ONU) in Bourbonnais, Ill., spanned 16 years from 1975 to 1991. During that time, the institution experienced growth in every area including moving from college to university status, significant increases in enrollment, and several major construction projects on the campus. He followed in the footsteps of his father, A.L. Parrott, who had also served as the university's president from 1939 to 1948.

Prior to his ONU assignment, Mr. Parrott served as president of Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy, from 1970 to 1975, and was on the administration at Cascade College in Portland, Ore., and at Trevecca Nazarene University in Nashville, Tenn. Both institutions honored him with the title of president emeritus.

Ordained as an elder in the Church of the Nazarene in 1944, he pastored Nazarene churches in Washington, Oregon, Michigan, and Indiana. He also served as an evangelist. His popularity as a speaker took him across the U.S. and around the world.

During his career, he was associated with many prominent leaders in the Evangelical world including serving on a planning committee with the Billy Graham Evangelical Association for the 1968 Billy Graham Crusade in Portland, Ore.

In addition to his work as an educator and minister, Parrott was a prolific writer and authored numerous books including The Power of Your Attitudes. Other books include Building Today's Church, which Rick Warren, author of the bestseller The Purpose Driven Life, has cited as having been instrumental in shaping his philosophy of ministry.

Following Mr. Parrott's years at Olivet, he wrote a history of the institution, The Olivet Story, and created materials to help churches and church boards work effectively together.

ENC President Corlis McGee credited Mr. Parrott with a "far-reaching vision that is still seeing fruition today through his advancement of the department of Communication Arts and Business Administration" at the Quincy college. "His commitment to excellence and service strengthened Nazarene higher education," she added.

Born April 22, 1922, in Clarksville, Tenn., his formative years were spent in Church of the Nazarene parsonages primarily in Springfield, Ill., and Bethany, Okl., where his father had ministry assignments.

He graduated from Olivet Academy, and Olivet Nazarene College (now University). He earned an M.A. from Willamette University and a Ph.D. from Michigan State University. Additionally, he pursued post-graduate studies in Institutional Management at Harvard Business School and theological training from Pacific School of Religion.

He is survived by his wife of 63 years, Lora Lee Montgomery; three sons, Richard Parrott, Roger Parrott and A. Leslie Parrott II; a sister, Lorene Perry; a brother, John (Wilma) Parrott; and six grandchildren.

He was the son of the late A.L. and Lucille (Elliott) Parrott.

Memorial donations may be made to the Leslie and Lora Lee Parrott Endowed Scholarship at ONU.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We have said many times before that more than anything else people make pre-arrangements because of those they love. In pre-arranging the details of a funeral, one removes from your family what can be a difficult emotional burden. You are able to set aside your funeral financial needs so as not to be a burden later to your family. Also, pre-planning allows you the freedom to have your wishes carried out and you will have peace of mind knowing that your family won't have to worry about it later.

Please feel free to call the Deware Funeral Home or come in at any time to discuss any questions you might have concerning the pre-planning arrangements. There's no cost or obligation... Remember... because we understand the importance of pre-planning, we are glad to answer any questions about funeral arrangements you may have...

Donald William Somers, 90

Jeweler, Business Owner

A private funeral service was held for Donald William Somers, 90, of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, a retired jeweler. Mr. Somers died Sept. 22 at the Radius Healthcare Center in Braintree after a brief illness.

Born in Roxbury, he was raised in Quincy. He graduated from Quincy High School in 1934 and attended Harvard University.

Mr. Somers was also a graduate of the Gemological Institute of America.

A World War II Army veteran, he served with the 328th infantry division serving in Northern France, Rhineland, and Ardennes where he participated in the Battle of the Bulge. He was wounded and presented the Purple Heart.

After returning from World War II, he became the owner of his father's jewelry business, C.W. Somers, Inc. of Boston where he was a jeweler until his retirement in 1979.

A. Joseph Roche

Boat Captain, Sales Representative

A funeral Mass for A. Joseph Roche, of Sagamore Beach, formerly of Quincy and Codman Square, a computer sales representative, was celebrated Sept. 28 at St. Theresa's Chapel in Sagamore.

Mr. Roche died Sept. 24 after a battle with lung cancer.

His career spanned more than 50 years, from shoe shine boy at age 8 to master barber, bartender, businessman at Friden, Inc. to a successful career in computer sales at TRW. He later became a sales representative from Termco, Nabco and Great Valley Industries.

In 1987, he began a new 20-year career as captain of the North East Marine Pilot Boat on the Cape Cod Canal. He enjoyed taking his friends, family and grandchildren out on the boat as he met cruise ships, tankers, and barges from around the world.

Mr. Roche was a U.S. Navy veteran of the Korean War stationed on the USS Barton.

He is survived by his wife of 49 years, Sheila (Carrigan) Roche; five children, Mary Hall of Framingham, Timothy Roche of Wilbraham, Sheila Baedita of Miami and Patrick Roche of Sagamore Beach; a sister, Dorothy Cray of Whitman; a brother, David Roche of Sharon; 11 grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

He was the son of the late Arthur and Anne Roche of Codman Square and brother of the late J. Richard Roche of Dedham.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Nickerson-Bourne Funeral Home, Sandwich.

Memorial donations may be made to the Oncology Department, Jordan Hospi-

Mr. Somers was a former member of Bethany Congregational Church of Quincy and then became a member of the First Congregational Church in Braintree.

He was a member of the Delta Lodge of Masons in Braintree and a long-time member of the Braintree Men's Club.

Most recently, Mr. Somers was a volunteer at the Queen Anne Nursing Home in Hingham as a volunteer activities director.

Husband of the late Flora (Andrews) Somers, he is survived by a daughter, Susan Eileen Somers of Braintree.

Burial was to be held at a later date in Bermuda.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Mortimer N. Peck-Russell Peck Funeral Home, 516 Washington St., Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to the Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St., Quincy, MA 02169.

tal, 291 Sandwich St., Plymouth, MA 02360 or Cranberry Hospice, 275 Sandwich St., Plymouth, MA 02360.

Missing Five Weeks

Quincy Sun Article Brings Abby Back Home

Abby the puppy is back home safely now after being missing for five weeks and it's all thanks to The Quincy Sun, according to her owner Cindy Farnsworth.

The nine-pound dog, a poodle and Shih Tzu mix with white curls and tan ears, was returned to Farnsworth right after the Sun hit the streets last week.

"I was absolutely delirious," Farnsworth said the man returning Abby had just seen the story on the lost puppy.

Apparently, the man's father who had kept her for 34 days had fallen in love with the little dog.

Farnsworth believes that the father found Abby just moments after she squirmed through a hole in her backyard fence and bounded free.

After nearly five weeks, Farnsworth had almost given up hope when Abby came home last Thursday.

"I was at home and a gentleman called and said, 'What is your street number?'" Farnsworth said that she was a little surprised and wary of the question and asked why.

He said he had her dog, didn't want any reward, but he did want to get the dog back. He was driving a black Lincoln up and down the street.

Farnsworth looked out and, sure enough, the man took the little pup right of the back seat of his Lincoln.

"My father's had the dog from Day One," the man told Farnsworth, adding that when he saw the Sun story he told him, "It's time to bring him back."

The father is apparently an older man who doesn't get out much, according to Farnsworth who promptly called the newspaper's office.

"Thank you. Thank you," Farnsworth said Monday when she arrived at the Sun's Quincy Center office juggling her purse, dog leashes, a silver Mylar "Thank You" balloon and a basket of strawberries, cantaloupe and chocolate pears.

In tow was Abby, the nine-pound poodle mix who had disappeared on August 31.

Abby's Merry Mount neighbors joined the search, according to Farnsworth, who said that Abby was actually very close all the time.

The pup looked none the worse for her adventure on Monday as she romped around the Sun office with her two-year old brother Roman and another pup, five-week old Becky.

McGrath Highway Bids Awarded Phase III Work To Start On Center Concourse

Work is about to begin on Phase III of the Quincy Center Concourse, a project that has been called critical to the revitalization of the city's sometimes lackluster downtown business district.

GIOIOSO Corporation of Hyde Park was the successful low bidder on the $4 million plan to reconstruct and streetscape McGrath Highway, connecting Route 3A (Southern Artery) with downtown.

To cover the cost, the city has a $2 million state Public Works Economic Development grant with additional funding coming from District Improvement Financing

(DIF) bonds issued by the city.

The Mayor's office said that work will begin immediately and take two construction seasons or 18 months to complete.

Aesthetic improvements include the burial of all existing overhead utility lines and the removal of 50 decades old utility poles between Southern Artery and a point about 100 feet east of Dennis Ryan Parkway.

The reconstruction of the roadway is designed to transform an existing urban highway into a safer, pedestrian-friendly, more attractive gateway from Southern Artery to Quincy Center.

"Anyone who has tried to cross this roadway knows how dangerous and unwelcoming it is for pedestrians," said Mayor William Phelan.

"Our work will improve this area dramatically for pedestrians and motorists and provide a link from Southern Artery into and through Quincy Center.

"It is a vital component of the Concourse plan and I am excited to announce another milestone in this much-anticipated and much-needed project."

'Cut Out On Advice'

Clasby Resigns As COA Director Over Senior Center Planning

Citing instances where Mayor William Phelan had cut him out of planning for a new senior center, Thomas Clasby resigned Tuesday as director of Elder Services, the $67,613-a-year post he held for eight years.

"I have very mixed emotions about this decision," he said, "but feel strongly that the Department of Elder Services has been kept almost entirely in the dark on an important project meant for the population we serve most directly."

"Perhaps my departure will provide at least some motivation for the mayor's office to include the department and the Council on Aging more directly in planning."

Phelan accepted Clasby's resignation, adding that he expected it "knowing his long relationship with Tom Koch," the mayor's opponent in the Nov. 6 municipal election.

A statement from Phelan's office said the mayor's "interest is in opening up this beautiful facility to our city's seniors, not keeping it as a gated community."

Jake Louzan Throws Out First Pitch At Fenway

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD Quincy resident and Red Sox fan Jake Louzan gets the thrill of a lifetime when he throws out a "ceremonial first pitch" before the Boston Red Sox/Oakland Athletics game Sept. 25 at Fenway Park. Jake is joined near the pitcher's mound by Eileen Howard Dunn, Vice President of Corporate Communications and Community Relations for CVS Caremark Corporation, who had just made a $25,000 donation on behalf of CVS/pharmacy to the Cerebral Palsy Program at Children's Hospital Boston. Jake is a Cerebral Palsy patient at the hospital and was invited by CVS/pharmacy and the Boston Red Sox to throw out the first pitch.

CVS/PHARMACY presented Children's Hospital Boston with $25,000 last night before the Sept. 25 Boston Red Sox/Oakland Athletics game at Fenway Park. The money was raised through the "CVS/pharmacy Saves" and "Extra Inning" programs. The money raised will specifically benefit Children's Hospital Boston's Cerebral Palsy program, which supports the enhancement of the functional capabilities of children with neuromuscular disorders. From left to right in back are: Dr. Laurie Glader, Medical Director of the Children's Hospital Boston Cerebral Palsy program, Red Sox mascot Wally the Green Monster, and Eileen Howard Dunn, Vice President of Corporate Communications and Community Relations for CVS Caremark Corporation. Standing in front is 7-year-old Quincy resident Jake Louzan - a Children's Hospital Boston Cerebral Palsy patient.

Father Bill's Merger Widens Fight Against Homelessness

What began 23 years ago as an emergency shelter in the basement of the former St. John's School in Quincy is spreading its wings to offer aid and comfort to the homeless all over southeastern Massachusetts.

Father Bill's Place, now a beacon of hope for the homeless in Quincy, last week announced its merger with Mainspring Coalition for the Homeless of Brockton into the newly formed Father Bills & MainSpring.

The Mainspring Coalition is the largest provider of homeless family services in the Brockton area, serving more than 1,000 adults and 300 children each year.

The primary focus of Father Bills & MainSpring will be to provide services to manage, prevent and end homelessness, not entirely through temporary shelter but through permanent supportive housing as well.

Other services will include providing food, clothing, job training, childcare, housing subsidies and alcohol and drug counseling as well as arranging for college educations for motivated young women through "One Family Scholar."

FR. WILLIAM MCCARTHY

"By merging our two organizations, our voice as an advocate for the homeless becomes unified and amplified," said the Rev. Adolph Wismar, pastor of the Wollaston Lutheran Church and chairman of the board of the Coalition.

"Together, we are in a better position to assist any homeless individual, child or family in southeastern Massachusetts."

"At the end of the day, our belief is nobody should be homeless," said John Yazwinski, president and CEO of Father Bills & MainSpring.

"Making that belief a reality is what fuels the passion and commitment of everyone involved in our newly formed organization."

Architect Selected For Merrymount Park Senior Center

The City's Designer Selection Committee has chosen the architectural firm of Graham/Meus to help design the planned senior center in Merrymount Park.

Graham/Meus was selected from 10 applicants in the City's Request for Qualifications process, noted Mayor Phelan.

Phelan announced plans last month to create Quincy's first comprehensive senior center in Merrymount Park. The senior center could feature social areas, technology classrooms, media rooms, a dance studio, bocce courts, tennis courts and more.

"We will task the architect with completing a very public process, including a charrette, to determine the best use of the space we have," said Phelan. "We have an absolutely perfect location in Merrymount Park, next to the running track, in the heart of the city, in the middle of our most beautiful park. Quincy's seniors deserve a place of their own instead of being relocated between the Fore River Clubhouse, the park and recreation complex, and other makeshift areas in the city. This will be a place that they will be proud to call their own."

Graham/Meus has developed a number of senior centers in Massachusetts and was selected because of their experience in developing similar projects, Phelan said. Principal Gary Graham will be the lead contact on the project, another plus for the Design Selection Committee.

"I am confident Graham/Meus will help this community develop a great senior center," said City Solicitor

Monica Conyngham, a member of the Designer Selection Committee. "Gary Graham and his team have impressive experience and have the ability to work with the public to turn their ideas into reality."

The process of designing the senior center will begin this fall. The City and architects will be working with the senior community to design the plan throughout the winter with construction anticipated in the spring of 2008.

"Our plan is to open up this facility to the entire community," Phelan said. "It is a great location and the existing buildings will allow us to develop a phenomenal senior center without unrealistic costs. This is a project that our city must do for the people that helped make our city great."

NHS First Time Homebuyer Workshop

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will host First Time Homebuyer Workshops on Monday, Oct. 15, 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 20, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at South Shore Savings Bank, 1584 Main St., Weymouth.

The workshops, held in conjunction with South Shore Savings Bank, are open to all residents throughout Massachusetts, regardless of income. The fee is $15.

Attendance at both sessions is necessary to receive a homebuying certificate. Participants must complete this workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Workshop topics will cover mortgage options, the legal aspects of buying a home, home inspections, and other related subjects. Participants will have an opportunity to speak with a lender.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Oct. 11, 1793, the death toll from a yellow fever epidemic in Philadelphia reaches 100. By the time it ended, 5,000 people were dead. Today 20,000 people still die every year from the disease.
- On Oct. 12, 1810, Bavarian Crown Prince Louis marries, with the citizens of Munich invited to attend the festivities. The decision to repeat the festivities in the subsequent year gave rise to the tradition of the annual Oktoberfest.
- On Oct. 14, 1911, Mary Pickford's contract with Independent Moving Pictures is voided when a court rules that she cannot be held to a contract she signed as a minor. Before Pickford, studios refused to identify their actors by name, correctly fearing that name recognition would drive up actors' salaries.
- On Oct. 8, 1944, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" airs its first episode on radio. The show, which moved to TV in the early '50s, focused on the comic situations of the real-life family of show founders and stars Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, and sons Ricky and David. Ricky became a successful rock musician and died in a plane crash in 1985.
- On Oct. 10, 1951, President Harry Truman signs the Mutual Security Act, announcing to the world that the U.S. was prepared to provide military aid to "free peoples," with an increase in military assistance to democratic nations. President Dwight Eisenhower abolished the Mutual Security Act in 1953.
- On Oct. 9, 1969, the National Guard is called in as demonstrations continue in Chicago protesting the trial of the "Chicago Eight." The trial involved charges against Abbie Hoffman and others, and stemmed from the violent antiwar demonstrations in Chicago during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.
- On Oct. 13, 1974, television talk-show legend Ed Sullivan dies. Sullivan gained national fame as host of "Toasts of the Town," later named simply "The Ed Sullivan Show," which ran for more than two decades.

A Little Mixed Up

Every now and then my mind wanders from Quincy to Washington.

And, I get the feeling that sometimes our leaders get things a little mixed up.

Like, President Bush vetoing a bill to increase funding for a program providing health insurance coverage for children in lower income families.

The bill, backed by most Democrats including Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry, and many Republicans, would add $35 billion to the State

KERRY

Children's Health Insurance Plan (SCHIP). That would increase the program's cost to $60 billion over a five-year period.

Too expensive.

Bush says.

It would be responsible for "federalizing" health care, he says.

And, beware, its come to benefit middle-class families.

Too expensive?

Too expensive to help needy children have health care coverage?

But let's keep spending those billions and billions of dollars-heading for the trillion mark-in Iraq. In a war that has become as popular as the one in Vietnam and has most people wanting our patriotic young men and women home and out of harm's way.

That $35 billion Bush doesn't want to spend for the children's health insurance plan, is a drop in the bucket compared to what he's spending in Iraq.

Not to mention the nearly 4,000 Americans killed. And the approximate 27,000 wounded. Not little flesh wounds. But the loss of arms and legs and severe mental wounds.

And, the Iraqi civilian deaths now up there in the many thousands.

If we ever get out of there, left hanging will be a nagging question: what did we really accomplish there? Was it worth the price in lives and money?

The SCHIP program was begun in 1997, designed to provide health care insurance to children in families earning too much to qualify for Medicaid but not enough to pay for private insurance.

Supporters of the bill-both Democrats and Republicans-are trying to put enough votes together to over-ride Bush's veto. At last reported they needed 15 more.

We don't have much trouble finding billions of dollars to spend around the world.

We give generously to the world needy and victims of catastrophes. We have money for our allies.

Aren't needy children here worthy of that help, too? And what about the deserving kids trying to go to college. Why can't we make it financially easier for them to get there?

There are scholarships and financial aid available from colleges, veterans, labor, fraternal, and civic groups.

But with the cost of tuition escalating, this help-though most appreciated-is not enough. Why can't the government do more?

Every deserving kid should be guaranteed the right to a college education. It would be one of our greatest investments. This country's future is in the hands of our young people.

But Washington seems to be slow on the draw when it comes to helping worthy causes but quick to roll out the old pork barrel.

Like that multi-million dollar highway built a few years ago down south that went nowhere. But it created jobs and no doubt helped get a local congressman re-elected.

And then the waste.

There was that super-duper outhouse in Pennsylvania that the Park Service ordered. It cost nearly $800,000 including $13,000 glorified toilet bowls. Wonder what the toilet tissue cost?

And there were those little things, like screws. According to a report by the Defense Department's inspector general, the government was paying over $75 each for screws you could pick up for something like 57 cents at your local hardware store.

And what about those electrical devices that go around $46 but for which the government was paying something like $714.

We blow all kinds of money. Money that could go to helping those in need.

Think of what one or two of those billions spent in Iraq could do to advance research in cancer, heart and Alzheimer's disease, multiple sclerosis and muscular dystrophy.

And education.

We spend too much time and money fighting questionable wars and not enough on helping our own in this country.

I think I'll wander right back to Quincy.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1934 postcard view of the water tower and reservoir on the top of Third Hill, also known as Forbes Hill, in Wollaston. The reservoir was first dug here in the late 19th century to provide water for fire fighting. New homes were being built in the Wollaston Heights subdivision on the adjacent Wollaston Hill and there was no way to get water up there for emergencies. The Metropolitan Water Commission later took over the site and built the larger reservoir shown here that held five million gallons of water. In 1903, they built the water tower that held another 330,000 gallons. There are spectacular views from the top of the tower. During World War II, the Civil Air Patrol used the tower as an observation deck. It now supports an array of antennas. The reservoir was filled in over 50 years ago and is now used for playing fields. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Jimmy Liang's Record Of Commitment Speaks For Itself

I have had the pleasure of living in Quincy the last 25 years.

Jimmy Liang was 19 and just out of North Quincy High School when I met him about 10 years ago.

At the time Jimmy, and fellow North Quincy High School graduate Peter Tae, both hard working restaurateurs extraordinaire, were opening Quincy's First Japanese Restaurant on Hancock Street and Wollaston.

One of the many ideals that makes our country so unique and great are the opportunities that exist for anyone who dreams and dares to be an entrepreneur, risk taker and innovator. If you want to give it a go, you can put your hard-earned money, time, energy, heart and soul into starting and running a small business. It's no easy task starting, running and continuing to run a small business successfully. It takes some doing.

Jimmy, Peter, their fine families, associates and employees will soon be opening their fourth fine restaurant in our city.

Where there were once dark empty storefronts are now successful, vibrant businesses that have created jobs, supported our commercial tax base and improved and enhanced our business districts in North Quincy.

Wollaston and downtown Quincy.

Jimmy Liang's record of commitment to our city speaks for itself. It is one of hard work and dedication to this community since he graduated from North Quincy High School.

We are extremely fortunate to have so many fine, dedicated, hardworking individuals in our great city who are willing to serve our families and community as volunteers, public servants, elected officials, political candidates and operators of small businesses.

Whether we agree with them or not, whether we vote for them or not, our elected officials and all those brave souls running for political office are all united in a common purpose and commitment to the continued progress for our city and well being of its citizens.

In all the upcoming contested local elections on Nov. 6, we can agree to disagree, without being too disagreeable, because the next day on Nov. 7, we will continue to be neighbors, friends, families and residents of this unique, diverse and historic City of Quincy, Massachusetts. It is a great place. We can all agree on that.

Flying Chinese Communist Flag Is An Insult

Normally I'm a very optimistic person, but it seems that lately my attitude, as reflected in letters I've penned to The Sun, have been more on the negative side, which is probably fitting since the mayoral race lately is so negative in tone.

My concern this time is in regards to Sal Giarratani's last letter about flying the Communist Chinese Flag in Wollaston. I am in total agreement with Mr. Giarratani's premise that it is a good thing to have the growing Asian population in Quincy become more involved in local politics. I support Victor Ng in his bid for councillor at-Large.

But one phrase in Mr. Giarratani's letter gave me serious pause. He wrote, "The flying of the People's Republic of China flag is less an insult to America and more an embarrassment to the...Asian population." Sorry Sal, but the flying of the Communist flag anywhere in America is an out-and-out insult to all Americans. Have we forgotten Korea and Vietnam and the tons of money, weapons, troops and support that the Chinese Communist party poured into those countries, resulting in the death or serious wounding of so many American fighting men and women? Or the current support they are supplying to Iran? I haven't and no Quincy voter should!

I understand that Jimmy Liang, running for the job of Ward 6 councillor, was allocated in the organization, which raises the flag. Communist China remains an enemy of the United States despite the money made from trade with them. (And America seems to be getting the short end of that deal too, as the recent recall of so many toys has shown.) I cannot support anyone who condones tyranny over the freedom and democracy of America. Take down the flag, Jimmy and represent the freedom loving Asian community as Americans, these good people deserve nothing less. Otherwise you do not deserve to represent Ward 6 or any other part of this great city.

As for you, Sal, well Dorchester's gain is Quincy's loss. You'll be missed.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Burgin, Della Chiesa, McIntyre Winners

By FRANK McCAULEY

Fine weather is predicted for tomorrow (Oct. 11) when Quincy voters will go to the polls to pick nominees for the city council and school committee.

The forecast for the preliminary election is sunny skies and warm weather. Of special interest will be the comparative political strengths shown by Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and former Mayor Thomas S. Burgin.

Also of interest will be the efforts of a number of strong candidates to displace present members of the city council.

NEWCOMERS UPSET COUNCIL CONTEST

There will be several new faces on the City Council for the next two years if the voters on Nov. 8 follow the trend set in yesterday's (Oct. 11) preliminary election when four present city councillors failed to finish in the first seven. Councillors Edna B. Austin, Carl W. Anderson, Alfred G. Helfrich and Frank E. MacDonald finished eighth, ninth, 10th and 13th respectively. On the other hand, former Mayor Thomas S. Burgin topped the ticket and newcomer James R. McIntyre was an easy third, Charles L. Shea was fifth and former Rep. Arthur I. Burgess was seventh.

Plan E Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa finished in second place, 46 votes behind former Mayor Thomas S. Burgin. (Editor's note: Under the Plan E Charter the city council was comprised of seven members elected at-large. In the Nov. 8th final election, Councillors Anderson and Austin would rebound and retain their council seats, while Councillor David J. Crowley, who finished fourth in the preliminary election, slipped to eighth position, finishing "out of the money" along with Councillors Helfrich and MacDonald.)

DUFFY TOPS SCHOOL RACE BY 400 VOTES

Paul Duffy, Mrs. Alice Mitchell and Mrs. Ethel B. Wiley, three present members of the school committee seeking re-election, topped the list of 10 candidates. Charles T. Sweeney finished in fourth position with 4,408 votes only 26 votes behind school committee member Wiley who polled 4,434 votes. (Editor's note: Mr. Sweeney would defeat Miss Wiley in the final election and go on to serve 20 years on the school committee.)

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

NORTH QUINCY HIGH School Concert Choir, under the direction of Timothy Carew, was awarded the Gold Medal after performing for judges in the Great East Music Festival held recently in West Springfield. The NQHS Concert Choir includes 62 members and is an elective music course for grade 9-12 students. At the festival, the group performed Cantate Domino, Song of the Sea and Chattanooga Choo Choo. The NQHS Select Choir, under the direction of Carew, was given the highest award, the Platinum Medal, by judges at the Great East Music Festival. The Select Choir includes about 20 members and meets after school. Students are chosen by audition to be part of the group. At the festival the group performed In These Delightful Pleasant Groves: Double, Toil and Trouble; and Come Fly With Me.

ENC To Present 'A Good Man, Charlie Brown'

The Communication Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College will present "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," a revival of the Peanuts comic strip on two weekends this month.

The performances will be given Thursday, Oct. 18, and Saturday, Oct. 20, with no

Friday show, and Thursday, Oct. 25, through Saturday, Oct. 27. All show times are 7:30 p.m.

The comic strip characters created by the late Charles Schulz come to life on the ENC stage as audiences see a reflection of themselves in the antics of Charlie Brown and the rest of the gang.

The production team will include director and set designer Michael Ballard, producer Eunice Ferreira, costume designer Margaret Ballard, lighting designer Tom Killberg and two guest artists.

The guests are ENC alumnus Jose Delgado, the music director, and Boston Conservatory graduate Shanna Heverly, choreographer.

General admission is $12m children 12 and under $10. For reservations or information, call the box office at 617-745-3715.

Great Depression Topic At Library

A four-part series on The Great Depression featuring films, lectures and discussions opened this week at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The series entitled "The Great Shake-up" will resume next Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the main library. The three additional sessions are "Face The Music," "Striking Back," and "Desperate Measures."

All sessions are held at the main library on each Tuesday through Oct. 30 beginning at 7 p.m.

Newbury College history Professor Dan Breen will speak on the background and issues of the period and guide discussion during the series.

Breen will help participants explore the causes of the catastrophic events that shook the country and the Roosevelt administration's response which changed the country's government.

According to historians, the Depression is considered the worst sustained economic crisis in United States history.

The Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library are sponsoring the series. The Friends sponsored a similar, successful series on the American experience in World War I.

No registration is required. For more information, call 617-376-1301 or visit thomascranelibrary.org.

Christmas Festival Hotline 617-376-1392

You know that Christmas is in the air when the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee sets up its Holiday Information Hotline.

A call to 617-376-1392 will clue you in on what you need to know of the myriad of events surrounding the 55th annual Christmas Parade on Sunday, Nov. 25.

They include turning on of the Christmas lights, Santa's arrival by parachute with four elves, the elementary school Christmas poster contest and a Christmas nativity pageant.

Also in what has become a great weekend of family entertainment, there is a children's puppet show, recognition of the 2007 poster contest winners, the parade awards event and Santa's mailbox, in which youngsters can send letters to Santa.

Halloween Fundraiser Oct. 26 For President's Sober Club

The soon-to-be President's Sober Club will hold a Halloween fundraising dance Friday, Oct. 26, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Mental Health Center cafeteria, 460 Quincy Ave., Quincy Point.

The concept of the Sober Club, which has the support of Gov. Deval Patrick, Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep.

Bruce Ayers, is an alcohol-free social club for all ages in Quincy. The site has not yet been chosen.

The fundraising dance will feature the music of Tuneology, a bake sale and a 50/50 raffle, the winner of which will be announced at the end of the night's festivities.

The cost is $5 and costumes are optional.

Jews And Irish Documentary At Library Oct. 29

The documentary film, "Of Stars and Shamrocks: Boston's Jews and Irish," will be shown Monday, Oct. 29, at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The film explores the immigration in the late 19th and early 20th century when Jewish and Irish immigrants settled in Boston and both groups faced bigotry, exclusion and exploitation.

Boston College Professor John Michalezyk directed the film which chronicles the interaction between the two ethnic communities over the last 100 years.

Diane Costagliola,

Adjunct Instructor of English at Simmons College and a member of the library staff, will lead an informal discussion after the film is shown.

The program is being held in conjunction with a reading and discussion series of Jewish Literature called "Let's Talk about It."

Grants provided by the Nextbook and the American Library Association are funding the program which is free and open to the public.

For more information, call 617-376-1301 or visit thomascranelibrary.org.

Rural Lodge Of Masons Installs New Officers

In an historic two-day event, Rural Lodge of Masons conducted its Installation of Officers and Investiture of its new Worshipful Master, Stephen D. Whitmore of Quincy at the Masonic Building on Hancock Street.

Highlights of the event included a visit by the Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts along with several Grand Lodge Officers, a parade of banners and flags presented by the leaders of other Massachusetts Masonic bodies including the Scottish and York Rites and the Shriners, and the presentation of donations to more than twenty Masonic and Quincy area community charities.

The Grand Master, Jeffrey B. Hodgdon of Lexington said more than 70 percent of Masonic charity goes to organizations and groups outside of the Masonic fraternity. In North America Masonic charity approaches nearly $3-million each day.

The Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts is the third ranking of some five million Freemasons in the world. Two of his more well-known predecessors include Paul Revere and General Joseph Warren, who led the Revolutionary troops at the battle of Bunker Hill.

The evening featured a visit by David S. Elsner, District Deputy Grand Master of the 8th Masonic District and a large suite of distinguished Masons.

The Installation of Officers and Investiture of Rural Lodge's new Worshipful Master, Stephen D. Whitmore, was conducted by Lawrence E. Piper, Jr., District Deputy Grand Marshal.

Following the Installation, more donations were presented local and Masonic charities from Rural Lodge, meeting in Quincy since its founding in 1801. A reception followed the ceremonies on both evenings.

Charities and organizations that benefited from Rural Lodge's donations and support during the event include Troop 53 of the Boy Scouts of America, Old Colony Chapter of the Order of DeMolay, Wollaston Assembly of the Order or Rainbow for Girls, The Shriners' Hospitals for Children, Quincy Public Schools - Children in Need program, the Veterans Administration Healthcare System, the Djerf Children's Center, Quincy

MASONIC DIGNITARIES invited to the Rural Lodge installation of Officers and Investiture of the Worshipful Master included (from left) Arthur E. Johnson, Past Grand Master; Jeffrey B. youth sports programs, Norfolk County Sheriff's Leadership Academy, Quincy Police Department Project Lifesaver, Quincy Public Schools, (William Low Scholarships), Quincy Medical Center (Marie Curry Cancer Walk), the Grotto Dentistry for the Handicapped program, Masonic Health System of Massachusetts, Rural Lodge's Quincy-area Military Family Support Program, Rural Lodge's - The Masonic Leadership Institute Scholarship fund, The National Heritage Museum in Lexington, the Grand Chapter of Massachusetts Royal Arch Masons Raymond T. Sewell Fund benefiting the Crotched Mountain School, the Scottish Rite 32° Masonic Learning Centers for Children (with Dyslexia), and the Cradles to Crayons program for low-income and homeless children.

Massachusetts is the birthplace of Freemasonry in the western hemisphere and the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts was established in 1733 and will celebrate its 275th Anniversary in 2008. Charity is one of the inherent values of Freemasonry that professes to make good men better. This unique event provided a dramatic demonstration of Rural Lodge's commitment to that ideal.

“...the best Quincy mayor in my memory.”

Francis X. Bellotti

October 12, 2007

Dear Friend,

As a taxpayer and voter in Quincy for more than fifty years, I would like to explain some of the reasons why I am voting for Mayor William Phelan.

Mayor Phelan is doing an outstanding job. He is the best Quincy Mayor in my memory.

After inheriting a fiscal situation so out of control that the State refused to certify the tax rate, Mayor Phelan went on to balance the budget, improve the bond ratings and hold the line on property taxes. As a result, our tax increases have been the lowest of any city in Massachusetts for the past three years.

As a former Massachusetts Attorney General for twelve years, I know first hand that crime and public safety are and should be matters of paramount concern to everyone. It is no small achievement that the FBI now ranks Quincy the second safest city in the State.

Mayor Phelan understands the debt we owe to our senior citizens who built this City. He has opened 200 units for seniors at Squantum Gardens and is planning a major new senior center.

Mayor Phelan not only led the fight to stop construction of the new Quincy High School on a toxic waste site, he has broken ground on a new state-of-the-art high school to give our children the first class education they deserve.

He has paid attention to our parks and beaches and worked hard to create more open space. He has improved our schools with smaller classes and literacy programs. His vision for smart business growth will mean tax relief for property owners and more jobs for Quincy residents.

I hope you will join me in voting to re-elect him on Tuesday, November 6th.

Sincerely,

Francis X Bellotti

READERS FORUM

Who Is Being Unreasonable?

Regarding your lead story Oct. 4 "Councilors Take Issue With Mayor On State Health Insurance Status": So now the City Councilors are experiencing the "Full Phelan Treatment" regarding the health insurance/re-election maneuvers of the Mayor! Now they have a better understanding of what City employees have been dealing with all along. Or "not dealing with," since successful negotiations seems to be a problem for this administration.

The City Council has been working diligently and appropriately on the health insurance and GIC issue. So have the City's unions. Yet both groups have felt the sting of Mayoral comments recently on this issue. Why?

First, both groups want to carefully study what is proposed. This is not encouraged by Mayor Phelan. He has studied the idea, and he has determined for everyone involved what is good for them; and he has determined what everyone should do. He is the "daddy-mayor." Imagine the nerve of City Councilors questioning the Mayor! And imagine those unions demanding to study in full, and educate their memberships in full, about the Mayor's plans! Everyone should capitulate, and meekly accede to this Mayor. If they do, they are "cooperative." If they don't they are "costing the taxpayers," and receive televised and campaign speech criticism.

The Council obviously does not oppose the GIC insurance plan; they want to study it and make sure that it's in the best interest of all involved. The employee unions don't oppose the state GIC plan; most don't know enough about it yet to have decided whether it has any advantages for them. Insurance is complicated; so should we...should anyone...simply accept what William J. Phelan says we should accept? We see the deck in front of us; but excuse us if we cut the cards. Isn't that reasonable behavior? Who is being unreasonable? Who is bullying whom?

The City employees believe that we should do things in an orderly manner; not jump when the Mayor demands. And the first order of business is for the City to settle the employment contracts that remain unsettled, well over a year after they expired. There remain at least a dozen contracts unsettled. We should get our City's house in order; and then deal rationally with health insurance and the GIC. We refuse to be bullied.

President, Quincy Education Association

Other Ordinances Not Being Enforced

This is in response to the problem the McGunigles' are having re: dogs roaming the streets, defecating on people's property, owners' not picking up after them, etc.

This is a citywide problem. There is an ordinance on the books regarding this problem and it should be enforced. However, there are ordinances on the books for other things that I think are just as important.

We have been complaining for years about cars speeding up and down our street. Complain, complain, and complain. Nothing done. Finally had stop signs installed. For every car that slows down (not stop), six cars go through them like they are not even there. Complain, complain, and complain. Still nothing done.

Also, there is an ordinance about cars parking overnight on city streets. Why do people who have driveways and off-street parking refuse to use them? They park on the street all night, every night. They take the spots of the people who do not have off-street parking, and those residents have to scramble at night for a spot. Complain, complain, and complain. Nothing done.

There is also an ordinance about not putting your trash out within 24 hours of your scheduled pick up day yet every day, no matter where you go, there is trash sitting on the sidewalks, put out anytime people feel like putting it out. That leads to the trash pickers ripping open the bags looking for cans and bottles and leaving the mess they make, which doesn't get picked up by anyone. That leads to animals like cats, dogs, skunks and so on getting into the trash. Complain, complain, and complain. Nothing done.

If these laws are on the books, why aren't they enforced? It is obvious the "Neighborhood Handbook" didn't work. Maybe if these laws are enforced with tickets, people will think twice.

The city is always looking for more revenue. This can lead to nothing but increased $$$ for the city, which could help keep property taxes down instead of going up.

Wants To Reach More Retirees

Moynihan Has Not Decided On Insurance Vote

By LAURA GRIFFIN
The issue of health insurance got even more confusing for the city's 2500 retirees after a Sept. 26 letter from Mayor William Phelan, according to Stephen Moynihan, president of the Quincy Retirees Association (QRA).

As president and founder of the QRA, Moynihan was selected as the designee in considering the state's health insurance program for the city's retirees.

Moynihan said this week that Phelan's letter implies that Moynihan will use his vote to transfer the retirees' health insurance to the state health program, known as the G.I.C. (General Insurance Commission).

"That is not accurate," said Moynihan who has repeatedly stated that the health insurance issue requires considerable study and negotiation. He said he is not against joining the G.I.C. but the issue deserves research and no decision has been made.

In addition, Moynihan said that he's unable to get a list of the city's retirees or have his letters on the insurance program mailed to all the city's retirees through

STEPHEN MOYNIHAN

City Hall.

On Monday, Moynihan described dozens of telephone calls that he has received from confused retirees who received Phelan's letter.

In an Oct. 1 response hand-delivered to Phelan, Moynihan writes, "I have received many calls concerning this (insurance) matter and would appreciate assistance from your office to help clarify any misconceptions drawn from your letter that my vote on the matter has been committed."

"I intend to negotiate in good faith on this very important issue that affects both active and retired employees and their families. Hopefully, my vote will take into consideration all those affected by the possible changes."

In a post-script directed at the retirees, Moynihan states, "there are advantages and disadvantages in transferring coverage to the State and should be understood by all parties before a vote is taken."

"The Retirees have a great deal at stake if something is rushed through as it cannot be changed easily. These changes will affect active employees who will be retiring in the future."

Moynihan wants to clarify the health insurance issue for the retirees but he said that City Hall officials have refused his repeated requests to access the retirees' mailing list.

"I was told that due to 'Privacy' they could not provide me with labels," Moynihan writes in an October 1 note to the 1400 members of the QRA.

Moynihan's current mailing list includes only about half of the city's retirees or the 1400 who have joined the QRA. However, he was selected to represent all retirees during the health insurance discussions and his vote will impact all retirees.

Moynihan can not contact the 1100 retirees who do not belong to the QRA even though he represents all of them on the Public Employees Committee (PEC). (Cont'd On Page 18)

John And Abigail Adams Wedding Re-enactment Oct. 25

By LAURA GRIFFIN

There's great hustle and bustle in both Weymouth and Quincy as the wedding date gets closer for John Adams and Abigail Smith.

"It's very exciting. It's like planning a real wedding," said Caroline Keinath, Deputy Superintendent of Adams National Historical Park, Quincy.

Keinath described plans for the re-enactment of "The Wedding of Abigail Smith and John Adams" Oct. 25, the couple's actual wedding date in 1764.

The countdown has begun. There are only 14 days left. The wedding gown must be finished; the special invitations sent out; the flowers found. They will lavender and wheat and other seasonal blooms.

This is a joint celebration planned by the National Park Service, the Abigail Adams Historical Society, Weymouth and First Church in Weymouth to celebrate the Adams legacy.

Both the Society and the Park Service are observing 60th anniversaries this year. The Adams family bequeathed the property at the Adams National Historical Park, Quincy, to the service 60 years ago.

Abigail Elias, is an eight generation direct descendant of President John Adams, will be the bride in a re-enactment of the Wedding of Abigail Smith and John Adams Oct. 25.

At 10 a.m. Oct. 25, Abigail will leave her birthplace, the modest red and gray gabled home at 180 Norton St., North Weymouth.

Abigail will be married at her father, Rev. William Smith's First Church in Weymouth, 17 Church Street, Weymouth. This is the oldest continuing congregation in the country, according to Keinath.

The church seats 400 and the public is welcome on a first come, first served basis. Invited guests include the mayors of Weymouth and Quincy and other local dignitaries.

The bride for the day, Abigail Elias, is an eight generation direct descendant of President John Adams. Elias who studied costuming and design in college and graduate school is sewing her own wedding dress. It will be a facsimile of an 18th century dress.

"I like the opportunity to make the dress," Elias said, noting that brides in Abigail's day did not go out and buy a wedding dress and weddings were very simple. "They wore their best dress."

"I'm going to try to make it a sack dress," Elias said, describing the style of Abigail's era which featured material flowing like a cape in the back. The chosen cloth is cotton with a slight sheen in a pale duck's egg blue.

Elias, an artist and illustrator, currently conducts tours at the Adams homes and grounds where her ancestors moved 22 years after their wedding.

Most weddings took place in the family home, according to Elias. It is likely that Abigail and Adams were married in Rev. Smith's parsonage.

Few details are known about the actual wedding.

This reenactment is intended as a celebration to spark interest in the Adams history, rather than an actual representation.

Actor Michael Lepage who frequently acts as historical figures on stage will portray John Adams. He will be wearing a replica of Adams' wedding day vest sewn by Henry Cook of Randolph.

Cook has completed dozens of other replications for the National Park Service and the United States Army, including full outfits for George Washington displays.

Some 400 Weymouth elementary school students will line the streets as Abigail heads to the First Church in Weymouth, 17 Church St., Weymouth, where her father, Reverend Smith, will officiate at the vows.

"We're hoping for a sunny day," said Marianne Peak, Superintendent, Adams National Historical Park, Quincy. Peak believes that engaging the young children in the pageant offers a wonderful educational opportunity, particularly for the young girls to learn about Abigail Smith Adams.

Peak is also delighted with the joint effort by the Abigail Adams Society, the park service and the church.

Once the vows are concluded, the wedding party and guests will travel to the couple's home, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace, 141 Franklin Street, Quincy. There, they will offer a toast to the new couple at 1 p.m.

Like all of the earlier celebrations, the toast will be a simple affair.

For more information, call 781-335-4205 or www.abigailadamsbirthplace.org or www.nps.gov/adams.

Says City Ignored Request For Details

Logue Wants Concourse Demo Halted Until State Reviews Completed

The City of Quincy ignored a request for detailed information from one of the state agencies reviewing the Quincy Center Concourse project, and instead began bulldozing buildings in downtown Quincy prior to the review's completion, councillor at-large candidate Jennifer McCauley Logue says.

Logue, who has reviewed correspondence between the City of Quincy and the Massachusetts Historical Commission, said that in a letter dated June 14, 2007 to City Planning Director Dennis Harrington, the Commission identified numerous historically significant buildings that fall within the city's proposed urban renewal district.

The letter called upon the city to provide extensive additional materials, including "detailed and overall streetscape photographs, keyed to a map...clearly printed, large-format, high-resolution photographs of the buildings proposed for demolition, keyed to a sketch map" and "plans, elevations and perspective views" of the Hancock Parking Lot and Ross Parking Garage, both of which the city plans to demolish.

"This letter was sent to City Hall on June 14-yet just days later, on June 19, the city went ahead and began bulldozing buildings for the Concourse without providing any of the requested information," Logue said. "It appears as though the city is determined to bulldoze as much of Quincy Center as possible in order to prevent state agencies such as Mass. Historical Commission from exercising their proper oversight of this project."

Even more disturbing, Logue said, is the fact that the city has moved forward with the Concourse project at all, given a 1996 adverse finding against the project by the Mass. Historical Commission.

Logue said that in a June 13, 1996 letter to the state Secretary of Environmental Affairs, MHC Director Judith McDonough wrote of the Concourse:

"I have determined that the project, as currently proposed, constitutes an adverse effect that would diminish the integrity of the historic district's design, setting, materials, feeling and association. MHC staff request the opportunity to review more detailed project plans as they become available...in addition, MHC staff request the opportunity to consult with project proponents...regarding alternatives that could eliminate, minimize or mitigate the adverse effect of this project...."

Logue also rebuked the city for providing "inaccurate information" to the state as justification for the Concourse Project. She pointed to the Executive Summary of the city's "Quincy Center Urban Revitalization District Plan," which states: "Unfortunately, during the last 35 years, only three new developments-the Stop & Shop building and garage, the Presidents Place development and the Quincy Fire

Pre-Schoolers Study The Human Body At Beechwood Center

Pre-schoolers at Beechwood on The Bay studied the body's skeleton and blood systems as part of the September project designed for three-to-five year olds.

Using tools in their Outdoor Classroom, the youngsters built a life-size human skeleton with paper towels and cardboard. They then painted the skeleton white and studied the names of the bones, such as tibia, ribs, femur, and patella.

The children also constructed a heart with tubing which represented the arteries. They pumped red-colored water through the pretend arteries and veins simulating the way the heart pumps blood through the body's vessels and veins. Through the project, the youngsters learned how blood travels from head to toe, and to every place in between.

Phelan Committee Launches Community Endorsement Videos

The Committee to Elect Mayor William Phelan has launched a new Web site feature of community endorsement videos.

The short clips highlight Quincy residents who are supporting Phelan's candidacy for re-election.

The Web site is www.votemayorphelan.org. The short clips will feature residents from throughout Quincy's neighborhoods explaining why they are backing Phelan's campaign.

The first video features PJ Foley of Houghs Neck. Foley is a community activist and nationally recognized environmentalist. He has been awarded an Environmental Protection Agency "Environmental Hero" award for his work to restore marshlands throughout Verizon.

"I am overwhelmed by the full breath of support I have received from a vast array of people," said

Phelan. "I appreciate the support and help of the thousands of people that have joined my campaign to keep Quincy moving in the right direction."

"I appreciate the innovation of our web team in telling the story of our campaign," Phelan said. "This new method will provide visitors with a chance to hear from citizens, not just the candidate, about why they should vote for Bill Phelan. I appreciate the time of all of our volunteers."

"But apparently, the only way the city can justify this unnecessary project is to portray Quincy Center as being in a state of utter stagnation and economic freefall," Logue said. "And it's simply not true."

Logue called upon the city to immediately halt any further Concourse demolitions or business displacements pending completion of all necessary reviews by state agencies charged with the project's oversight.

"It's bad enough when City Hall won't listen to the many Quincy residents who oppose the Concourse," Logue said. "But to provide false information to a state agency and then disregard that agency's oversight authority demonstrates a shocking arrogance and disdain for public due process."

Phase III Work To Start On Center Concourse

The project also will include new traffic signals at the intersection of Washington Street and McGrath Highway, wider sidewalks, a landscaped median strip, new lighting and full reconstruction and resurfacing of the highway.

"People will see significant improvements both functionally and aesthetically," said Public Works Commissioner Steve O'Donnell.

"Traffic calming measures such as lane narrowing, pedestrian improvements with center islands and new crosswalks, a landscaped median and buried utilities will make this road significantly improved.

"This stretch will complete the link from Route 3A to Quincy Center and open up our downtown."

Phase I, completed several years ago, is the Paul D. Harold Memorial Bridge over Burgin Parkway and the MBTA tracks.

Phase II, the final phase of the Concourse plan, connecting Phases I and III through the Hancock Street business district, is approaching the 75 per cent design stage with demolition of property at 11-13 Revere Rd. set to begin next week.

Property acquisitions and the demolition of buildings adjacent to Hancock Street will continue through the fall and winter.

Moynihan Has Not Decided On Insurance Vote

The PEC includes representatives from all city unions. The committee will vote on whether the city joins the state's health insurance program. The retirees' vote by Moynihan represents 10% of the required 70% majority needed to join the state plan.

Moynihan said he contacted Roberta Kety, Personnel Director for the city. Kety is sending a mailing out to retirees on the state's insurance program.

Moynihan would like his letter to be included in that mailing and said that he will provide the labels, the postage and volunteers necessary to insert his letter in the mailing.

Kety said the decision has not been made as to including Moynihan's information in the City Hall packet.

Similarly, Phelan's Director of Operations, David Murphy, said this week that the mayor is committed to helping Moynihan inform the city's retirees on the health insurance issue.

However, Murphy, like Kety, was non-committal when asked if Moynihan's letter would be included in the city's mailing on health insurance.

"To me, it's disingenuous of the mayor," said Ralph White, President of the Retired State, County and Municipal Employees Association of Massachusetts.

White selected Moynihan as the city's designee because he is the founder and president of the QRA. White said Moynihan has the same legitimate reason to contact all the retirees as Phelan does.

"It's a one-sided situation," said White adding that the QRA is a "bona fide retiree organization" and needs the same opportunity to reach all the retirees as Phelan does.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Practice Your Escape Plan

Still learning! In researching this article, I discovered that Fire Prevention Week is proclaimed by the President of the United States to mark the anniversary of the Great Chicago Fire of 1871.

Fire Prevention Week takes place this week, October 7th through the 13th. This year the theme is "Practice Your Escape Plan." The focus is on planning and practicing an escape from your home in the event of a fire.

Home fires killed 3,030 people in 2005, roughly eight people every day, while only 23% of households have actually developed and practiced a home fire escape plan. The time to develop an escape plan isn't during an actual emergency. Smoke obscures visibility while it can easily confuse and affect our judgement. Following your escape plan should be an automatic response.

Plan a home fire escape route: Locate all windows, halls and stairways that can be used to exit the building. Make certain that door locks and window latches are functional, working properly. Make certain that windows are not painted shut or too difficult to open. Security bars, if present, should have a quick release feature.

Have two ways out of each room. Crawl low beneath smoke: Where heat and smoke tend to rise, the freshest coolest air will be down low by the floor. Roll out of bed onto the floor and crawl to a primary exit and if unusable, your predetermined secondary exits. A secondary exit can be another doorway, stairway or window. If you must go to a window, don't jump; open the window and signal for help.

Choose a meeting place: Choose a spot outside and away from the home where all family members can meet and confirm each other's safety. How tragic would it be to have all family members escape and have someone re-enter not knowing all are safe and well? Designate a meeting spot to confirm full evacuation.

Call 911 from a neighbor's house.

Practice, practice, and practice: Discuss your plan with family members so that everyone understands their options. Review your plan occasionally, conduct an actual drill and do so during the evening hours as well simulating an evacuation while all are in their bedrooms. Will someone need assistance? Then predetermine a plan to help that family member.

Remember, when the alarm sounds: Leave the building; get out and stay out; go to the family meeting place; dial 911 from a neighbor's house. Wait at the meeting place for the fire department to arrive and let them know that everyone is safe.

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

HAMMERTOE

Hammertoe is the abnormal bending of the toe joints, which can occur in all the toes except the big one. Symptoms include pain in the toe joint, especially when wearing shoes, as well as visible corns and calluses. Tendon or muscle imbalance is a common cause for hammertoe, as are ill-fitting shoes that cramp the toes. Hammertoes usually start out fairly mild but get worse with time. Treatment in the early stages is easy and effective, but the condition requires surgery if left untreated too long. Hammertoe will never resolve on its own. Your podiatrist can trim and/or pad any resulting corns or calluses, prescribe and orthotic device, or recommend different footwear to treat hammertoe.

If you are the victim of hammertoes, you don't have to let it get you down. The relief you are seeking is available at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Our facilities are fully equipped with leading edge technology for your care and comfort, and our staff is particularly skilled in helping with all kinds of foot conditions, such as joint problems, bunions, nail and skin conditions, sports injuries, diabetic issues, and hereditary concerns. For an appointment for complete podiatric care for adults and children, please call 781-986-3668. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and the Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

P.S: Doctors commonly recommend that people with hammertoe take ibuprofen for the pain and discomfort of the condition.

Four Community Leaders To Be Honored At Mayor's Boy Scout Breakfast

The Mayor's annual brunch for the Boy Scouts will be held Tuesday, Oct. 30, at 8 a.m. at the Granite Links Golf Club, 100 Quarry Hills Drive, West Quincy.

Proceeds from the event, which is hosted by Mayor William Phelan, will benefit scouting in the city of Quincy and the Boston Minutemen Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The brunch will honor special persons who have been identified as exemplifying behavior that makes scouting a worthwhile endeavor and their contributions to the community.

The 2007 recipients are Karl Douglas and Steven Briggs of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co. and Peter Forman, president and CEO of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

The Briggs family, father and two sons, have been with Quincy Mutual since 1954 when Karl graduated from Tufts University. Former president, CEO and secretary, he is now chairman emeritus.

Douglas, who has a BS in engineering from Cornell and an MBA from Babson College, joined his father and has been secretary, treasurer, vice president and, since 1985, president and CEO of the company.

Steven, who has worked at Quincy Mutual since 1981, studied education at Bridgewater State College and serves as senior vice president of claims.

Forman was a Republican state representative from Plymouth for 14 years, four of them as House minority leader, and Plymouth County sheriff from 1995 to 2000. He was named to head the Chamber of Commerce in 2005.

The event committee is chaired by Anthony Agnitti of Agnitti Insurance Co., Inc., and Daniel J. Flynn III of Daniel J. Flynn Co., Inc., both past award recipients, and Thomas O'Connell of Marina Bay Management Services.

They were assisted by Ray Theberge, district commissioner for Boston Minutemen Council; Kathy Kelly, Century Bank; Kim DiBona of Mayor Phelan's office; Jim Barbieri, Holbrook Cooperative Bank; Dean Rizzo, Quincy 2000; and Maralin Manning of Quincy Business Association.

For a reservation to the brunch, call Diana Donahue at 617-615-0004, extension 317.

25 Homes Recognized In 'Neat Neighbor' Contest

Owners of 25 homes have been recognized in the Park Department's sixth annual "Neat Neighbors" contest.

The recipients were randomly selected from a field of more than 300 nominees based on maintaining their properties in the spirit of a Cleaner, Greener Quincy.

"The condition of privately owned properties creates a substantial impact on the city as a whole," said Mayor William Phelan. "It is such a pleasure to see residents take pride in maintaining their property for the betterment of their neighborhood and city."

The twenty-five winners, their homes and the person who nominated them are:

Cynthia Antonopolis, 121 Manet Ave. - nominated by Anne Condon.

Walter Rice, 282 Palmer St. - multiple nominations.

Peter and Susan Horsford, 87 Albattross Rd. - nominated by Sam McCullough.

Keith and Lydia Maher, 30 Newton St. - nominated by Sam Burke and Frank Maher.

Diane Romanowski, 28 Bell St. - nominated by Lori Parsons.

Ruth Jones, 95 High St. - nominated by The McDonoughs.

Gloria Kavel, 60 Baxter

Ave. - nominated by Marion Marani and Ms. White.

Steve Baxter, 1000 Southern Artery - multiple nominations.

Edward Anderson, 21 Stoney Brae Rd. - nominated by Marguerite Ladas.

Edward and Theresa Marino, 37 Montclair Ave. - nominated by Rose Mysiuk.

Thelma Rice, 183 Wilson Ave. - nominated by Marion Colclough.

Richard Foye, 99 Brooks Ave. - nominated by Sue Pettiti.

Mike and Mollie Naughton, 150 Plymouth Ave. - nominated by Rich and Theresa Ryan.

Anne and John Erickson, 78 Grove St. - nominated by Anne Naples.

Karen DiOno, 52 Barry St. - nominated by Christine Delorey.

John and Mildred Tanner, 17 Smith St. - nominated by Nancy Connolly.

David Hennessy, 144 Marlboro St. - nominated by Don Murphy.

John Lynch, 226 Fenno St. - nominated by Irene Lynch.

Arthur and Helen Adams, 108 Vassall St. - nominated by Gladys Caldwell.

Pat and Jim O'Mahony, 285 Billings Rd. - nominated anonymously.

Suzanne Loke, 43 Ellington Rd. - nominated by Carolyn Leuchte.

Michael Coffey, 29 Aphorp St. - nominated by Gayle Coffey.

Jack Adduci, 84 Ashworth Rd. - nominated by Karen Costello.

James Manning, 45 Lansdowne St. - nominated by Josh Wilson.

Anthony Grasselli, 134 Independence Ave. - nominated by Edith Grasselli.

Each of the 25 winners will receive a gift certificate to a local garden center.

"Though it is impossible to recognize all those who contribute to the beautification, we applaud the Neat Neighbor winners, nominees and those who took the time to nominate them for their efforts that continue to make Quincy such a desirable community to have a home," said Phelan.

The contest was conducted under the supervision of the Park Department. Each of the properties was nominated during a period spanning Memorial Day to Labor Day. The winners were chosen at random from all the nominees that met the requirements set forth. There was no competitive judging in the selected process.

Mentor. Slowe was also an Operational Partner for the First Robotics League and helped coordinate a 40-team robot competition for middle school students.

For the past three summers, Slowe worked as baseball umpire for the South Shore Umpires Association.

Await Second Autopsy Results In Quincy Soldier's Death

CIARA M. DURKIN

The ashes of Army Specialist Ciara Durkin of Houghs Neck have been buried in Quincy, Ireland and Arlington National Cemetery but the mystery surrounding her death in Afghanistan remains.

A second independent autopsy was performed on her body in Massachusetts Sunday but Justice Griffin, spokesman for the Durkin family, results would not be available for a couple of weeks.

And even then, she said, we don't expect them to be released.

The body of Durkin, 30,

William Phelan in attendance.

It was Kerry's office that arranged the second autopsy at the request of the Durkin family, to whom their sister had hinted at problems she was having on the base.

Ciara's sister, Aine Durkin from Ireland, read a poem, first in Gaelic, then in English, ending with the word "our Ciara with the wild red hair."

Her brother, Pierce, delivered the eulogy and several hundred people lined School Street as her coffin was carried by with full military honors.

a financial specialist, was found Sept. 28 with one bullet in her head on grounds of the secure Bagram Air Base in Afghanistan.

Funeral services were held Saturday at St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy with Sen. John Kerry, Gov. Deval Patrick and Mayor

Phelan Names Committee To Study City's OPEB

Mayor William J. Phelan has named a committee to take a detailed look at the city's Other Post Employment Benefits (OPEB) unfunded liability report.

Committee members are Richard Fitzpatrick, City Auditor; Cinder McNeerney, First Southwest; Councillor John Keenan, City Council Finance Chairman; Marie Brinkmann, City Benefits Coordinator; Liz Allard, Mayor's Office and a member of the Insurance Advisory Board.

Phelan said this is in response to a new accounting standard. Government Accounting Standards Board's Statement 45 (GASB 45). GASB 45 requires all municipalities in the Commonwealth with revenues of $100 million or more to conduct an actuarial valuation of their OPEB as of July 1, 2007.

The city hired Buck Consultants to conduct the actuarial.

Fitzpatrick said, "If the city were to remain under the current method of 'pay-as-you-go,' our unfunded liability would total $435 million. With a prefunded plan in place the unfunded liability would total $214 million. I applaud Mayor Phelan for recognizing the importance of this new reporting mechanism."

According to GASB 45, by the end of fiscal year 2008, the city must have a comprehensive plan in place to fund this liability in the future.

"I am pleased that we are ahead of the curve on this very important issue," said Phelan. "Most communities in Massachusetts are in the beginning stages of their actuarial study. Without a plan in place the city may experience an adverse effect on the city's bond rating. Credit rating companies want to see that governments are taking OPEB liabilities seriously. A downgrade of the city's bond rating has the potential to be detrimental to the future of Quincy. We have a talented committee planned and I believe we can plan in the best interests of the city's future."

Preliminary ideas the committee will consider consist of trust funds established with funding sources which include savings from the GIC and Pension Obligation Bond, Stabilization funds, Medicare D reimbursement and Stop Loss Insurance reimbursement.

"We have worked hard to get our finances in order and this is not something that can be ignored," Phelan said. "I am confident this committee will perform due diligence and will create a realistic and effective plan."

Cardinal Delivers 'Theology On Tap' At Bad Abbotts Pub Here

When Father Michael Drea, a newly minted priest at St. Ann's Church in Wollaston, wanted to reach out to young adult Catholics, he knew just where to go — an Irish pub in Quincy called Bad Abbotts.

In the second of six fall sessions last night (Wednesday), at 7 p.m., the "six-pack series," as it has come to be called, drew the superstar of them all, the Cardinal himself, Sean O'Malley, to lead the discussion.

"Theology on Tap," to give it its formal title, began 25 years ago in the Chicago archdiocese to bring young Catholics who had fallen away back to the church and give those still involved a chance to learn more in a comfortable atmosphere.

And what is more comfortable than an Irish pub?

Father Drea, newly ordained, arrived at St. Ann's in 2004, ready to meet his own generation on their own terms in the places where they feel most at ease.

"Growing up in Whitman, I knew so many young adults in the Quincy area," he said. "There were a lot of programs for the kids and the elderly but the 20 to 30 age group was forgotten."

Scouting the bars in Quincy, Father Drea came upon Bad Abbotts as the ideal place with a welcoming atmosphere — "the Irish pub feel. If you've ever been to an Irish pub you know the family atmosphere."

Peter Kerr, owner of Bad Abbotts, was all for it and the first session was held last June with the first speaker and discussion leader Bishop John Dooherty, the South Regional Auxiliary Bishop.

Another visiting theologian was Sister Olga, the campus minister at Boston University, an Iraqi nun.

"I met the Cardinal at a meeting one day and I asked him if he would like to come to one of our sessions," said Father Drea. "He is always interested in the young. He said he would love to."

The average attendance at the meetings has been around 50 to 55 people, some of whom have been known to hoist a pint or two during the services.

"You don't have to drink," said Father Drea. "You can have a glass of soda or water or even eat a meal while the discussion is going on. The talks last for five or 10 minutes, then it's open to questions. You can participate as much as you like."

After last night's session, there will be four more to make up the fall series, all on Wednesdays Oct. 4, Nov. 14 and 28, and Dec. 5, all at 7 p.m. and all at Bad Abbotts, 1546 Hancock St. rear, on the parking lot.

A winter series of six also is planned.

Clasby Resigns As COA Director Over Senior Center Planning

"Why a candidate for mayor and the Council on Aging director would oppose fulfilling the citizen's promise to our seniors is anybody's guess."

David Murphy, spokesman for the mayor, said when the city got the land park land back from the federal government in 1978, one of the conditions was that the city put a senior center on the spot.

"The mayor was unaware of that until a few years ago," said Murphy.

Clasby, 43, the Squantum native who was appointed director by then-Mayor James Sheets in 1999 and reappointed six times by Phelan, said he raised serious concerns about locating the center in Merrymount Park several months ago but his fears were never even considered.

The Merrymount area, he said, is already crowded with Adams Field, the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater, a planned track facility and soccer fields that are bound to create traffic and parking problems when two or more events coincide.

"Disagreements happen," he said, "and they can and should be discussed. But you can't have those discussions if the disagreements aren't allowed to be raised.

"We only have one chance to do a senior center the right way and I do not believe we're heading in that direction right now."

Clasby said his small role in planning for the senior center included touring facilities for the elderly in other communities and making a series of recommendations to the mayor's office.

"From what I've been allowed to see of current plans," he said, "none of those recommendations were considered."

He added he had not taken part in any formal planning sessions and when his office reviewed other sites for the center around Quincy, its recommendations were ignored.

"When the project was brought up for a budget hearing at the City Council," he said, "I was forced to discuss and defend it without receiving any information from the mayor's office."

"And this isn't just about my involvement. The board of directors for the Council on Aging should be much more heavily involved."

Clasby called the decision to leave the director's job a "painful" one, adding that he will miss working with the thousands of seniors the department serves each year.

Among his major accomplishments in the last eight years he listed the Elder Services Plan, a blueprint to identify the needs of seniors and develop associated programs.

He said he is also proud of his constant lobbying for increased transportation programs and new vans, coordinating the annual Senior Olympics, creating new services and keeping seniors informed on major issues.

Programs started under his tenure included monthly hearing screening, monthly podiatry visits, weekly blood pressure screening, a Scrabble club, a bridge club, a monthly reverse mortgage explanation, bone density tests, trips to Foxwoods and Mohegan Sun and the Elder Update cable TV show.

"I've made many great friends and I know I'll have great relationships with Quincy seniors," he said. "This has been one of the most rewarding experiences of my life."

Clasby's Tuesday resignation was effective immediately but he told Phelan he was still available to help his successor with the transition and "make sure the services provided by the department continue without problems."

THIS IS A HAMMER

Readers to the Rescue

Q. Recently in your column, you responded to a question from Pat in Atlanta regarding difficulty in identifying the burner controls on stoves. It is a well-known problem, but there is a simple solution. Burners are different in size. Pull off the plastic knobs of the smaller ones and get a handyman to file them down until they are visibly and tactilely different, even in dim light. Range manufacturers should have thought of this. — H.T.H., Orlando, Fla.

A. Many thanks! Smaller burner controls corresponding to the smaller practical idea. Come to think of it, filing the controls into a different shape (like a square rather than a circle), would make them instantly identifiable. You're right, range manufacturers should put more thought into this.

Q. In answer to "Virginia," the person who was having trouble cleaning hard water spots from her windows, there is a simple way to clean these spots from your window panes. Believe me, I tried everything on mine. Then in desperation I got a can of WD-40, sprayed a little on and presto, clean as a whistle. I did use window cleaner to get the oily film off — or a little warm water and soap will do it, too. Hope this helps — Edna L., Apopka, Fla.

A. Man, is there anything that all-purpose penetrating oil can't do? Thanks, Edna, for passing along a great tip!

THIS ROOMING HOUSE 15-17 Phipps St. in Quincy, which was purchased last year, has been completely renovated. This is how it appeared before the renovations.

TODAY — This residence at 15-17 Phipps St. in Quincy, which has been renovated, is an example of an Italian double house of the 1870s. It is being sold as four separate condo units.

Open House At Quincy Historic Home Oct. 18

Quincy real estate agent Madelene Semeria of Century 21 Abigail Adams invites local residents, politicians, local business owners and the media to a public open house reception at 15-17 Phipps St. on Thursday, Oct. 18 from 6-8 p.m.

Attendees will be given a tour of this recently converted historic home.

For years, local Quincy residences have expressed concern with the popularity of rooming houses. Working to better the city, one local investor has taken steps toward improving the city, and restoring historical importance.

Recently purchased and renovated was a well-known rooming house located at 15-17 Phipps St. The property was purchased toward the end of 2006 and was completely renovated.

The home is currently being sold as four separate condo units. The four units consist of two, two-bedroom condo units and two, four-bedroom condo units. Each unit is loaded with modern amenities and contemporary details with historical charm. Semeria invites all to take a tour of this property to get a true appreciation for Old Town Quincy.

The residence at 15-17 Phipps Street is a fine example of an Italian double house of the 1870s. The home may carry some historical importance and was believed to be owned by Daniel W. Baxter. The Baxter family was among the early settlers in Quincy and was very prominent in the city for many generations.

The recent owner's restorations include original pine floors, original staircase banisters, ornate exterior window caps, bracketed portico with chamfered square posts and unique rooflines including double brackets under the eaves. The two doors are also original to the construction of the house.

"It is amazing how many neighbors have stopped by to view the changes this property has gone through," said Semeria. "This open house reception is a great opportunity for local Quincy residents that have seen the transformation of the property from the outside to finally experience it from the inside."

The Open House Reception is from 6-8 p.m. on Oct. 18. Appetizers and refreshments will be served and the event is open to the public, media, local business owners or anyone looking to network in their community.

For more information on this property, log on to www.MA.HomesForSale.com. For a private showing, contact Madelene at (617) 894-1124.

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, Sept. 27, at approximately 3 p.m., Detective Brian Coen, working in plain clothes with other Detectives, observed a male walking on Townhill Street towards Centre Street, then cross over to Station Street and out of view.

The male party then reappeared talking on his cell phone, looking into each car as it passed by. Since it appeared that he was waiting for someone and acting suspicious, the detectives kept him under surveillance.

The detectives took up various observation spots and watched the male walk to the intersection of Centre Street and West Street, stopping at the traffic signal control box. At this time, the male reached into his pocket and started writing all over the box with the marker. The male (suspect) then put the marker away and headed to Townhill Street.

Detective Coen radioed Detectives William O'Brien and Ed Ryan that he was going over to the suspect to place him under arrest. As the detectives approached the suspect, Detective Coen identified himself as a police officer and informed the suspect he was under arrest for defacing city property.

After being read and explained Miranda Rights, the suspect said, "For what, for writing what?" After being told that the detectives were watching him, the suspect was asked what he wrote. He replied, "T.S.I.". When asked what that stood for, the suspect said, "The Slick Individuals."

When asked if T.S.I. were considered a gang, the suspect said, "No, just me and a couple of friends from Connecticut."

Detective Coen reached into the suspect's pocket and took into evidence a large permanent paint "Molotov High Quality Paint Marker." At this time, the suspect blurted out, "I got some weed too." Detective Coen reached into the same pocket and came out with a plastic sandwich bag containing marijuana. Inside the bag were three individual zip lock bags that also contained marijuana, as well as some empty bags.

Based on their experience, the detectives believed that the suspect wrapped the marijuana for distribution - to sell.

A further search of the suspect showed that he had $166 in various denominations in his wallet. The suspect was transported to the station for booking.

Detective Coen took photographs of the damage to the traffic control box and then retraced the steps the suspect took to look for additional graffiti. At the corner of Centre and Station Street, Detective Coen took photographs of a mailbox that had the same markings as those that the suspect wrote on the signal box. The suspect, a 20-year-old Unionville, Connecticut resident, was charged with "Possession of Class D" with the Intent to Distribute and two felony counts of "Wantonly Injuring Real Property."

The money found on the suspect was seized pending civil forfeiture since it is believed that it came from illegal drug sales. The marijuana was sent to the lab for testing and the marker placed into evidence for court purposes.

Nice Work! (No photo could be submitted since the officers involved are detectives and wish to remain faceless.)

UPS Scam: Be wary of an overseas company using the name of UPS attempting to get your personal information.

The ruse is simple; the caller identifies himself as a UPS agent trying to send you a package, but they need your date of birth and social security number. These calls can be live or come as pre-recorded instructions. The return number on the recording is listed to Best Courier Service out of the United Kingdom.

The message instructs you to leave your name, date of birth and social security number and you will soon be contacted. Since these scam artists are seeking social security numbers, this scam is focused on the United States. Bottom line: do not give out personal information to anyone you do not know.

As far as UPS goes, they use tracking numbers along with name and address only. If you are unsure, call UPS directly. They will be able to tell you if there is truly a package waiting to be delivered to you.

Nutrition In A Nutshell

FDA: Use The Nutrition Facts Label to Make Healthy Food Choices

(NAPS) – Since the late 1980s, adult obesity has steadily increased to the point at which more than 65 percent of all Americans are now overweight and over 30 percent are obese. Also, 15 percent of children and adolescents ages 6 to 19 are overweight-nearly double the rate of two decades ago. Prevention of obesity is based on managing energy balance.

The Food and Drug Administration says a great tool to help manage calorie intake is the Nutrition Facts Label on food packages. The label has a lot of useful information, especially the number of calories and serving sizes in your food.

When you select or compare foods, see what the label says about the serving size and calories. Ask yourself these important questions:

What is the serving size?

How many servings are in the container?

Many packages hold more than one serving. When you consume multiple servings, it is easy to eat or drink much more than you realize. This can affect your calorie intake (and over time, your weight). If you eat and drink more calories than you burn, you will gain weight. To achieve or maintain a healthy weight, be mindful of calories when comparing like products.

How many calories are high or low for a serving? This depends on your calorie goal for the day and how you balance your food choices during the day. In general, though, follow this guide to size up calories in a single serving.

General Guide to

Calories:

40 calories – LOW

100 calories –

MODERATE

400 calories – HIGH

The Nutrition Facts Label is based on a 2,000-calorie diet-but your calorie needs might be different. To find out what your "target" calories per day are, visit www.mypyramid.gov or visit www.cfsan.fda.gov/label.html for information on using the Nutrition Facts Label.

Getting Started at a Fitness Center

Q. I just joined a fitness club. As a new member, what should be my first step toward getting started?

A. Congratulations on the decision to make your health a priority. A fitness club can offer many resources to help you on your fitness journey. How you use your club membership after enrollment can determine the strides you make toward your fitness goals. Joining a fitness club can be a great commitment of money, but more importantly, it needs to be an even greater commitment to yourself and your health.

Uncertainty about where to begin after joining a fitness facility can sabotage your desire to get fit. First, take advantage of any initial sessions offered to you to meet with a fitness team member. Most fitness clubs will offer one to three sessions with a fitness instructor to help you feel comfortable in the club, introduce you to equipment and classes available, and to show you a safe and basic exercise routine. This can make your transition easier.

Before the fitness instructor, who should be a certified personal trainer, designs a program for you, he or she will discuss your exercise and medical history to safely design a program for you. You also should be asked to speak with your physician about any medical conditions before beginning an exercise program, and to obtain clearance to participate in all forms of exercise. If you are given any restrictions or guidelines to follow, be sure to mention them to your fitness professional to ensure you're staying within your guidelines.

If your gym does not offer introductory sessions with a personal trainer, hiring a certified personal trainer to guide you in establishing and reaching your fitness goals can be a great investment. Not only can the trainer help you develop a goal-oriented and effective training program, but he or she will also make sure your program is safe. Providing motivation and accountability is another great reason to hire a certified personal trainer.

Try different classes and programs that might seem like fun. Go early and ask the instructor about the structure of the class. Explain that you are new and will need him or her to keep an eye on you. Don't be afraid to ask questions, the instructors are there to help.

In order to get the most out of any fitness facility, you must USE its resources and programs. The best fitness facility in the world cannot help you if you do not take the initiative to walk inside and begin to work. Your success will depend greatly on how comfortable you feel in the fitness center. If you feel confused by equipment, indifferent about your exercise program's structure or uneasy about the overall environment of the club, you'll find reasons why you shouldn't go. Secure your success by finding something you enjoy, and get started.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Andrea Renee Wyatt, M.S.S., C.S.C.S., is a certified personal trainer with an extensive background in strength and conditioning as well as therapeutic recreation.

Talking To Your Teen About Sensitive Health Issues

(NAPS) – It can be a challenge talking to your teen about some health issues-and Dr. Andrea Marks, a specialist in adolescent medicine, wants parents to benefit from her years of experience.

"There's no 'one right way' to do it; you need to find what works for you and your teen," says Marks. "Know that the toughest words are typically the first words. Be prepared, know how to open, and you'll be on your way."

Dr. Marks gives the example of urinary tract infections (UTIs), or what she likes to call "the next big talk" after the birds and the bees discussion. To initiate a discussion with your daughter, she says:

products can provide urinary pain relief so you can help her quickly.

"Widely available, urinary specific OTC pain relievers like AZO Standard can work in as little as 20 minutes," says Marks.

In general, all-purpose pain relievers are not effective treatments of UTI-specific pain and, therefore, not recommended.

Marks says the three most important points to revisit when talking to your daughter are taking urinary tract health seriously, knowing the facts and taking preventive steps such as urination after intercourse, and taking a cranberry supplement such as AZO Cranberry to maintain urinary tract health if UTIs recur.

Once you've opened the lines of communication, keep them open. "A good time to chat is while driving together in a car or when your child is in bed at night. Sometimes, not having to make eye contact can help conversation flow," says Marks.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

GUM DISEASE AND TONGUE CANCER

Dentists may focus on the health of teeth, but the health of all oral tissues is also a concern. Therefore, it comes as big news to dentists and male patients alike when a study showed that chronic gum disease could increase a man's risk for tongue cancer whether or not he smokes. Researchers think that periodontal viruses and bacteria may be toxic to surrounding cells and cause changes that pave the way for oral cancer. Inflammation may also play a role. Because this association between periodontitis (gum disease) and tongue cancer is based on preliminary evidence, more research needs to be conducted to confirm the link. In the meantime, gum disease prevention is a worthy pursuit in and of itself.

The best time to see your dentist is before you have a problem. You'll greatly reduce your risk for dental disease if you have regular checkups and practice meticulous home care. The most valuable service we can provide is a thorough and complete examination. Virtually all dental problems – decay, gum disease, jaw joint difficulties and loose teeth – are easily detected in their early stages and can be treated most economically and comfortably at that time. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Tongue cancer symptoms include difficulty and/or pain while chewing and swallowing and a persistent sore throat.

SPORTS

North Blanks Quincy, 4-0

By SEAN BRENNAN

The second game of the Quincy/North Quincy soccer double-header last Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium between the Lady Presidents and the Lady Red Raiders remained a 0-0 tie until there was ten minutes left in the first half.

But that is when North Quincy senior forward Mary Kate Stille took a pass from senior midfielder Kasey O'Connell and dribbled her way past two President defenders to score her fourth goal of the season and gave North Quincy an early 1-0 that they would not relinquish. North would later score three more times in route to the 4-0 victory.

With the win, the Red Raiders kept alive their post season dreams for another day. The victory moved their overall record to 4-6-2. Quincy, playing with heart against the Red Raiders, has yet to record a victory this season.

"I thought the team played OK," said NQ head coach Paul Bregoli. "I don't want to say that the game was a 'trap game,' but the girls know that from here on out every point we can earn will go far in determining if we get back to the post season."

North Quincy needs 19 total points to qualify for the post season tournament for the eleventh straight season. After the victory over Quincy, the Red Raiders have earned ten points through their first 12 games.

"It was not our best effort, but a win is a win and we need to keep picking up those points," added Bregoli. "We have a huge league game against Plymouth North on Tuesday (Oct. 9) before we host Marshfield High School on Thursday (Oct. 11) at home. If we really want a chance to continue playing when the regular season ends, we need to at least gain a tie against Plymouth North."

The cross-city game got underway immediately after the boys' teams had finished playing their game, and the crowd for the girls' game nearly doubled in size, with fans of both teams standing and cheering the squads during the pregame festivities.

After both rosters were introduced on the field and after North Quincy junior forward Mitchell Gardiner sang a beautiful rendition of The National Anthem, the action in the game got started before the first minute had passed on the game clock.

North Quincy senior midfielder Emily Milone had a good scoring chance just thirty seconds after the opening whistle, but Quincy's goalkeeper, Alyssa Mullen, made the save. Milone's early scoring chance seemed to fire up the Red Raiders, and for the next thirty minutes, North continued to pepper Mullen with shot after shot.

In the 7th minute, Milone fed sophomore Cara Murtagh (playing in her second game after suffering a broken nose) with a great feed but Mullen made the save. In the 22nd minute, Milone found Stille wide open down the right side of the field, but Stille let the shot fly a little early and the result was a goal kick for Quincy.

The Red Raiders finally broke through with ten minutes to go before halftime as O'Connell found Stille for the goal. Dana Djerf, who had just been brought up from the jayvee team earlier in the week, scored off a pass from Murtagh with 2:17 to play in the half to give the Red Raiders the 2-0 halftime lead.

"I thought that Murtagh played a solid game. She showed some poise on that second goal and her pass to Djerf was spot on," said Bregoli.

Red Raiders Edge Presidents, 1-0

BOYS' SOCCER

The North Quincy Red Raiders and the Quincy Presidents met last Saturday afternoon at Veterans Memorial Stadium in the first of two soccer games between the local high schools this fall. North Quincy came out on top 1-0.

Senior forward John Ciccieriello scored the lone goal about thirty minutes into the first half. Ciccieriello capitalized on a miscommunication between Quincy goalkeeper John Sullivan and his defense after junior forward Shane Regan lofted a deep pass down the middle of the field. The ball squirted loose from the grasps of Sullivan and Ciccieriello tucked the ball into the back of the net.

After the goal by Ciccieriello, the Red Raiders and the Presidents took turns pushing the ball up into the offensive zone the rest of the half. Quincy's sophomore forward, Sherkel John Lewis, used good footwork late in the half to get off a solid scoring chance, but North Quincy goalkeeper Ryan Louis made the point blank save to keep the score 1-0.

Red Raider junior forward Mike Prioli, who played a great game from his forward position, fed Regan with a beautiful cross field pass with about five minutes to play in the half, but Regan's shot attempt was stopped by Sullivan.

At the end of the first half, North Quincy had registered ten quality scoring chances, scoring once, while Quincy had six looks at the net, but were rebuffed on each attempt.

The early minutes of the second half were filled with opportunities from both sides. In the third minute, John Lewis ripped a shot on net, only to be called offside by the backside referee. The Raiders quickly countered two minutes later and just missed going up 2-0 as Prioli's diving header missed the mark.

Regan and Prioli almost came through again moments later, but Sullivan stopped Prioli's shot after a beautiful fed from Regan had brought him in alone on net.

With the momentum shifting back and forth, Regan battled for a free ball in the 64th minute in the Quincy penalty box and drew the foul. Sullivan saved his attempt at the penalty kick and the rebound was clanged off the left post.

The remainder of the second half was a series of long balls up and down the turf at Veterans Memorial Stadium, and scoring chances were few and far between for both teams, but Quincy would have one more chance to tie the game at 1-1 late in injury time.

Senior forward Martin Bowes took the ball down the right side of the field, weaved his way into the North Quincy box, and fed sophomore forward Cedric Dybaud with a perfect pass. Dybaud rifled a rocket shot past a diving Louis, but his shot hit the right post and back out about thirty yards.

Presidents Fall To Whitman-Hanson

The Quincy Presidents could do little on offense against Whitman-Hanson High School last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium, and fell in defeat 14-0.

The loss, the Presidents second in a row against an Atlantic Coast League opponent, drops their overall record to 1-3, 1-2 in the league. Whitman-Hanson, which had started the season at 0-4, improves to 1-4 overall, 1-3 in the ACL.

The first quarter resulted in very little offense for either team and ended tied a 0-0.

In the second quarter, the Warriors got on the board twice. W-H quarterback Kyle Armstrong led his team down the field on its first possession of the quarter with a series of short passes and runs that resulted in first down after first down.

After driving deep into Quincy territory, Armstrong and the Warriors faced a second-and-goal from the one-yard line. Quincy, anticipating a run play, bit on the play action fake by Armstrong and he found a wide-open Noel James in the corner of the endzone for the early 6-0 lead. Adam Costerman's point after kick was good, and Whitman-Hanson had the 7-0 advantage.

The Presidents took the ball on their ensuing possession and after calling running plays for senior halfback Diego Arredondo on first and second down; the offense could not convert on third-and-long. Forced to punt the ball back to the Warriors, Quincy leaned on its defense for another stop, but the Whitman-Hanson offense and Armstrong had other ideas.

Armstrong and his offense made it into Quincy territory using short passes and runs to gain valuable yards and first downs. With the ball on the Presidents' 38-yard line, Armstrong went back to the air and found wide receiver Jeff Smith open on the sidelines. Smith took the pass and went thirty-eight yards for the Warriors' second score of the second quarter. Costerman converted on his second PAT of the game and Whitman-Hanson entered the half-time break with a commanding 14-0 lead.

Quincy would come out of the locker room after the break looking to put points on the scoreboard, but the offense could get nothing going against the tough Whitman-Hanson defense. Entering Friday night's contest, the Warriors were allowing 21 points per game to their opponents, while Quincy's offense was averaging just over a touchdown a game (8.0 points per game) on offense, and the results were not good for the Presidents in the second-half.

Quincy could not get their offense moving in the right direction, as penalties, dropped passes and an inconsistent running game, not to mention pretty good defense, stalled every potential drive.

On the flip side, the Presidents defense held it own against W-H in the second half, forcing the Warriors to punt the ball on almost every possession. Quincy, on the year, is holding its opponents to 17.3 points per game.

Things will not get any easier for Quincy this week as they look to snap out of this two-game losing streak. The Presidents are scheduled to travel down to Marshfield High School to take on the 5-0 Rams. Marshfield is leading the Atlantic Coast League with an impressive 4-0 league record. The Rams are a perfect 3-0 at home, and are allowing only 2.8 points per game on defense through the first five game of the year. Their offense scores an average of 28.6 points per game.

The Rams are ranked #11 in the Boston Globe's Top 20 EMass poll. Kick-off is at 7 p.m.

Red Raiders Stopped By Plymouth North

By SEAN BRENNAN

This time around the football did not bounce the North Quincy Red Raiders way.

After three consecutive wins, including two come-from-behind victories over Atlantic Coast League opponents the last two weeks, the Red Raiders succumbed to the Eagles of Plymouth North last Friday night 28-0. The loss drops North's overall record to 3-2, 2-1 in the ACL.

The Raiders turned the ball over four times, including three times in the first-half and a drive-ending INT in the endzone while trying to comeback from down 28-0 late in the second half; and could not find a way to stop the Eagles' two-headed offensive monster of Keegan Grabhorn (five carries, 82 yards; four receptions, 63 yards, 2 TDs) and Tommy Carr (15 carries, 77 yards, TD).

"We really didn't give ourselves a shot," said North Quincy head coach Jim Connor. "Everything went against us. The early turnovers hurt the flow and confidence of our offense. We needed to play perfect but we didn't."

The game's first quarter saw both teams struggle to get any type of offense going, as the defenses controlled the game pace and field position on both sides of the field. At the end of the opening frame, the score was 0-0.

In the second quarter, the Plymouth North offense and defense grabbed control of the game and by halftime, North Quincy was facing a three-touchdown deficit. The Eagles opened the scoring in the quarter on a two-yard touchdown run by quarterback Joe Flynn.

FOOTBALL

With the clock winding down to the five-minute mark, the score was a manageable 7-0, but the Red Raiders could still not get their offense moving in the right direction. After fumbling the ball back to the Eagles (the football was recovered by Matt Brouillard), North's dreams of starting the season 3-0 in the ACL went up in smoke.

On the ensuing drive, Flynn found Grabhorn for a huge 38-yard pass completion to set up a redzone opportunity for the Eagles. Carr cashed in with a 7-yard touchdown to give the hosts a 14-0 lead.

North Quincy had their shot to get back into the game late in the half, but once again, a turnover stopped a promising drive prematurely. Quarterback Dennis Martin was intercepted at the Plymouth North 47-yardline by, who else, but Brouillard (who finished the game with two fumble recoveries and an interception). The Eagles capitalized ten plays later when Flynn found Grabhorn with a five-yard touchdown pass to put the score at 21-0 as the teams entered the locker room for halftime.

Plymouth North took the wind out of the Red Raiders' sails right out of the gate to start the second half. The Eagles, already up 21-0, went 77 yards on eight plays on their first drive of the half to put the score at 28-0. The big play of the drive was a 25-yard run by Grabhorn on third-and-long inside the North Quincy side of the field. Grabhorn finished off the scoring drive with a 5-yard touchdown run his second TD of the game.

Even down by four touchdowns, North Quincy refused to give in or give up on another possible comeback attempt. Following Grabhorn's second touchdown, the Red Raiders put together their best drive of the game, a 10-play march down the field. But once again, a turnover quickly ended the threat. Grabhorn picked off a Martin pass in the endzone. It was the fourth and final turnover of the game for North Quincy.

Junior halfback Patrick Watkins led North Quincy offense with 73 yards on just six carries, including a 49-yard run in the fourth quarter.

The Eagles got up early and made it tough for North to get back in the game by controlling the game clock throughout all four quarters. For the game, Plymouth North finished with 12 first downs, while the Raiders picked up just six first downs.

Next up for the Red Raiders is Dennis-Yarmouth High School this Friday at Veterans Memorial Stadium (7 p.m.). The Dolphins will present North Quincy with their toughest game to date this fall. D-Y is 3-0 in the ACL, 5-0 overall and 4-0 on the road. They are averaging 27.4 points per game, while allowing just 15.6 points to their opponents.

Their quarterback, Nick Montalto, has thrown six TD passes and running back, Joe Jamiel, is the leading scorer in all of Division 1A. Jamiel has already scored 11 times this season.

The Red Raiders are averaging 17 points per game, and allowing 18.2 to their opponents. North Quincy currently holds a 2-1 home record playing at the Vet.

Raiders Edge Presidents

(Cont'd From Page 25)

Playing well defensively for the Red Raiders in front of Louis were seniors Tim Schow, Chris Doyle, Alex Bream, Dan Richards and Ryan Keane. Senior Sean Clifford played an outstanding game at his midfield position, including a number of hard, clean ball tackles throughout the game.

The Presidents senior sweeper Matt Bresnahan controlled the defense in both halves and junior midfielder Alfredo Barzola (who had come on late in the first half) added a spark to the Quincy offense with a number of offensive rushes and solid footwork.

North Quincy upped its overall record to 4-5-1 with the win, and 3-5-0 in the Atlantic Coast League. The loss dropped Quincy to 1-8-0 overall and 1-7-0 in the ACL.

The 2007 Quincy Presidents roster includes seniors Miguel Barzola, Mortada Najem, Russell Goodman, Robert Ranalli, Matt Bresnahan, Kunta Martins, Durim Hyseni, Chen Sun, Martin Bowes, Wuxi He, Ian Campbell and Ngan Tsz-Tsan, juniors Sebastian Joseph and Alfredo Barzola and sophomores John Sullivan, Cedric Dybaud, James Finn and Sherkel John Lewis.

Quincy battled throughout the opening half, continually firing long balls up the field, looking to capitalize on a North Quincy defensive breakdown. But the Raider backfield of Kerry Coughlin, Simone Leary and Lindsey Repucci kept the play in front of goalkeeper Siobhan Carnell, and limited Quincy to very little scoring chances.

"Quincy came out and played a very aggressive opening half. We made the team aware of possible offside calls that may have come from their style of play, and our defense really stood up when Quincy did challenge on the offensive end," Bregoli added. "I thought Coughlin played a good game defensively. We did a good job of stopping any attack that Quincy tried to bring up our end of the field."

Milone and junior Kerry Donaghey both scored in the second half to complete the scoring for North Quincy. Milone's goal was her ninth of the season.

Bregoli noted that freshman Jillian Carchedi, junior Siobhan Carnell and senior Rene DiPietro all played well in the victory.

For Quincy, Mullen stood out in net, while defenders

Leslie Campbell and Julie Leone held their ground against the relentless Red Raider attack.

The rest of the Quincy roster includes seniors Leah Buccieri, Catherine Carella and Julie Kisielius, juniors Jenna Campbell, Christine Campbell, Amanda Feiella, Hanin Housin, Julie Leone, Katherine Marchand, Alyssa Mullen and Leah Wood, sophomores Leslie Campbell, Liz Carella, Brianna Phelan, Amanda Sullivan and Colleen Tobin, and freshmen Winifred Akoury, Amanda Hyslip, Courtney Peters and Elizabeth Pyle.

FALL CAR CARE

Stars On Cars Help Customers Judge Vehicles Based On Safety Ratings

(NAPS) – Since Sept. 1, automotive consumers have had another valuable tool to help them make informed choices regarding the safety of the vehicles they're considering buying.

The new law, part of a provision in the U.S. Department of Transportation's 2005 Highway Bill, "Stars on Cars," requires automakers to post the results of both crash test and rollover ratings from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) on all 2008 vehicle window stickers.

More than a year ahead of the government's Sept. 1 deadline, Ford Motor Company has been posting the government's safety rating on many of its vehicles.

"We've supported the legislation since it was first proposed," said James Vondale, director, Automotive Safety Office, Ford Motor Company. "It provides consumers with important information at the point of purchase and helps show that we have many vehicles with excellent crash test ratings."

The law is called Stars on Cars because of the star-rating system NHTSA uses to test and rate new cars in front and side crash tests and in rollover avoidance tests. Five stars indicate the best possible safety rating for vehicles within the same weight class.

The NHTSA crash results are posted on the window sticker alongside information that is already provided, such as the manufacturer's retail price, safety and convenience features and EPA fuel economy.

Vondale and Stars on Cars is a win-win for both Ford and its customers.

"According to several studies in the marketplace, safety has become a much bigger part of the buying decision because it helps consumers make a more informed decision at the dealership and it encourages all of us to continue to enhance vehicles safety," he said.

In 2006, more than a year before required, Ford began placing the safety ratings on various vehicle window stickers—also known as Monroney labels.

The vehicles included the Ford Explorer, Mercury Mountaineer sport utility vehicles, SportTrac, the Ford Five Hundred and Mercury Montego large family cars—all of which earned the highest possible five-star ratings in the crash test categories.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Can it not be said progress or failure is mainly due to proper, improper or sometimes an utter lack of thinking? Surely it is true that new ideas and powerful thoughts can affect your own destiny and in some cases even the destiny of mankind in general. Men like Alexander, Napoleon and Hitler had thoughts which led to wars of conquest. They brought only destruction. Other men with other thoughts brought progress, prosperity and happiness. And so it is with all of us as individuals. . . .

Our thoughts of today can create a better or worse tomorrow. . . . Proper thoughts not only add purpose, they create new incentives for life itself. Is it not true if our thoughts are filled with faith, cheerfulness, gratitude, encouragement, happiness, love and friendship - we avoid negative and destructive thoughts of greed, despair, fear and vulgarity? Are these not compelling reasons to channel our thoughts toward the good things in life. . . .

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although you love being the focus of attention, it's a good idea to take a few steps back right now to just watch the action. What you see can help with an upcoming decision.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) "Caution" continues to be your watchword this week, as a former colleague tries to reconnect old links. There are still some dark places that need to be illuminated.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Making a good first impression is important. Revealing your often hidden sense of humor can help you get through some of the more awkward situations.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Taking that Cancer Crab image too seriously? Lighten up. Instead of complaining about your problems, start resolving them. A friend would be happy to help.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A widening distance between you and that special person needs to be handled with honesty and sensitivity. Don't let jealousy create an even greater gap between you two.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Congratulations. Your handling of a delicate family matter rates kudos. But no resting on your laurels just yet. You still have to resolve that on-the-job problem.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might surprise everyone by being unusually impulsive this week. But even level-headed Libras need to do the unexpected now and then.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A period of turmoil gives way to a calmer, more settled environment. Use this quieter time to patch up neglected personal and/or professional relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A new relationship could create resentment among family and friends who feel left out of your life. Show them you care by making more time for them.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Concentrate on completing all your unfinished tasks before deadline. You'll then be able to use this freed-up time to research new career opportunities.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're right to try to help colleagues resolve their heated differences. But keep your objectivity and avoid showing any favoritism 'twixt the two sides.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your personal life continues to show positive changes. Enjoy this happy turn of events, by all means. But be careful not to neglect your workplace obligations.

BORN THIS WEEK: People of all ages look to you for advice and encouragement. You would make an excellent counselor.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Joseph Flynn Graduates Coast Guard Recruit Training

Coast Guard Seaman Joseph T. Flynn, son of Mary K. White of Quincy and Timothy F. Flynn of Quincy, recently graduated from the U.S. Coast Guard Recruit Training Center in Cape May, N.J.

Flynn completed a training curriculum which included academics and practical instruction on water safety and survival, military customs and courtesies, seamanship skills, first aid, fire fighting and marksmanship.

A major emphasis is also placed on physical fitness, health and wellness.

Flynn and other recruits also received instruction on the Coast Guard's core values – honor, respect and devotion to duty – and how to apply them in their military performance and personal conduct.

Flynn will join 36,000 other men and women who comprise Coast Guard's forces.

Flynn is a 2000 graduate of North Quincy High School. He is a 2004 graduate of the University of Massachusetts in Amherst with a bachelor's degree.

OBITUARIES

Ronald A. Saccone, 66 Heavy Equipment Operator

A funeral Mass for Ronald A. "Uncle Ronnie" Saccone, 66, of Quincy, formerly of Dorchester and Roxbury, a heavy equipment operator, was celebrated Monday in St. Clare's Church, Braintree.

Mr. Saccone died Oct. 3. Raised and educated in Roxbury, he had lived in Dorchester for several years before moving to Quincy in 1965.

Mr. Saccone was a heavy equipment operator for Union Local #4. He retired from the S&B Construction Company in Walpole.

He loved spending time with his family and nieces and nephews.

He also enjoyed salt water fishing, playing dominos, watching planes at Logan Airport and scratch tickets.

He is survived by a sister, Dolores Rizzitano of Braintree; a brother, Vincent J. Saccone of Hingham; and many nieces, nephews, grandnieces, grandnephews and many uncles, aunts and cousins.

He was the brother of the late Roger Saccone, George Saccone, Catherine Havens and RoseAnne MacDonald-Larkin.

Interment was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by the McDonald Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Breast Cancer Foundation, 1055 Taylor Ave., Suite 201A, Baltimore, MD 21286.

John J. Dixon, 51 Landscape Contractor

A funeral Mass for John J. Dixon, 51, of Quincy, a landscape contractor, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Joseph Church, Holbrook.

Mr. Dixon died unexpectedly Oct. 3.

Born in Quincy, he was raised and educated in the city.

He worked at his family's restaurant in Yarmouthport, "Dixon's Fish and Chips."

He also worked with his father, Robert Dixon for Dixon Tow Boats, towing barges in Boston Harbor.

Mr. Dixon was a very talented artist who was full of life.

He is survived by his mother, Priscilla (Snowden) Dixon of Quincy; a brother, Robert E. Dixon Jr. of Quincy; three sisters, Priscilla Jordan-Kennedy of Holbrook, Judy Desmond of Cape Cod and Jennifer Dixon of Colorado; and several nieces, nephews, aunts, uncles and cousins.

He was the son of the late Robert E. Dixon and the brother of the late Paul Dixon, the late Lee Dixon, the late Ellen Dixon and the late George Dixon.

Burial was in Union Cemetery, Holbrook.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Cartwright Funeral Home, Holbrook.

Helen Robinson, 94 Former Waitress

A private funeral service and burial were held for Helen (Leavett) Robinson, 94, of Wrentham, formerly of Quincy, a former waitress, in Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston.

Mrs. Robinson died Oct. 3 at the Maples Rehabilitation and Nursing Center in Wrentham.

Born in Boston, she was raised and had lived in Quincy most of her life.

She had been a waitress at several restaurants in Quincy over the years.

Mrs. Robinson was active in the Senior Citizens Club of Quincy.

Wife of the late John Robinson, she is survived by her close friends Warren and Janet Buckman of Walpole and many friends in Quincy.

She was the daughter of the late John and Helen (Walsh) Leavett.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Gintley Funeral Home, Walpole.

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS PURCHASING DEPARTMENT
1305 HANCOCK ST., QUINCY, MA 02169

BUILDING MAINTENANCE

TRADE CONTRACTOR SERVICES

OCTOBER 25, 2007 @ 2:00 p.m.

The City of Quincy hereby reissues its request for qualifications to prequalify Acoustical Tile Contractors in accordance with M.G.L. c. 149A, section 8 relative to the new Quincy High School Project. The new school complex will be approximately 326,000 SF in size with an overall footprint of approximately 132,000 SF. Selected demolition of existing buildings and construction of the new school will be carried out in phases. Phase I qualification and bids have been received and work is currently underway. This Request for Qualifications is for Phases 2, 3, and 4 of the New Quincy High School. The anticipated construction schedule is 44 months. The estimated construction cost for the category of Acoustical Tile is $825,000.

The anticipated completion date for prequalification evaluations is Friday, November 23, 2007. The Project Team includes the City of Quincy (Awarding Authority), Tishman Construction Corporation of Massachusetts, Symmes, Maini & McKee Associates, and Gilbane Building Company.

A copy of the RFQ may be obtained at the Purchasing Department, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, after October 10, 2007, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The RFQ will be used to prequalify subcontractors to submit bids pursuant to M.G.L. c. 149A section 8.

SOQ's will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent until October 25, 2007 at 2:00 p.m. Late proposals, delivered by mail or in person, will be rejected.

Further information, including information regarding the prequalification evaluation criteria and selection process, is included in the RFQ.

Interested Trade Contractors must provide a currently valid Certificate of Eligibility issued by DCAM to Trade Contractor pursuant to M.G.L. c. 149, section 44D.

The project will be subject to the minimum wage rates set under the Massachusetts Prevailing Wage Laws.

The right is reserved to reject any or all RFQ's or to accept any part of an RFQ or the one deemed best for the City, and waive any informalities in the bidding, if it is in the best interest of the City to do so.

MAYORAL RIVALS challenger Tom Koch and incumbent William Phelan debated Tuesday at North Quincy High School with a panel and North and Quincy students asking questions.

Council Votes $19.1 Million Transfer City Saves $500,000 On Health Contracts

City councillors Monday voted unanimously to amend the city's health benefits budget by adding approximately $19.1 million as recommended by the Finance Committee.

Committee Chairman John Keenan recommended approval of the transfer after explaining that the council held back over $19.6 million during budget discussion due to anticipated savings in the new union contracts.

At the time, councillors said they expected considerable benefit costs savings after Mayor William Phelan executed contracts with police and teachers.

In fact, the city saved over a half a million dollars in benefit costs.

At this week's council meeting, David Murphy, the mayor's Director of Operations, pointed out that the new appropriation reflects the mayor's efforts to reduce the city's cost of health care benefits.

Murphy noted that previous union contracts required the city to pay 99% of all employee benefits while employees paid 10 percent.

The new contracts with police and teachers require the employees to pay 15%.

At Monday's meeting, Murphy thanked the city council on behalf of the mayor. The following day, Phelan also thanked the council.

"This is a great first step in protecting our taxpayers from spiraling health care costs, but it is only the first step," said Mayor Phelan.

Second Durkin Funeral Held In Native Ireland

Funeral services were held Saturday, Oct. 13, in Lettermore Church, County Galway, in her native Ireland for National Guard Corporal Ciara Durkin of Houghs Neck.

It was the second funeral for the 30-year-old financial specialist. The first was held Oct. 6 at St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy.

Her ashes were buried beside her father in Annaghvane Cemetery. Part of her ashes are buried in Quincy and more will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Corporal Durkin's body was found Sept. 27 on secure ground near a church on Bagram Air Base in Afghanistan with a single fatal bullet wound in her head.

The Army has launched an investigation into her death.

"We are trying to be patient," said her brother, Pierce Durkin. "We hope the results of the investigation will give us answers and therefore some closure."

"We owe it to Ciara to see this through with dignity."

At North Quincy High School Phelan, Koch Are Pressed By Students At Debate

Mayor William Phelan and challenger Tom Koch were pressed by students' questions at their debate Tuesday in the North Quincy High School auditorium.

Nan Chen, a North student and a member of the panel that also included three veteran journalists had a question and stayed with it.

What are you going to do about getting back the health class that was cut several years ago, he asked Phelan.

"I took office in a difficult year," said Phelan. "You have to understand that we inherited a fiscal situation that was very difficult. We have built back those programs that were eliminated."

"In the future, it's going to come back?" persisted Chen.

"Yes," said Phelan.

"You promise that, right?" said Chen. "I want it in words."

"I can make no promises," said Phelan.

"Point of order," said Chazy Dowaliby, the editor of the sponsoring Patriot Ledger, who served as moderator. "There'll be no followup questions."

In addition to Chen, the panel for the debate at North Quincy High School was made up of Laura Griffin of The Quincy Sun, Jack Kelly of the Patriot Ledger, and Dave Skill of Radio WATD in Marshfield.

"When we took office," said Phelan, "the first order of business was to get our arms around (the fiscal mess) so we could start investing in the school system again.

"I'm proud to say class sizes have gone down and our resources have been plenty in the Quincy Public Schools."

"The area of health education has come back but we can do more, particularly in the elementary schools in the form of bullying."

Koch said the mayor's mishandling of funding for the new Quincy High School has cost the city $48 million. He called that "devastating."

"That's going to take up so much of our resources over the next several years where we could be offering programs such as the health program."

"I would like to see full time health coordinators in (Cont'd On Page 18)

Health Benefits Forum Today For City Retirees

Mayor William Phelan and Human Resources Director Roberta Kety will conduct a health benefits informational session for city of Quincy retirees today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at the Elks Lodge on Quarry Street.

The purpose of the session is to provide former city employees with information pertaining to the State insurance plan or GIC.

"I encourage retirees to join us on Thursday to become educated about the GIC plan," said Phelan. "We want to work with Steve Moynihan and all of the re-ties to provide you the information necessary to make an important decision. There are a number of positive reasons for our retirees to join the GIC, foremost among them is that it guarantees retirees' health benefits in perpetuity."

Phelan helped draft the legislation that allows municipalities to opt into the State insurance plan. Estimates indicate that the City of Quincy could save close to $8 million every year if the city opts into the State insurance plan.

Shea Re-elected As City Clerk

The City Council Monday unanimously approved a new three-year term for City Clerk Joseph Shea.

"Mr. Shea's reputation goes far beyond the City of Quincy," said Council President Douglas Gutro in introducing the motion. He noted that Shea also serves as chairman of the Licensing Board.

The other councillors agreed with Gutro and quickly passed the motion after. Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly said that Shea should get tenure for his excellent work.

A Room Of Her Own

Patrick Touts Education Plan In Merrymount School Visit

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

"My daughter has had her own room all of her life," said Deval Patrick, the youngster who started life sleeping three generations to a room in the slums of Chicago and grew up to become the governor of Massachusetts.

"By the time she got to high school, she had traveled on three continents, knew how to use and pronounce 'concorde,' and had shaken hands with the President in the White House."

"How does that happen in one generation? Education is how it happens."

Patrick was in the Merrymount School gym last Thursday at a public meeting-style forum to discuss with local educators his Readiness Project, a 10-year strategic plan for public education from pre-K-through-college.

He showed up late for the forum, explaining that he had been visiting the family of Steven Odom, a 13-year-old murder victim in Dorchester. He cited that tragedy as an example of what education can do for society.

"Here's a boy in a family trying to do everything they can to improve themselves and make a better way for their kids," he said.

"But unless we have longer school days and after school and enrichment programs, then kids like that are going to find themselves in harm's way more than any of us should be satisfied with."

"I grew up in a neighborhood like the Odom's neighborhood — broken in a lot of ways; but I had a great education."

Patrick outlined his comprehensive strategy for public education, starting before kindergarten, with early education opportunities for 3 and 4-year-olds. He said he favors all-day kindergartens and smaller class sizes, especially in the early grades.

He admitted he was probably "upsetting the kids in the room" when he encouraged a longer school day.

DEVAL PATRICK, who rose from poverty to become the governor of Massachusetts, tells an audience in the Merrymount School gym that his escape from the slums was fueled by a good education.

which, he pointed out, would not include just more classroom time, but enrichment opportunities and experiential learning and exercise, music and art.

He said he would also like to see the school year lengthened.

"Right now, we have a school calendar that allows you to get out in time to plant the crops and stay out long enough to harvest it," he said.

"Don't laugh! That's where our school calendar comes from and it seems to me appropriate to ask ourselves whether that makes sense in the 21st century and how do we connect this up to the demands on all of us from the workplace and the global economy."

Patrick said he would also like to see more math and science required in high schools and free access to community colleges and apprentice programs for the trades.

300 Name Petition Opposes PUD Plan Neighbors Divided On Follett St. Re-Zoning

By LAURA GRIFFIN
Quincy Point's William LaRaia Monday presented City Councillors with a petition signed by 300 residents who oppose the rezoning of over 10 acres of waterfront property on Follett Street from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development or PUD.

LaRaia, along with nearly a dozen other Quincy Point residents, addressed council members at this week's public hearing on 40-76 and 78-112 Follett Street.

The parcels currently house a marina and a waterfront restaurant, the Inn at Bay Point, and can be accessed through Washington Court.

Half of the speakers opposed the re-zoning proposal presented by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi while just as many residents favored a PUD zone. Some 40 residents attended the hearing.

A PUD would allow residential housing or similar complexes on the site near Avalon Beach while the industrial zone currently allows manufacturing or other heavy-duty industry.

Opponents of the PUD designation said that, at least, business or manufacturing would be operating from 9a.m. to 5p.m. while condos, an assisted living or nursing facility could have emergency vehicles all night.

"What happened at Highpoint, what happened at the Falls..." could happen in Quincy Point, warned LaRaia, referring to the large complexes on Quarry St. and at the former quarries and landfill in West Quincy.

"You can vote for over-development. Over-development is killing the neighborhoods," LaRaia said. "This has been a marina and boatyard for over a century.... We would like to preserve what's left of the waterfront."

As for Raymondi, LaRaia said that he "...is not listening to his people. We want it kept as open space."

LaRaia noted that photos of Quincy Point show scenery so picturesque that the pictures are displayed on the city's website.

The only way in and out of the property is through the narrow entrance of Washington Court, noted LaRaia who said, and "It's land-locked and water-locked."

The area is densely populated, said LaRaia and several other speakers.

"We can't take any more housing. We are packed in now."

"I can't imagine anything else down there," said Mary Conroy of Avalon Avenue who described the section as heavily burdened by traffic.

"I have trouble going in and out of my driveway. The access in and out has got to be a hazard," Conroy said.

Leroy Wallace, Rachelle Thomas, Valerie Higgins and Martha Crowley joined Conroy and LaRaia in opposing the change while nearly a dozen, including Ray Johnson and George Folsom, favored the change.

"I don't see how the proposed zoning is going to help us in any way," said Wallace.

Other residents disagreed with most supporting a PUD as the lesser of two bad choices.

One speaker suggested that the signers of the petition did not know what they were signing as any kind of industry could locate on Follett Street under the current designation.

"With PUD, I do have something to say," said Johnson who warned against

Erin Lapsley Fighting Lymphoma November Fundraiser Planned For Quincy Mom

Life can change in one minute and no one knows that more profoundly than Quincy's Erin and David Lapsley, their two young children, and their family and friends.

Last July, Erin, a lifelong resident of Quincy, went to her doctor with symptoms of a chest cold. It was just before her 43rd birthday on July 18.

During the examination, the doctor found a growth and, shortly thereafter, diagnosed Erin with Large B-Cell Non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma.

Erin's life suddenly changed as did her family's. The young mother of five-year-old Ava and four-year-old Ronan had planned on returning to work.

Instead, Erin began weeks of intensive chemotherapy and she and David are dealing not only with the medical emergency, but, also, with unexpected expenses. David works as a financial analyst for the Weymouth school system.

Their friends and family hope to help through a $20 a person benefit planned for

A FUND-RAISER FOR Erin Lapsley will be held Friday, Nov. 2. Erin is shown with her husband, David, and children, Ronan, age 4, and his sister, Ava, 5.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Oct. 18, 1922, "Robin Hood," starring Douglas Fairbanks, opens at Grauman's Egyptian Theater in Hollywood, Calif. As a publicity stunt two weeks before the premiere, Fairbanks had posed atop a New York hotel in costume and shot arrows from the building, accidentally injuring a man through an open window.

• On Oct. 19, 1939, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" debuts, starring James Stewart. World War II interrupted Stewart's film career. He became a bomber pilot and remained in the Air Force reserves for decades, rising to the rank of brigadier general.

• On Oct. 20, 1944, two liquid gas tanks explode in Cleveland, with flames shooting 2,500 feet in the air and leveling everything within a half mile. The explosion destroyed two factories, 79 homes in the surrounding area and more than 200 vehicles — and killed 139 people.

• On Oct. 21, 1959, thousands of people line up in New York City outside a bizarrely shaped white concrete building that resembled a giant upside-down cupcake — the Guggenheim Museum. Architect Frank Lloyd Wright worked on the building for sixteen years, finally seeing it open six months before his death.

• On Oct. 15, 1964, while trying to set a new 1 mile land-speed record, Craig Breedlove loses control of the Spirit of America jet-powered car, which began to skid at an initial speed of more than 400 mph. Six miles later, Breedlove was the not-so-proud record-holder for the longest skid marks ever recorded.

• On Oct. 16, 1976, "Disco Duck," a satiric send-up of the 1970s disco craze by Memphis disc jockey Rick Dees, becomes a No. 1 hit.

• On Oct. 17, 1994, taxicab driver Jeremy Levine returns to London, England, from a round-trip journey to Cape Town, South Africa. Passengers Mark Aylett and Carlos Areses paid 40,000 pounds, or approximately $65,000, for the 21,691-mile trip, setting a world record for the longest known taxicab ride.

27 Councillors Hold Reunion

Twenty-seven present and former city councillors got together the other night for a reunion at the Quincy Historical Society.

No agenda to contend with.

Just a relaxing, fun night renewing old acquaintances, swapping political stories and realizing how fast time really flies.

Former Mayor Frank McCauley, one of the 27, notes they represent a combined council service of 198 years and 10 months.

Fifteen other councillors did not attend.

The "senior councillor" on hand for the get together was Tom Gilmartin, a spry 95, who held the Ward 6 seat from 1946 to 1949.

Gilmartin, who was known for his predictions on elections and claims a winning batting average, was escorted by his daughter, Debbie. He now lives in Weymouth but still keeps tabs on the Quincy political scene.

He got to chatting with one of the younger guys, Dick Koch, Jr. councillor at-large from 1982-87.

Although Koch came into the council 33 years after Gilmartin, they found a political link. Gilmartin defeated Koch's father, Dick Koch, Sr. in the 1947 election.

"So, you're the one that kept my father out of politics," Koch mused.

Koch, the brother of mayoral candidate Tom Koch, is now police chief in Brewster. And, to make you feel a little older, he's a recent grandfather.

Tim Cahill (1988-1999) who gets around as State Treasurer told the group: "You should know how well Quincy is thought of outside the city."

Although his office is now on Beacon Hill, his home and heart are still in Quincy. "I'll always be a city councillor," he said with emotion.

City Clerk Joseph Shea sprinkled some council trivia around:

The late John Quinn served 24 years—the longest in the city's history.

Joseph LaRaia, who attended, is runner-up with 20 years and five months in addition to his term as mayor.

Father-and-son combinations: Richard J. Barry (1937-38) and son, Richard W. Barry (1962-67). The latter caused a bit of a frenzy when he proposed that historic Hancock Cemetery be taken for a municipal parking lot. (He also had a sense of humor.)

George B. McDonald (1960-71) followed his father, George P. (1942-45) and uncle, Thomas F. McDonald (1930-31) into the Ward 4 seat.

The most unique family combo was Herbert F. Federhan, Sr. and son, Herbert F. Federhan, Jr. who were both elected Ward 2 councillor in 1891. And lived in the same house.

What?

"That's right," says McCauley. "They were elected under the city's Original Charter (1889-1916). The charter called for 23 councillors—three from each of the six wards and five at-large."

Although the Federhans both represented Ward 2 and lived together, they were a house politically divided.

Elections back then were partisan. The father was a Republican and the son a Democrat.

With 23 members, the council meetings were verbal marathons.

"Sometimes they lasted until 4 a.m. the following morning," says McCauley.

He recalls John D. Smith, Ward 4 councillor under that original charter telling him: "At one meeting at 2 a.m. we were still debating if the Philippines should be free."

Council President Doug Gutro arranged the reunion with Shea, Cahill and McCauley as co-chairmen.

A moment of silence was observed in the memory of former Councillors Albert Barilaro, Ted DeCristofaro, Edward Graham, Paul Harold and Alfred Helfrich who died since the last reunion in April 2002.

Former Mayor-Councillor Walter Hannon brought along a gift for the Quincy Historical Society, which he presented, to President James Edward and Executive Director Edward Fitzgerald.

It was a DVD copy of a 16-millimeter film "Gifts To The Nation"—highlighting Quincy's contributions that he had commissioned as mayor in celebration of the nation's 1975 Bicentennial and the 350th anniversary of Quincy's settlement.

Ward 5 and 6 took top honors in the number attending the reunion.

Ward 5: George Burke, Warren Powers (now presiding justice of Wrentham District Court), Steve McGrath, Charles (Chuck) Phelan, Gutro, Hannon.

Ward 6: Present Councillor Brian McNamee, Alicia Gardner, Bruce Ayers, Joanne Condon-Walsh, Dennis Harrington and Gilmartin.

Condon-Walsh and Gardner represent half of the women elected to the council in the city's history. The only other two: Edna Austin and Patricia Toland.

Ward 1: Present Councillor Leo Kelly, Peter Kolson, Greg Hanley and McCauley.

Ward 3: Current Councillor Kevin Coughlin, Patrick McDermott, now Norfolk County Register of Probate; and Larry Chretien.

Eight council presidents attended: In addition to Gutro, Burke, Phelan, McGrath, LaRaia, McCauley, Kelly, Kolson.

And 10 at-large councillors: Present Joseph Finn, John Keenan and Mike McFarland, Charles McIntyre, Burke, Cahill, McGrath, LaRaia, McCauley, Koch.

It was also a reunion for former City Clerk John Gillis, now a Norfolk County Commissioner, Shea, Assistant Clerk Maureen Hallisen and Jeanne Reardon, city council clerk of committees.

And a night of fond memories for all.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920's postcard view of Brook Street in Wollaston looking west from Newport Avenue. The street was named for Sachem's Brook which runs from Milton through the Montclair bog and now underground to between the yacht clubs on Wollaston Beach. From Newport Avenue to Highland Avenue the brook is buried to the left of this street. It runs under the rear of the buildings on the left. Commercial buildings were first built on this part of Brook Street early in the 20th century. One of the first was James MacFarland's Hardware store that opened on the right side in 1900 and was in business for over 75 years. In 1945, L. Gerald Henley opened his linoleum shop, also on the right, and it is still in business. Over the years, numerous stores have been located here including an A & P market in the last store on the left and a First National on the corner at the right. Dee Dee's Lounge now occupies that spot. The first Asian business along here was Wah Chin's Laundry that was opened in 1922 a few doors up on the right. Reader Identifies Granite-Worker In Photo As Father

I am writing in regard to the article in The Quincy Sun, dated September 6, 2007, about Swingle's Quarry. Under the photo on Page 9 the author calls out the names of the Swingle family in the photo, with a comment about the unidentified people remaining unidentified unless some relatives or friends recognize them.

I first saw the photo when I went to The Tavern at Granite Links, Quincy, this past summer, where it was displayed in the lobby of the restaurant. I thought that the man in the lower left corner of the photo looked like my father, who had worked at Swingle's in the 1920s and 1930s.

My brother, who subscribes to The Quincy Sun, showed me the photo in the September 6 edition and asked if I recognized the man in the lower left corner of the photo. We were both amazed that each of us, independently, had recognized the same person as our father, Joseph J. Jackson.

I remember my father talking about Swingle's and how hard the work was and how cold the winters were. He talked about how strict "old man Swingle" was but how young Jay was such a nice fellow.

As youngsters we would ride by the polished ball at the Fore River Shipyard circle, on our way to a day at Nantasket Beach, and Pa would tell us how he helped load the ball onto the truck at Swingle's.

I hope this will help identify some of the people in the photo. They were all hard workers and took pride in their jobs. They should not be forgotten.

Want Pageant Field Track Project Postponed

As the fall marches on and there are roughly three weeks remaining until the Quincy mayoral election we can't help but notice that the streets of Quincy are rife with improvements. Hmmm - the average citizen wonders: what's with all the busy bees?

One favorite Quincy embarrassment "Dirt Pile Park" (AKA the Formal Gardens at Merrymount Park) is finally getting a much needed facelift. Will the rebar/concrete circle be gone by the election? One can only hope.

Speaking of projects, this morning we were at Pageant Field enjoying the beautiful open spaces. We were dismayed to see the Quincy Park department employees cutting limbs off the stately oaks and it reminded us that the construction of a track and field complex is imminent.

If the mayor's track project goes through the park is to become something else, something that will destroy this singular open space that so many people use, especially during after-school activities. The thought of a structure that we will not be able to use, because most assuredly it will have a fence and padlock just like the other athletic fields here, is annoying at best. At worst, it signifies the loss of one of our endearing and unique open spaces.

There is no other place in our city where each morning, one can see a Great Blue Heron feeding in the water, a lady doing Thai Chi, dogs romping, or kids at summer activities for soccer, football, lacrosse and softball and baseball. This is not an underused space, and it is unique.

We understand that the project is a point of contention to the mayoral candidates and we'd like to see the rush to construct put on hold until after the election.

If the mayor has a mandate he'll be re-elected. For now, please postpone the Pageant Field Track Project.

Lasagna Rolls With Spinach

I was going to make lasagna for a recent dinner party, and then I began to think how easy it would be to serve if I made lasagna rolls instead.

I hadn't made them in a while, and forgot how much easier they are to serve than cutting the lasagna into squares.

Also, you can count the strips of lasagna and use as many or as little as needed. I was having 13 for dinner, and made 26, half with spinach and ricotta mix and the other half without the spinach. Plus guests said they preferred the roll to the conventional lasagna. Anyway, today's recipe will maybe change your mind to an easier way to make and serve this delicious dish.

LASAGNA ROLLS

- 1 pound of lasagna (or more if needed)
- 1 pound of ricotta or 1-1/2 pounds if cream cheese is not used.)
- 8 ounces of cream cheese (optional) (makes the dish tastier)
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup grated Romano cheese (plus more for sprinkling)
- 1 package of frozen chopped spinach
- 1 package of mozzarella shredded cheese
- salt and pepper to taste

Mix ricotta, cream cheese, egg and grated cheese, salt and pepper until well blended. If using spinach, cook according to directions (I sautéed it in a little olive oil and garlic). After blending the cheese mixture, and if using spinach, take half the mixture in a bowl and add the spinach. Reserve the other half in another bowl.

When the lasagna is cooked, spread out each strip and spread the mixture up and down. Sprinkle with shredded cheese and some grated cheese. Roll the lasagna. Place seam side down in a baking pan that is slightly greased and has a thin layer of tomato sauce.

After all the rolls are placed in the pan, sprinkle a small amount of shredded cheese on each and some grated cheese and then some tomato sauce. Refrigerate if you're not ready to bake. When ready to bake, add a little more sauce in between the rolls so that they won't dry.

Heat the oven to 375 degrees and tightly cover with foil. Bake about 35 minutes and then uncover for another ten minutes.

When I made it, I made the spinach ones first, placed them on top of the baking pan, and then the others, so when it was time to serve, I knew which was which. Hope you enjoy this as much as we did.

Quincy Center Harvest Festival At City Hall Plaza Saturday

The witches, ghosts and hobgoblins who have infested downtown Quincy for the past 16 years have moved their covens to McIntyre Mall this year.

The day-long event, sponsored by the Quincy Business Association, will be held Saturday, Oct. 20, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in front of City Hall.

Youngsters are invited to do their favorite Halloween costumes for the costume parade forming at 1:30 p.m.

with judging at 2 p.m.

Kids in grade K-5 can participate in the competition with a panel from the business and artistic communities judging and awarding prizes.

Trophies will be given in several categories, in groups of children under 6 years of age and those over 6 years of age.

In case of inclement weather, the rain date is Saturday, Oct. 27.

While youngsters are amused and entertained, adults will find enticing shopping opportunities in local stores and invited vendors and crafters.

Cauldrons will be bubbling overtime at Quincy Center eateries so that shoppers and revelers can enjoy the food specialties of Quincy diverse restaurants.

For more information, call 617-471-3232 or visit director@qbaonline.com.

The recently released Russian film "The Island" will be screened Thursday, Oct. 25, at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St. The showing is free.

The movie, which asks the favorite Russian question: Who is guilty?, is a parable about faith and salvation in a northern Russian Orthodox monastery.

His fellow monks are confused by the strange conduct of a visitor but other believe he has to power to heal, exorcise demons and foretell the future.

The film is not subject to rating by the Motion Picture Association of America but is not recommended for those under 17 unless accompanied by a parent.

The film was obtained by the library through its membership in the "Film Movement," distributor of films from the world's top festivals, including Cannes and Sundance.

For more information, call 617-376-1301 or visit thomascranelibrary.org.

Wizards Of Hogwarts Return To Wollaston Church Oct. 27

The Quincy Community United Methodist Church will become the Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry once again Saturday, Oct. 27, the train leaving on Track 9 3/4 promptly at 1 p.m.

For the third year in a row, the church at 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold a Harry Potter Celebration, this one with a theme based on "The Order of the Phoenix," the latest movie featuring the boy wizard.

"We will be repeating the things people enjoy," said the Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church.

"There will be a representative from Ollivander's Wands, a Sorting Ceremony and a Grand Feast. Quidditch will be played. Everything else will be brand new and we hope people will like the surprises we have planned."

Members and friends of the church will portray some of the characters from the best-selling books by J. K. Rowling, like Hagrid, Mad Eye Moody, Madame Maxime and Professor McGonagall among others.

Tickets are $6 per person, $20 for a family of four. Reservations may be made by calling the Harry Potter Hotline at 617-773-6854. Children must be accompanied by an adult. Costumes are encouraged but not required.

"We've sold out every year," said the Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden. "Last year some people called two days before the Celebration and we had to turn them away. We'd already sold out."

Cardinal Hits 'Home Run' At Bad Abbots Theology

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Some 160 faithful and curious flocked to Bad Abbots last week to hear Cardinal Sean O'Malley deliver the second session of "Theology on Tap" at the Irish pub in Quincy Square.

If anyone expected a keg party and rousing choruses of "Cheers to the Lord" at the event, they were in for a surprise.

"I'm a teetotaler," the Cardinal said later, adding, "I'm not a very exciting Irishman."

Cardinal O'Malley offered the pub patrons a 40-minute homily of hard as a rock theology while Bad Abbots stayed quiet as an abbey chapel.

Bad Abbots' owner Peter Kerr and his wife Ann welcomed Cardinal O'Malley. After the session, patrons described the Cardinal's address as powerful and effective.

"It was just tremendous. He hit a homerun," said Rev. Michael Drea who brought the six-session "Theology on Tap" program to Quincy in an effort to attract young people in their 20's and 30's to his church programs.

Father Drea scheduled theologians and a nun for the local Wednesday evening program which usually draws between 60 and 70 participants. Double that number arrived for the Cardinal's program.

"Talk about me wherever you are," the Cardinal said, quoting Jesus Christ's directive in the New Testament as the rationale for using such a different pulpit to reach out and evangelize.

Cardinal O'Malley cited ancient Roman writings, Greek philosophers and current trends as he warned that today's culture is devoid of moral standards and community and enamored of celebrity and entertainment.

"Sharing our faith is an imperative," the Cardinal said, then outlined the challenges facing his faithful and his church which, he said, has 17 million inactive Catholic who have "stormed off, dozed off or simply fallen through the cracks."

In addition, there are "a lot of cultural Catholics" who come to church for weddings, funerals and Christmas. For them, the Cardinal said, "The faith is a sort of folk religion."

Cardinal O'Malley acknowledged that widespread scandals badly hurt the church but said that all segments of people and society have good and bad. "There have always been saints and sinners in the church."

Cardinal O'Malley described today's society as an age of individualism which has rejected truth and principle for a "moral ping pong of preferences."

"We have reduced all the commandments to one: Be Nice," he said, adding there is now only one universal injunction, "Thou Shall Not Smoke."

"Celebrities have replaced heroes for our youth," he said, describing "a culture addicted to entertainment."

Today, Cardinal O'Malley said there is a "cynicism about the call to holiness" and "what we teach about human dignity, sexual morality and human life" is considered "increasingly alien. It makes us appear quaint and even meddlesome."

"Jesus didn't come and die on the Cross so that we could have the 'warm fuzzies,'" he noted.

After his talk, observers asked the Cardinal questions. One young man cited the busy world and asked where to find a quiet place for religious renewal.

"If we have time to watch television, we have plenty of time to pray," responded Cardinal O'Malley who added that such a life is not easy. "Even the Apostles ran from the Cross."

After his talk, Cardinal O'Malley stopped at several tables, chatting and mingling with patrons. He left, saying, "Let Bad Abbots get back to business."

Several participants, like Joe Gallagher of Boston, described the Cardinal's presentation as powerful.

"It was excellent. The Cardinal is a very powerful speaker," said Gallagher, adding that the points Cardinal O'Malley made were effective for his age group of "young adults (in) a culture that does not provide a lot of support for values."

"It's really great. They reach out to people of my age group," said Laura McPhilemy of Canton after the formal program.

Similarly, Hyun Gu said, "It was very cool."

Tom Connelly of Hull who represented older participants said that Cardinal O'Malley spoke "profound truth. To see these young people here, I'd say I've seen the future."

Earlier in the evening, Squantum resident Peg

Murray said of the crowd, "I'm looking at all these young kids. I do think it's a good idea."

Murray and her friend, Pauline Kelly of Germantown, both cited the sadness of having their churches closed. For Murray, Star of the Sea closed and Kelly lost St. Boniface Church in Houghs Neck.

Even before Cardinal O'Malley spoke, Alana Crehan of Wollaston, 21, said of Theology on Tap, "I think it's wonderful."

This was Crehan's second visit to "Theology on Tap" at Bad Abbots. She described her first event which featured Sr. Olga, an Iraqi native who is now a Roman Catholic nun and a campus minister at Boston University.

"She was awesome," said Crehan whose friend Laura Nash of Wollaston added, "She was only like four feet tall. If you had slipped away from the Church, you'd be back in (after hearing her)."

Crehan and Nash enjoyed their first visit to Theology on Tap so much that they invited their friend Tricia Farolla, Wollaston, to join them.

According to the current schedule, Rev. David Michael will discuss, "An

On Wednesday, Nov. 5, Rev. Dave Nicgorski, OMV, plans to present, "A Survival Guide for Relationships in the 21st Century Jungle."

Father Drea said that St. Ann parishioner Tom Lyman has helped coordinate the Theology on Tap program as have committee members Mike and Jen Dupill, Lynne Hancock, Matt Olander, Tom Ridge, Courtney Kasuba and Jim Golden.

Koch Announces Community Service Program For City's Young People

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch has unveiled a citywide community service initiative that will allow young people to trade-in volunteer time for summer jobs with the city and local businesses.

As part of his "Leadership Now" plan, Koch announced the new volunteer effort during Tuesday's first mayoral debate with Mayor William Phelan. He called the program an expansion of current volunteer programs coupled with several new opportunities run by a central program.

Koch said he has spoken to a number of business leaders and educators, who will be mapping out the program in coming months.

"Community service is a big part of what it means to be from Quincy, and we want to do more to instill the great pride I have for this city in our young people," Koch said. "We're working with the business community, and the response has been great" we're working with educators and response has been great. This has the opportunity to truly be a great program for our city and its youth."

Koch, the city's Park Commissioner until resigning his job to run for mayor, coordinated the first citywide "Cleaner, Greener Day," volunteer clean-up effort and expanded the program over the next 17 years to make it Quincy's largest volunteer event. Koch's family started the Koch Club more than 60 years ago, which grew into the largest civic, charitable, and youth sports organization in Quincy.

"Those are the ideals that this program is framed around-everybody willing to help and willing to help everyone," Koch said.

Under Koch's plan, young people who enlist in the volunteer program and dedicate a certain amount of hours to community service will be moved to the "top of the list" for job openings during the summer in the city.

Several businesses have already committed to providing jobs for young people who enroll in the program.

"It's just about community service-it's about giving our kids another constructive way to keep them involved and away from drugs and other trouble," Koch said. "And it's not going to be just about our young people-we're going to involve all generations of Quincy residents."

During the debate, Koch also announced plans to hire a full-time health educator for the city's high schools to ensure "every single 9th and 10th grader" gets a full program of drug education.

"It could not be any clearer that this city has an escalating drug program, and we have to do more to educate our kids," Koch said. "Education is one piece of a larger effort we plan to tackle our drug problem head-on."

Keep a good Mayor working for us.

The insiders want City Hall back.

But we've come too far to let that happen.

Bill Phelan has stood up for us, for our seniors and for our kids.

Independent, effective, and tough minded, Bill has balanced the budget, held the line on taxes, and — according to FBI statistics — made Quincy the second safest city in the state.

Bill Phelan has created affordable housing for seniors, fixed up our parks and streets, and improved our schools with smaller classes and all-day kindergarten.

And his innovative vision for smart business growth at Crown Colony, Quincy Center, and the Shipyard will mean tax relief for homeowners and new business and good jobs for the future.

Bill Phelan is moving Quincy forward. Don't let the insiders turn back the clock to record deficits, sweetheart deals, and the old politics.

Help keep a good Mayor working for us.

Patrick Touts Education Plan In Merrymount School Visit

(Cont'd From Page 2)

He noted that there are 125,000 people in Massachusetts looking for work right now and 90,000 job vacancies going unfilled.

"What does that tell you?" he asked. "Employers are saying they can't find people with the skills they need to do the jobs we have."

Patrick explained that, while he believes education is about preparing citizens, not necessarily employees, he also appreciates that education is the gateway to a good job.

"The stats bear that out," he said. "People who finish high school earn an average of $800,000 more over a lifetime than those who don't. That's an average, which means a whole bunch of people earn a whole lot more than that."

"And those who don't finish high school present a disproportionate drain on social services, everything from food stamp programs to housing subsidies to homelessness."

"Education can make a difference. Everybody says

it. I have lived it."

The audience, made up of School Committee members, educators and state and city officials, responded enthusiastically during the question and answer period with pointed comments, challenges and suggestions.

Patrick admitted that new revenues will have to be raised to finance his Read and acknowledged that some mandates imposed by the state are already unfunded. But he asked that goals not be derailed by lack of funding.

"How much education is necessary to enable people to move forward and compete in the society and the economy?" he asked.

"There is no doubt in my mind but that if we are as ambitious about this vision over the next 10 years as I want us to be, that we will have to raise new revenues."

Uriel Walinjom and his son, Nelson, a first grader at the Squantum School, were two of the many parent-child duos in the crowd of more than 200 people.

"Actually, I didn't know much about the Readiness Project until I received a notice from my son's school," said Walinjom. "I came here with an open mind, to get to meet the governor and to take an interest in my son's education."

"I look forward to hearing some good plans and projects the governor has for the education of our children. We want to hear what the leaders of today are planning for the leaders of tomorrow."

The Readiness Project consists of a council of more than 100 experts and practitioners who will be involved in the work of the Project's subcommittees to develop and implement specific steps, timeliness and cost estimates to be presented in the spring.

The Quincy meeting was the first in a series the governor plans to hold around the state.

Bilingual Heart Health Seminar At Library

A heart health seminar in English and Chinese will be presented Wednesday, Nov. 7, at 9:30 a.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The free program, "Heart Health: Who Should You Call?" will include presentations by a primary care physician and a Quincy Medical Center cardiologist, followed by a question and answer period.

The seminar will answer the frequently asked questions: Should I call my doctor? When do I need to see a cardiologist? When should I go straight to the emergency room and what should I expect there?

The program is one of a monthly bilingual series at the library, co-sponsored by Quincy Medical Center, South Shore Elder Services, Quincy Asian Resources and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Keenan Wants To Review DPW Budgets

Quincy Councillor at-Large John Keenan introduced a resolve before the City Council at last week's City Council meeting calling upon the Commissioner of Public Works and the City Auditor to report to the City Council on the status of the salary budgets within the Department of Public Works.

Keenan pointed out that at the end of the last fiscal year, $284,000 had to be transferred to cover deficits in the various DPW budgets.

"We are several months into the current fiscal year," noted Keenan, "so now would be a good time to take a look at the budgets of these various departments to make sure they are on target and will not overspend like last year."

Keenan also wants to review how much was spent on the hiring of summer help.

"The Council appropriated sufficient funds for the hiring of summer help," said Keenan after the meeting, "but a quick check of the accounts shows that those budgets went into deficit before the summer ended due to the number of summer help employees hired."

Keenan, who serves as chair of the City Council's Finance Committee, said that a review of the DPW budgets is important so that the City can avoid financial surprises in June, when the fiscal year ends.

"We cannot afford to again transfer over a quarter million dollars to balance a budget in June. Departments are given budgets by the Mayor, which are reviewed and approved by the City Council. The department heads and the administration must ensure that the departments function within those budgets, rather than come in at the last minute for more money to cover year-long overspending."

"We must do whatever we can," said Keenan, "to live within our means."

Keenan has continually expressed his concern regarding the funding of the City's stabilization account. According to the City's bond advisor, the stabilization account should have a balance of $20 million in order to offset the increases in the budget necessary to pay the increased borrowing costs associated with the high school. The City now has only $12.3 million in the stabilization account, according to Keenan.

"It's not enough," said Keenan. "Departmental budgets must balance at year end. If City departments are allowed to overspend, it means fewer funds for the stabilization account." Keenan said that if the stabilization fund is not properly funded over the next two years, then taxpayers would see a dramatic increase in their property taxes in Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011.

"We will review the budgets," said Keenan, "and putting the departments and the Mayor on notice now, hopefully at year end, funds will be available to increase the stabilization fund, which can then be used to ease the burden on taxpayers."

Liang Discusses Quincy's Government With Asian Mothers

Jimmy Liang, candidate for the Ward 6 city council seat, explained Quincy's form of government to 12 Asian mothers at a recent coffee hour.

The coffee hour was hosted by his mother, Zia Liang, in their French Street, North Quincy home.

Liang discussed the duties of the mayor and city councillors and the elective process. He also stressed the importance of every person exercising his or her right to vote.

"Democracy and the right to vote is what the students and labor activists were fighting and for when they protested in 1989 in Tiananmen Square in Beijing, China," Liang said. "In the weeks that followed hundreds of pro-democracy protesters were killed and thousands were injured trying to gain the type of freedom that we already have in America."

Other issues that were brought up by the parents included the importance of parent involvement in the schools and the need for good communication between the teachers and the parents.

Voters are invited to share their ideas with Liang at his campaign office at 38 Billings Road, Wednesdays from 2 to 4 p.m. or by calling the office at 617-331-2081.

Annual Food Drive Oct. 27

The annual holiday food drive will be held on "Make A Difference Day," Saturday, Oct. 27.

The drive is sponsored by the City of Quincy, the United States Postal Service and the Quincy Hunger Network. The donations are distributed to all Quincy food pantries.

"I urge you to make a difference in your neighbor's life by placing non-perishable donations by your mailbox for pick up by your letter carrier," urges Mayor William Phelan. "This is a great opportunity to help our community, we have collected over 40 tons the past few years and I would love for our residents to significantly add to that awesome number."

The city is also looking for volunteers at the Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway between 3:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. to help transport food from the Post Office and sort and package the food to be distributed to the local food pantries.

Image Consultant Speaker At Quincy Business Meeting

The Quincy Business Association will hold its fall general membership meeting Tuesday, Oct. 23, at 8:30 a.m. at the South Coastal Career Center, 152 Parking Way, Quincy Center.

The speaker will be Mary Garthe of Mary Garthe Associates, a consultant on imaging, branding and other fashion and home furnishings-related areas.

Her topic, "A Brand Called You," will relate how everything today, from accounting firms to drug stores to restaurants, needs a consistent image.

Her client list includes

Stride Rite, the Rockport Company (a division of Reebok), the Copley and Weston Hotels, the Canadian Consulate General and Boston Ballet.

Visitors are welcome at the QBA meeting. For more information, call the QBA office at 617-471-3232.

Free First Time Buyers Workshop In Chinese Mandarin

The Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) and Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI) will offer their First Time Home Buyers Workshop series in Mandarin Chinese.

The free workshop will consist of two sessions, Saturday, Nov. 3 and Saturday, Nov. 10 from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the QCAP main office at 1509 Hancock St. - 4th floor conference room.

John Brothers, QARI's Executive Director said "Mandarin speakers need to know about and be able to take advantage of the same home buying opportunities as other home buyers."

The workshop provides a review of the home buying process. Mandarin-speaking real estate professionals will focus from mortgages to home insurance.

Those attending both sessions will be eligible for downpayment/closing cost assistance of up to $10,000 and for a soft second program. They may also be able to obtain a low rate loan through MassHousing or MassHousing Partnership.

The program is open to all homebuyers, regardless of income level or town of residence.

Salvation Army Needs Volunteers For Christmas Kettles

The Salvation Army in Quincy is seeking volunteers to help staff the collection kettles for the upcoming Christmas season.

The kettles will be at various locations around the city starting Monday, Nov. 19, through Christmas Eve, Monday, Dec. 24.

Major Douglas Jones, co-commander with his wife, Major Linda Jones, of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St., said individuals and groups are needed as volunteers for a day or part of a day on whatever time they may be able to donate.

Volunteers standing at a kettle "may at the same time be standing in honor of a loved one or a friend as a tribute or a remembrance," Major Jones noted.

Sought are volunteers from churches, service clubs, companies and families to help raise funds to help others in need as the Salvation Army has done in the Quincy area for more than 100 years.

Last year alone, from October, 2006, to September, 2007, the Salvation Army in Quincy rendered assistance to 3,293 people, 1,195 for food, 50 for rent, 338 for utilities for a grand total of

MAJOR DOUG JONES

1,496 cases. Typically, a group of volunteers stands for about eight hours a day, with two people from the group volunteering for one or two-hour shifts together.

It takes about 16 people to handle a day at one-hour shifts. Groups can work as few as four hours if they are smaller in number.

Just before the turn of the 20th century, the Army started collecting money in soup kettles following a shipwreck in San Francisco. They were housing and feeding the survivors when the soup kettle and their resources ran dry.

An inspired Salvation Army worker took the empty kettle off the stove and ran to the street to ask people to "keep the pot boiling" by making donations to help the people in need in their city.

Today the Army uses red kettles on a tripod in 111 countries to collect funds for people in need. The Quincy Salvation Army uses the money it collects to meet local needs such as emergency foods assistance, toys for children and gifts for shut-ins, Major Jones said.

"Contact The Salvation Army in Quincy at 617-472-2345 if you can join the volunteers and groups who have already signed up to help,"

he said. "Please call right away to be assured of the date and location you or your group want most."

International Celebration At Quincy Credit Union

More than 172 million credit union members around the world are celebrating International Credit Union Day today (Thursday), to commemorate the credit union movement's history and achievements.

Quincy Credit Union invites the community to learn more about the "Credit Union Difference" during business hours 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. to meet the staff, enjoy refreshments, enter a special drawing and pick up a special QCU giveaway.

Since 1948, International Credit Union Day has been celebrated annually on the third Thursday of October. Each year, it affords the opportunity to remember our proud history and promote understanding and support for the credit union difference. This year's theme, "Together We're Better," reflects the value of credit union cooperation on all levels for members from all walks of life. Working together, credit unions build stronger institutions and more effectively serve their members.

Credit unions are not-for-profit financial cooperatives that provide an effective and viable alternative to for-profit financial institutions for more than 172 million members in 97 countries. They are member-owned and exist to provide a safe place to save money and access affordable loans.

Quincy Credit Union is located at 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy and currently serves over 22,000 members. Credit Union Membership is available to those who live and work in Norfolk and Plymouth counties, Dorchester and any family member. Quincy Credit Union is celebrating its 70th anniversary in business this year.

For more information about Quincy Credit Union's events, check www.qcu.org or "What's New Page" or visit the credit union.

City Saves $500,000 On Health Contracts

(Cont'd From Page 1)

Phelan continued, "Working with the employee unions and the City council, we have saved a half-million dollars in health care costs for our taxpayers this year and I expect that figure to grow to $2 million next year.

"The issue is a priority of my administration and we will continue to work on controlling these budget-busting costs."

Phelan also noted that he is currently advocating for the city to join the state's insurance plan, known as the Group Insurance Commission of G.I.C.

The mayor believes the city can save as much as $8 million a year by participating in the G.I.C.

Last Two Weeks For Farmers' Market

Only two weeks remain for the 2007 Quincy Farmers' Market, which has been acclaimed as one of the best seasons of them all for participating farmers.

Folks who still have some Farmers' Market WTC or Elderly Coupons have only the next two Fridays to cash them in at the market in the John Hancock Parking Lot.

"There is still time to stock up on the abundance and variety of winter squashes, as they keep well into Christmas and early winter," said Anneli Johnson, the Market Manager.

"There are still plenty of summer squashes because of the mild October."

Weather permitting, Freitas Farm will remain past the Oct. 26 closing date, coming to the market until the Friday before Thanksgiving (Nov. 16) with a full line of fruits and veggies.

"It has been one of the best seasons for all the farmers at the Quincy Farmers' Market," said Johnson, "thanks to The Quincy Sun, Quincy Access TV, the Patriot Ledger, Quincy 2000 and the city of Quincy Signs Department spreading the word.

Friday, Nov. 2 from 8p.m. to midnight at the IBEW Local Union Hall, 256 Freeport St., Dorchester.

"She's a fighter," said Nancy Peduzzi McNulty who has been best friends with Erin since North Quincy High School. Erin, then Erin Horrigan, graduated a year ahead of McNulty with the class of 1982.

Back then, and, even now, Erin loved Frank Sinatra so much her friends called themselves the "Rat Pack" fashioned after the tight group Sinatra buddies which included Sammy Davis, Jr., Dean Martin and Joey Bishop.

Erin's class will be marking their 25th anniversary and Horrigan has used that e-mail list and her own class list to get the word out about the benefit and raffle.

"Thank god for e-mail," said McNulty who also created a website thefriendsoferin@aol.com. The response has been wonderful, according to McNulty who said she has heard from hundreds of North Quincy alumni.

In the meantime, Erin began her third week of chemotherapy and last week, she was hospitalized with a fever.

"She's lost a lot of weight. She can't drive," said Horrigan.

While she's been having chemotherapy at Crown Colony, her parents and sister have helping with the youngsters so that David can go to work.

"We rotate days getting them off to school and preschool," said Horrigan, describing the schedule that she and Erin's parents, Richard and Diane Horrigan of Quincy, have adopted.

"She likes to keep her routine," said Shannon who added that "By 3 p.m., she's exhausted."

Erin, her brother Richard, and three sisters, Kim, Karen and Shannon, all grew up in North Quincy.

McNamee Wants Greater MBTA Presence At North Quincy T Station

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee wants a greater MBTA police presence in and around the North Quincy T station.

In a letter written this week to the General Manager of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA), Ward 6 City Councillor Brian McNamee has requested better MBTA policing in and around the North Quincy train station.

In his letter to MBTA General Manager Daniel Grabauskas, McNamee cited the harassment of a minor on the premises of the North Quincy station on Sept. 28. McNamee said the incident was resolved by the intervention of a private citizen, but that the situation could have been avoided with proper MBTA security.

McNamee said his has successfully put an end to the use of the North Quincy station as the pick-up and drop-off location of Boston Public Health Commission clients who utilize health and human service facilities on Long Island. He said, however, more work needs to be done.

"There are still agencies renting facilities on Long Island from the city of Boston that use the North Quincy station as a pick-up location for their clients," said McNamee. "On any given day one can observe the clients of these other programs loitering, sleeping on the sidewalk or harassing commuters, including our high school students who utilize the T." McNamee says these factors make the North Quincy station a particularly intimidating as well as risky place for North Quincy High School students.

"This is not a population you want your high school age children near. We do not know the criminal backgrounds of these individuals or their current behavioral stability."

"I have respectfully requested Mr. Grabauskas to maintain a police presence at the North Quincy MBTA station, just as he maintains a security of our school children is an issue that I take very seriously, and I will take whatever action is necessary to protect them."

both high schools."

Another North Quincy student, Jason Liang, asked Koch what he would do to control teen violence.

"We've had a major drug problem," said Koch. "Drugs certainly lead to violence. That's why I have suggested more programs in our schools, particularly in the ninth and tenth grade curriculum."

"We have some great recreation programs. Perhaps some enrichment programs at the schools, including music and art, could be more available to the children."

Phelan said his administration is doing a number of things to cut down on teen violence and promised to do more.

"We should be looking more at the bullying program at the elementary school level. We're looking to start a victim who witnessed violence program that will go a long way."

Sarah Elder of Quincy High School wanted to know how the candidate felt about school uniforms.

"I see the benefit of it," said Phelan. "But it is important for students to exhibit their individuality."

"I can't say I would propose uniforms at the high school and middle school levels but there should be a dress code and decorum that is followed by the students."

"I believe we need a minimum dress code," said Koch. "We don't need to go down the road to a full uniform. We ought to have a discussion involving the student body."

Student Chris Ng asked the candidates, if pressed for money, what is the first department they would cut.

Koch said he would "prioritize the budget based on public safety and public education. Then we can look at all the other areas of general government."

"It's so important to manage well, to get the most out of every dollar we spend. That's why it is important not to miss deadlines for school projects where we lost millions of dollars."

Throughout the debate, Koch insisted that as mayor, Phelan missed a deadline for state funding for Central Middle School which Phelan denied.

Phelan in turn accused Koch of advocating construction of the new Quincy High School on a toxic waste dump, which Koch denied.

"When we took office," said Phelan, "we looked to education last. We reduced the payroll everywhere except the School Department. We cut over 100 employees on city side, not school side."

"We were able to cut the budget without hurting the schools."

Future debates, also sponsored by the Patriot Ledger, are scheduled to be held Wednesday, Oct. 24, at the Quincy Access TV studio in the Thomas Crane Public Library, and Thursday, Nov. 1, at Quincy High School at 7 p.m.

14 Graduate From YouthBuild Program

Fourteen students graduated recently from the Quincy YouthBuild program which offers young people an opportunity to learn construction skills while obtaining their GED (high school equivalency diploma).

The 14 graduates who were awarded their diplomas at the Common Market, 97 Willard St., Quincy, are:

Carlos Caso, Ezequiel Castro, John Chase, Matthew Cimino, Michael Duncan, Reginald Hicks, Ian Lawrence, Shirwain Lumpkins, Sean McGonnigal, Kristin McMahon, Nicholas Morganelli, Dane Raynor, James Sears and Christopher Warren.

Speakers included Ward I Councillor Leo Kelly, Joseph MacRitchie, Executive Director, Quincy Housing Authority and Kim Armon, Vice President of Operations, Training Resources of America, Inc.

Speakers applauded the participants who not only improved their own future prospects but also worked hard on projects in the city.

"It's an honor to be able to provide a wonderful program like YouthBuild to our community. Our graduating students have shown a great commitment and desire to better their lives and ensure a brighter future," said Program Director Isabel Cobb.

As part of the program, the participants helped repair 180 buildings in the Riverview Family Development in the Germantown neighborhood.

With support from local unions and the Quincy Housing Authority, Quincy YouthBuild students replaced and repaired roofs, siding and windows at the Riverview complex.

YouthBuild is a nationwide network of more than 200 programs that provide comprehensive training to youth between the ages of 16 and 24 who are not in school and have not yet earned a high school diploma.

The program challenges participants to not only improve their lives, but also their community while earning their GED. Students are taught construction skills. While building low income housing units, they acquire life skills and become involved in their communities.

Graduates are enthusiastic about the program as described by James Sears.

"YouthBuild has changed my life," said Sears. "It has helped me in my academics, taught me responsibility and how I want to present myself to be respected by others. The program has changed my outlook on just about everything!"

The Quincy YouthBuild partnership is comprised of the lead agency, Training Resources of America, Inc., 1458 Hancock St., 2nd floor, in association with Quincy Housing Authority.

Atty. Maria DeLuzio Named To Women's Leadership Council

Quincy Atty. Maria DeLuzio has been appointed to the Advisory Council of the Women's Leadership Institute at Bentley College, Waltham.

DeLuzio is a partner in the litigation and employment practices unit of the law firm, Hiatt & Hoke LLP, 1250 Hancock St., Suite 504S, Quincy. DeLuzio is, also, the mother of two girls, ages four and two.

The Advisory Council promotes the advancement of women through research, educational programs and events serving the needs of women at all stages of their professional development.

"It is a privilege to serve on a committee with so many highly accomplished and successful women from the Greater Boston business community," said DeLuzio.

"I am delighted to be asked to help an organization whose goal is to help women advance in their careers and reach the upper levels of business and the professions."

The law firm's co-founder Matthew Hiatt said, "Ms. DeLuzio is a natural for such a position. Not only does she possess an extraordinary degree of experience, but she has a very strong sense of personal obligation to support other women as they strive to reach their goals in their chosen professions."

46 million reason$...

$46 Million.

That's how much extra Quincy taxpayers must pay for a new high school.

Why?

Because Mayor Phelan refused everyone's advice, blamed others for his mistakes, and fought with the state.

- Mayor Phelan's original high school plan in 2003, located at his own hand-picked site, was to cost taxpayers $8 million.
- His second plan, filed three years later, will cost $54 Million for taxpayers. The most expensive high school per student in the state.
- That's $46 million in increased taxes because Mayor Phelan pointed fingers for six years instead of providing leadership.

and millions more

State funding for a new Central Middle School LOST.

How?

Because Mayor Phelan failed to file the required application with the state in 2003.

- He then hid this information from every elected official and the public for almost two years.
- And when his deception was discovered, he again pointed fingers, attacked others, and still to this day refuses to accept responsibility for his failure.
- He STILL has no plan to rebuild this school, which the state now calls "medieval" with staircases "unfit for human passage."

FIRE SAFETY

Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Evacuation Plan A Must For Restaurants

You know it doesn't take long for something to occur prompting an article from me. Once something is brought to my attention through a conversation or news report, there's the urge to use it to convey some aspect of fire prevention to the public.

Reading excerpts from that tragic West Roxbury fire, two aspects of that incident caught my attention. The fire took place in a restaurant. We inspect many of the bars, restaurants and nightclubs within this city attempting to convey the importance of adhering to code and maintaining a safe premise 365 days a year.

There are many things we look at during an inspection while there is much that we emphasize as well. For instance, we convey to owners and managers that it is imperative that they have some evacuation plan in place in the event they witness smoke or fire within their establishment. We emphasize the importance of evacuating patrons immediately and without delay.

This incident in West Roxbury demonstrates that importance. The patrons were evacuated, while the tragedy appeared to occur soon after when the fire apparatus arrived. That would have taken mere minutes. The loss was great enough as it was, how much greater if there had been hesitation in evacuation of patrons as well.

Also emphasized, is the importance of scheduled hood and ductwork cleaning in commercial kitchens. Apparently there was an issue with these in that West Roxbury restaurant. During our inspections, the owners sign a document acknowledging that they are aware of the code pertaining to hoods and ductwork cleaning, the need for an evacuation plan and any other code pertaining to their establishment. It is all specified in black and white to encourage that year-round compliance.

That State code defers to the NFPA Standard 96. In that hoods, ductwork, etc., must be cleaned to bare metal at frequent intervals and inspected every six months. For years now establishments have received flyers pertaining to this and all other code. It is emphasized as well during each yearly inspection. If that emphasis wasn't enough, this tragic fire in West Roxbury should be.

Once again I take this opportunity to impress upon the owners of these establishments that we are here to answer any questions that they may have regarding the requirements of code for their establishments. For years now every opportunity has been taken to detail the specific requirements in writing for their reference.

Here is another example explaining why we have been so vigilant in doing so. Thank you!

the status quo.

"It would be nice to keep it just as it is," said Folsom, but added that it would be better to think the property will remain undeveloped.

"Rezoning to PUD is the best option for the neighborhood," said Janet Lewis who noted that the owners "...have been marketing it for at least 10 years."

"An industrial (zone) is antiquated," said Ed DiTullio, who believes residents are mistaken if they think that "things will stay the way they area."

As for the city purchasing the property, that's not going to happen, said DiTullio who believes that PUD zoning "gives us a stronger voice...."

City Council President Doug Gutro closed the public hearing on the issue which will be discussed in a council session at a later date.

The city's Assessor's office lists the property owner as Rossignol Corporation. Local residents told the council that the property is being marketed at $17 million.

Why 50% Of Homes Listed For Sale Don't Sell The First Time And What to Do About It

Quincy - If your home has just come off the market and hasn't sold, don't get discouraged. The reason your home did not sell may have nothing to do with your home or the market. In reality, your home may have been one of the more desirable properties for sale.

So Why Didn't Your Home Sell?

Last year almost half of the homes listed for sale never sold at all, and many sellers found that there was a tremendous amount a homeowner needed to be educated on to sell their home for top dollar in the shortest time period.

Don't risk making the wrong choices and losing both time and money on your investment. Before you hire a realtor, know the right questions to ask to save your time and money.

Industry experts have prepared a free special report called "How to Sell a House that Didn't Sell" which educates you on the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report call 800-611-0351 and enter ID#1012. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call now to make sure your home sells next time you list it for sale. www.southshorememo.com

Mayor's Letter Sparks Barrage Of Phone Calls To Retiree's Representative

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Over 100 confused retirees called Stephen Moynihan's home in the 24 hours after they received a letter signed by Mayor William Phelan discussing the retirees' health insurance benefits. Moynihan told the City Council Monday night.

"It (the mayor's letter) just scared a lot of people. A lot of them were crying on the telephone," Moynihan said.

"He sent a letter to 2500 people urging them to call me," Moynihan said, noting that he did not know the letter was being sent out and that he is a private individual not employed by the city.

"The telephone's been ringing off the hook. How would you like to have 2500 people calling you?" Moynihan said, adding, "Something's lacking at the higher level."

Moynihan, the founder and president of the 1500 member Quincy Retirees Association (QRA) was appointed last spring to represent the city's 2500 retirees on the Public Employees Committee or PEC. Each union will have a representative.

Moynihan said that his wife had to field the barrage of phone calls while he was at the Boston College-Notre Dame game in Indiana over the weekend with his son.

"I have yet to receive the letter," said Moynihan who added, "I'd say this is harassment."

Phelan's October 12 letter included Moynihan's telephone number and stated in boldfaced type, "This protection of your (health) benefits does not exist now."

Near the end of the letter, Phelan wrote, "I urge you to contact Mr. Stephen H. Moynihan, the state-appointed designee on your behalf..."

The letter then printed Moynihan's telephone number and address and described the benefits of encouraging him to vote in favor of transferring the City's health insurance to the state.

Moynihan, 75, told the City Council Monday that the calls were still coming in even as he spoke to councillors. He said his wife of 57 years was still fielding the calls when he left.

Moynihan has repeatedly said that he has not decided on how he will vote regarding the state insurance plan as the decision requires study and negotiation.

When the PEC is formed, members will begin coalition bargaining with the city and vote on whether the city will join the state's health insurance program.

Phelan has said the city could save $6 to $8 million dollars and employees, themselves, could save over $1 million in premiums a year.

Right now, Moynihan said that he is the only official member of the PEC as none of the city's unions have chosen their designee.

"I'm the only one who can vote," said Moynihan who noted that he's attended all meetings on the health insurance program.

As a city employee, Moynihan oversaw the school's administrative budget for over 21 years. He has said he intends to study and negotiate all the issues "I understand both sides."

In recent weeks, Moynihan asked city officials for access to the list of retirees but was turned down due to privacy issues. He had also asked if the city would mail his information packet at QRA's expense.

Personnel Director

Roberta Kety told councillors that she could not call, did not contact Moynihan in advance, and has repeatedly apologized for his publicly listed telephone number in the letter.

Kety also said that she believed Moynihan's chief concern was letting the retirees know that he had not yet committed his vote. Kety said that she tried to do that in the October 12 letter.

City councillors were sympathetic to Moynihan's plight. Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly stated he found Moynihan's predicament "upsetting."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said he could understand that retirees could be fearful after reading the letter while Councillor Joseph Finn called the letter "an advocacy letter."

Finn said the letter initially creates concern and fear and then the subtle urging to contact this person (Moynihan) for action.

"I just don't think it's right or fair or just," said Finn, adding, "The more I read it, the less I can believe it."

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis told Kety that she faced a mammoth task in educating employees, but that process was essential in getting the word out on the state program.

Councillor John Keenan suggested that the mailing costs and contacts costs for the distributing the QRA health benefits information should be picked up by the city.

"They need the information," said Keenan who noted the QRA is a private organization and shouldn't have to bear the burden of the costs.

"We have attempted to make those overtures," said Kety. "Hopefully, we will prevail."

Code Enforcement Officer Praised For His Work

Ken Burke, the city's first Code Enforcement Officer was praised Tuesday for his work in handling neighborhood blight issues.

The praise came from his supervisor Building Inspector Jay Duca as he marks the end of his first year on the job.

"Ken is doing a great job addressing the quality of life concerns in Quincy's neighborhoods," said Duca. "Mayor Phelan recognized the need for a Code Enforcement Officer and the results have been noticeable. Ken is tackling issues and getting results immediately. I think the new position has been a great benefit to our city."

Burke has addressed over 700 neighborhood complaints in the last year, Duca said. Including debris/rubbish, illegal signs, blight, overgrowth, illegal apartments, illegal businesses and other neighborhood complaints.

Phelan created the Code Enforcement Officer position after receiving feedback through the "Neighborhoods First" initiative.

"Our residents wanted to prioritize the issue of neighborhood blight control and we responded with the Code Enforcement Officer," said Phelan. "The impact that Mr. Burke has had on controlling minor issues that can cause major problems has been significant. We will continue to tackle the quality of life issues that make such a large difference in the quality of Quincy's great neighborhoods."

According to Duca, Burke has been able to resolve more than 95% of the complaints received within a two-day time period.

"Prior to Mayor Phelan creating the position, it would take us that long to address these issues, nevermind resolve the issue entirely," Duca said. "The Code Enforcement Officer has been a great addition to our municipal workforce."

Tape, String or Putty Revisited

Q. Your advice about using string, putty and tape in plumbing is a little off the mark. Those three products are quite different, and are not interchangeable at all.

You use tape (or pipe dope) to seal joints made between male threads and female threads, such as pipe (with male threads) threaded into a fitting (with female threads.)

You use string for packing. This goes around the stem of a faucet; it does NOT go on threads. It gets compressed as you tighten the packing nut, thereby making a seal against the stem itself.

Putty is primarily for sealing the rim of drains, and secondarily for setting fixtures such as faucets and toilets. It does NOT go on threads. — Nick F., via e-mail

A. Thanks for the clarification, Nick.

Q. In your recent column, you wrote that fruit flies can be found in unclean drains. After much experience with the little-known fly-in-the-drain syndrome, I can tell you that fruit flies are NOT in your drain — it's the sewer fly or drain fly.

We had a problem when we first moved into our pre-Civil War house with no basement. There was a leak in the sewer pipe, which was leaking into the dirt crawl space. ... In the spring when there is more rain, sewer flies came into our downstairs bathroom in droves.

Our insect man knew exactly what they were; however, he took a sample and sent some flies to the Rutgers University insect department for positive identification. Once the pipe was fixed and bleach poured on the affected area, we didn't have any more flies.

Here is a link to a Web site concerning drain/sewer flies: <http://www.doy-our-own-pest-control.com/drainflies.htm>.

A Job Well Done

(This incident began in Milton and ended in Quincy)

On Tuesday, Oct. 2, at approximately 3 p.m., Milton Police Motorcycle Officer Mark Cimildoro was on Granite Avenue for traffic enforcement when he observed a Dodge Intrepid with Maine plates. After running the plate via Communications, he learned that the vehicle was reported stolen.

As Officer Cimildoro followed the vehicle, he updated Communications and provided a description of the driver, who was the sole occupant. After the suspect vehicle stopped at the intersection of Franklin and Bassett Streets, the driver quickly accelerated towards Adams Street. Officer Cimildoro put his blue lights and siren on but the suspect failed to stop.

Milton Officer Ron Purcell, working a road detail, heard the incident on the radio and stopped traffic as the suspect approached. The suspect vehicle then went through the construction zone in the wrong lane and almost hit Officer Purcell, who had tried to wave the suspect over. Officer Purcell jumped out of the way to avoid being hit. The suspect increased speed and then reached another construction site in front of the East Milton Fire Station, where Lt. James O'Neil also tried to stop the vehicle. The suspect drove at Lt. O'Neil forcing him to jump out of the street.

On the other end of the construction site, Milton Officer Lundrigan also had to jump out of the way of the fleeing suspect. Once out of the construction zone, the suspect increased speed and drove on the wrong side of the road and violated many traffic lights as he attempted to escape. Milton Police Dispatch notified surrounding communities as the suspect drove out of Milton into Dorchester and then into Quincy, crossing over the Neponset Bridge and onto Quincy Shore Drive.

Milton Officer Cimildoro informed units that the suspect turned onto East Squantum Street, to Hummock Street and Williams Street. Milton Police lost sight of the suspect vehicle when he drove over the curb and sidewalk to slip by an oncoming trash truck, which also blocked passage of police units. Quincy Police Officers were now in the area looking for the suspect vehicle, believed to be headed south towards Wollaston Center. Officers' John Grazioso and Don Sautter were waved over by two females on Hamilton Street, who said that they saw the suspect vehicle turn onto Hamilton from Billings Road at a high rate of speed. They said that the front bumper fell off the car. The females said that they saw the same driver walking down Hamilton Street and he appeared nervous, constantly looking down the street.

The officers drove down Cummings Avenue and confronted a male matching the description given out by Milton and that of the females. The officers noted the suspect was nervous, sweaty and confused. The suspect originally said he was from New Hampshire and that he was just dropped off by a friend to go to another friend's house on Beach Street, even though he was headed in the wrong direction. When asked for a license, the suspect produced a Maine identification card.

While Officer Sautter checked to see if there were any warrants on the suspect, Detectives' Jim Lencki and Karyn Barkas arrived on scene and searched the suspect and found a set of keys, one of which had the "Dodge" symbol.

Officer Dan Francis informed the Officers that he found the stolen vehicle at the intersection of Muirhead and Beach Street, which are only a few blocks away from where the suspect was apprehended. State Police Trooper Mark Zych transported the suspect over to the vehicle's location, where Milton Officer Cimildoro identified the suspect as the driver and the car as the one he reported stolen. The key on the suspect was placed into the ignition of the stolen car and it started the car. Trooper Zych transported the suspect back to the Milton Police Department, where he was booked on charges of "Receiving a Stolen Motor Vehicle, 3 Counts of Assault by Means of a Dangerous Weapon (motor vehicle), Unlicensed Operation of a Motor Vehicle, Reckless Operation of a Motor Vehicle and Failure to Stop for Police." During the booking process, the suspect apologized for driving at the Officers at the construction sites. In addition to the above charges, the suspect also had 7 outstanding felony warrants in the State of Maine, so he was also charged with "Fugitive from Justice." Nice Work to all Officers and Departments involved!

CAR BREAKS: Generally, break-ins to cars that are unlocked are often committed by youths who go door to door looking for an easy entry, then ransack the interior looking for anything of value, including coins to steal. Then there are the criminals who look into the interior of the car looking for items of value, then smash a window to open the door.

The most popular items being taken are technology-based, such as I-Pods, GPS's and laptops. By removing valuable items from plain view inside the vehicle, the criminal will move on to the next vehicle. Another point to consider; if you leave a box or bag inside the passenger area of the vehicle knowing that the items have no value, it still may peak the interest of a criminal to find out what is in the package. Once inside the car, the criminal may not get anything of value, but you may have a broken window to contend with when you go to use your car again. Bottom line: Lock your car, remove temptations by bringing valuables inside and conceal packages, etc. in the trunk.

QHS Golfers Enjoying Recent Success

The Quincy High School boys golf team has rebounded from a difficult start to their season to win two of its last three matches. The team currently has a record of 3-9.

The Presidents have been led all season long by the leadership and play of tri-captains Kevin Shea, Ricky Salvucci and Mike LeBel. Add in the emergence of sophomore Tim Young, and fourth-year head coach Lou Venturelli's team has often held leads after the first two groups of golfers have finished their rounds.

"Kevin has been outstanding all season for us, and I was counting on Ricky and Mike to come through for us, but the real surprise has been the improvement Young has shown," said

GOLF

Venturelli.

According to Venturelli, the addition of senior Tony Salaris has been a nice surprise and the improved play of senior Sean McDonald, juniors Evan Luongo and Will Head and sophomore Kevin Keith has given the Presidents a formidable group of eight golfers.

"We haven't really put it together yet, but I like the eight golfers we can put out on a golf course on a given day. We're working hard on focusing on each shot and managing the course," he added.

The team's slow start has allowed Venturelli to play all of his golfers in a varsity match this fall. Senior Nick Masone, junior Bryan Ash, who came through with a big match-clinching win versus Whitman-Hanson, juniors Stephen Kamb and Scott Vallatini, sophomore Pat Conley and freshmen Matt Head, Brendan Gibbons and Derek Murphy have all played a part in Quincy's second-half resurgence this season.

In Quincy's most recent win over Plymouth South, Salvucci and LeBel, who both won their matches 7 1/2 to 1 1/2, led the team.

Norfolk County Golf Classic 2-Ball Results

Presidents Golf Course hosted the Norfolk County Classic 2-Ball championship on October 14. The following are the results of the top-15 pairings from the event. The 2-Ball format puts two golfers together, and the final standings are the combination of those two golfers combined scores:

1. Frank Vana (Marlboro) and Brendan Hester (Pleasant Valley), 64-64 (scores), 128 (total).
2. Brian Higgins (Franklin) and Tim Mooradian (Hopedale), 63-67, 130.
3. Doug Clapp (Walpole) and Bob Malcolm (Oakely), 66-64, 130.

4. Dave Falcucci (Cyprian Keys) and Dan Falcucci (Cyprian Keys), 67-64, 131.

5. Kevin Wilwerth (Walpole) and Steve Winter (Walpole), 63-69, 132.

6. Mark Heffernan (Charles River) and RJ Foley (Sterling), 67-65, 132.

7. Ray Wright (Framingham) and Mike McCarthy (Hyannisport), 64-68, 132.

8. Mike Wilcock (Plymouth) and Guy Lansing (Plymouth), 69-64, 133.

9. Tim Diskin (Lexington) and Ken Diskin (Lexington), 63-70, 133.

10. Gary Palmer

(Segregansett) and Bob Hickman (Bay Point), 66-68, 134.

11. Paul Heffernan (Charles River) and Dave Tasho (Thorny Lea), 67-67, 134.

12. Bob O'Brien (Winchester) and Greg Nelson (Maplegate), 69-66, 135.

13. Doug Partigan (Long Meadow) and Eric MacPhail (Sandy Burr), 64-71, 135.

Winner Of Six Tournaments A Golf Season To Remember For Quincy's Kevin Shea

By SEAN BRENNAN

Kevin Shea, Quincy High School's top varsity golfer, had himself a very good summer on the golf courses in and around the Quincy area.

Shea, who has been competing this fall as the Presidents' Number One golfer, played in 22 different tournaments, beginning last April, and he finished with six first place finishes, two second place finishes and three third place finishes.

Shea won the South Shore Four-Ball tournament at Black Rock Golf Club in Hingham on July 17 with a round of 70, earned a first-place finish at the NEPGA tournament at Presidents Golf Course on July 18 with a score of 70, took first place honors at the Duxbury Yacht Club's South Shore Four-Ball tournament on July 23 with a round of 74, he won the prestigious Norfolk County Classic at Presidents Golf Course with a scintillating round of 68, finished first at the South Shore Four-Ball tournament at Green Harbor Golf Course on August 8 with a score of 71 and won at the NEPGA tournament at Quashnet Valley in Mashpee on August 13 with a round of 78.

Add in the second place finishes he had at the NEPGA at Gannon Golf Course and the CYO Match Play tournament at Ponkapoag. And his third place finishes at the MGA Qualifier at Furnace Brook, the NEPGA at George Wright Golf Course and the Knights of Columbus tournament at Bay Pointe Golf Course and you could say without hesitation that Shea dominated the local golf scene.

"I spent all summer playing golf, trying to better my game at each event," Shea said in an interview earlier this fall at The Quincy Sun. "Playing golf was like my job this summer. I just tried to go out at each event and improve my game, my driving, my short game and my approach game."

Shea, who has been a member of the Quincy High School golf team since he was a freshman, shoots in the mid-70s on average, but he knows that if he wants to continue playing in college and beyond, he needs to continue working on all aspects of his game.

"I am looking to go to college somewhere down South and play college golf," Shea added. "My ultimate goal is to play professionally. But I know that that takes a lot of hard work and practice. That is one of the main reasons that I played so much golf and had myself such a busy summer. The more tournaments I can play in, the better I am going to get. I challenged myself this summer against some of the best golfers around, and did well."

So far this fall, Shea, who is a team tri-captain, has carried Quincy in every match played. And according to head coach Lou Venturelli, Shea is enjoying his best season to date:

"Kevin has been outstanding all season for us. He has lost only one match in match play, and he has been the medallist in all but two of our matches. He has been phenomenal."

Red Raiders Drop 28-6 Decision To D-Y

FOOTBALL

The North Quincy Red Raiders dropped a 28-6 game to Dennis-Yarmouth High School last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The loss puts North Quincy's overall record at 3-3 and 2-2 in the competitive Atlantic Coast League.

The star of the game was Dennis-Yarmouth senior running back Joe Jamiel. Jamiel, who entered the game as the leading scorer in Division 1A, added to those totals with three rushing touchdowns, including two in the fourth quarter to blow wide-open a close game up to that point. Jamiel now has scored 14 touchdowns this season.

The Dolphins (6-0, 4-0) scored first early in the opening quarter. Jamiel finished off the impressive opening drive with a 12-yard touchdown run. The successful point after attempt by Phil Ford put D-Y up 7-0.

The Red Raiders, looking to recover from a 28-0 loss last week to Plymouth North, could not score on either of their two possessions in the first quarter, but the North Quincy defense held the Dolphins' offense in check the rest of the quarter.

In the second quarter, the Red Raiders took advantage of some sloppy play from the Dolphins. After taking the opening possession into North Quincy territory, D-Y was forced to give the ball back to the Red Raiders after missing on several passes over the middle of the field, and used solid run defense against Jamiel to halt the drive.

The Raiders received the subsequent punt and, behind quarterback Dennis Martin and the running of Jon Cahill and Danny Jackson, drove the ball down the field. With Cahill (125 yards rushing) doing most of the grunt work on the drive, North Quincy quickly found themselves down inside the Dolphins' 10-yard line. After two runs by Cahill brought the football down to the one-yard line, Martin called his own number and scored from a yard out to bring the score to 7-6. The Red Raiders failed on the extra point attempt, and entered the halftime break down 7-6.

In the third quarter, neither team's offense could get anything rolling, as the Red Raiders defense packed the line and did not allow Jamiel to get anything going on the ground. D-Y went three and out twice in the quarter, but the Red Raider offense could also not find any rhythm on either of their two third quarter possessions and were forced to punt the ball away right at the end of the period.

The Dolphins scored early and often (21 points) in the final quarter, and it was Jamiel who did most of the damage against a tired North Quincy defense. He scored from four yards out on his team's first possession to put them up 14-6 and after North Quincy went nowhere on their ensuing drive, Jamiel capped off a seven play drive with another touchdown run from two yards out to put the game out of reach at 21-6.

Dennis-Yarmouth's Ricky Thomson caught a 10-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Ricky Montallone late in the quarter to account for the final touchdown.

"Jamiel is an outstanding football player, and we could not find a way to stop him all game," said head coach Jim Connor. "We needed to play perfect in order to stop them, and we did for the first half and third quarter, but they wore us down in the fourth."

North Quincy will play down on the Cape this Saturday against Nauset High School at 1:30 p.m. Nauset is 1-5 overall, and 1-3 in the Atlantic Coast League play. They are averaging 10.7 points per game and are allowing opposing offenses 25.0 points per game.

The Red Raiders, who are 1-1 on the road, come into the game scoring 15.2 points per game, while allowing 19.8 points against.

Presidents Fall To Rams

The Quincy Presidents may have lost on the road against Marshfield High School 24-6 last Friday night, but the team, after being down 17-0 at halftime to the #8 team in Eastern Massachusetts, held its own in the second half.

With the loss, Quincy's record stands at 1-4 overall, 1-3 in the Atlantic Coast League.

The game did not start out the way Quincy would have liked. The opening kick off pinned the Presidents deep inside their own territory, and after two consecutive plays gained negative yardage, the Rams sacked quarterback Lance Peterson in the end zone for a safety and an early 2-0 advantage.

Marshfield returned the punt following the safety into Quincy's side of the field and drove the ball inside the twenty of the Presidents. Running back Steve Lunn (three TDs) punched it in from one-yard out to cap off the drive. Dennis McCarthy converted on the two-point conversion to put the Rams up 10-0 at the end of the first quarter.

Quincy had their chances on offense to respond to the early Marshfield attack, but failed to score on two occasions. After Marshfield scored to go up 10-0, the Presidents, behind the play of quarterback Lance Peterson and running back Diego Arredondo, drove the ball all the way down to the Rams' five-yard line. But on first-and-goal from the five, Quincy failed on four attempts to get the ball over the goal line.

Marshfield responded to the Presidents' missed opportunity by driving back down the field and scoring on another four yard touchdown run by Lunn.

After missing a golden opportunity to cut into the 10-0 deficit and seeing the Rams go up 17-0, the Presidents defense held the Rams high-flying offense in check, and with time running out in the half, got the ball back.

With the seconds ticking off the clock, Quincy once again drove the ball into Marshfield territory, but a last second pass in the back of the end zone was dropped and Quincy entered the halftime break down by a score of 17-0.

The second half was evenly played, as both teams struggled to get any offense going early in the third quarter. But after Quincy went three and out for the second straight time, Marshfield put the nail in the coffin with another extended scoring drive. Lunn capped off his impressive day with another one-yard touchdown run to extend the lead to 24-0.

Quincy would finally put some points on the score board late in the fourth on a 22-yard pass from Peterson to wide receiver Anthony Radatz.

The schedule does not get any easier for the Presidents this week as they are back on the road against undefeated Dennis-Yarmouth High School. The Dolphins, coming off a 28-6 victory over North Quincy, are 4-0 in league play, one game behind Marshfield for ACL supremacy. D-Y is averaging close to four touchdowns a game (27.5 points per game) and running back Joe Jamiel has scored 14 touchdowns to lead Division 1A in scoring. Their defense is allowing 14 points per game.

City Tennis Tournament Champions Crowned

For the past 37 years, Quincy's best tennis players have come together each fall to determine who among them will be crowned City Champion in eleven events, and which city employees will be crowned champions in two events.

The tournament, sponsored by the City of Quincy's Recreation Department and the Quincy Credit Union, brings together the young and old, families, past champions and first-time entries. And after two weeks of beautiful weather and over 150 matches, the champions have been crowned and the trophies have been awarded.

The following are the results for the 37th Annual Tennis Tournament:

For Jirawat Anektanasap and Phoebe Chan, patience and perseverance paid off in 2007, as both returned to the winner's circle after a three-year hiatus. Anektanasap reclaimed the "Lionel Shine Buckley Bowl" to earn his fourth Men's Singles Championship 6-2, 6-4 over the challenger Kevin Murphy. Murphy had advanced to the championship by defeating last year's champion, Ron Abell, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 in one of the best matches of the entire tournament.

Chan won her third Women's Singles title by defeating three-time champion Patrice Sullivan 6-4, 6-3. After their match, the buzz among the spectators was about a potential rubber match at next year's tournament.

In one of the most competitive events at the tournament, the Men's Doubles championship, the team of Anektanasap and Cristian Popa defeated the team of Paul Carty and Murphy 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 in a well played three-set match that went late into the night to capture The Henry McAuliffe Bowl. This is the fourth time that Anektanasap has been a part of a winning doubles team. Carty and Murphy had previously been crowned doubles champions in 2004.

Victor Luzarraga won his fourth straight Men's Thirty-Five and Over Championship over last year's Men's "B" champion Job Chan 6-1, 6-0.

In a match that took almost three hours to complete, Patrice Sullivan won the Women's Thirty-Five and Over title by defeating last year's champion, Helen Mao, in three hard fought sets 6-4, 5-7, 6-2. This is Sullivan's third Women's Thirty-Five and Over title.

Barry Collins knocked off Pat Russetti 6-1, 6-4 to win the Men's 50 and Over championship and the Richard Meade Bowl.

Twin sisters Sara and Elizabeth Sullivan met once again this year in the finals of the Girls' Sixteen and Under event. Last year Sara won the title, but in 2007, Elizabeth came out on top with a 7-5, 6-3 win.

In the Boys' Sixteen and Under event, Dallana Wijesundera won his first city championship with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Phillip Wong.

First-time participants and brothers, Tany and Thynann Ban, both advanced to the finals of the Men's "B" championship. After a competitive match, Tany defeated Thynann 6-3, 7-5 to capture his first city title.

The mixed doubles team of Robert Yee and Francesca DiBona won the William F. Ryan Bowl by defeating last year's champions, Victor Luzarraga and Helen Mao 6-3, 7-4 in the finals. This is the third year in a row that Yee has won a championship and it is also the third championship for DiBona. She had previously won both the Women's Singles event and the Girls' Sixteen and Under event.

In the Women's Doubles division, tournament veterans, Patrice Sullivan and Phoebe Chan, joined forces to make a run at another title. However, this championship has been won by Aileen Eley and assorted partners nine out of the past ten years, and 2007 would be no different. Despite their strong efforts, Sullivan and Chan were defeated 7-5, 6-2 in the finals by Aileen and her seventh-grade daughter, Jacquelyn. It was Eley's third title in a row in this event.

In the City's Employee's Division, Robert Yee, from the Recreation Department, won his second championship of 2007 with a 6-3, 6-3 victory over Peter Dionne of the Quincy Public School system. Dionne made his way to the finals by defeating three-time champion Jack Goddard of the Fire Department. On his way to the finals, Yee defeated Mark Jaehnig from the Park Department. Jaehnig is a past champion in the Men's "B" event.

Kami Medeiros of the Quincy Public Schools defeated Kristen Keohane from the Park Department 6-2, 6-2 to win her second championship in the City's Employee's Women's division.

The men and women in the City Employee's events are allowed to be non-Quincy residents.

Barry J. Welch, Recreation Director, once again gave credit to John Franceschini, who has been the Tournament Director for over thirty years, for creating an outstanding draw, which in turn created great play in all of the events.

"The play was excellent and equally important, the participants also had fun."

Welch also recognized the job done by tournament co-director Michelle Hanly who was instrumental in co-directing the times and days of all matches:

"This is not an easy task with the weather and work schedules to coordinate for more than three weeks. We could not have operated without her. We are fortunate to have such a great staff."

Welch continued in his praise the involvement of the Quincy Credit Union for its financial support of the tournament:

"I know that they recognize that traditional events, like our tournament, contribute to the fabric of our community. We would not be able to continue this event without such a caring and willing sponsor."

This year marked the 12th year of support from QCU and in addition to providing financial support, the Quincy Credit Union also donated water bottles and pens to all the participants.

All of the City Champions will have their names engraved on a permanent bowl, which is displayed year-round at the Recreation Department office. Each champion and finalist is presented with his or her own award.

Quincy Future Stars AAU 10-Year Olds Win Dan Duquette Tourney

The Quincy Future Stars AAU 10-year old baseball team recently wrapped up another successful season by winning the Aug. 15 tournament at the Dan Duquette Sports Academy in Western Massachusetts.

Quincy went 5-0 in the tourney, and won the championship with a thrilling 2-1 victory over the team from Williamstown. Aaron Clancy knocked in the game-winning run with his first AAU home run, while Sean Holleran and Tyler Beach combined to limit Williamstown to just one run with great pitching.

The whole team played superb defense throughout the event.

The Duquette championship capped off a very successful season that saw the team go 25-10 in the regular season and in a handful of other summer tournaments, raising the two-year team win/loss total to 43-15.

After being eliminated in the medal round of the NEAAU tournament, the Future Stars began their summer baseball tournament trail. First up was the Braintree Invitational where the team reached the championship game with an extra-inning win over host Braintree in the semifinals. Pat Trenholm supplied the winning hit. The team lost to Milton in the finals.

Next up was the Freetown tournament against local AAU rival, the South Shore Sea Dogs. In pool play, a hard-fought game ended in an 8-8 tie as the two-hour time limit was reached. The game remained close throughout due to the gutsy pitching by Nolan Flynn and Tyler Beach, as well as a fantastic double play turned in by Colin Evans and Aaron Clancy.

The Future Stars and the Sea Dogs would meet again in the semifinals, with the Future Stars coming out on top 15-8. John Grazelli led the offensive attack with a grand slam and a two-run homer, giving him six home runs for the five-game tournament.

Quincy ended up losing a tough 8-6 game against Barnstable in the championship game.

The coaching staff of the Future Stars would like to thank each and every ballplayer and their families for another fantastic year. The Future Stars begin their year in February, play on ball fields across New England throughout the summer and end the year at the Duquette tournament in August.

North Quincy Girls Gaining Momentum

By SEAN BRENNAN

The North Quincy girls' soccer team is slowly gaining momentum, and it could not have come at a better time.

The Red Raiders are coming off a 0-1-2 week that saw them tie Plymouth South and Plymouth North. They lost a heart breaker to Marshfield in the middle of the week, but with four games remaining that count, the Raiders need seven points to make the post season.

"We had a good week and earned some much-needed points," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "We tied Plymouth North and Plymouth South, but the best thing to come out of the week was the play of our young players. These girls took awhile to get adjusted to the varsity level, but starting about two weeks ago they have played with an edge and a passion that they didn't have at the beginning of the year."

Freshmen Shannon Coleman, Jill Carchedi and sophomore Lindsey Repucci all played solid games last week to help the Red Raiders.

Against Plymouth South, North Quincy got 25 saves from junior goalkeeper Siobhan Carnell and great defense from senior Simone Leary and Repucci to preserve the shutout and earn the 0-0 tie.

"Siobhan was pretty impressive," Bregoli added. "She made 25 saves, as Plymouth North peppered the net throughout the game. We could not get anything going offensively, but Leary shut down their best player and we earned the tie."

In the game versus Marshfield, senior captain Emily Milone scored on a highlight-reel goal (10th of the season) early in the first half to put the Red Raiders up 1-0. Marshfield tied the score late in the half, and scored the winner three minutes into the second half. But the performance did not go unnoticed by the head coach.

"We played hard and we played well," Bregoli said. "Milone's goal was a beauty. She took a corner kick from Brittany Folkins and side volleyed the ball into the back of the net. It was special. We played hard and Mary Kate Stille, Shannon Coleman and Kerry Coughlin all played solid games. Coleman, only a freshman, played her best game to date."

North Quincy played to a 0-0 draw against Plymouth South to start their week.

"We outplayed them, but could not score," Bregoli stated. "Cara Murtagh had a golden opportunity to score but hit the post. Our defense once again stood on its head, and Carnell played great in net to record the shutout."

FALL CAR CARE

Choosing A Repair Shop

(NAPS) - Today's vehicles are among the best built, but without routine care and maintenance they will age prematurely and rack up unnecessary repair bills. Here are some tips on finding a good repair establishment from the pros at the nonprofit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE):

- Start shopping for a repair facility before you need one.
- Ask your friends and associates for their recommendations; consult local consumer groups.

- Look for a neat, orderly facility with modern equipment and a courteous staff willing to answer your questions.
- Look for policies regarding estimated repair costs, diagnostic fees, guarantees, acceptable methods of payment, etc.

- Ask if the repair facility specializes or if it usually handles your type of repair work.
- Look for signs of professionalism in the customer service area, such as community or customer service awards.

Look for evidence of qualified technicians: trade school diplomas, certificates of advanced courses and ASE certification.

ASE was founded to improve the quality of automotive service and repair through the voluntary testing and certification of automotive technicians. ASE-certified technicians wear blue and white ASE shoulder insignia; their employers often display the blue and white ASE sign.

HELPING TO CUT the ribbon marking the grand opening of Milton Hospital's expanded emergency department and other renovations are (from left): John Riley, SVP & CFO, Walsh Brothers; Wayne Arruda, Project Executive, Walsh Brothers; Myrtle Flight, Hospital Board member; (behind her) Paul Paganelli, MD, Chief of Emergency Medicine; Mark Hodgman, MD, Medical Staff President; Bruce Alexander, Capital Campaign Chair; (behind him) Michael Brady, Finance Committee Chair; Richard Ward, Esq., Chairman of the Board; Joseph Morrissey, Hospital President; Charles Winchester (cutting ribbon), Building Committee Chair; (behind him) George Barrett, MD, Chief of Gastroenterology; Marion McEltrick, Milton Selectperson; Senator Brian Joyce; (behind him) Anthony Cichello, Building Committee Member and Hospital Corporator; Carolyn Savage, Hospital Board Member; and Robert Sheffield, Esq., Hospital Board Member.

Designed To Meet Growing Patient Population

Milton Hospital Opens New Emergency Department, Endoscopy Suite, Lobby

Milton Hospital, a clinical affiliate of Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center providing community-based health care, announces the grand opening of its expanded emergency department, self enclosed endoscopy suite and surgical departments, as well as interior and exterior remodeling of the lobby, reception area and admitting department.

The landmark expansion and renovation is the first at the hospital in nearly 25 years and includes a 25,000 square foot new building addition and the renovation of 25,000 square feet of existing interior spaces, and a new 70-plus car parking deck.

A public ribbon cutting and open house was held recently at the hospital to celebrate the expansion. Local politicians, hospital staff and members of the community gathered in the new lobby for a behind-the-scenes tour of the new facility and to show their support of the hospital.

"The new emergency department was designed to ensure patient safety, comfort and confidentiality," stated Joseph Morrissey, president and CEO at Milton Hospital. "When the project is fully complete we will be doubling the size of the current emergency room and adding private examination rooms with sound proof doors, plasma TVs and climate control. We are taking the lead in patient care and comfort with continued personalized attention to the local communities." The new emergency department also features a state-of-the-art critical care center, a new ambulance entrance and a separate entrance decontamination room.

"This hospital is the crown jewel of Milton," state Senator Brian Joyce said at the ribbon cutting. "My father and brother have both had their lives saved at Milton Hospital. It takes a community to accomplish an expansion of this caliber, and I am proud to be part of this community."

"Across the generations, Milton Hospital has been a vital resource to the local community," said Richard Ward, chairman of the hospital's board of directors. "Now, with the considerable shift from inpatient to outpatient care, the expanded ER, endoscopy suite, patient rooms and dedicated reception and waiting area for outpatients will meet these shifting needs. This project ensures Milton Hospital's value to the local community."

"The opening of the new emergency department with state-of-the-art technology, rapid transfer for heart attack patients and telemedicine for stroke patients, ensures our patients will have rapid access to the top specialty care in the area here at our community hospital," said Mark T. Hodgman, M.D., president of the medical staff. "Additionally, we anticipate that the increase in beds will reduce waiting times for those with less critical illnesses."

The hospital selected Steffian Bradley Architects for their design which enhances patient comfort, convenience and confidentiality while using elements such as natural light. Additionally, Walsh Brothers served as the construction manager for the project and working together, they implemented phased construction schedules and carefully coordinated site management plans to ensure the least possible intrusion to patients, physicians, staff and visitors during the construction activity.

The next two phases of the expansion project will include two new operating rooms, renovations to four existing operating rooms, renovations to the existing emergency department and 19 pre and post surgery bays. The total cost of the construction is $38 million and the funding has come from individuals, businesses, foundations and financing

Toning Up Those Wimpy Arms

Q. In a few months I will be a bridesmaid in a wedding and will have to wear a strapless dress; however, my arms have NO muscle tone. What exercises can I do to tone my arms to look my best in the dress?

A. The appearance of strong, lean and toned muscles can be achieved through a comprehensive exercise program that not only focuses on appearance, but also stability, muscle balance and function.

The muscles most people wish to tone are the triceps (back of the arm), biceps (front of the arm) and deltoids (shoulders). Each of these muscle groups must function properly for you to maximize function, strength and stability. Although your goal may be to tone your arms, an exercise program that targets the entire body will help you reach your goals.

As you probably know, you cannot spot train — targeting your workout just for the arms — and produce results. Fortunately, we use our arms while working other muscle groups such as the chest and back, so although you are not focusing just on the arms in those exercises, they have to work in order for those exercises to be completed.

Great exercises for the arms include bicep curls, triceps extensions and shoulder raises. These exercises can be done with dumbbells, resistance bands, body weight or with exercise machines. Be patient when trying new exercises, and complete sets and repetitions that will allow you to progress as you get stronger.

Don't forget that exercises such as pushups, pull-ups, chest press and rows also require the arm muscles to work, even though they are not isolated. Exercises for your lower body may seem to not have anything to do with your arms, but they can also help lower your body fat and increase your overall lean muscle mass.

Give yourself several weeks to see results, and maintain a consistent exercise regime. Try not to overtrain while trying to reach your goals, and allow your body recovery time in between higher-intensity workouts.

Remember that nutrition and other positive lifestyle choices are important to have you looking great in your strapless gown.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

GETTING YOUR FILL

Perhaps the simplest, least expensive, and most efficient method of repairing chipped, broken, discolored, and misshapen teeth is bonding with composite resin. Cosmetic dental bonding utilizes a pliable, tooth-colored material that can be virtually spread like sculptor's clay into gaps and fissures. Once in place, the dentist cures the resin with a high-intensity light. The hardened, durable surface is then sculpted to fit the tooth, after which it is polished. All this takes one office visit, and there is no need to use anesthetics because the bonding procedure is virtually painless. Bonded teeth take on added structural strength, and the composite material will last up to a dozen years. Bonding is a quick, cost-effective, smile-enhancing solution to minor tooth imperfections.

Can we improve your smile? Today's technology, such as bonding, provides a variety of options to address cosmetic concerns. We provide a full range of dental treatments, including preventive, restorative, and cosmetic dentistry. Our entire staff is dedicated to helping your look and feel better. We are currently accepting new patients and welcome you to call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We are located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where you will be pleased with our "personal touch" philosophy and our dedication to your complete dental health. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Composite resins bond directly to tooth surfaces.

The Garden Bug Too close for comfort

If a plant is failing, you might blame its neighbor. Allelopathy is a plant's use of chemicals to ward off other plants. Black walnut trees emit juglone, a toxin that inhibits the growth of vegetables, azaleas, rhododendrons, blackberries, lilacs, peonies, and apple trees.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might feel compelled to get involved on the "right side" of a seemingly unfair fight. But appearances can be deceptive. Get the facts before going forth into the fray.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Bullying others into agreeing with your position could cause resentment. Instead, persuade them to join you by making your case on a logical point-by-point basis.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Resist pushing for a workplace decision you might feel is long overdue. Your impatience could backfire. Meanwhile, focus on that still-unsettled personal situation.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspects favor doing something different. You might decide to redecorate your home, or take a trip somewhere you've never been, or even change your hairstyle.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might want to take a break from your busy schedule to restore your energy levels. Use this less-hectic time to also reassess your plans and make needed changes.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) What you like to think of as determination might be seen by others as nothing more than stubbornness. Try to be more flexible if you hope to get things resolved.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Watch that you don't unwittingly reveal work-related information to the wrong person. Best to say nothing until you get official clearance to open up.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) With things settling down at work or at home, you can now take on a new challenge without fear of distraction. Be open to helpful suggestions from colleagues.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your creativity can help resolve an emotional situation that might otherwise get out of hand. Continue to be your usual caring, sensitive self.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You could impress a lot of influential people with the way you untangle a few knotty problems. Meanwhile, a colleague is set to share some welcome news.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Aspects favor recharging your social life and meeting new people. It's also a good time to renew friendships that might be stagnating due to neglect on both sides.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Congratulations. Your talent for working out a highly technical problem earns you well-deserved praise. The weekend could bring news about a friend or relative.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of justice makes you a strong advocate for the rights of people and animals alike.

OBITUARIES

Dr. Stanley J. Mikal, 87

Noted Surgeon, Author, Artist

Dr. Stanley Julius Mikal, 87, of Mashpee, formerly of Squantum, a noted surgeon, author and artist, died Oct. 9 at home with his family by his side.

Dr. Mikal was born in South Boston, the son of Mary and Julius Mikalonis. He was a graduate of Mechanic Arts High School (1937), Tufts College (1941, magna cum laude) and Tufts University School of Medicine (1944).

He served as a physician in the U.S. Navy in the Pacific Theater during World War II and with the First Marine Division in the Korean Conflict.

Dr. Mikal completed his surgical internship at the Sampson Navy Hospital in Sampson, New York, and his residency at the Boston City Hospital.

He was chief of vascular surgery at the Carney Hospital (currently the Carney Caritas Hospital), in Dorchester and served on the staffs of the New England Baptist Hospital, Boston City Hospital, Chelsea Naval Soldiers' Home, Boston State Hospital and the Faulkner Hospital.

In addition, Dr. Mikal was an associate clinical professor of surgery at Tufts University School of Medicine.

He was a past fellow of the American College of Surgeons, president of the Tufts University School of Medicine Alumni Association, a member of the Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Society and a diplomat for the American

DR. STANLEY J. MIKAL

Board of Surgery.

Dr. Mikal published more than 30 articles in various medical journals and authored the book, Hemostasis In Man, printed in five languages.

In addition to excelling in the medical field, Dr. Mikal was an accomplished artist, creating over 500 works in oil, water color, tempera and acrylic.

A member of both the Quincy Art Association and the South Shore Art Association, he frequently exhibited his work and won numerous awards. In 1986, an exhibition of his work was displayed at the Kennedy Presidential Library in South Boston.

He is survived by his wife of 62 years, Dena (Wantman); a daughter, Michele Mikal-Schalk of Mashpee; a son, Alan Mikal of Embden, Maine; and two grandchildren.

He was also the brother of the late Alice Mikalonis of South Boston.

Frances J. Blair, 92

Chemist

A funeral service for Frances J. (Tate) Blair, 92, of Quincy, a retired chemist, was held Oct. 11 at the Quincy Community United Methodist Church, Wollaston.

Mrs. Blair died Oct. 7 at Brockton Hospital.

Born in Littleton, North Carolina, she had lived in Cambridge before moving to Quincy 59 years ago.

She attended the Women's College of the University of North Carolina and became a medical laboratory technician working at Alameda County Hospital in Burlington, N.C.

She earned her master's degree in chemistry at Smith College.

During World War II, Mrs. Blair was offered a research position at M.I.T. in Cambridge where she worked in radio technology contributing to the war effort. She met her husband, Robert Lincoln Blair and they married Oct. 21, 1944.

She was active in the community, golfing at Cohasset Golf Club, bowling at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, giving talks at the Friday Club, the oldest existing Women's Club in Quincy.

Mrs. Blair worked as a volunteer and supporter at Crittendon Hastings House and also volunteered at the William B. Rice Eventide Home.

She enjoyed synchronized swimming at the Quincy Y.M.C.A., where she was active on the Board for many years.

She was active in her church community, serving in Sigma Phi and the Finance Committee as head of the pledge drive. She also helped with the ESL Program and did what she could to help with the running of the church.

Throughout her life she cared for those she knew; writing letters to shut-ins and looking out for the needs of her grandchildren and family.

She was an avid reader and she especially enjoyed history.

Wife of the late Robert Lincoln Blair, she is survived by two daughters, Virginia Blair Culbertson of Quincy and Martha Blair Stutzman of Wilmette, IL; a son, Robert J. Blair of Lutz, FL; a sister, Nettie Tate Graham of Santa Maria, CA; and seven grandchildren.

She was the sister of the late Virginia Tate Alexander and the late Claude Stratton Tate, Jr.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Sometimes we take credit for being patient when we are simply putting off doing something unpleasant... Sometimes we think we are being patient when, in reality, we are being indifferent...

"Patience is a two-side coin. If patience is to be a virtue it must be employed in the willingness to obtain all the facts, to deduce from the facts what should be done, if anything, and to act in time and not too early or too late. If patience is merely to be used as an excuse for inaction, and if you don't do anything but wait - and you wait too long and the opportunity is past - or if you convert it into lethargy or inaction, then that is the other side of the coin."... David Sarnoff Patience is a virtue few of us possess all of the time, but all of us need. It's too bad that many times it takes such hard work to acquire it!...

Alexandria M. Lynch, 13

Singer, Cook, Soccer Player

A funeral Mass for Alexandria Marie "Allie" Lynch, 13, of Quincy, who made friends all over greater Boston during her brief life, was celebrated Oct. 12 at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy. Allie died unexpectedly Oct. 8.

During her brief life, she made friends throughout the region, but most particularly in Quincy. Through her years at Squantum School, Snug Harbor School and finally the Italian Home for Children, she learned the names of all her drivers and aides, and could explain the relative merits of various routes between Quincy and Jamaica Plain with incredibly accuracy.

Allie loved to sing, and was quite proud to have participated in a vocal contest at the Italian Home only last week. She adored her teachers and classmates, and was an enthusiastic participant in events and field trips at the Italian Home.

Allie also loved to cook. The day before her sudden death, she commandeered the kitchen, expelled her parents and then, after great clamor, proudly emerged and presented them what she considered to be the perfect chocolate cake.

The youngest of six children, Allie was a treasured member of her family. She prized time with her sisters Elizabeth, Kathleen and Susanna, her late sister Sheila and her brother Joseph. She loved swimming, doing arts and crafts, visiting restaurants, getting her nails done, and going on adventures with her sisters.

Shopping trips for new clothes, craft supplies, jewelry, and birthday presents were adventures for all participants, as Allie's active imagination and incredible memory always led her to add "extras" to her already substantial list.

Alexandria was also tremendously generous and could always remember a cousin or classmate who "needed" one more little gift to make their life complete.

Allie enjoyed her vacations at York Beach, Maine and Lincoln, N.H. While on vacation, she always knew where the bargains were, and would even learn the names and work schedules of the employees of various stores. To the amazement of family, more than once she was heard to ask a store clerk how their day off was, and what they had done, and when their next vacation day would be.

Family members were frequently surprised at the number of people Allie knew, and the number of people who remembered her and greeted her with enthusiasm. Van drivers, store clerks, wait staff at restaurants, former teachers and classmates: Allie remembered them all, and they ALEXANDRIA M. LYNCH all remembered Allie.

Her aunt Sheila, who has lived in Andover for more than 20 years, enjoyed many shopping trips and hair-dresser appointments in Allie's company there. She recalled that without Allie she was just a face in the crowd, but with Allie, she was now "Allie's aunt," suddenly identified and recognized, in her own community.

Allie leaves innumerable friends, all of them touched by her in a special way. She loved Fr. John O'Brien of Sacred Heart Parish in Quincy, from whom she received her First Communion.

She spent many happy hours with people of The Paulist Center in Boston, as well as with members of the Newman School community, where she was a very enthusiastic fan of her brother Joseph's sports teams. She shared a special bond with Joseph, who enjoyed patiently tutoring her in her school work and teaching her to play sports.

Allie also participated in TOPS Soccer through Quincy Youth Soccer.

Allie's pride and joy was her electric Razor scooter, which was bright pink, her favorite color. She was well-known throughout her neighborhood, and as she rode she benefited from the loving attention of many kind neighbors.

An exuberant, original, funny, loving, and enthusiastic sister, daughter and friend, Allie will be sadly missed by many. All fortunate enough to encounter her have remarked that through their relationship with Allie, their own lives were enriched beyond measure.

She is survived by her parents, Joseph "Harry" and Patricia (Coen) Lynch of Quincy; three sisters, Elizabeth Lynch of Dorchester, Kathleen Lynch of Boston and Susanna Lynch of Quincy; a brother, Joseph Lynch of Quincy; a grandfather, Edward A. Coen of Waltham; and many aunts, uncles and cousins.

She was the sister of the late Sheila Lynch.

Interment was in Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Lydon Funeral Chapel, 644 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Memorial donations may be made to the Italian Home for Children, 1125 Centre St., Jamaica Plain, MA 02130-3496.

Margaret M. Petitti

Active St. Agatha's Church Parishioner

A Mass of Christian Burial for Margaret M. "Peg" (O'Connor) Petitti of Quincy, formerly of Milton, was celebrated Monday in St. Agatha Church, Milton.

Mrs. Petitti died Oct. 11. Born in Boston, she was a resident for 38 years.

Her family and faith were her life. She was an active parishioner at St. Agatha's Church in Milton. She volunteered for many years at St. Agatha's as a CCD religious education teacher.

She also volunteered as a softball coach in Milton.

Mrs. Petitti had an interest in the My Brother's Keeper Program in Easton, a volunteer Christian ministry whose mission is to "bring the love and hope of Jesus Christ to those they serve." They deliver furniture, household items and food free of charge to those who seek assistance.

Her life was also dedicated to others and her many charitable works reflected this generosity.

She is survived by her husband, Andrew F. Petitti; four daughters, Katherine A. Sobel of Milton, Anne F. Spitz of Laurel, MD; Linda J. Barnard of Framingham and Julie M. Silva of Braintree; three sons, Kevin A. Petitti of Canton, Andrew F. Petitti III of Alexandria, VA and Joseph P. Petitti of Milton; two brothers, Martin J. O'Connor of Norwood and Patrick O'Connor of Rockland; a sister, Deborah Kerrigan of Westwood; and 13 grandchildren.

MARGARET M. PETITTI

Funeral arrangements were made by the Dolan Funeral Home, 460 Quincy Ave., Milton.

Memorial donations may be made to My Brother's Keeper, P.O. Box 338, Easton, MA 02356.

James E. Young, 69

Presser

A Catholic Prayer Service for James Edward Young, 69, of Quincy, a presser, was held Oct. 13 at the Mortimer N. Peck-Russell Peck Funeral Home, Braintree.

Mr. Young died Oct. 9 at Milton Hospital.

Born in Quincy, he was raised in Braintree. He was a graduate of Braintree High School and served in the U.S. Air Force.

Mr. Young was employed as a presser at the family-owned Danny's Cleaners in Braintree opposite The Church of Saint Thomas More for a number of years.

He also had been employed at Goldie's Salvage yard in Quincy.

He enjoyed repairing cars and doing carpentry work.

He is survived by his wife,

Christopher E. Clancy

Private funeral services were held for Christopher E. Clancy of Quincy.

Mr. Clancy died Oct. 8 at home after a long illness.

Son of the late Laurence D. Clancy and Barbara E. Collins, he is survived by two brothers, Laurence D. Clancy of Marshfield and Mark Aigen of Norwell; three sisters, Susan M. Clancy and Martha A. Crowley, both of Quincy and Liza Corbett of Medford; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute, 44 Binney St., Boston, MA 02115.

Jonathan A. Cash, 36

Chef

A funeral Mass for Jonathan Alan "Jonny" Cash, 36, of Quincy, formerly of Mansfield, a respected and talented chef, was celebrated Monday in St. Mary's Church, Mansfield.

Mr. Cash died Oct. 8 at Quincy Medical Center.

Born in Chelsea, he was raised in Mansfield and attended Mansfield schools. He was a 1989 graduate of Cranston (R.I.) High School.

As a gifted vocalist, he sang a Capella for several years both during his school years and afterward.

Mr. Cash also attended Johnson & Wales University in Providence while working at area restaurants in Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

He was employed as a chef with Not Your Average Joe's restaurant in Burlington. He also was formerly employed by other fine eating establishments.

He was known by many friends and family as a talented, warmhearted and giving man, who would do whatever he could to support those he cared most about, or a worthy charitable cause, including a most recent 5K walk he participated in which raised money for the Samaritans organization, and another where he raised money to support the Woodward School in Quincy, as well as other worthy causes.

Mr. Cash was happiest spending his time with those he loved, and received great joy in entertaining those around him, and would often sing and play the guitar.

He is survived by wife of six years, Christina (Giardini) Cash; his son, Corey J. Cash; his parents, Thomas W. Cash of Lynn and Susan (Unger) Rafferty of Mansfield; four sisters, Michelle Runge of Nashua, N.H., Elizabeth Rafferty of Warwick, R.I., Emily Rafferty of Mansfield and Mary Catherine Unger-Rafferty of Mansfield; his maternal grandmother, Vivian Unger of Mansfield; and several nieces and nephews.

He was also eagerly anticipating the birth of his daughter in December.

Mr. Cash was the grandson of the late John D. Unger, Jr.

Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Mansfield.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Memorial donations may be made to the Jonathan Cash Memorial Fund, c/o Citizens Bank, 85 Quincy Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

A funeral service for Ralph C. Morse, Sr., 88, of Mill's Extension, Maine, formerly of North Quincy, who worked at the family business, Morse Auto Radiator Shop in North Quincy, was conducted Oct. 13 at the Riverside United Methodist Church, Porter, Maine. Pastor Alan Cogswell officiated.

Mr. Morse died Oct. 5 at his home with his daughter, Pam, son Ralph, Jr. and grandson Matthew Boc by his side.

Born in North Quincy, he was a 1937 graduate of North Quincy High School.

He served in the Army Air Corps from 1941 to 1945.

Mr. Morse worked at the family business until his retirement at age 62.

He was a member of the Kezar Falls (ME) American Legion, the Hiram (ME)

VFW and the Commodore Club of America. He enjoyed golf and sailing, but most of all, spending time with his family and teaching his grandchildren to fish.

Husband of the late Elizabeth L. Chandler Morse who died in 2003, he is survived by a daughter, Pamela A. Morse of Dover, N.H.; a son, Ralph C. Morse, Jr. of Dumfries, VA; and five grandchildren.

He was the father of the late Robert C. Morse, who died in 1995.

Burial with military honors was in Kezar Falls Burial Grounds.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Watson Funeral Home, Cornish, ME.

Memorial donations may be made to Hospice of Southern Maine, 180 US Route 1, Scarborough, ME 04074.

Catherine O. Olson, 95 Retired Librarian

A funeral Mass for Catherine Olive (Lenehan) Olson, 95, of Quincy, formerly of Dorchester, a retired librarian, was celebrated Tuesday at Holy Trinity Parish in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Olson died Oct. 12 at home.

Born in Boston, she had lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy 55 years ago.

Mrs. Olson worked as a librarian for the Boston Public Library from 1931 to 1946 and later worked as a clerk for Filene's in Braintree for 10 years.

She was an active member of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church and a member of the Ladies Sodality.

She also enjoyed being a member of a Ladies Bridge Club.

Wife of the late William A. Olson, she is survived by two daughters, Cathlene Lamping of Hanover and Arlene M. Turner of Quincy; and four grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Research, P.O. Box 50, Memphis, TN 38105.

Claire J. Pedranti, 68

A memorial Mass for Claire J. Pedranti, 68, of Boston, formerly of Quincy, was held Wednesday at 11 a.m. at St. Clement Eucharistic Shrine in Boston.

Miss Pedranti died Oct. 13 at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston after a brief illness.

Born in Boston, she had lived in Quincy before moving to Boston 30 years ago.

She was a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Boston College and Tufts University.

She loved the arts and was a member of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

She is survived by a brother, John Pedranti of Randolph; a sister, Annie Pedranti of Miami Beach, Fla.; a niece and a nephew.

She was the sister of the late Paul Pedranti.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Memorial donations may be made to the Boston Public Library, 700 Boylston St., Boston, MA 02116 or to Saint Clement Eucharistic Shrine, 1105 Boylston St., Boston, MA 02215.

THE COMMITMENT CONTINUES...

Dear Neighbor,

As I complete my first term as your Councillor-at-Large, I want to thank you for the privilege of being able to serve our community.

I am proud of my accomplishments over the past two years. As the Education Committee Chairman, I have worked hard to move the new Quincy High School project forward and to ensure that we have a new Central Middle School and a renovated Sterling Middle School for our children.

My background in finance has enabled me to make contributions in helping to map our city's future. I have supported long-term capital expenditures in our city's public safety and public works areas such as the purchase of two new pumpers for the Quincy Fire Department and new street sweepers. Energy upgrades with new lights and boilers are now in over thirty municipal buildings.

I have spent the last several weeks walking the streets of our city listening as you voice your opinions about Quincy. I have been overwhelmed by your hospitality, your candor, your interest and your concern for others.

We are very lucky that Quincy is such a wonderful place to live, to work and to raise our families. Our continued quality of life depends on the delicate balance of neighborhood concerns, public safety, infrastructure, the environment and the quality of future development. With my experience in business, government and the community I feel I am uniquely qualified to continue to serve as your Councillor-at-Large.

With your help, I would like to continue my commitment to public service in the City of Quincy. You hear a lot today about politicians serving only the special interests. My promise: You will be my only special interest, and I mean it.

Working with people is what I do best. Please cast one of your three votes on Tuesday, November 6th for Mike McFarland, your Councillor-at-Large.

Thank you,

Mike

RYAN, MARTY, MIKE, ERIN and TARA

PLEASE VOTE ELECTION DAY, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6 FOR:

Bill Phelan never intended to run for Mayor.

He's just a regular Quincy guy. Son of a clam digger and a postal worker. One of eight kids. Growing up in Wollaston and attending Quincy public schools. Bill's parents taught him the value of education, and hard work.

And they taught him the importance of standing up for what's right.

Bill worked himself through Suffolk University and Suffolk Law School, where he graduated with honors.

He could have gone anywhere, but Bill stayed in Quincy where he opened his own law firm. He served on the Board of Directors of Father Bill's Place, coached kid's basketball, and started a family of his own.

And when one of his children wasn't getting the reading help needed, Bill worked to change the system. When help didn't come, he ran for school committee to help his child — and other kids — get the education they deserved.

And that's when Bill Phelan got into the fight of his life.

With all the City Hall insiders against him — including his current opponent in the race for Mayor — Bill Phelan stood up for the health and safety of our kids, and our teachers.

Who'd build a high school on a toxic waste site?

The insiders who ran City Hall didn't like it when Bill Phelan started asking questions about their plans for a new high school.

But Bill Phelan wouldn't back down. He learned that the land had been used by the shipyard as a dump for toxic chemicals for decades. Then he found out that a contributor to the prior administration had bought the land for $1 million, and sold it to the city a few weeks later for $3.5 million!

With all the City Hall insiders against him — including his current opponent in the race for Mayor — Bill Phelan stood up for the health and safety of our kids, and our teachers.

"Why would they expose our kids to that kind of risk?" Phelan asked. "How could they ask teachers to spend decades working under those conditions?"

None of the insiders would listen. But the people of Quincy did. Hundreds of parents and concerned citizens stood shoulder to shoulder with Bill in the fight to stop that toxic high school.

And they won!

And the insiders didn't like it.

Quincy guy, with stand up for us.

How the people took back City Hall.

The high school wasn't the only sweetheart deal Bill Phelan uncovered:

- Millions in taxpayers' dollars were being poured down the drain in a wild scheme to build ships at Fore River;
- Contributors and cronies to the former Mayor were receiving illegal city contracts for paving and other services;
- Streets and sidewalks were crumbling, and so were Quincy's finances (the city was in such bad fiscal shape, the state refused to certify the city's tax rate!).

Bill asked others to run for Mayor, but no one had the courage.

So Bill Phelan ran, even though no one thought he had a chance.

Bill worked hard, and door by door he gained the support of thousands of ordinary people who were fed up with insiders running their city.

And in the biggest upset in the city's history — Bill Phelan won!

And the insiders have never forgiven him.

A good Mayor, doing a good job.

When Bill Phelan took office he inherited the biggest multi-million dollar deficit in city history. With massive cuts in state aid, a huge property tax increase left by the last Mayor, and rising property values, our new mayor knew he had to find new revenue to ease our tax burden.

He rolled up his sleeves, and went to work!

Bill took on the insiders again: renegotiating new payments from Quarry Hills Golf Course, Quincy College, and Harvard Pilgrim Health Care. He saved taxpayers millions by eliminating city jobs through attrition, restructuring Quincy Hospital's debt payments, putting the Fore River Shipyard back on the tax rolls, and using $10 million from the hotel-motel tax to fix our parks.

Thanks to Bill, the FBI has named Quincy the state's second safest city. We have all-day kindergarten, A+ bond ratings from Wall Street, new housing for seniors, and the Mayor is building a beautiful state-of-the-art high school for our kids.

And he opened up City Hall with weekly Open Office Hours, and One Stop Shopping for constituent services. And his "Neighborhoods First Initiative" means he meets regularly with residents of every city neighborhood to hear their suggestions and concerns.

And Bill's development plans for Quincy Center, the shipyard, and Crown Colony will mean construction jobs now, and property tax relief and new business and permanent jobs for the future!

Keep a good Mayor on the job.
Re-elect Mayor Bill Phelan.

Make the insiders unhappy.

Re-elect the Mayor who stands up for us!

They didn't like it when he stood up for our kids, and ruined their sweetheart deal to put a high school on a toxic waste dump.

They hated it when he got elected, and didn't owe them a thing.

They didn't like it when he made them pay back what they owed for the $100 million golf course deal, and the back payments for Quincy College, and all the other insider deals.

Insiders don't like Bill Phelan.

They definitely don't want him re-elected.

They want city hall back.

And so they support his opponent.

The insiders don't like Bill Phelan.

But he doesn't care.

Because Bill Phelan doesn't work for them.

He works for you!

Re-elect Mayor Bill Phelan

He always stands up for us!

City Launches Drug Activity Tip Line On Website

The city has launched a new anonymous drug activity tip line.

Residents can log onto the Police Department page on the city web-site and report any suspicious activity.

The tip line was implemented by Mayor William Phelan and Police Chief Robert Crowley in conjunction with the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit.

The City's web-site is www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

"Our work in rooting out criminals and drug dealers comes from good police work and cooperation with the community," said Phelan. "This new tool was created by a request from our Drug Control Unit and we are happy to give them another aid in their efforts to tackle this problem. We are making great strides in arresting people that want to impact our neighborhoods with illicit drug activity."

Crowley cited statistics that the arrests made by the Drug Control Unit have doubled in the past year, due in large part to a cooperative effort between the department and the community.

Residents that do not have access to computers can call the Quincy Police Drug Tip Hotline at (617) 328-4527. Calls can be for information on criminal activity or people seeking information on treatment resources.

Crowley praised the work of Capt. Anthony DiBona, Lt. John McDonough, and the entire Drug Control Unit.

"Our officers handle a dangerous job in a professional and brave manner," said Crowley. "We will continue to channel our resources toward this unit in an effort to keep our city as safe and livable as possible."

Stop & Shop Commits To Stay In Quincy Center

Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday that the headquarters of Stop and Shop will remain in Quincy Center, preserving 1,000 jobs in the downtown area.

Phelan said the supermarket giant is working with the urban design firm Streetworks Development Group on a major investment in downtown Quincy.

"We are pleased that our efforts are being recognized by a multi-national corporation and the largest investor in our downtown," said Phelan.

"This is great news but I expect that we have only seen the beginning of Stop and Shop's plans for downtown Quincy."

Phelan highlighted ongoing negotiations to bring a Target store to downtown as an "anchor retail store" to kick-start retail investment.

Phelan said his administration in the past four years has put together an aggressive plan to revitalize downtown Quincy.

The downtown has been rezone. The city is building

400 Demonstrate At City Hall Plaza

12 Unions Rally For Contracts

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Some 400 union members rallied at City Hall Plaza Tuesday to support the city's 12 labor unions which have been operating without contracts since July, 2006.

Demonstrators, including a dozen young children braved gusts of wind and the threat of a rainstorm as they lined both sides of Hancock Street for the afternoon demonstration which began at McIntyre Mall and snaked four deep past Old City Hall.

More than a dozen motorists beeped as union members waves signs that stated, "Enough is Enough," "Show Some Respect," "Contracts Now," and warned, "We'll Remember in November."

"We're going for fairness," said Dominic Venturelli, president of the Quincy Public Employees Association, which represents 136 city employees, including technical, clerical, inspectors and 911 operators.

"Just for some stats," Venturelli said, "The mayor gave himself a 20% raise over three years. After he pays 80/20 (health insurance), he'll see 89% of his raise."

"My people, most of whom earn under $40,000 will see 50% of their raise," said Venturelli who said the anticipated raise would be 13% over four years.

"It's been 16 months since our contracts expired,"

Mayor's Food Drive Saturday

Mayor William Phelan reminds Quincy residents that the annual Mayor's Fall Food Drive to benefit Quincy's food pantries will be held Saturday.

Quincy residents can leave non-perishable food items at their doorstep to be picked up by U.S. Post Office letter carriers.

"I want to encourage people to be as generous as they can," said Phelan. "The food pantries depend on this event for their holiday season. The answer to solving hunger in Quincy could be right at your doorstep."

Phelan also complimented the work being done by the employees of the U.S. Postal Service.

"None of this is possible without the hard work of the men and women of the post office," said Phelan. "They initiated the drive and assume the extra work to help people in need. I thank them for their hard work."

The food will be sorted at the Park and Recreation Complex Saturday afternoon from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. Volunteers are welcome to help.

The food will be distributed to all of Quincy's food pantries.

New Community Center Opens At N.Q. Library

Mayor William Phelan Tuesday officially opened the new North Quincy Community Center located at the North Quincy Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

"I am very pleased to announce the permanent home of this vital community center," Phelan said, adding, "In this new location, we look forward to expanding our youth and senior programs, as well as creating new programs to create a better quality of life for our fellow citizens."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee and Ann McLaughlin, director of Thomas Crane Public Library, also spoke at the ceremony for the North Quincy Community Center, formerly known as the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

For nearly a decade, the community center has been without a permanent home as it moved from loaned space in the "Granite Lofts" building to its most recent location at the Church of the Good Shepherd on West Squantum Street.

Nancy Callanan, director of Community Development, said the library location in the rehabilitated bookmobile garage is more centrally located for the district. The new director is Steve Buckley.

In the future, Callanan said the city hopes to expand the center's offerings beyond the current programs, English As Second Language and Senior Bingo.

Callanan said that new programs will likely include tutoring and mentoring programs for students and a karate class for young people.

"We're wiring the building for computer programs," said Callanan who noted that the branch annex, roughly the size of a three-car garage, has been completely renovated to include large glass area for daylight.

Callanan estimated that the renovations costs less than $100,000 and were funded through a federal block grant through HUD, the Housing and Urban Development Agency.

The Fat Cat New Restaurant

A new restaurant called The Fat Cat will open soon at 24 Chestnut St., Quincy Center.

The License Board at their Oct. 16 meeting, granted a common victualer all alcoholic license to the Ferretti Food Group, LLC. Neil Kiley will be the manager.

Atty. Robert W. Harnais, counsel, said the proposed 1180 square foot, 85- seat restaurant will offer traditional American food, and plans to open around Nov. 11.

The hours of operation will be from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. seven days a week.

A letter of support from Ward 5 Councillor and Council President Doug Gutro was read by Chairman Joseph Shea. Shea also reported one phone call in opposition from Brian Sullivan of Sully's.

The board also granted a cabaret license. The restaurant will be handicapped accessible.

Fr. Bill's And MainSpring To Hold First Fundraiser

Father Bills & MainSpring will hold its first fundraiser since the merger of the two homeless providers Thursday, Nov. 1, at 6:30 p.m. at Christina's in Foxboro.

The Dishin' It Up for the Homeless Dinner and Auction, which will be the ninth for MainSpring, will honor Dr. Dana Mohler-Faria, president of Bridgewater State College.

Dr. Mohler-Faria, who is Gov. Deval Patrick's special advisor for education, will receive the Marie Sheehan Heart of the Homeless Award.

The auction, which will raise funds to meet the goals of the homeless organization, has become known for the unique items offered up for bid.

This year's listings include a photo safari in South Africa, a week in the Tuscan villa, a New England Patriots helmet signed by Tom Brady and a private New Orleans-style dinner for eight.

Individual tickets and full tables at the fundraiser are still available. For more information or to purchase tickets call 508-588-5136.

Foot Screening For Seniors

Podiatrist Dr. Jordana Szpiro will be available to seniors for foot screening on the first Monday of every month at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St. The doctor will also treat your feet for a fee of $25 per person payable at the time of the visit.

Councillor Calls Them Neglected

Raymondi, O'Donnell Clash Over Sidewalk Projects In Quincy Point

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi Monday charged that sidewalk projects in his ward have been neglected and suggested that public works projects are being politicized.

Raymondi questioned public works Director Steve O'Donnell for two hours regarding sidewalk repair lists and the two officials clashed repeatedly during the tense meeting of the City Council's Public Works Committee.

"We are not getting our fair share," Raymondi said, referring to sidewalk problems in his ward which runs from West Quincy to portions of the Southern Artery, borders Fore River and includes St. John Church.

As an example, Raymondi cited the $7 million public works bond which the City Council approved in February. The bond included $2 million for sidewalk improvements.

Raymondi said that 15 sidewalks in Ward 2 were on the list when the council approved the bond. By June, Raymondi said the 15 streets were "summarily removed" from the list.

O'Donnell said those 15 streets were "handed over to in-house crews."

"The work still was not done," Raymondi said.

O'Donnell replied that the construction season is still underway, that reports are still being compiled and that the construction and repair issues change daily.

Over the past two months, Raymondi had requested that the Committee schedule a meeting with O'Donnell to discuss of sidewalk repairs. He is not a member of the Public Works Committee. At various times, he sought lists of sidewalk projects and repairs.

This week, he described year-old constituent complaints which he said he sent by letter directly to O'Donnell's office. Raymondi, also, alluded to pedestrians' suffering broken glasses or broken teeth due to sidewalk slips.

"We've done about 300 citywide," said O'Donnell, adding that his department has "five years worth of work ahead of us.... Sidewalks were not done for 25 years."

O'Donnell also stated that some sidewalk problems involve tree roots and that such repairs must be coordinated with the forestry team.

However, Raymondi claimed the reports provided by O'Donnell were incomplete and, in some instances, inaccurate. He noted that sidewalk repairs at addresses on Elm St., Fifth Avenue, Norman Road and River Street were not done.

Raymondi cited several addresses that were incorrectly inputted on the spreadsheet and one address listed as repaired that did not exist. The lists did not identify the streets by ward, by an assessment of the problem or by the date of complaint and repair.

"I understand that if the mayor wants a sidewalk

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Oct. 22, 1797, above Paris, the first parachute jump of note is made by Andre-Jacques Garnerin with an attached hydrogen balloon. Garnerin attached the parachute to a hydrogen balloon and ascended to an altitude of 3,200 feet before cutting the parachute from the balloon.
- On Oct. 26, 1825, an ingenious method of communication is used to inform New York City that the Erie Canal is complete. Cannons were arranged along the length of the canal, each within hearing distance of the next cannon. As each cannon was fired, it signaled the next. Within 81 minutes, the word was relayed to New York, the fastest communication the world had ever known.
- On Oct. 27, 1858, entrepreneur Roland Macy finally hits the jackpot when he opens his own department store. The New York store, Macy's, became an immediate success.
- On Oct. 25, 1912, comedian Minnie Pearl is born. Pearl was famous for her Grand Ole Opry comic monologues about hillbilly life and was featured on the long-running syndicated show "Hee Haw" from 1970 to 1990. Pearl died in 1996.
- On Oct. 23, 1942, best-selling "Jurassic Park" author Michael Crichton is born in Chicago. Crichton wrote pulp thrillers while working on his medical degree at Harvard. During his final year of medical school, the 6-foot-9-inch Crichton published "The Andromeda Strain" (1969) and decided to write full time instead of practicing medicine.
- On Oct. 28, 1950, popular radio personality Jack Benny moves to television with "The Jack Benny Show." The TV version of the show ran for the next 15 years. Jack Benny was born Benjamin Kubelsky in 1894.
- On Oct. 24, 1969, movie star Richard Burton dazzles wife Elizabeth Taylor with a 69-carat Cartier diamond ring costing $1.5 million. The diamond was the product of a fight they had in a restaurant. Burton called Taylor's hands large and ugly, and she responded that he'd better buy her the 69-carat ring she wanted so that her hands would look smaller and more attractive.

Planning A Wedding?

Planning a wedding?

Undecided about the month? Maybe this might help.

June has long been the perennial favorite month for "Here Comes The Bride." But not this year in Quincy.

June has been slipping in popularity recently and dropped to fourth place this year.

The favorite month so far: July.

So, according to figures compiled by Brenda Fernandez and Carol Damiano in the Vital Statistics Department of City Clerk Joseph Shea's office.

July was tops with 91 weddings.

August is runner-up with 83 and September in third place with 78.

June trailed with 68-down 22 from last year's 90.

The other months, so far:

May 60, April 53, March 42, February 40 and January 30.

October has 64 with one more week to go. Last October there were 88.

Last year, November had 64 weddings and December 50, an indication July will hold the Number One spot this year.

A REMINDER FROM Shea, Brenda and Carol: The marriage ceremony must be performed within 60 days from the date of the application for the license.

There is a three-day waiting period to obtain the license. The fee is $35. Once upon a time it was $2.

PREFER A QUIET little wedding and at the right price? You can get married at City Hall by Shea or Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallsen during regular office hours, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. You do need an appointment. Fee, only $60.

SAME SEX MARRIAGES, incidentally, seem to have leveled off.

In 2004 when they became legal, 47 gay couples applied for licenses in Quincy. Of these, 26 were male couples and 21 female.

Last year there were only 17, 10 female and 7 male. This year, so far there are 13, seven male and six female.

WE WERE LUCKY this Atlantic hurricane season. But there's always next year to wonder about.

The National Hurricane Center already has names for the 2008 season. Hope we don't get to know any of them but here they are:

BEALS

Arthur, Bertha, Cristobal, Dolly, Edouard, Fay, Gustav, Hanna, Ike, Josephine, Kyle, Laura, Marco, Nana, Omar, Paloma, Rene, Sally, Teddy, Vicky and Wilford.

If you could name a hurricane, what would it be? I think I'd nominate Sharron. Like Sharron Beals, executive director of the Beechwood Community Life Center. She's a hurricane herself. (Hi, Sharron)

THAT ITEM HERE last August about the Planters Peanut Store on the east side of Hancock Street in downtown Quincy, stirred a lot of memories for readers. And still does.

But for former resident Betty Houston, now living in Amherst, it reminded her of the other peanut store, Kemp's, across the street.

She writes:

"I've been following the comments and as I recall, Kemp's was on the west side of Hancock Street, very close to the Lincoln Store.

"I walked past it four times a day during the school year to and from St. John's School for eight years. I also worked one summer at Guay's Bakery, close to Kemp's on the same side of the street.

"It's obvious that I preferred the west side of Hancock because of the wonderful window displays of Lincoln's, Sheridan's and Remick's."

Betty may be starting a new round of memories of Remick's, Sheridan's, Lincoln's, Kemp's and Guay's. Would like to have them all back in downtown.

A NICE CARD from Diane D'Olimpio Donaher one of our first news carriers now living in Bethlehem, PA:

"Congratulations as you begin the 40th year of the wonderful Quincy Sun. Makes me feel a little old as one of your first delivery girls.

"My sister, Debbie, and I had the Quincy Avenue route. What great memories loading up the bicycle baskets.

"I am still a subscriber even though I am in Bethlehem, PA. Keeps me up to date on my favorite city."

Diane, I fondly remember you and Debbie. And I'm sure your former Sun customers do, too.

CONGRATUALIONS and thanks, Red Sox. Congratulations, of course, for winning the American League championship and moving on to the World Series.

And thanks for defeating the Cleveland Indians so we don't have to listen to that annoying drum thumping.

Can you believe that guy who beats it is named John Adams?

Access TV To Repeat Showings Of Bilingual Candidates Forum

Those who missed the bilingual (English and Cantonese) candidate's forum the first time around will have six more chances to view the two-hour debate on Quincy Access TV.

Channel 8 on Comcast Cable in Quincy will broadcast it Friday (Oct. 19) from 7 to 9 p.m., Saturday (Oct. 20) from 3 to 5 p.m., Sunday (Oct. 21) from 3 to 5 p.m. and 10 p.m. to 12 midnight, Monday (Oct. 22) from 8 to 10 p.m. and Monday (Oct. 29) from 4 to 6 p.m.

Any additional broadcast times will be posted on the website qatv.org.

The forum, hosted by Quincy Asian Resources Inc. (QARI) and the Episcopal Boston Chinese Ministry, was taped at an Oct. 13 event at North Quincy High School.

Taking part were the two candidates for mayor, incumbent William Phelan and challenger Tom Koch, and the Ward 6 council candidates, incumbent Brian McNamee and challenger Jimmy Liang.

Also appearing were the candidates for councilor at-large, incumbents Joseph Finn, John Keenan and Michael McFarland and their challengers, Jennifer McCauley Logue and Victor Ng.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS EARLY 1920's postcard is a view of Hancock Street looking north in Quincy Square. On the right was the Quincy Savings Bank Building, now home to several businesses including The Quincy Sun. Next door in the ground floor of the Adams Building was Quincy's original Woolworth's Five and Ten Cent store. It was there for almost 50 years. On the left were Heffernan's shoe store and the newly opened Alhambra Theater; later to become the ART Theater. Those sites are now included in the Stop & Shop property. The sparse auto traffic is a far cry from what one sees in this view today. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

The Chinese Communist Flag And United Association

Our city has been blessed over its history to be a city of immigrants. Many came here for the opportunities this great city has offered. Some have fled their native lands because of persecution and repressive government. Quincy has been a safe haven for just such people.

Dictatorships are nothing but powerful bullies, and communism is no different, especially in China where millions have been killed in order for the government to exert its power. The Chinese culture has been attacked as well as its religions to get more control over the people. The United Chinese Association represents this mean government and is using its bully tactics against the good people of Quincy.

They raised their government's banner over a building in Wollaston, and many veterans and civilians took offense and conducted several peaceful demonstrations. Hundreds of motorists passing the demonstrations honked their horns in support. This was a visual and vocal notice to the Association that the communist flag was not welcomed in Quincy!

Now someone(s) removed the flagpole that kept flying the communist flag. No notes or messages against the Association were left in or on the building. Yes, this was an act of vandalism, but a crime of hate against the Association? Ridiculous! A typical tactic of the communists is to take no blame for anything, and this Association is doing the same thing by blaming everyone else for the situation.

They are the problem, if they insist on flying that red flag of an avowed enemy of the United States. If they continue down this road, protests will become larger and louder. Our political leaders, who are suppose to represent us, should pay attention and convince the Association that they are the problem!

Solution: Don't Fly The Chinese Communist Flag

The Chinese United Association in Wollaston claims that it now only flies the red Chinese flag on communist holidays, and when Chinese dignitaries are visiting Boston.

Now everyone in Quincy should realize whom they really represent, and it's not the peaceful hardworking Chinese in our neighborhoods. But instead the cruel dictatorship ruling China today!

As I see it, the removal of the flagpole atop their building occurred only after several protests of veterans and civilians failed to convince this Association that the flag was not wanted in Quincy. These protests were aimed at the offending flag, not the Association. The solution to the problem is very simple. Do not fly that red flag anymore! Fly our city flag instead, and all controversy will end.

The Association claims it wants to be a good neighbor. If this is true, then a good neighbor doesn't do things that will aggravate the neighborhood, knowingly. They know what aggravates the people, but they do it any way-not a good neighbor now, are they! A representative of the Association claims the situation will get uglier and uglier if not nipped in the bud at once. I agree!

Our political leaders should convince the association to cease their flying of the communist flag, and to convince them that if they don't, things will get uglier and if they continue in their bad behavior in the guest country, the entire responsibility of the problem, then lies in their hands!

Opposes Quincy Point P.U.D. Re-Zoning

Rise up, citizens or should I say wise up, citizens.

I'm referring to the P.U.D. plan. I call it the P.U. plan.

To re-zone the area on which the Inn by the Bay sits, in my estimation, is a big mistake.

Eventually we will not be called the city of Quincy but the city of concrete.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Co-Written By Quincy Resident Scenes For Movie Shot At Presidents' City Inn

By MIRIAM JOSEPH
Filmmaking came to Quincy last week when cast and crew converged upon the Presidents' City Inn on Hancock Street to shoot scenes for "The Aristocrat," an independent film co-written by Quincy resident Richard Stack.

"The movie is about a traveling salesman in the late 1980s in Massachusetts who works in the semi-conductor industry, a man in his 50s who has saved enough money to quit his job for a year and decide what he really wants to do," Stack said. "In his last week of work he takes the new guy, his replacement, around to show him the ropes."

Stack and co-writer/director Greg Crouteau, who grew up in Kingston, began writing a script with a two-story model in mind that was near a diner, and since The Egg & I is next door to the Presidents' City Inn, they thought this Quincy venue would be ideal for shooting.

Stack was thrilled to be using his hometown and other South Shore locations for his movie shoots.

"The folks at the Presidents' City Inn have been incredibly cooperative, this site is perfect for us, and perfect for me because I live five minutes away," Stack said.

"We have hired three rooms for the week, and we are rearranging furniture. We have taken over half the parking lot, we're asking people to be quiet...the cleaning women are working around us-everyone here has been incredible."

Many of the film crew work together at the Central for Digital Imaging Arts at Boston University. Stack said, "We are always around people who are making movies or doing commercials. Greg and I originally intended to write a short, 10 to 15 minute movie that we could do over a couple of weekends working with people we know."

Once the film was written, colleague Rachel Luskin was approached by the co-writers to help them with a budget and her participation eventually grew into producer.

ADAM SOULE portrays one of the lead characters in "The Aristocrats."

"I've produced smaller things before, but this is my first feature film-I think this is generally everyone's first feature film on set, with the exception of our director of photography, who is in from New York," Luskin said.

The film's themes and extensive symbolism are explored on the movie's web site, designed by Quincy resident Tim Washington, who Crouteau says has "created a fun site that feels like the movie."

Co-writer Stack, who doubles as sound technician for the film, works at B.U.'s CDIA on web videos and podcasts (digital media files for Internet). Director Crouteau, whose resume includes directing corporate videos and short films, is also on staff there, teaching film full-time.

Both were grateful for the opportunity to spend eight days shooting in Quincy. Crouteau said, "We wrote this script around this place, this location, and if Ashish Patel, the owner of this inn, were not so accommodating to us, we would not be making this film in Quincy, which means so much to us."

"The Aristocrats" features local actors Jeff Gill of Duxbury and Adam Soule of Boston, and is set for release in the fall of 2008.

Steak And Potato Pizza

While in the waiting room at my favorite doctor's office, Dr. Ronald Anderson, I flipped through a few magazines. And guess what? I found a great recipe for you all today especially if you like steak and potatoes!

When I finally came into his office, and knowing he enjoys cooking, I told him about the recipe.

This recipe is for a steak and potato pizza and is quite a combination.

Steak & Potato Pizza

- 1 pound rib eye steak (or other tender cut)
- 2 medium sized potatoes
- 1 clove garlic (it can be removed if desired)

3 tablespoons olive oil favorite shredded cheese for topping
salt and pepper to taste

1 redi-made pizza dough

Pre-heat the oven to 425 degrees. Cut the steak in bite size pieces. Cook the potatoes and then slice in quarter inch of so. In a frying pan, saute the garlic in the hot oil. Add the steak pieces and saute until almost done.

Spread the pizza dough in a pizza pan and bake for about five or ten minutes. Remove and then top with the steak pieces first, then the potatoes and the cheese topping.

Bake until done. It takes about 15-20 minutes.

Enjoy!

John, Abigail Adams Wedding Re-enactment Today

The re-enactment of the wedding of Abigail Smith and John Adams will be held today (Thursday) beginning at 10 a.m. at the bride's home, the Abigail Adams birthplace, 180 Norton St., Weymouth.

The ceremony will be held at The First Church, 17 Church St., Weymouth. Seating will begin at the church at 10:30 a.m. today on a first come first served basis.

After the ceremony, guests will travel to the John Quincy Adams birthplace, 141 Franklin St., Quincy for a toast at 1 p.m. This is where the newlywed couple, John and Abigail Adams, lived after their wedding.

Their son and the country's sixth president, John Quincy Adams, was born at the Franklin Street home.

The wedding program celebrates the 60th anniversary of both the Abigail Adams Historical Society and the Adams National Historical Park in Quincy. The Society, the National Park Service and the First Church in Weymouth collaborated in presenting the re-enactment program.

The public is welcome and invited to wear 18th century costumes to the celebrations. All events are free and open to the public. There is no rain date.

Church Street in Weymouth will be closed during the wedding; parking is available at the Maria Weston Chapman Middle School, 1051 Commercial St., Weymouth. A shuttle bus will run from the school parking lot to an area near Abigail's birthplace and The First Church.

Street parking is available at the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in Quincy.

For more information call 781-335-4205 or access abigailadamsbirthplace.org or nps.gov/adam.

QPS Friends Of Music Meeting Oct. 24

The first meeting of the year for the Quincy Public Schools (QPS) Friends of Music will be held Wednesday, Oct. 24 at 6:30 p.m. in the Trophy Room on the second floor of North Quincy High School.

With the encouragement of Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, the organization helps to support the continued growth of the music programs and students in the Quincy Public Schools.

Also to help awareness of the choral, instrumental and string programs in the community and to assist promoting music excellence.

The meeting is open to all Quincy residents with a child, grandchild, niece or nephew in the music program, or to those who have a love and interest in music and the valuable role it can play in the child's development.

Those attending will be able to meet with Ms. Tracy O'Sullivan, the new System Level Department Head of Music.

For more information call the Curriculum Office at 617-984-8760 or email Colleen Roberts at croberts@quincy.k12ma.us.

Will Honor 10 Tonight

Interfaith Social Services Celebrates 60th Anniversary

Interfaith Social Services will celebrate its 60th anniversary tonight (Thursday) at The Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd., with a dinner and special program honoring 10 individuals for their contributions to the success of the agency.

The agency offers services aimed at strengthening family life and providing emergency services to persons in need on the South Shore. They provide such essentials as food, clothing and counseling.

In addition, the social services program, Homesafe, serves families at risk of homelessness with telephone counseling, referral and limited financial assistance.

Other programs include The Pantry Shelf which gives food to persons in need. The program is expanding as requests increased by 10 percent last year when The Pantry Shelf provided more than 11,000 food packets on request.

The Bureau Drawer sells clothing and household items at a low cost and the Career Closet provides free workplace attire to low income persons returning to work.

In the past year, the counseling program provided 272 persons with over 2000 therapy hours. That represents an 8 percent increase over the previous year.

The current director is Laura Stracco; manager of material operations is Bettyanne Lang.

The Board of Directors chose the 10 persons for special awards tonight. They are Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele, who has helped The Pantry Shelf and other local pantries; former Executive Director Robert F. Taylor, and former Director Mary Ann Walsh and Quincy attorney Thomas Williams.

Walsh helped found The Career Closet and Williams is a founder and co-chairman of the Feed The hungry Program.

Margaret M.N. Davidson, director of former adoption program; Mathew "Matti" R. Lang who is instrumental in supervising The Pantry Shelf and building maintenance; Kris Larsen, a longtime supporter, and Jan Stewart, Manager of the Financial Assistance Program will receive awards at the ceremony.

The Board of Directors are James Thorne, President; Helen Duncan, 1st Vice President, John Martland, 2nd Vice President; Treasurer Robert Cohen, 1st Assistant, Martha Chase; 2nd Assistant Ethel Schow and Secretary Cynthia Lee.

QUINCY CREDIT UNION and its employees, partnering with WB Mason and Cradles to Crayons, recently stuffed 250 backpacks filled with school supplies for local children in need, part of its ongoing commitment to the community. In addition, the members of QCU also donated more than 100 backpacks during the month long supply drive with the tools needed to start the new school year off right. QCU staff (from left to right) are Shirley Laliberte, CFO; James Medige, teller; Kathy Clasby and Jessica Connolly, consumer loan representatives; Jennifer Bloom, teller; Maura Gilmartin, marketing coordinator; and Judy Brazil, vice president of marketing. The Cradles to Crayons backpack drive is ongoing and donations are welcome. For more information on the program, visit the website www.cradlestocrayons.org.

How do the experts rate Mayor Bill Phelan?

When Mayor Bill Phelan inherited a record deficit and a fiscal mess so bad the state refused to certify Quincy's tax rate, many thought he couldn't succeed.

But while other cities fired teachers, closed schools and firehouses, and even canceled school buses, our Mayor has found a way to increase our school budget every year. He even gave property owners the lowest tax increases of any city in the state for the past three years!

Former Patriot Ledger columnist Bill Flynn called him a "fiscal wizard."

Hard-nosed Wall Street bond salesmen have upped our bond rating to A+, and praised Bill's fiscal management.

A report last year by the State Department of Education said Quincy's School Board, school administrators and teachers called Phelan "an education Mayor."

And former Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti — who has lived in Quincy for over 50 years — has called Bill Phelan "the best Quincy Mayor in my memory."

Help keep a good Mayor working for us.

Teachers Union Endorses Koch, Bragg, Puleo

By TOM HENSHAW

The Quincy Education Association, with 900 members in the public schools and college, this week endorsed Tom Koch for mayor to end "the rule of threats, intimidation, fear, bullying and misrepresentation."

They also recommended that voters elect veteran JoAnn Bragg and newcomer Nick Puleo to School Committee in the Nov. 6 municipal election.

Koch was selected for endorsement by the QEA's Political Education Committee, chaired by Allison Cox, a teacher at the Montclair School, after questionnaires were filled out by and interviews conducted with those candidates who chose to participate.

Paul Phillips, president of the union, said Mayor William Phelan was one of those who participated in both the questionnaires and the interviews.

The committee recommendations were accepted by the QEA's Executive Board.

"Tom Koch calls for a change of tone," said the QEA's announcement.

"The need for that is best exemplified in the aggressively harsh, mudslinging campaign that has come from an increasingly desperate opposition.

"QEA does not believe Tom Koch will usher in perfection. But the rule of threats, intimidation, fear, bullying and misrepresentation must end and Tom Koch has pledged to end it.

"The fact that 12 unions don't have contracts over a year after they expired is an issue.

"And, of course, the fact that teachers had to strike to get the current mayor to budge toward basic fairness, which he was finally forced into, remains an issue for us.

"We strongly recommend Tom Koch for mayor."

The four-day strike by Quincy teachers last June followed 18 months of sometimes bitter contract negotiations and resulted in a four-day delay in school closing.

The teachers won a five-year contract that gave some a 17 per cent pay raise but also increased their contribution to health insurance from 10 to 20 per cent and their co-pay from $5 to $10.

A $150,000 fine imposed by the courts on the QEA is still under arbitration and litigation, Phillips said.

The QEA's endorsement called Puleo "an energetic young man (who) has taken the time to familiarize himself with the issues educators care about."

"Puleo had some interesting thoughts about supply and book purchasing, regular building maintenance and understands well the pitfalls of merit pay and test-centered curricula gimmickry."

"The Political Education Committee was very impressed with Nick Puleo's breadth and depth of understanding. It was obvious he'd done his homework."

The QEA said Bragg, who is attempting the return to the School Committee after leaving for a term to care for her family, "compiled an enviable record in her years on the School Committee."

"It is safe to say that QEA will not always agree with everything she advocates, but we will agree much more often than not. And when we don't, the differences will be respectful, direct and above board.

"JoAnn was bothered by the public bargaining of the mayor and disturbed that the current School Committee allowed it to happen without comment or any attempt to stop it."

Liang Pledges Council Salary To Owners, Renters Info Site

Jimmy Liang, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 6, says he plans to use his salary as councillor to provide bilingual information to consumers, particularly to homeowners, renters and new home buyers.

"A strong housing stock and thriving businesses will entice people to stay in North Quincy," said Liang.

"They will also ensure that we have a our safety services, such as the Fire Department and Police Department, and support our schools and public works."

Liang would open an office in Ward 6 to work with Neighborhood Housing Services and Quincy Community Action and others to increase educational programs for homebuyers and landlords.

"The subprime lending practices in many cities around the country have left people with adjustable mortgages they cannot afford when the interest rate adjusts up," he said.

"These lending practices affect homeowners and neighborhoods when owners foreclose. In cases involving one or two-family homes, a foreclosed loan may also jeopardize renters."

Liang pledged to work with city, state and federal programs to secure more home improvement loans for homeowners and landlords.

"Our homes in Quincy neighborhoods are one of our best assets," he said. "The homes in Ward 6 were built to last.

"Each home in North Quincy has a unique design and architecture. In fact, people who visit from out of town often comment on the variety of home designs.

"But we, as a neighborhood, must keep up our homes and rental property and make sure buyers acquire loans that they can afford to pay back."

Liang welcomes a chance to share ideas with you. You can visit him in his campaign headquarters at 38 Billings Rd., Wednesdays from 2 to 4 p.m. or call him at 617-331-2081.

Fright Night To Be Sight Night For Collection Of Used Glasses

Quincy's youthful trick-or-treaters are being asked to turn their annual "fright night" in to "sight night" when they tour their neighborhoods on the evening of Wednesday, Oct. 31.

The date coincides with the Quincy Lions Club annual drive to collect old eyeglasses and sunglasses to be recycled and distributed to people in need around the world.

This year the Lions are encouraging local residents to give their unwanted and unneeded glasses to the pint-sized ghosts and goblins who show up at their doors.

The kids will then turn in their collected glasses to their local schools where they will be picked up by the Lions Club.

"Sight Night gives children and adults a tangible way to participate in a global act of kindness on Halloween," said Christine Cedrone Logan, past president of the Lions Club and Sight Night organizer.

"Some people who receive this eyewear may now be able to work or see the board in school because of their improved eyesight.

"Look for your used prescription eyeglasses and non-prescription sunglasses around your home or office.

"Whether they're big or small, chic or not, your eyewear could help someone in a developing country see the world more clearly."

If the ghouls and goblins fail to appear at your house on Sight Night, be not disappointed. The Lions Club has collection boxes in strategic locations around the city.

You can learn the location of the nearest box by calling 617-328-1384.

Keenan's Pension Cost Saving Plan Moves Forward

A pension cost saving plan introduced by Councillor-at-Large John F. Keenan and passed by the Council, the State Legislature, and signed by the Governor, is now under review by the administration and the Quincy Retirement System, Keenan said.

If timely implemented the plan could save the city approximately $80 million in pension costs over the next 20 years, according to First Southwest, the City's bond advisor.

"The City of Quincy budgeted approximately $18 million this year to fund the Retirement System, and the City has an overall unfunded liability, a financial obligation to the Retirement System, in excess of $150 million," Keenan said.

The City is obligated over the next 20 years to continue making payments to the Retirement System based on a funding schedule. The legislation that I introduced, which was passed at every level of local and state government, would give the City the ability to make a one time payment to the System, and finance that amount over a similar number of years at a low interest rate."

Keenan said his proposal could result in substantial savings for the City.

"It's something similar to refinancing a home at a favorable, locked in interest rate," he said. "The City's bond rating, the drop in interest rates, and predictions of a relatively stable economy open the windows again for potentially large savings."

Keenan, who serves as Chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee added:

"The plan requires a great deal of analysis before a decision on implementation. I appreciate the cooperation of the Auditor, the Retirement System and the Administration, and look forward to continuing the work necessary to ensure that when the time comes to make the decision on implementing the plan, we have analyzed every aspect and taken as conservative an approach as possible on behalf of the taxpayers."

Koch Fund-Raising Rally Set For Tonight

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch will host a fundraising rally tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Quincy Marriott Hotel in Crown Colony Office Park.

The event will feature food, entertainment and a nine-foot-tall television screen so supporters can watch the Red Sox in Game 2 of the World Series.

"Just like the Sox, we're heading down the home stretch, and I can't think of a better way to celebrate all the hard work so many people have contributed over the last 10 months," Koch said.

"We've had a great run and now we're going to finish strong."

Tickets to the event are $25. For more information, call 617-773-5624 or visit www.kochforquincy.com.

Performance. Not politics.

Performance for our neighborhoods:

- Enacted a building moratorium to protect our neighborhoods.

- Introduced an ordinance to halt the paving of front yards.

- Approved school budgets for full-day kindergarten and to keep class sizes down.

Performance for taxpayers:

- Drafted a financial plan, approved by the Council, the Legislature and the Governor, that could save taxpayers nearly $4 million a year.

- Spearheaded passage of an Emergency Plan that will provide $32 million in energy improvements in City buildings, at no additional cost to taxpayers.

- Negotiated an agreement to increase the City's stabilization account by $4.5 million to reduce tax increases.

Diplomat, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

HOW DO YOUR FEET FARE DURING PREGNANCY?

Imagine what adding more than 25 pounds to your body (all in the midsection) in a short amount of time would do to your feet. The weight gain and changes in the center of balance in women during pregnancy can be hard on their feet and ankles. One common foot problem during pregnancy is overpronation, which is the collapsing of the arches. The pain associated with pregnancy-related overpronation may be relieved with orthotics. Another common symptom of pregnancy is edema, which is caused by the extra blood that pregnancy causes to accumulate in the body. Keeping the feet up, wearing properly fitting shoes, and drinking plenty of fluids can all help relieve edema symptoms.

Just as you put your prenatal care in the hands of a specialist, so should you entrust your hard-working feet to a specialist - a highly trained, specially skilled podiatrist. It's time to pay attention to what your feet are trying to tell you when each step is more painful than the one before. Don't ignore foot problems, whether caused by pregnancy, injuries, diseases, or inherited conditions. Call us instead at 781-986-3668. Our state of the art foot care facility is located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

P.S.: Pregnancy-related edema should occur in both feet. When it occurs only in one foot, it may indicate a more serious problem.

Phelan Endorsed By County Labor Council

The Norfolk County Central Labor Council-AFL/CIO has endorsed Mayor William Phelan for a fourth two-year term in the Nov. 6 election.

Labor Council President Robert Rizzi cited Phelan's record of working with organized labor and his willingness to listen to the concerns of working men and women as one of the main reasons for the endorsement.

"Bill Phelan is a great mayor doing a great job," said Rizzi.

"The work he is doing to create good paying jobs by revitalizing downtown Quincy and getting ramps into Crown Colony will help our local economy significantly.

"The new Quincy High School is also a project that will help this community.

"Our members will have work for years to come because of his vision for our city's future."

Phelan said he is proud to accept the endorsement.

"It's an honor to be recognized for the work that we have been doing and for the plans that we have created for a very bright future for our city," he said.

"I am proud of the good paying jobs that our local economy will see because of our efforts in the downtown, at Crown Colony and with the construction of a new high school.

"Quincy's future is bright and I hope to continue to work on behalf of regular people to represent their interests in government."

Rizzi also complimented Phelan's work to make Quincy's buildings more energy efficient.

"The city is investing in its future and is leading the way in energy conservation," he said.

"This program is saving taxpayers dollars and creating jobs for working men and women.

"This type of leadership is the reason why we are proud to endorse Bill Phelan for reelection."

Volunteers Needed At Beechwood Center

Volunteers are needed to help with expanding activities at Beechwood On The Bay, in Quincy, announces Senior Center Coordinator, Maryann Mahony.

"We have welcomed increasing numbers of senior participants throughout the Summer and are hoping to provide new and expanded activities this Fall.

"We are a private, charitable organization and have a very small budget for our senior center...That's the bad news! The good news is that wonderful caring folk help us-as volunteers". First time visitors are always surprised to see our wide range of programs and activities. Wonderful volunteers make it possible. We have many volunteer positions. Some volunteers work one day/week, others more. Some work two hours/visit, and others more.

We currently are seeking volunteers to assist with (1)

Arts & Crafts, (2) Lunch Program, (3) Outdoor recreation, (4) Knitting and Crocheting instruction, and (5) our "Rocking Nannies: (volunteer help in Infant Room), (6) Children's Outdoor Classrooms, and (7) Center Handyman tasks.

A Volunteer Orientation and Social is being planned for November. Call Maryann for more information and to volunteer at 617-471-5712.

Koch Calls On Phelan To Release Fire Reports

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch today criticized Mayor William Phelan for not releasing Fire Department reports that allegedly show numerous Quincy schools continually failing annual fire inspections.

"If the mayor didn't know about these failures, then that's a big problem," said Koch. "If he knew and did nothing about it, that's an even bigger problem."

"I call on him today to order the Fire Department to release the reports so the citizens of Quincy can find out what's going on here."

Koch first raised the issue at his debate with Phelan last week at North Quincy High School. Koch said he had learned that numerous city schools had failed the fire inspections, many of them repeatedly.

Immediately following the debate, the Koch campaign filed a request under the Massachusetts Public Records Law for the inspection reports. The campaign has yet to receive a response to its request.

"If the mayor believes that no problem exists, then why is he refusing the release the reports," Koch asked.

"This is a vital public information concern, and he should be doing his utmost to address it."

"Instead he's doing his utmost to ignore it."

SOUTH COASTAL BANK employees recently took part in a South Shore Habitat for Humanity team build day. The bank also donated $1,000 to Habitat. Bank employees help build a home in Scituate. Previously, volunteers from the bank helped construct Habitat homes in Braintree, Marshfield and Duxbury. During this year's Habitat Team Build Day, the South Coastal Bank crew worked on a two-story dwelling being built for Chris Sacchitella and his four children: Matteo, Dominic, Dante and Olympia. Volunteers from South Coastal Bank are (front row, left to right): Barry Whittaker, senior vice president, CFO and COO, South Coastal Bank; Susan Lincoln, executive vice president and director of retail banking, South Coastal Bank; Ann O'Keefe, vice president and retail operations manager, South Coastal Bank; Fran Wong, marketing and public relations officer, South Coastal Bank; Kirk Small, vice president, area sales and business development manager, South Coastal Bank; and Jim Comeau, construction manager, South Shore Habitat for Humanity. Middle row (left to right): Jack Doyle, residential lending officer, South Coastal Bank; James Gordon, assistant vice president and operations/technology officer, South Coastal Bank; Norma Ellis, executive lending assistant and assistant portfolio manager, South Coastal Bank; Paula Clough, assistant vice president and loan operations manager, South Coastal Bank; Marguerite Salvucci, Rockland assistant branch manager, South Coastal Bank; and Tricia Dandrow, vice president and commercial lending officer, South Coastal Bank. Back (from left): Daniel Taylor, vice president, area sales and business development manager, South Coastal Bank; and Adam Conrad, Scituate assistant branch manager, South Coastal Bank.

8 Re-runs For Mayoral Debate On Cable TV

If you missed last night's (Wednesday) live televised debate between Mayor William Phelan and his challenger, Tom Koch, at 7 p.m. from the TV studio in the Thomas Crane Public Library, have no regrets.

The debate will have been rerun in full by Quincy Access TV at least eight times by the close of business Sunday night.

The schedule of repeats include:

Last night (Wednesday) at 9 p.m. on Channels 8 and 10.

Today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. on Channels 8 and 10.

Saturday, Oct. 27, at 10 a.m. on Channel 10.

Saturday, Oct. 27, at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Channel

Farmers' Market To Close Season Friday

The 2007 season of Quincy's Farmer's Market will come to a close Friday, Oct. 26, in the John Hancock Parking Lot.

O'Brien's Bakery will bring freshly brewed coffee and a griddle to make cheese sandwiches in their own cheddar cheese bread.

The Market Table will offer free tastings of fruits, vegetables and cheese.

The warm fall temperatures have produced plenty of field grown tomatoes and sweet corn for sale and pumpkins and cranberries are coming to market now.

Free Jazz Concert At Eastern Nazarene

A free concert featuring the Ed Broms Quartet, a professional jazz combo will be held Tuesday, Nov. 9 at 7 p.m. at Eastern Nazarene College, 23 E. Elm Ave.

The concert, which is part of the colleges' Musica Eclectica Concert Series, will be held in the Mann Student Center Auditorium.

Children and families are welcome to attend.

Labor Unions Endorse McNamee

Brian McNamee, a candidate for reelection to the City Council from Ward 6, has claimed the endorsement of two local unions of the New England Regional Council of Carpenters.

"We feel you are a true champion and will be a leader for working families," read the endorsement from Local 67.

"We do not make this endorsement frivolously," read the supporting statement from Local 424, "but consider it to be a sign of commitment that together we will help working families achieve the American dream."

A number of labor unions have endorsed McNamee in his bid for a second two-year term on the Council.

They include the Norfolk

County Central Labor Council, the Laborer's International Union of North America Local 133, the International Union of Painters and Allied Trades District Council 35, and the Sheet Metal Workers International Association Local 17.

"I am quite grateful to receive this important support from organized labor," said McNamee.

SOUTH SHORE SAVINGS Bank recently donated $5,000 from the bank's Charitable Foundation to Quincy-based Cradles to Crayons. South Shore Savings Bank Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer Christopher Dunn (left) makes the presentation to James Stevens, president of Cradles to Crayons. The presentation was made following the 15th annual South Shore Savings Bank Charity Golf Classic held at the Indian Pond Country Club in Kingston. Cradles to Crayons provides, free of charge, low-income and homeless children from birth to pre-teen the basic essentials they need to be safe, warm, ready to learn, and valued. Through distribution partnerships with shelters, health centers, schools, parenting programs and day cares, it directly reaches the children who are most at risk and in need.

Rally For Rose Fundraiser Nov. 30

A fundraiser for Rose Zerigian, formerly of Quincy, now living in Minnesota, will be held Friday, Nov. 30 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 5 Hollis St., North Quincy, from 7 to 11 p.m.

The benefit, named "Rally For Rose" will held Rose, 26, daughter of John and Kathy Zerigian who is waiting for a kidney transplant.

Zerigian, while going through dialysis three times a week, is hoping her brother John, who is undergoing testing will be a good enough match to be the donor.

The event is being held to ease the financial burden of constant traveling between Massachusetts and Minnesota, unpaid leave from work, and childcare for Zerigian's baby.

Tickets are $20 per person and may be purchased by calling Kathy Pulera at 617-471-6319, or 617-472-5457. Donations can be made directly to the Colonial Federal Savings Bank, 15 Beach St., Quincy, 02170.

'Quincy's Future Is Our Future' Candidate Ng Tells Supporters

More than 350 guests turned out on a rainy Friday night to meet candidate Victor Ng and his family at a campaign celebration dinner at the China Pearl Restaurant (formerly the International Buffet) at Presidents Plaza.

"I care about Quincy's future because Quincy is our future," said Ng, who is seeking one of three at-large seats on the City Council in the Nov. 6 election.

"Quincy has provided many Asian families with a safe and convenient place to live, work and raise a family.

"I want to ensure that future generations are given that opportunity, too. I hope to lead more Asians into participating in and contributing to their community."

Ng, who has lived in Quincy since 1988, introduced his family, his wife, Sadie, and their daughters, Raven and Scarlett, who, he said, are at the heart of his desire to serve.

After years of working in the Jewelry Industry Angelo "Al" Coletti and his wife Dorothy Papile Coletti decided in 1969 to open their own Jewelry Store. Al and two business partners wanted to offer their customers Fine Quality Jewelry at Discounted Prices. The three partners used a combination of their surnames and decided to name their business LeColson Jewelers. Originally located in the "The Jewelers Building" in downtown Boston, Al and his family continued serving their clients jewelry needs while the other partners moved on with other business ventures. In 1988, the Coletti family decided to relocate

LeColson, now LeColson Fine Jewelry to Quincy, the city the Coletti family has called home for four generations. Presently located at 795 Hancock St., across from Merrymount Park, Al and two of his sons, Mark and David have been offering the finest in Quality Jewelry at discounted prices. Al, Mark and David all agree that instead of using high pressure sales tactics they assist their customers in purchasing fine quality jewelry. LeColson Fine Jewelry, shop in a living room atmosphere where Quality and Integrity are a Tradition.

Metro Suburban Recovery Learning Community Opens At Quincy Mental Health

The Transformation Center of Boston, an advocacy group of mental health consumers, announce the opening of the Metro Suburban Recovery Learning Community (RLC), a program funded by the Department of Mental Health and located at the Quincy Mental Health Center, 460 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

This is the third of eventually six sites across the state in this new phase of mental health treatment focused on the recovery of individuals who have experienced mental illness.

Staffed and managed by consumers the RLC will provide support to people in recovery from mental health conditions through ongoing peer-led support groups, training, and educational programs.

Programs will be held at the Quincy Mental Health Center and throughout the Metro Suburban region.

The site's grand opening ceremony is Wednesday, Oct. 24 at 3 p.m. and will feature consumer/survivors sharing their stories and visions of recovery, visits from state and local officials, a tour of the new center, entertainment and a dinner.

Additionally, the RLC announces the appointment of Francesca Ricci, 47, of Boston as its new director. Francesca comes to the RLC with a background in community organizing and outreach development. For the last three years she worked to develop peer-led parent support groups throughout Massachusetts.

Francesca brings her strengths-based perspective of personal growth and development to the RLC and is anxious to partner with her peers and other mental health organizations to build a strong and hopeful recovery community. She is a student at Lesley University completing a degree in Psychology with an emphasis on organizational and leadership development.

The RLC is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for drop-in visits or call 1-888-RLC-5510 or 617-472-3237 for more information about new and ongoing programs.

Consumers of Mental Health Services, their families and the general public are all welcome.

Quincy Youth Tours Greece, Rome

Ryan Bennett of Quincy, a senior at Boston College High School, recently completed a week's tour of Rome and Greece.

Alfred Navarette, moderator of the National Honor Society, and four other teachers, led the 31 students from BC High's National Honor Society on the tour.

After a brief layover in Frankfurt, Germany, the group flew to Italy and immediately began a walking tour of Rome as they visited the Spanish Steps, the Pantheon, the Piazza Navona and the Trevi Fountain.

After a small lunch, the tour featured more sightseeing including the Colosseum, the Roman Forum, St. Peter's Basilica and the Sistine Chapel. The day ended with a visit to the Jesuit Church in Rome and supper consisting of pizza, pasta and gelato with espresso.

The next day they traveled to the ancient city of Pompeii and spent the day examining the ruins.

Heading for Greece they

boarded a ferry, where they spent the night dancing at the disco-tech, playing dominos with the chaperones or lying on the deck seascik.

Next morning the young men disembarked into beautiful Greek weather in Patras. They rushed to Olympia before it closed and took a few photos of the ancient stadium that held the original Olympic Games.

Next day they viewed one of the largest preserved amphitheatres at Epidauros. Naturally the lads had to check the theater's acoustics so they sang the Star Spangled Banner among other favorites. They next bused to Athens, stopping at the palace of Agamemnon in Mycenae on the way.

The next day they toured Athens, visiting the Acropolis, the Parthenon and the Temples of Athena and Nike. They shopped for souvenirs in an area called the Plaka district.

The final day of touring was spent at the Temple of Apollo at Delphi, once believed to be the center of the Universe. Here the boys got the opportunity to race each other in the ancient stadium at Delphi.

Bennett enjoyed every minute of the trip, especially the Greek food, souvlaki, pasticcio, mousaka and lots of lamb.

Boston College High School is a Jesuit, Catholic, college-preparatory school for young men founded in 1863. The school enrolls approximately 1300 students from some 100 communities in eastern Massachusetts. For more <http://www.bchigh.edu>.

QEN Candidates Night At Beechwood

The Quincy Environmental Network (QEN) will hold their second candidates' night today (Thursday) from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St.

The event will feature the candidates for councillor-at-large and state legislators. Members of the audience will have the chance to question the council candidates, who are vying for three open seats. They are incumbents Joseph Finn, John Keenan and Michael McFarland and political newcomers Jennifer McCauley Logue and Victor Ng.

Why 50% Of Homes Listed For Sale Don't Sell The First Time And What to Do About It

Quincy - If your home has just come off the market and hasn't sold, don't get discouraged. The reason your home did not sell may have nothing to do with your home or the market. In reality, your home may have been one of the more desirable properties for sale.

So Why Didn't Your Home Sell?

Last year almost half of the homes listed for sale never sold at all, and many sellers found that there was a tremendous amount a homeowner needed to be educated on to sell their home for top dollar in the shortest time period.

Don't risk making the wrong choices and losing both time and money on your investment. Before you hire a realtor, know the right questions to ask to save you time and money.

Industry experts have prepared a free special report called "How to Sell a House that Didn't Sell" which educates you on the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report call 800-611-0351 and enter ID#1012. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call now to make sure your home sells next time you list it for sale. www.southshorehomeinfo.com

This report is courtesy of Quincy Homes Real Estate. Not intended to solicit properties currently listed for sale.

SECONDARY LUNCH MENU

Monday, Oct. 29

Shaved steak with cheese on a French roll, tossed salad, fruit juice.

Tuesday, Oct. 30

American chop suey, hot vegetable, dinner roll, fresh fruit or juice.

Wednesday, Oct. 31

Canadian ham and cheese on a croissant, oven fry potatoes, fresh fruit or juice.

Thursday, Nov. 1

Buffalo chicken nuggets, Spanish rice, vegetable, fresh fruit or juice.

Friday, Nov. 2

Grilled hot dog on a bun, baked beans, coleslaw.

Logue Presents 800-Name Petition Calling For City to 'Stop The Concourse'

Councillor-at-large candidate Jennifer McCauley Logue Wednesday presented Mayor William Phelan and the City Council with a petition calling on the city to abandon the Quincy Center Concourse project.

The 19-page petition was signed by nearly 800 Quincy residents, workers, business owners and patrons, who oppose the city's plan to bulldoze two dozen downtown businesses and build a four-lane roadway straight through the heart of Quincy Center.

"The breadth and diversity of the people who signed the 'Stop the Concourse!' petition demonstrates just how widespread opposition to this project really is," Logue said. "People from throughout the Greater Boston area come to Quincy every day to work in our businesses, eat in our restaurants and patronize our businesses-and they don't want this road to destroy Quincy Center any more than Quincy residents do."

Logue expressed concern at the, for what she called is, influence being exerted by Stop & Shop in the future development of downtown

Quincy. At a candidates' night last week, she said, one of her incumbent opponents justified his support for the Concourse by saying, "Stop & Shop was going to leave if we didn't do something." This week, City Hall announced that Stop & Shop would be staying in Quincy and that the city was ready to begin negotiating with a developer "aligned" with the grocery store behemoth.

Logue also noted that at the Ward 2 candidates' night, another incumbent opponent called the series of public charrettes-at which residents gave their suggestions for downtown Quincy-"just a PR stunt."

"As a resident and taxpayer, it disturbs me that our elected officials are so concerned about what Stop & Shop thinks Quincy Center should look like, while being so utterly dismissive of the views of those of us who actually live here," Logue said. "The last time I checked, the mayor and city council were elected to protect the interests of the residents of Quincy, not some multinational conglomerate based in the Netherlands."

A first-time candidate for elected office, Logue has been an outspoken critic of the Concourse/urban renewal plan. She pointed to other cities such as Worcester, where grandiose downtown revitalization plans have stalled as developers, citing a "downturn in the market," have failed to step up and actually build the promised projects. She also compared the Concourse project to another highly touted city initiative that failed to materialize: the re-opening of the Fore River Shipyard.

"The shipyard fiasco is a classic example of elected officials letting their desire to score points with constituents and special interest groups override their common sense," Logue said. "Every shipbuilding expert in the world said that plan had no chance of success, but the mayor and city council went ahead and risked millions of taxpayers dollars, all the while promising that thousands of jobs would be created and the city would receive millions in tax revenues."

In the end, Logue said, the plan never got off the ground and Quincy taxpayers were left to pay off millions of dollars in defaulted loans made to Greek shipbuilder Sotirios Emmanouil, who left the country.

"The Concourse plan is every bit as financially risky as the shipyard deal was," said Logue, noting that the city is borrowing $30 million for the project at the same time it will be losing tax revenue by demolishing $16 million in downtown businesses. "The citizens of Quincy have a right to expect that their elected officials will exercise better judgment when it comes to spending their hard-earned money."

Alexander Miner In Freshman Service Experience

Alexander Miner of Quincy, a freshman at American University, Washington, D.C., participated recently in the Freshman Service Experience, a community service which freshman students contributed nearly 10,000 hours at 37 sites around the D.C. area.

It focused on integrating arts, education and social services. Some students volunteered and prepared meals, rebuilt homes, cleaned local and national parks, and worked with children and the disabled.

JENNIFER MCCAULEY LOGUE HAS NEVER BEEN ACCUSED OF BEING "PASSIVE."

But when it comes to the environment, Jennifer thinks more passive recreation spaces are just what Quincy needs. As your councillor-at-large, Jennifer will work to ensure that Community Preservation Act funds are used to protect Quincy's parks, marshes, wetlands and coastal areas. She'll work to bring state programs to Quincy to eliminate invasive plants that are choking our wetlands. And she'll work with our state and congressional leaders to secure funding to preserve our open spaces for future generations.

On Tuesday, November 6, vote

(repaired), it will get done," said Raymondi, adding that ward problems should also be addressed.

After the first hour, Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamie criticized the lengthy discussion.

Committee Chairman Joseph Finn said McNamie was "out of line," adding that councillors are "called here to represent our constituents."

O'Donnell said that his department gets about 200 requests each week via email and that e-mails are transferred to work orders. He indicated that councillors using e-mail get quicker attention. Raymondi has not used e-mail.

"I don't think you should be recreating a list for us," said Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis who described his success in using e-mail.

Both Davis and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin praised O'Donnell's success heading the public works department.

Davis noted that O'Donnell often replies on Saturdays to his reports to the DPW and added that every councillor should be using e-mail if he wants to properly serve his constituents.

O'Donnell said that, after construction season, he will prepare a spreadsheet including the details requested by Raymondi and others showing the wards, the type of complaint, a department assessment of the problem, dates of complaint and of any action.

The fifth committee member, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly was absent.

Autism Benefit At Sons Of Italy Saturday

A pair of hard-to-get tickets to a Hannah Montana Concert in the Worcester Centrum will be one of the prizes at a benefit for "Autism Speaks" Saturday, Oct. 27, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St.

The suggested donation is $5 and raffle tickets for the Hannah Montana tickets are priced at $15.

There will be entertainment and games and professionals available to answer questions and provide information on autism, a mysterious disorder that affects one in 150 children and one in every 94 boys.

The event was organized by the Burke family of Quincy, parents of an autistic child.

Senior Bridge Club To Meet

The Council on Aging's bridge club for seniors will meet every Friday from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the Dawes House on Quincy Shore Drive, corner of Channing Street.

All level players are welcome.

For further information, call 617-376-1506.

Firm Is Named To Design Multi-Family Guidelines

The design firm of Goody, Clancy Associates has been selected to assist the city in developing design guidelines for multi-family properties in Quincy.

The recommendation for guidelines was generated by Mayor William Phelan's Smart Zoning Committee and funded in this year's operating budget to help protect residential neighborhoods.

"We are making great strides in protecting our neighborhoods from development and preserving their character," said Phelan.

"Design guidelines will offer our boards and commission helpful guidance in the review of new projects.

"They will also set the bar for developers so that they know what quality of development we expect in our neighborhoods."

The Smart Zoning Committee made a number of recommendations to the City Council last spring, including site plan review for multi-family housing units.

Goody, Clancy Associates, a nationally recognized firm, has helped Quincy develop design guidelines for the downtown district and held many successful charrettes.

"I expect that this will be a public process where residents will contribute ideas on how best to protect their neighborhoods," said Phelan.

"We can develop the blueprint for our neighborhoods for years to come with design guidelines.

"I want to thank the Smart Zoning Committee for their innovative work."

Two Major Flu Clinics In November

The flu season is still two months away but already the Quincy Health Department has plans to hold two major public flu clinics in the month of November.

The first will be held Sunday, Nov. 18, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Safety Fair in the Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

The second will take place Wednesday, Nov. 28, from 9:30 to 11 a.m. at the Elks Lodge, 254 Quarry St.

If a third clinic is needed it will be held at a later date in the Health Department offices at 1585 Hancock St., said Public Health Nurse Karen McKim.

"The flu season usually starts at the end of December and runs through March," she said. "The state has asked us to hold major clinics in mid-November. It takes about two weeks for the vaccine to work."

There is no charge to receive the shot of vaccine but senior citizens are urged to bring their Medicare cards to ensure reimbursement, she said.

Unlike a few years ago when cities and towns were scrambling for a short supply of vaccine, the amount on hand for the coming season is adequate, said McKim.

She described the expected flu of 2007-08 as "seasonal influenza," so mundane, in fact, that it has not been given a name, unlike the deadly Hong Kong flu of 1968.

It has no known connection with the dreaded H5N1 strain that started among Asian poultry in 2003 and spread through most of the Old World.

12 Unions Rally For Contracts

said Ernie Arienti, president of the firefighters Local 792, charging that city officials have rarely met with union leaders to negotiate new contracts.

"Everyone's been trying to meet with the City of Quincy for negotiations," said Arienti who added, "Some haven't even met yet."

City Hall custodians, secretaries, cafeteria workers, traffic supervisors, and bus drivers are among the union members seeking contracts. The school department's security guards, food service workers, maintenance, secretaries and paraprofessionals are also without contracts.

"We could be real close if we could just sit down," said Arienti who represents 205 firefighters.

There are 12 city unions which do not have contracts and union officials said they've been unable to arrange negotiation sessions with city officials.

At least one union president said that city officials have not met with them once in the 16 months since their contract expired.

Paul Phillips who heads the city's teachers' union said that his union represents the Quincy College faculty and professional staff and the city's assistant principals, all of whom are without contracts.

Phillips' teachers' union voted to strike last June and was four days on the picket line before agreeing to a contract.

"They were there for us and we want to be there for them," said Phillips of his members' presence at Tuesday's rally.

Phillips said that the city has executed current contracts with librarians, police supervisors, patrolmen, City Hall Supervisors and the public works union (Local 1139).

However, Phillips said that city officials expect to renegotiate the librarians' contract.

Arienti said that city officials don't have time to negotiate new contracts (but) "the city is looking to move into a new health program in 30 days."

City administrators tried to meet the state's October 31 deadline to join the employee's health insurance programs to the state's program known as the General Insurance Commission (G.I.C.).

However, union leaders said they had no information on the G.I.C. until after October 1.

"We're all looking to work with the city on the health care issues," said Arienti, adding, "The City's not willing to work with us."

"We feel it's time we stood up and had an informational rally," said Arienti.

City Councillor John Keenan and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond attended the rally, said they supported the union members.

FIREFIGHTERS' UNION PRESIDENT Ernie Arienti addressed some 400 demonstrators on City Hall Plaza Tuesday at a rally supporting the employees of 12 unions operating without contracts for over a year.

Phelan said

"The downtown should

Decorating Your House For Halloween

(NAPS) - Scary witches. Spooky jack-o-lanterns. And lots of tricks and treats. It's no wonder Halloween has become a favorite holiday for kids of all ages.

This fall, millions of Americans will get into the Halloween spirit by decorating their homes for the season. Why not join in the fun? All you need is some paint and a little imagination. Here are some ideas from the decorating experts at Rust-Oleum.

Welcome trick-or-treaters: Create an inviting path to your front door with pumpkins from your local farm or supermarket. Line your steps with fresh mums in inexpensive ceramic planters spray painted with Painters Touch Real Orange or Gloss Black. Add a scarecrow, corn stalks and a couple of bales of hay and the neighborhood ghosts and goblins will flock to your door.

Invite the neighbors: Create an autumn tablescape by painting inexpensive candlesticks with American Accents Canyon Black spray paint. Add the enchanting warm look of rich aged copper to papier-mâché pumpkins with American Accents Antique Copper Transformation Kit Or. paint miniature pumpkins with American Accents Metallic Copper spray paint for quick and easy elegance. Purchase colorful autumn leaves from your local crafts store, scatter the leaves and pumpkins on the table in a random pattern and bring out the mulled cider and donuts for a festive Halloween treat.

Create a haunted house look: Customize your entryway with items painted with Rust-Oleum Glow in the Dark Paint. Add splashes of glow in the dark color to decorative accents such as wooden candy bowls, witches, bats and other Halloween decorations for a spooky effect that is sure to put everyone in the Halloween spirit.

Save the memories: Paint a simple wooden picture frame with American Accents Mango spray paint. Draw black cats or spider webs with American Accents Decorative Paint Pen in Gloss Black. Fill the frame with a picture of your little ghost or goblin for Halloween memories that will last for years to come.

Removing Wallpaper

Q. The dining room and kitchen of the house we recently purchased have dingy, faded wallpaper in place. What's the best way to remove this so that we can paint the walls? — Kara G., Portland, Maine

A. Wallpaper removal, even at the best of times, is a time-consuming, exhausting, dusty, dirty job. It can also be somewhat exhilarating as you rip paper from the walls, but this comes in small doses. I'm just preparing you for the job—because removing the old wallpaper and repainting the walls is ultimately worth the effort.

You'll need a putty knife, wallpaper scraper, wallpaper scorer, a spray bottle filled with mild soapy water, dropcloths, sponges, a scouring pad and coarse sandpaper. A dust mask, hat and gloves should be worn. Depending on the difficulty involved in removing the wallpaper and glue beneath, you may need to rent a wallpaper steamer. Wallpaper-removing solution is also available, but this is a somewhat caustic product that generates lots of fumes, requiring a respirator mask, eye and skin protection, so consider it a worst-case-scenario item.

After clearing out furniture and putting down dropcloths, test the wallpaper by selecting a loose corner and gently pulling away from the wall. Encourage the paper along by running the putty knife or scraper between the paper and wall.

Older paper tends to peel away and leave the backing and glue behind. And such glue is often practically petrified. To make removal easier, spray soap-and-water solution on the surface of the wallpaper and let it soak for a few minutes before peeling. If the wet spray doesn't work, use the rental steamer (careful, as it's very hot) to soften the backing and glue. Scrape away softened material with the putty knife; attack stubborn backing blobs with coarse sandpaper.

As I said, wallpaper removal is a tough job. Do the work in batches, allotting a certain amount of time to the job each day. If you're tired or hurried, the walls may not be cleaned properly, and that will show up under the paint.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Focus On Fiber To Help Lower Your Cholesterol

(NAPS)—An easy way to lower or maintain your cholesterol may be to focus on fiber-and there are plenty of tasty ways to incorporate healthy fiber into your diet.

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Ten-Hut!

Have you ever wanted to train with the intensity of the military but without the risk or commitment? Many exercisers are becoming involved in this type of intense training through boot-camp-inspired training classes. The basic principles found in traditional military boot camp have been modified for our civilians.

Boot-camp-training classes often incorporate many of the same exercises that are required during actual boot camp. Push-ups, pull-ups, abdominal exercises, running and obstacle courses are just a few of the exercises used. Classes are structured to include muscular strength, cardiovascular strength and endurance, balance, coordination, body-weight training and flexibility.

Many people not only find these workouts fun, strenuous and challenging, but also effective. The group aspect of boot-camp classes can also be intriguing. As part of a balanced fitness and nutrition program, boot-camp workouts can surely help you reach your fitness goals.

One of the major factors in boot-camp classes is the instructor. You'll find highly motivated and demanding individuals who will challenge you to push yourself to complete each workout.

Please remember to check the credentials of your instructor to ensure that he or she is qualified to conduct a group and has the knowledge to safely design exercise programs, is CPR and first-aid certified, and is educated and trained in teaching. This is extremely important if you are to complete an effective workout with minimum risk of injury.

You can find group boot-camp classes offered at many fitness facilities, through privately owned group-training studios, or on home video and DVD. The settings for boot-camp classes range from group-exercise studios to the beach, open fields and converted playgrounds.

If you feel like you have what it takes join the ranks of a boot-camp-type training class, check for a class in your area.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Andrea Renee Wyatt, M.S.S., C.S.C.S., is a certified personal trainer with an extensive background in strength and conditioning as well as therapeutic recreation. If you have a fitness or training question, write Andrea in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Fiber Facts

Dietary fiber, found in plant foods, is generally defined as any part of a plant not digested by human enzymes secreted into the small intestine. Fiber varies widely in its chemical makeup, but it can be broadly classified into two types: soluble fiber, which dissolves in water, and insoluble fiber, which does not dissolve in water.

"Most fruits, vegetables and grains have both soluble and insoluble fiber," says Lynne Ausman, D.Sc., R.D., nutrition professor at the Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy at Tufts University. "Both types of fiber benefit the body, but soluble fiber is more closely associated with lowering cholesterol."

Good sources of fiber include: oats, nuts and seeds, beans and peas and fruits, especially those with a gel-like pulp (berries, peaches, plums, etc.).

"Much of the cholesterol in our bodies is made by the body itself, but we add to it through foods we eat," says Ausman. "Since cholesterol usually increases with age, eating fiber-rich foods can help lower or maintain cholesterol by binding to cholesterol in the intestines and flushing it from the body. In addition to eating a diet low in saturated fat and cholesterol, fiber is important for promoting healthy cholesterol levels."

Ausman notes that most people are only eating about half the fiber they need each day. "Aim to consume about 14 grams of fiber for every 1,000 calories consumed," she suggests. You can also follow the guidelines from the Institute of Medicine:

Women: Under 50: 25 grams per day. Over 50: 21 grams per day.

Men: Under 50: 38 grams per day. Over 50: 30 grams per day.

Bears typically have the most fiber, as evidenced by the impressive 19 grams of fiber in a cup of navy beans. One cup of raspberries has about eight grams of fiber; instant oatmeal about four; and one ounce of almonds has around three.

Still curious about how much fiber your favorite foods have?

"Check labels to learn how many grams of fiber you are consuming," says Ausman. "You can also use online programs to find fiber content of foods without labels."

Fill Up On Fiber

Increase your fiber intake slowly. "Too much fiber quickly may cause cramping, gas or bloating," cautions Ausman. "Drink plenty of water and other beverages. Fiber absorbs water, and without enough fluids, may cause constipation."

Ausman also stresses that it is essential to discuss cholesterol and related dietary changes with a doctor, as cholesterol is not only influenced by diet, but also by genetics.

Help keep your cholesterol in check by trying some of these easy and tasty fiber-filled foods:

- Eat oatmeal or oat cereal for breakfast. Top with berries or eat a side of fruit.

- Make a strawberry-banana smoothie with whole fruit and low-fat milk or 100 percent fruit juice.

- Spread peanut butter on apple slices.

- Toss walnuts, peanuts or sunflower seeds with raisins, dried apricots or plums for energy on the go.

- Snack on sliced fruit or veggies with a low-fat dip, such as yogurt or Italian dressing.

- Complement sandwiches with broth-based vegetable soups containing beans or peas.

- Top salads with kidney beans, chickpeas, slivered almonds or sesame seeds.

Fit, Find Flattering Fashionable Jeans

(NAPS)—There's no fooling the jeans-many women ditch the scale and use a favorite pair of jeans as the barometer for weight-management success. For those women whose jeans are a bit tighter around the waist, help is on the way!

Never fear denim-dreaders, fashion expert Robert Verdi, host of "Fashion Police," and Kellogg's Special K have teamed up to help you reach your ideal figure-then find the best jeans for your new shape. By participating in the Special K Challenge women can drop a jeans size in just two weeks.

"A new pair of fabulous jeans is a great way to show the world your new, slimmer figure," says Verdi. "There are jeans for every body, shape and size." Once you start looking for new jeans to show off your slimmer, new figure, he offers the following tips for choosing the best styles for your shape:

Flatten Your Tummy: Stick with a classic dark wash, with a little stretch for a slimming effect. Select a mid-rise so the waistband lands on the middle of your tummy instead of above it.

Playing Up Your Curves: Choose a wider waistband and avoid a tapered leg (which exaggerates your curves). A trouser leg would be fabulous on you. If you're shorter than 5'4" steer clear of the flared leg.

Flatter Your Bottom: If you want to play down your backside, avoid fussy pockets that sit high on your bottom. If you want to raise your bottom, choose a jean with back pockets that are closer together. Always go with a detailed pocket, which will give the illusion of curves.

Avoid The Waist Gap: A 10 percent stretch in the fabric will help those with smaller waists than hips avoid the "waist gap."

Diminish Your Thighs: A stretch fabric will accentuate your thighs, so go for 100 percent cotton denim that skirts or loosely fits your leg. A straight leg or trouser leg will help your thighs look a little thinner.

Lengthen Your Legs: If you have shorter legs, a low-waist, wide-leg jean will elongate them. If you have long legs, and want to accentuate them, wear a high-waist jean. A wide-leg tapered-leg jean will look great and give you the lean lines you crave.

WHICH TOOTHBRUSH IS BEST?

To maintain healthy gums and teeth, we should brush our teeth for 2-3 minutes at least twice a day. With proper technique (brush all tooth surfaces at the proper angles), a conventional manual toothbrush provides good results. However, because not every one of us is proficient at manual brushing (especially children), an electric toothbrush is likely to serve us better. The latest generation of rotary-style electric toothbrushes tends to do a better job than the older models that feature simple back-and-forth motions. Sub-categories include "sonic" toothbrushes, which vibrate at ultra-high speeds, and "oscillating/pulsating" rotary toothbrushes, which move at higher rates. These higher-speed brushes may enhance the cleaning effect, but proper technique is critical to whatever brush is used.

This column on tooth brushes has been brought to you in the interest of better dental health. We would like to increase dental awareness and the importance of regular dental care. We believe that with preventive dental care, daily brushing and flossing, and a well-balanced diet, people can maintain their teeth and gums in good health well into their later years. You can always discuss your dental concerns with us. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're here to help. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com. P.S. Studies have provided a good amount of clinical evidence that rotary electric toothbrushes are superior to manual toothbrushing with regard to plaque removal and reduction in gingivitis (gum inflammation).

North's Emily Milone Sets Soccer Scoring Mark

By SEAN BRENNAN

North Quincy High School senior midfielder Emily Milone made school history last Sunday afternoon in a game against Nantucket High School.

Milone, a captain on the 2007 Red Raider girls' soccer team, assisted on her team's first goal in a 6-0 rout and with that point, she passed Tricia Hughes ('92) and Betsy Stone ('99) on the school's all-time scoring list. The assist gave Milone 64 total points, breaking the previous record of 63. For her career, Milone has 30 goals and 39 assists. The next closest player on the all-time assist list is Stone with 21.

Milone, who has been playing soccer since she was a little kid, has been a member of the varsity program for four years, and according to her coach, Paul Bregoli, she is as special a player as he has ever coached in his thirteen years manning the sidelines.

"(Emily) is the most dedicated talented kid I have ever had play at this level," Bregoli said, "she made herself into the player that she is. Emily has worked hard to attain her status as the elite player in the program. She is the glue that holds this team together."

"She is a midfielder, but this year especially, Emily has played where ever we needed her to play. I have had her play everywhere just to help us get out of trouble and help get this season moving in the right direction."

The Red Raiders currently have a 6-7-4 record and need to gain two wins or a win and a tie in their final two games to make the post season for the eleventh time in the last thirteen season, and if they do Milone will be a major reason that it happens. On the year, Milone has eleven goals and five assists, but it is her field vision, leadership and soccer aptitude that makes her stand out.

"Emily is so much more mature and self confident this year compared to seasons past," Bregoli added. "She is much more animated in terms of being a captain. She is instructive with the kids, she takes time to teach, and that is not easier for her to do because she is a quite kid, but these last few weeks she has been pushing the team to get to where we want to get."

"But just as a player, my goodness, the things she does with the ball, her passing is off the charts. Sometimes these passes are almost too

North Quincy Girls Aiming For Postseason

For the North Quincy High School varsity girls' soccer team, it all boils down to the final two games of the regular season. Needing three points to qualify for the post season for the eleventh consecutive season, the Red Raiders have to win out (4 pts.) or win and draw (3 pts.) to earn their spot.

North Quincy currently has a record of 6-7-4 (16 points) and need to reach the 19-point plateau to qualify.

The team has three games remaining, against Quincy High School on Saturday and against Dennis-Yarmouth High School on either Monday or Tuesday of next week. The third game against Notre Dame Academy of Hingham, which was played yesterday, does not count towards their overall record.

"We have really picked it up over the last couple of weeks," head coach Paul Bregoli said. "We took care of our business last week, and we need to come out and be aggressive in these final three games. It really could come down to that Dennis-Yarmouth game to see if we can get back to the post season."

The Red Raiders earned four much needed points last week with non-league wins over Fontbonne Academy (4-2) at home and on the island at Nantucket High School (6-0).

Last Sunday, after taking the ferry across Cape Cod Bay to Nantucket, the Raiders came out firing to start the game. Senior Mary Kate Stille scored in the opening minutes of the first half to put North up 1-0 early. The goal was Stille's sixth of the season.

Senior captain Emily Milone, who assisted on the score with a beautifully skilled redirected head ball to Stille off a corner kick, broke the school scoring record on the goal. The assist, her fifth of the season, gave Milone 64 total points, breaking the previous record of 63 points that was held by Betsy Stone ('99) and Tricia Hughes ('92).

Senior Paige Bonnani scored her second goal of the year later in the half on a perfect feed from junior Kerry Donaghey.

Senior defender Simone Leary added her first tally of the season late in the opening half on a 40-yard blast to put

NQHS's Mike Patch Inducted Into MVNU Wall of Fame

Mike Patch, North Quincy High School class of 1993, was recently inducted, as a member, into the Mount Vernon Nazarene University (Mt. Vernon, Ohio) Wall of Fame class of 2007.

Patch was a four-year member of the MVNU baseball team from 1994-1997. As a pitcher for the Cougars, Patch compiled a 37-3 record with a 2.52 earned run average, and nine complete game shutouts during his college career. He also registered 204 strikeouts in 289 innings of work with only 49 walks.

Patch was part of three straight Mid-Ohio Conference (MOC) Championships and three consecutive National Christian College Athletic Association national titles from 1995-1997.

Ten years later, Patch is still tied for first in school history with his 37 victories. He also ranks second in career shutouts, third in career ERA, and fourth in career innings pitched. In addition, he still ranks as the all-time winningest pitcher in NAIA baseball history with a .925 winning percentage.

highlights throughout his college career. He won his final 23 starts, as he went 11-0 as a junior and 12-0 as a senior with 17 complete games during that two-year span. Patch posted 26 straight victories without a loss to close his career with just one no-decision during that stretch, and that came in a game that went 12 innings and was decided by the bullpen.

He had a 5-0 record against conference rival Ohio Dominican University. And he also went 2-0 against NCAA Division I University of Dayton, including a 6-2 win at Dayton in 1996 after the Flyers had defeated eventual NCAA national champion Louisiana State University a few weeks earlier.

Patch combined with fellow pitchers, Jeremiah Armstrong and John Baker, to throw a no-hitter versus Cedarville University in 1996, and he needed just 63 pitches in one seven inning win over Tiffin University in 1995. He also threw a 10-0 shutout against Dominican (NY) College in the NAIA World Series in his final career appearance in 1997 for the Cougars' first-ever win at the NAIA World Series.

Among his many honors, Patch was a three-time Mid-Ohio Conference (MOC) Team selection and a two-time NCCAA All-American. He was also selected as the NCCAA National Player of the Year as a junior in 1996.

Quincy Golf Knocks Off Cohasset High

The Quincy High School varsity golf team knocked off Cohasset High School last week 29-25 in a rain-shortened match at Cohasset Golf Club. With the team victory, the Presidents entered their last regular-season match against Marshfield High School with a 4-11 overall record.

Against Cohasset, senior tri-captain Kevin Shea shot an even par 36, winning his match 6-3. Other big winners were Bryan Ash, playing at the #6 position and winning 7-2, and sophomore Tim Young winning at #3 with a score of 6-3.

Earlier in the week, Quincy lost to Archbishop Williams' William 181 to 142 at Braintree Golf Course. The two teams played using a scoring format that awards points for birdies, pars, bogeys, etc. and the seven best totals of the 10 golfers added up to determine a winner.

Top scorers for the Presidents were Kevin Shea (30 points) and Tim Young and Bryan Ash (22 points).

Two weeks ago, the Presidents and the North Quincy Red Raiders played against each other at Furnace Brook Country Club. The Red Raiders came out on top 39 1/2 to 32 1/2. A top performer for the Presidents was Kevin Shea (medallist/low scorer) with a round of 36 (par is 35). Shea won his match at the #1 spot 6-3. Senior Tony Salaris, playing at the #7 spot, won by a match score of 5-4.

Both Shea and fellow senior tri-captain Ricky Salvucci were named to the Atlantic Coast League all-star team. Shea finished the season with a 36-stroke average and Salvucci finished with a 40-stroke average. And Salvucci was also awarded the league's individual Sportsmanship award.

FALL CAR CARE

Seemlessly Drive Into Winter

(NU) - The winter months are quickly approaching, which means it is time to gear up for the weather ahead. Don't forget you car on your winter-to-do list. Having your vehicle serviced for cold weather driving is important not only for peace of mind, but also for personal safety.

The non-profit National Institute for Automotive

Service Excellence (ASE), the group that tests and certifies automotive technicians, offers tips on preparing your car for the winter months:

- Read the owner's manual. These manuals offer recommended service schedules that are specific to your car.
- Correct any engine problems you have noticed. Hard starts, rough idling, stalling and diminished power can go from being a problem to a disaster in cold weather.
- Check your engine coolant. The level, condition and concentration of the coolant should be checked and replaced if old. Replace coolant with a 50/50 mix of coolant and water.

- Check your belts. Take your car to a professional technician to check the tightness and condition of drive belts, clamps and hoses.
- Change your oil and oil filter as specified in your manual.
- Be sure your heater and defroster are in good working order for both your comfort and visibility.
- Check your battery. The only accurate way to detect a weak battery is with professional equipment, however, any weekender can scrape corrosion from posts and cable connections, clean surfaces and re-tighten connections. Be sure to wear eye protection and rubber gloves for safety.

- Check for exhaust leaks. Inspect the trunk and floorboards of your vehicle for small holes, which could emit deadly exhaust fumes.
- Check your tread. Worn tires are of little use amid the winter elements. Replace them with all-season radials or snow tires, depending on your climate.

• Replace worn windshield wipers, and keep plenty of washer fluid on hand.

• Put a bottle of fuel decelerator in your tank once a month to help keep moisture from freezing in the fuel line.

Visit www.ase.com for more car care tips from ASE, founded in 1972 to improve the quality of automotive service and repair through the voluntary testing and certification of automotive professionals.

North's Emily Milone Sets Soccer Scoring Mark

good. But she knows where to put the ball and that is going to be her best quality moving forward. She is the best player this city has ever seen."

Milone, who plays soccer year-round, took her soccer to a higher level this past July. She tried out for and made the under-19 Region 1 Olympic Pool. This pool represents states in the Northeast, and Milone was one of just two players from Massachusetts to make the 25 women roster. And because of this accomplishment she has been invited to travel to California to tryout for the under-20 U.S. National Olympic Team in the winter and will be traveling to Europe with the team in the spring.

For a player of her stature, Milone is grounded when it comes to her individual accomplishments on the field, but she is not afraid to set her goals high and do what is needed to achieve them.

"Breaking the record was special to me because I have been working hard, and that has been my goal since the beginning of freshmen year," Milone said. "I started playing when I was six years old. I played on my older sister's team and was coached by my dad. He is an inspiration for me. He played soccer in Italy and he is a huge part of my success. I just love playing soccer and it keeps my mind off everything else."

In her fourth and final year, Milone and the other team captains (Paige Bonnani, Mary Kate Stille and Kerry Coughlin) have taken their jobs seriously, and after a rough start, have pulled together to give the Raiders a chance to move on. Scoring records for her are nice, but team goals and accomplishments are best.

"We struggled out of the gate, but being a captain we (not I) motivated the team, tried to get them to step up and play better because the team goal is to make the post season," she said. "We have been improving lately and hopefully we can get there."

Milone may have made a name for herself on the local level playing for the Red Raiders, but it is her play on the club, travel and national level that has earned her a full-ride to Division I Mercer University in Georgia where she will play on the women's soccer team and where she plans on majoring in Journalism/Communications.

"The coach at Mercer saw me play in Florida at the Orange Classic and I went down there about three times and loved it," Milone said. "Their team is real good and they are in first place in the Atlantic Sun Conference. They tell me Mercer is like the BC of the South. I am excited."

During her four-year high school career, Milone has been named to the league all-star team four times, has made the All-Scholastic team the last three years (she is an honor roll student) and was named an EMASS all-star last year.

"I want to enjoy my next four years at Mercer and hopefully continue playing soccer at a high level nationally," Milone added. "That is the next goal I have my sights set on."

If her past is any indication, Emily Milone is well on her way to achieving this goal and any other goal she sets her mind to.

North Quincy Girls Aiming For Postseason

the Red Raiders up 3-0 at the break.

"We had a lot of scoring opportunities early in the game," said Bregoli. "Mary Kate came out on fire and really her pace helped set the team's pace. On the first goal, Milone made a spectacular play to redirect the corner kick and Stille just had to tap it in for the goal. The assist was pretty much what Emily has done since she started four years ago. She is a playmaker."

Milone added to her school leading point total with an assist at the start of the second half. Milone set up Bonnani for her second goal of the game to put the Raiders up 4-0.

"Pretty much right place right time for Paige," stated Bregoli. "Emily put it right on her foot and she buried it for the goal. Paige played a real good game for us"

Stille would later score her second goal of the contest and seventh goal of the year off of a pass from Bonnani (2 goals, 1 assist). Senior Anne Marie Price finished the scoring with her first varsity goal late in the game.

Sophomore Kristen Peterson had the assist.

Junior Siobhan Carnell earned the shutout in goal for the Raiders.

North Quincy got their week started off on the right foot with a 4-2 win over Fontbonne.

Stille and Donaghey connected early in the opening half to put the Raiders up 1-0. Donaghey found Stille streaking from left to right deep in Fontbonne territory and Stille does what all goal scorers do, she slammed home the scoring opportunity.

"We started out real slow and Fontbonne plays us tough every time we play them," said Bregoli. "But the first goal loosened us up, and after Donaghey made a beautiful pass to Mary Kate the scoring chances seemed to come quick."

North would take a 3-0 lead on second half goals from Milone (assist to Stille) and Bonnani (assist to Milone). Fontbonne scored to make it 3-1, but Kasey O'Connell scored her first goal of the year (another assist to Milone) to account for the 4-2 win.

"The defense played great, with Lindsey Repucci and Leary playing solid games," Bregoli added. "It was a good win against a good team."

Pointers For Parents

Tips On Helping Kids Walk Safely On Halloween

(NAPS) - Many parents find Halloween almost as frightening as their children do-but not because of the ghosts and goblins. Experts say the holiday is one of the most dangerous times of the year for children to walk because they will be out trick-or-treating in the dark when it is harder for drivers to see them.

That's why it can be a particularly good time for parents to remind kids of the rules for navigating streets and sidewalks.

- Cross streets safely. Cross at the corner. Try to make eye contact with drivers before crossing in front of them. Don't assume that because you can see the driver, the driver can see you.

- Look left, right and left again when crossing and keep looking as you cross. Walk; don't run, across the street.

- Walk on sidewalks or paths. If there are no sidewalks, walk facing traffic as far to the left as possible. Children should walk on direct routes with the fewest street crossings.

- Children under the age of 10 should not be out walking alone without adult supervision. Children under age 12 should not be out walking alone at night. If kids are mature enough to be out without supervision, they should stick to a predetermined route with good light.

- Be a safe pedestrian around cars. Watch for cars that are turning or backing up. Never dart out into the street or cross in between parked cars. Also, it's important to remember that the excitement of the holiday can be distracting to both drivers and children.

"Parents have many concerns on Halloween and we need to remember that kids must be reminded about safety while walking before they head out," says Dr. Martin Eichelberger, co-founder and chairman of Safe Kids Worldwide.

Eichelberger and the child pedestrian safety experts at Safe Kids offer these tips to keep kids safe:

- Decorate costumes and bags with reflective tape or stickers and, if possible choose light colors.

- Choose face paint and makeup whenever possible instead of masks, which can obstruct a child's vision.

- Have kids carry glow sticks or flashlights in order to see better as well as be seen by drivers.

Parents also need to keep in mind that there are other potential hazards for children on that night. For instance, kids should be reminded to only eat treats in original, unopened wrappers and to throw away candy if the wrapper is faded, torn or if the candy is unwrapped.

Safe Kids Worldwide and program sponsor FedEx created the Safe Kids Walk This Way program to help prevent pedestrian-related injury to children. Visit www.usa.safekids.org/wwt for more helpful information.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're eager to Ram headfirst into that new project. But before you do, find out why some of your colleagues might not appear to be as gung-ho about it as you are.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) All that dedicated hard work you've been putting in pays off better than you expected. So go ahead, reward yourself with something befitting a beauty-loving Bovine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's a good time to take on that new challenge. And if your self-confidence is sagging, instead of telling yourself why you can't do it, list all the reasons why you can.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This is one time when you might want to put some distance between you and the job at hand. It will give you a better perspective on what you've done and still need to do.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Resist that occasional lapse into Leonine laziness that sometimes overtakes the Big Cat. Don't cut corners. Do the job right at this time, or you might have to redo it later.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You know how you like to do things. And that's fine. But watch that you don't impose your methods on others. A current financial crunch soon eases.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone might try to take advantage of your generosity. But before your sensitivity toward others overwhelms your good sense, check his or her story out carefully.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your strong Scorpion sense of fairness lets you see all sides of a dispute. Continue to remain impartial as you help each person work through his or her particular grievance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Trust your keen Sagittarian insight to help you see through an offer that might not be all it claims. A closer look could reveal disturbing elements.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) With the Goat exhibiting a more dominant aspect these days, you could find it easier to make your case in front of even the most skeptical audience.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Aspects favor relationships, whether platonic, professional or personal. On another note: Be a mite more thrifty. You might need some extra money very soon.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Recent news from someone you trust could help you make an important decision. Also, be prepared to confront an upcoming change in a personal situation.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can be firm in your own views, but also flexible enough to welcome the views of others

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Today we live in a very mobile society. In these days of moving about, more families than ever before are faced with emergencies that occur away from home. We, at the Deware Funeral Home, would like you to know that if a death occurs away from home, a single collect telephone call to us can relieve you of many worries and responsibilities.

Through the years we have always maintained close contact with many highly respected and responsible funeral directors throughout this country who are experienced in handling all details to your complete satisfaction. And, if so desired, we will take charge of all the complex details of transportation back to Quincy.

Remember our long experience and knowledge of requirements are available at any time - day or night - whenever the need arises. Remember we care and we show we care by the service we render.

Quincy/North Co-Ed Cross-Country Results

The Quincy/North Quincy co-ed cross-country team continued its fall schedule with a dual-meet win over Plymouth South High School and a loss to Marshfield High School, one of the top teams on the South Shore. The meet was held at Marshfield High School.

The top finishers for the boys' team were Matt Meyers, Matt McGroarty and Rob McGroarty. Greg Gaffney and Dio Covaits turned in strong races.

On the girls' side, freshman Erica Brady led the charge, with Jess Davis and Mary Schwartz also running well.

At the recent Bob McIntyre Invitational held at Franklin Park, Brady led the freshmen girls to a sixth place team finish. Brady's running time of 11:53 on the 3K race course was the eighth fastest time ever recorded. Other team members on the sixth place team were Katelyn Breen, Julie Ross, Shelby Oliver, Julie Doyle, Meghan Peterson and Sandra Daccache.

In the freshmen boys' race, John Green and Dan Green raced well along with teammates Conor Curran-Cross and Rhamy Eltourey.

In the varsity girls' race, Jess Davis became only the third Quincy girl to break the 20-minute mark with a running time of 19:53, which was good for 16th place. Mary Schwartz, Emily Zarnoch and Rachael Kananoff also competed. In the boys' race, Matt McGroarty and Matt Meyers came close to breaking the 17-minute mark on the 5K course.

At last week's Catholic Memorial Meet only freshmen ran for Q/NQ as most team members were taking the PSAT. Erica Brady won the freshmen race with relative ease. Her time of 12:06 helped lead her team to a first-place finish despite the team not having the services of their number two runner Shelby Oliver, who was ill.

Q/NQ had not won a team title before this win since the girls' team won the freshmen State Coaches meet back in 2003.

Q/NQ's next event will be at the State Coaches Meet in Wrentham on November 3.

THE COMMITMENT CONTINUES...

Dear Neighbor,

As I complete my first term as your Councillor-at-Large, I want to thank you for the privilege of being able to serve our community.

I am proud of my accomplishments over the past two years. As the Education Committee Chairman, I have worked hard to move the new Quincy High School project forward and to ensure that we have a new Central Middle School and a renovated Sterling Middle School for our children.

My background in finance has enabled me to make contributions in helping to map our city's future. I have supported long-term capital expenditures in our city's public safety and public works areas such as the purchase of two new pumpers for the Quincy Fire Department and new street sweepers. Energy upgrades with new lights and boilers are now in over thirty municipal buildings.

I have spent the last several weeks walking the streets of our city listening as you voice your opinions about Quincy. I have been overwhelmed by your hospitality, your candor, your interest and your concern for others.

We are very lucky that Quincy is such a wonderful place to live, to work and to raise our families. Our continued quality of life depends on the delicate balance of neighborhood concerns, public safety, infrastructure, the environment and the quality of future development. With my experience in business, government and the community I feel I am uniquely qualified to continue to serve as your Councillor-at-Large.

With your help, I would like to continue my commitment to public service in the City of Quincy. You hear a lot today about politicians serving only the special interests. My promise: You will be my only special interest, and I mean it.

Working with people is what I do best. Please cast one of your three votes on Tuesday, November 6th for Mike McFarland, your Councillor-at-Large.

Thank you,

Mike

THESE CAMPAIGN SIGNS FOR Tom Koch and incumbent William Phelan on the front lawn of a Spring Street, Houghs Neck home is an indicator of the closeness of next Tuesday's mayoral election.

52% Voter Turnout
Predicted For Nov. 6

Phelan, Koch Are Seen In Close Finish

In what is seen as one of the closest and high spending mayoral races in recent years will take center stage in Quincy's city election next Tuesday.

Both incumbent William Phelan, 47, and challenger Tom Koch, 44, have waged hard-hitting campaigns for weeks and are still at it as they come down the home stretch.

Phelan is seeking a fourth term and Koch, who resigned in January after 12 years as Director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments to run, is looking for an upset.

Koch is Phelan's strongest threat since moving into the mayor's office in 2002.

Stay the course or change course? That's the question waiting for voters to answer next Tuesday.

Phelan is running on "my proud record of accomplishments." Koch has taken issue with the record and says, "we can do better."

Phelan, Koch In Their Own Words - Page 3

The last close mayoral race-and upset-was in 2001 when Phelan, a virtual political newcomer with just two years on the School Committee, stunned six term incumbent James Sheets by 17 votes, the closest mayoral battle in the city's history.

The voter turnout that year was 47 percent.

City Expects $4 Million Surplus

Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday that outside auditors have completed their review of last year's budget and the city has managed another budget surplus.

The auditors and Phelan estimated that the budget surplus for Fiscal Year 2007 to be approximately $4 million.

"Every year we actively manage our municipal budget to ensure that we do not spend money for the sake of spending money," said Phelan. "After inheriting budget deficits, I have managed to return a budget surplus for every budget that I have created. This money will now be used consistent with the fiscal policies that I have established to ensure a wise financial strategy for our city's future."

Phelan established fiscal policies two years ago that require the city to place reserves into a stabilization or "rainy day" fund. The stabilization fund protects taxpayers against market factors that could lead to future spikes in tax bills.

Quincy produced the surplus while close to 70 communities in Massachusetts have or are contemplating Proposition 2 1/2 override votes, Phelan said.

"Not only are we managing our tax rate now, we are managing our operating budget to establish long-term protection for our taxpayers," said Phelan. "Our taxpayers need predictability and we are ensuring that they are protected by putting money in the bank. The stabilization fund also helps improve our bond ratings, saving taxpayers millions of dollars in interest payments on city borrowings. This is great news for our taxpayers."

Phelan's fiscal policies also call for a percentage of the free cash reserves to be invested in a five-year capital investment plan. The plan calls for upgrades to fire engines, school buildings, equipment, and other capital needs.

"We are wisely investing in our future by targeting areas that we can stretch our resources and avoid future costs. Our fiscal management and planning policies are a successful way to guarantee long-term fiscal strength for our city."

Crisis Center Seeking Holiday Delivery Help

The Quincy Crisis Center is seeking volunteers to deliver their "Help for the Holidays" Thanksgiving foodstuffs Saturday, Nov. 17, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. around Quincy and the South Shore.

Delivery help is also needed Nov. 19-21.

If you have the time and the inclination to distribute bags of non-perishable food and turkeys to more than 200 families and individuals, call 617-847-6967.

The Crisis Center is in need of certain foods for delivery, particularly cranberry sauce, gravy, stuffing mix, canned corn and green beans, pasta, spaghetti sauce and desserts.

Donations are accepted at 282 Billings Rd., North Quincy, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Retirement Board Revokes Siciliano Pension

By TOM HENSHAW

The Quincy Retirement Board has revoked the $39,860 pension of convicted youth rapist Anthony Siciliano but his attorney, Frank Collins, said his client will appeal the decision to Quincy District Court.

Siciliano, 65, retired general foreman in the Traffic Department and deputy director of Emergency Management, was convicted July 30 on three counts of statutory rape of a teen-aged boy.

He is currently serving a four to five year prison term but Collins said a notice of appeal of the conviction has been filed and a decision is expected after the first of the year.

In order to revoke Siciliano's pension, the Board had to find that the crimes for which he was con-

USS Constitution Commander, Crew, Students Participate Presidential Wreath Honors John Adams

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

As the strains of Amazing Grace and God Bless America was being played Tuesday at the wreath laying ceremony honoring President John Adams 272nd birthday, a large group of students from various high schools and colleges and the crew of the USS Constitution and many guests gathered at the packed Church of the Presidents.

The event began with words by Arthur Ducharme, director of historic interpretive program. Ducharme spoke of letters from John Adams while in France to his wife Abigail. He said that Adams attributed his success to his wife and family, and said they were "overwhelmed by challenges throughout their lives."

Rev. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister of the church, said that Adams, who spoke about freedom and equality and religious freedom didn't live to see the completion of the church, but said "Adams spirit lives in the stones of this church."

Mayor William Phelan said Adams was the most "influential person in this country." Phelan said "freedom creates opportunity and envision that any child can achieve what they dream."

Mary Torrey, a student at Woodward School for Girls said that Abigail Adams played a major role in the education of her children. She spoke about her grandfather who was a test pilot during World War II and her grandmother a nurse during the war. As a senior, Torrey will be graduating from Woodward in May and said the graduation will be held at the Church of The Presidents.

Caroline Keinath, Deputy Superintendent of the Adams National Historic Park stressed the importance of education and related how sacrifices made during the time of Adams to those in the military who are also sacrificing their lives for their country.

Dr. Edward Fitzgerald, executive director of the Quincy Historical Society said Adams defended liberty and had established a fund to build the Church of the Presidents before his death.

F. Douglas Adams, A.I.A. Professor of Architecture and a descendant of President John Adams, after welcoming the guests, said "Happy Birthday to Red Sox Nation. He said he couldn't fit a baseball in his pocket, but carried a small one as he spoke about Adams. He said that Adams was 27 years old before he realized that his birthday was not on Oct. 19 as depicted on a calendar. Later, the calendar changed and showed his birthday to be Oct. 30.

He said Adams was responsible for giving the first recognition of his nation.

Adams said there were three points derived from

Adams; the first being knowledge and inquiry, the second friendship and the third freedom from tyranny.

He spoke about a snow ball fight which culminated in the Boston Massacre involving several soldiers and ended in gun fighting. As the lawyer for the soldiers, John Adams defended the gun fighting as self defense and later all were acquitted.

He said later Adams reflected that the trial of the Boston Massacre was one of his greatest achievements.

Commander William A. Bullard III, representing President George W. Bush, said he was "inspired to see Adams legacy."

He said that 90 percent of the nations commerce passes through the sea.

Sen. Michael Morrissey, D-Quincy, presented a proclamation by Gov. Deval Patrick proclaiming Oct. 30 as John Adams Day.

The event has been held for more than 40 years after President Lyndon Johnson required that the wreath be laid for all former presidents on their birthday.

The laying of the wreath was placed by the commanding officer and personnel from the USS Constitution.

The closing words were by William Westland of the United First Parish Church. He said that Adams was a lifetime member of the church and attended it as a boy.

Benediction followed by Rev. Bennett.

A reception followed at the church.

The music was presented by the U.S. Navy Brass Ensemble from Newport, R.I. and the Quincy Choral Society.

Kathleen Adams, American Guild of Organists was the organist and Dorothy Adams, the soloist.

MAYORAL CANDIDATES IN THEIR OWN WORDS

William Phelan: 'Move Forward Or Reverse Direction'

In 2007, Quincy stands at a crossroads. Voters can choose to continue to move forward or reverse direction.

Quincy is now ready for major revitalization in our downtown, Crown Colony and the Shipyard; revitalization that will benefit everyone.

New growth and investment means that our residential taxpayers will no longer carry an under-performing downtown. It means commercial tax growth to the benefit of our homeowners.

New ramps at Crown Colony mean millions of dollars in private investment.

Why is this necessary? So we can continue to invest in our schools, public safety, fixing streets, helping seniors, and improving our great neighborhoods.

WILLIAM PHELAN

The successes of the past six years are a direct result of sound financial management and strong leadership.

We can invest in all-day kindergarten because we turned a $5 million budget deficit into a $16 million surplus.

We can pave more than 100 new streets because our Pavement Management Plan is not just a paving plan; it's an investment plan.

We can have low class-sizes and the second safest city in Massachusetts, because we stand up to municipal unions and say no when it's appropriate to do so.

We can be the first community to launch a major energy savings program because of strong leadership.

If re-elected, I will always stand up for you; the taxpayer. I respectfully ask for your vote on Nov. 6.

Thomas Koch: 'We Can Do Better For Quincy'

I am running for mayor because I love this city, and I know we can do better for Quincy.

Working for three different mayors, including my opponent, I've worked hard to live up to the ideals of hard work, helping others and treating every person with respect. We need those values at city hall more than ever, and that's why I resigned from a job I loved as your Park Commissioner to run for mayor. We need leadership now.

We have an escalating drug problem in this city, and I have a plan to address it.

Overdevelopment is encroaching in our neighborhoods, and I'll make sure huge condos no longer replace single-family homes.

Taxes are going up, and I'll make sure you get your money's worth and not spin the numbers.

Traffic is at a standstill, and I'll develop the first citywide traffic and parking plan in years. I'll use existing technology to make sure traffic signals are timed and working properly.

We have a school construction project in dire need of management, and I will provide it.

We have school buildings across the city that have inexplicably failed routine fire inspections for several years. I will make sure that does not happen any longer.

We have so many challenges facing our great city, and I respectfully ask your vote on Nov. 6.

Mayor's Food Drive Collects 4,500 Pounds

The annual Mayor's Food Drive collected more than 4,500 pounds of food for Quincy's food pantries.

The food was donated by Quincy residents and collected Saturday by members of the U.S. Postal Service.

The food was collected, sorted, and distributed to all of Quincy's food pantries.

"I want to thank all our residents who donated food items to this effort," said Mayor William Phelan. "The food pantries need our help as they prepare for the holiday season. I especially want to thank the men and women of the post office who picked up this extra work to help people in need."

Phelan initiated a second city food drive four years ago after a Project Bread study highlighted the issue of hunger in Quincy. Phelan organizes city help to assist the Post Office with their annual spring food drive as well.

"Quincy residents have continually shown how generous and charitable they can be," added Phelan. "I am often humbled by the kindness I see in our city on a regular basis. I consider myself proud to be the mayor of such a great and generous city."

The drive was assisted by the Quincy Hunger Network; an organization formed to help raise awareness of hunger in Quincy. The network participates in a number of drives to help Quincy's local food pantries.

"We are doing good work, but there is always more that we as a community can do to help those in need," said Health Commissioner Drew Scheele. "I want to thank the more than 50 volunteers that participated in this weekend's food drive."

Library Tours Begin Nov. 3

Who And How Close?

Who and how close?

That's the big political question as the slugging and heavy spending mayoral race comes down to the wire.

Will the winner be incumbent William Phelan or challenger Tom Koch?

And, by how many votes.

Both camps acknowledge it's a close one as do observers.

Some see a little similarity between this race and that historic one in 2001.

That was the year when Phelan, with only two years on the School Committee upset six-term incumbent James Sheets by 17 votes—the closest mayoral election in the city's history.

Next Tuesday a three-term incumbent is seeking a fourth and a challenger trying to upset him as Phelan did Sheets.

Koch, who resigned as Park Commissioner after 12 years in January to run for mayor, is no political newcomer. He has run for the city council and county office and has been active in other campaigns.

No one is talking anything like a 17-vote margin next week. But those who keep tabs on mayoral elections think this one could be as close as within 1,000 votes—give or take a few.

There's no argument that this is the closest race since that 2001 Phelan-Sheets classic.

Or that Koch is Phelan's biggest threat since taking office.

Phelan cruised to a 13,117 to 4,775 second term win over former Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton in 2003. In 2005 he had only sticker competition for a third term.

Voter turnout is seen as a major factor in next week's outcome.

City Clerk Joseph Shea expects 52 percent of the city's 53,569 registered voters casting ballots. He calls it "an excellent" mayoral race but notes the voter turnout would be higher if there was more action at the ward council level.

Five of the ward council seats are unopposed. Only contest is in Ward 6 where Brian McNamee is challenged by Jimmy Liang.

A low turnout is seen favoring Koch whose supporters are described as "passionate" and certain to vote.

The turnout in 2001 was only 47 percent favoring Phelan whose supporters made it a point to vote while some Sheets followers did not, thinking he was a sure winner. Those 17 deciding votes were big ones.

Both camps are determined to get their vote out next Tuesday.

They have hundreds-and hundreds-of Phelan-green and Koch-blue signs planted on front lawns throughout the city and some on commercial buildings.

They have sent out mailings, advertised heavily in newspapers, debated, appeared at numerous coffee hours, and knocked and knocked on doors throughout the city.

And both have bought time on television to deliver their messages. A Quincy candidate on paid TV is not a new political wrinkle, however.

James McIntyre used TV back in 1959 when as a young city council president he challenged veteran and popular Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

McIntyre lost by 2,100 votes but succeeded Della Chiesa when the latter retired in 1966.

There have been a few close mayoral elections in recent years.

One was the famed 1975 recount won by Joseph LaRaia over incumbent Walter Hannon by 483 votes.

LaRaia was ousted by Arthur Tobin in 1977 but came back to almost upset incumbent Frank McCauley in 1987. McCauley won by only 460 votes and did not seek re-election two years later.

Both McCauley and LaRaia returned to the City Council after serving as mayor.

Voter interest seems to have been waning in recent years as election turnouts drop.

The Phelan-Sheets match-up in 2001 drew only 47 percent of the registered voters.

Phelan and Joseph Newton brought out only 35 percent in 2003. And only 25 percent voted in 2005 when Phelan had just sticker competition.

Pretty low compared to earlier elections. Della Chiesa-McIntyre, 75.5 percent in 1959. Hannon-Joseph Brett, 70.8 in 1971. Hannon-LaRaia, 70 percent in 1975. Sheets-Peter O'Connell, 60.6 in 1989.

Phelan and Koch have pulled out all stops to get their vote out next Tuesday. Maybe the turnout will be something like the "good old days."

Letters For Active Duty Troops Sought At Veterans Day Parade

Commander Lorraine Ahern of the Quincy Veterans Council is asking all citizens who attend the Veterans Day Parade Sunday, Nov. 11, to bring with them letters and drawings for men and women of the armed forces who are serving in Afghanistan and Iraq.

"No postage is necessary," said Ahern. "We have volunteer letter carriers from the postal service who will

"The Care Packages Group from Weymouth has agreed to send all these greetings with their packages for distribution to the regiments of soldiers, sailors and Marines.

"Please help us to make this one of the biggest Veterans Day Parades in the city in recent history."

The parade is scheduled to start at 10:30 a.m. at the Quincy Credit Union build-

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1923 postcard is a view of the end of Sea Street when Hough's Neck still boasted of numerous amusements and attractions for visitors. Other than Great Hill in the right distance nothing in this view remains today. Bay View Avenue is on the left just before the building with the signs. That corner was the long-time home of variety stores, but along with the building beyond it this is now the site of newly built condominiums. In the distance Taylor's Bowling Alleys was previously a dance hall and later a roller-skating rink, but it too is gone.

Fensmere Street just beyond Taylor's to the left was home to a large hotel and that site is also condominiums. The building on the immediate left was the home of the family that owned the old Palm Theater that was next to it and it is now a parking lot for Louis Crossing. Slowly, but surely, all traces of commercial activity in this once bustling tourist destination are disappearing. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Sal's Back And Still Doesn't Like That Flag

You had to know, you had not read the last of Sal Giarratani. Especially, when it comes to the issue of THAT flag in Wollaston Center. After all, it was the subject of my very last letter to the editor at The Quincy Sun as a North Quincy resident.

I still read The Sun, a habit that's over 23 years old. As a member of Dorchester's DAV Post 13 for about seven years now, I wanted to thank both Loren Strout and Paul Hoadley from the Bryan VFW Post for their recent Quincy Sun letters.

I have stood in protest over the presence of the flag over Wollaston Center. That flag bothers many others and me.

I can't believe someone or group sawed down the flagpole. I do not condone that action, but I can understand the frustration that led to that kind of action.

Before moving to Quincy in 1984, I lived around the corner from the Bunker Hill Monument and within sight of the USS Constitution. My time in Charlestown led to my community activism. Our flag isn't just a flag; it is a symbol for individual liberty. Freedom isn't free, it is very costly. Getting involved where you live is living out the principles for which our flag stands for.

When I see the flag of the People's Republic of China flying, I see a symbol for everything our flag doesn't stand for or represents.

The Chinese United Association needs to understand all the anger the flying of the Chinese flag engenders in so many.

If you wish to be good neighbors and become part of the community at large, you don't fly a flag that angers people.

I do appreciate that the Chinese United Association still flies the American flag, a flag that unites America and Quincy, too!

Respect The Rights Of Self And Others

It disgusts me that the flagpole of the Chinese United Association Headquarters U.S.A. in Wollaston has been sawed off.

I ask the perpetrators (or pranksters): What do "freedom" and "liberty" and "democracy" mean to you? What do you not understand about The Constitution and The Bill of Rights? Under what circumstances when hate manifests itself is it not a crime?

In the United States, citizens are free to disagree. This freedom ought not to be conjoined to violence unless in self defense—a genuine threat of bodily harm, body implying self and others, or, simply, us.

I, too, dislike any value system that would impose itself upon me at the expense of my welfare. (The Bush administration does so with apparent impunity. History books will make this claim evident). But an idea (an ideal) cannot hurt me if it remains an idea (and not a physically harmful act against me). 9-11 is violence that calls for just response (including death, if necessary).

Our world is uneasy. As ever, greed, selfishness, hypocrisy abound. It is yet difficult to balance eye for eye, turning cheek. But to right a wrong we must not act wrongly.

Men and women have fought and/or died to preserve the United States. They will doubtless continue to do so when the cause is just, and, thereby, reconcilable in conscience. The sacrifice of self for other cannot be honored by dishonorable acts (e.g., acts against the core of our country, justifiable anger promoting wrong-headed revenge).

At the corner of Beale and Hancock in Wollaston is our small world of diverse systems. I suggest we keep a keen eye. Our deeds deserve the measured best from us. Be a good citizen. Keep the support and protest civil. Respect the rights of self and other. Let democracy guide your actions. That's what the United States is all about.

Hannon Defeats Brett For Mayor

By FRANK McCAULEY

Rep. Joseph E. Brett, defeated in the Nov. 2nd mayoral election by a 17,966 to 15,373 vote, has pledged his support to Mayor-elect Walter J. Hannon in "furthering the interests of the city of Quincy."

"I will continue to do everything I can to support the mayor in city government as long as I feel it is in the best interest of all the people," Brett said.

Veal Stew With Dumplings

Did we finally have a cool fall-like day? And that's the day we had a delicious veal stew dinner with fluffy dumplings. Sound good? And so easy, you could make it the day before and then when you come home from work, just re-heat it and it will even taste better. Use a wide pan like a dutch oven pan so the dumplings will fit well on top.

Veal Stew With Dumplings

1 1/2 pound veal (cut in bite size pieces)
1/4 cup white wine (optional)
2 cups chicken stock (tastier than using water)

salt and pepper to taste
2 medium sized potatoes (cut in bite size)

2 large carrots also cut
1 cup of frozen peas (optional)
oil for sauteing

2 cloves of garlic (chopped) or onion or both

Coat the veal with flour salt and pepper. In a deep pan in hot oil, saute the garlic and onion and the veal turning for a few minutes. Add the wine, chicken stock, the potatoes, carrots, cover and cook until vegetables are tender.

At the last minute, add the peas. If you need to add more liquid, it can either be more chicken stock or a little water. If you want an easier recipe for dumplings, there is one on the Bisquick box, but if you want a fluffier one, you will like the following recipe

Fluffy Dumplings

1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder salt

1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons vegetable oil

Place the flour, baking powder and salt together in a bowl. Combine the milk and oil and add to the flour mixture. Stir until moistened. Drop from tablespoons on top of bubbling stew. Reduce heat and cover. Cook for 12 to 15 minutes.

Author William Martin To Speak at Library

Best-selling author William Martin will speak Friday, Nov. 9, at 7:30 p.m. at Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Martin's first novel, Back Bay, was listed for 14 weeks on the New York Times' best-seller list. He is best known for his historical novels which chronicle the history of Boston, New England and the nation.

Martin's latest book, The Lost Constitution, is a fast-moving thriller which describes the hunt for a rare annotated draft of the United States Constitution that disappeared in 1787.

The search ranges across several New England states and two centuries of American history and ends at Fenway Park on the first night of the World Series.

Martin is best known for his historical novels which chronicle the history of Boston, New England, and the nation. He is the recipient of the New England Booksellers 2005 award for fiction which is awarded to an author whose "boldly of work stands as a significant contribution to the region's literature."

Copies of The Lost Constitution will be available for purchase. For more information, call 617-376-1301.

Quincy Rotarians Enjoy Harbor Cruise, Clambake

The Rotary Clubs of the South Shore enjoyed a wonderful evening aboard the Harbor Express Commuter Boat of Quincy for their first Boston Harbor Sunset Cruise and Spectacle Island Dinner.

The Cruise raised funds for the Rotary International Foundation whose projects have included $500 million to eradicate worldwide Polio and working to provide Pure Water for the World.

People on the Cruise were from Rotary Clubs from Quincy to Plymouth to Bridgewater. In addition to a sunset cruise of the Harbor Islands, captained by Mike McGurl, a Quincy Rotarian and an owner of the Harbor Express, the Rotarians enjoyed a catered island buffet dinner on the newly opened Spectacle Island.

Rich Barry, President of the Quincy Rotary Club, reports that in addition to the $5,000.00 in donations for the Rotary Foundation, the Cruise provided a unique opportunity for socializing and fellowship for members of the Rotary Clubs of the South Shore.

Joe Clancy, President of the Weymouth Club observed that everyone onboard was impressed with the wonderful Spectacle Island Visitor Center and Marina as well as the perfect sunset over Boston.

The Cruise was such a success that plans are already being made for a trip next summer.

In a separate event The Rotary Club of Quincy celebrated the end of summer with an old fashioned clambake at the Adams Inn.

PETER RACICOT of Fallon Ambulance and his wife, Linda, enjoy their dinner at the Quincy Rotary Club's annual clambake held at the Best Western Adams Inn.

Silent Movie Scores Demonstration At Adams Shore Library

A man who has provided sound for silent movies will demonstrate the now-rare art Monday, Nov. 5, at 7 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St.

For the past 10 years, master pianist Richard Hughes has collected many silent movie scores taken from authentic "mood music" that was played during the 1920s, making the film scenes come alive.

Recently, Hughes released a DVD of three Charlie Chaplin silent pictures with original musical scores that synchronize to the films.

Hughes, who began playing the piano at the age of 7, travels around the state doing hundred of movie shows a year at schools, community centers, libraries, historical societies and senior centers.

Those attending the Nov. 5 event will learn about the silent movie era, hear examples of the "mood music," and then watch "Easy Street," starring Charlie Chaplin plus short subjects produced between 1896 and 1905.

The Silent Movie Show is free and sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library. For more information, call 617-676-1320 or visit thomascranelibrary.org.

QUINCY RESIDENTS William (left) and Annmarie Kennedy with former Governor Paul Cellucci during the 17th Annual Massachusetts Children's Trust Fund's Voices of Children Gala & Auction held recently at the Westin Copley Place in Boston. The event is the largest annual fund-raiser for CTF, the state's only organization dedicated solely to the prevention of child abuse and neglect in Massachusetts. The event raised $340,000 for programs that will benefit, educate and support parents, families and the professionals who work with them. At the event, CTF honored former Massachusetts Governor Paul Cellucci and former State Senate President Robert Travaglini for their leadership and service to Massachusetts children and families. Mr. Kennedy is a member of CTF's Board of Directors.

Koch Wants Phelan's Explanation On Failed School Fire Inspections

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch Tuesday demanded that Mayor William Phelan explain why he did not inform the School Committee or the public about schools failing multiple fire inspections and why, he said, the mayor did not release the fire inspection reports until forced to by state public information laws.

"This episode gets to the heart of how this mayor runs city hall. It shows the clear lack of leadership that we've been talking about changing over the last 10 months," Koch said. "The first thing the mayor did in this case was point fingers, the second thing he did was blame someone else, and now he's not saying anything. That's not leadership, and that's what we plan to change."

Koch said fire inspection reports dating back several years and released Friday detailed numerous safety-related failures at Quincy High School, Quincy Vo-Tech, Atlantic Middle School, Central Middle School, Atherton Hough School and several other schools. Many of the failures occurred time and time again, frustrating the fire inspectors, Koch said.

According to new reports, Koch said, more than half of the city's schools failed the most recent round of inspections. In many cases, the same violations of state fire code were reported repeatedly in quarterly reports over the course of several years. Among other issues, the reports released by the fire department showed:

Quincy Vocational Technical School has not passed an inspection since at least the middle of the last year, he said. In at least two instances highlighted by fire inspectors, exit doors were chained shut in the school, Koch said.

Quincy High School has not passed a fire inspection in at least a year. In many cases, fire inspectors noted that "previous violations have not been corrected."

Central Middle School has not passed an inspection in at least a year, and fire officials highlighted several issues that were not corrected between inspections, Koch said. Emergency lighting on the third floor of the building was a problem over the course of several inspections.

North Quincy High School has not passed a fire inspection since 2003, with a series of problems never corrected over that time period, Koch said. The recurring problems included fire extinguishers that were not inspected for several years and fire extinguishers that were missing throughout the building.

Atlantic Middle School, he said, has not passed a fire inspection since 2004, including several missing smoke detectors that have not been replaced between several inspections.

Koch first raised the failed fire inspection reports at a debate Oct. 16. Phelan expressed no knowledge of the failures. Immediately following the debate, the Koch campaign and several media outlets submitted requests to the fire department under the state's Public Records Law. Phelan's administration refused to release the reports until forced by the Act's 10-day deadline period, Koch said.

Koch released reports on his website, www.kochforquincy.com.

Koch said Phelan's recent refusal to make public the troubling fire inspection reports is consistent with Phelan's move several years ago to keep secret the fact that his administration had lost millions in state funding for a new Central Middle School; his ongoing denial of an escalating drug problem in the city; and is refusal to acknowledge growing traffic and overdevelopment issues around the city.

"Losing the city millions of dollars and not telling anyone is bad enough. Now the mayor is doing his utmost to make sure that the public knows as little as possible about the failed fire inspections at city schools," Koch said.

Phelan, as mayor, is chairman of the School Committee. No school committee minutes contain any mention of the failed fire inspections by Phelan.

"It is appalling that the mayor chose to keep elected school committee members in the dark about the fire inspections within the school system," Koch said. "As mayor, I will ensure that everyone who needs to know about vital safety information will get that information. I will never jeopardize the safety of our children because of political convenience."

Quincy Court Leadership Praised By Chief Justice

State Court judges serve the Commonwealth of Massachusetts 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Judges hear many types of cases including abuse protection petitions, search warrant applications, and medical, substance abuse and mental health emergencies.

In acknowledging these efforts, Chief Justice Lynda Connolly recognized the leadership team of the Quincy District Court in her announcement recently.

"There is no doubt that the leadership exhibited by

First Justice Mark S. Coven, Clerk-Magistrate Arthur H. Tobin and Chief Probation Officer Michael A. Walsh have been instrumental in the success of the District Court and its ability to better serve the communities of Braintree, Cohasset, Holbrook, Milton, Quincy, Randolph and Weymouth."

The Quincy District Court is located at 1 Dennis Ryan Parkway. The telephone number is 617-471-1650. The hours of operation are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

NEWLYWEDS JOHN ADAMS and his bride Abigail (Smith) read scrolls written by Quincy fourth graders who congratulated the couple after the reenactment of their wedding. Students, residents and history buffs attended the reception held at the Adams homesteads on Franklin Street, Quincy. Abigail Elias and Michael LePage played the bride and groom for the day.

John And Abigail Adams Toasted With Apple Cider On Wedding Re-enactment

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The roll of a drum and the whistles of fifes greeted newlyweds John and Abigail Adams when they arrived at their wedding reception on Franklin Street last week.

Men in wigs, ruffled shirts, breeches and knee-stockings saluted the couple, as did their ladies in hoop skirts and bow-tied bonnets and their little ones wrapped in cloaks and mufflers.

Also hailing the couple were some 64 fourth graders from the Lincoln Hancock Community School, West Quincy, who played the part of neighborhood potters, blacksmiths, farmers, clockmakers and tailors.

The students presented ribbon-tied scrolls with congratulations for Mr. and Mrs. Adams and with descriptions of their wedding gifts to the couple.

Then, the nearly 100 guests saluted the bride and groom with stemmed glasses filled to the brim with apple cider.

These events in Quincy climaxed the re-enactment of the wedding in 1764 of Abigail Smith and John Adams. The ceremony took place at The First Church Weymouth on October 25, the same day as the original rites.

Abigail Elias, an eighth generation descendant of John and Abigail Adams, served as bride for the day. Elias designed and hand-sewed her pale blue wedding dress patterned after 18th century outfits.

Michael LePage, a well-known actor, portrayed John Adams and wore a vest woven with symbols of wheat similar to Adams' actual vest which is now in the Quincy Historical Society.

After the ceremony, the bridal party traveled to the grounds of the adjoining Adams' homes in Quincy for a toast. John Adams was born at 141 Franklin Street. Adjacent to that is 133 Franklin Street where the newlyweds lived and where John Quincy Adams was born.

Adams would become the country's second president; their son, John Quincy Adams, was elected sixth president.

The couple was married for 54 years and the fourth graders predicted the successful partnership in their letters.

The fourth graders' letters described the great esteem they hold for the Adams family who, like them, settled in Quincy. At the time, the homes on Franklin Street were still part of Braintree.

"I admire you," wrote Joao Pedro Nascimento who came from Brazil last summer. "Everyone says that you are a special person."

Demari Daley acted as local potter and described the wedding gift. "I worked really hard on it. I made it large so you can put a large amount of flowers in it. I painted it with all sorts of flowers in it."

"If you ever need another pot, I'm just a letter away," concluded Demari.

The tailor, Maggie Parker, made breeches and riding hoods while clockmaker Jenna Werners described her creation of a silver and diamond watch.

"You are both really great people," wrote the baker, Brianna McDermott while the butcher Brenna Tabbutt cheered "The joining of two wonderful families is good for all of our people because you two are really smart and your children will be lucky to have such good parents."

"They each took a role as a colonist," said Grade 4 teacher Ron Pettinelli who said the students chose law clerks, farmers, and blacksmiths in honor of the colonists who fled the British in Boston and were harbored by Abigail Adams at their Adams Street home.

Pettinelli said he was proud of the nine, 10 and 11-year olds who role-played their parts and were "so well behaved. They were in awe."

Teachers Elizabeth DeSorger, Maryann Hunter, and Kathleen Foley and their students participated in the ceremony. Chaperones included retired fourth grade teachers Karin Dempsey and Carol Bailey.

The wedding celebration is one of many events planned this year to mark the 60th anniversary of the sponsors, Adams National Historical Park and Abigail Adams Society, Weymouth.

Also sponsoring last week's event was The First Church of Weymouth where the bride's father served as minister.

Paula (Muffy) Lutzin of Quincy and JoAnn Waithe of Millbury played the fifes with drummer Richard Ruquist of Grafton.

Marianne Peak is superintendent of Adams National Historical Park. Among those planning the festivities were Caroline Keinath and Karen Yourell of the Adams National Park and Judith Alukonis of the Abigail Adams Historical Society.

THE COMMITMENT CONTINUES...

Dear Neighbor,

As I complete my first term as your Councillor-at-Large, I want to thank you for the privilege of being able to serve our community.

I am proud of my accomplishments over the past two years. As the Education Committee Chairman, I have worked hard to move the new Quincy High School project forward and to ensure that we have a new Central Middle School and a renovated Sterling Middle School for our children.

My background in finance has enabled me to make contributions in helping to map our city's future. I have supported long-term capital expenditures in our city's public safety and public works areas such as the purchase of two new pumpers for the Quincy Fire Department and new street sweepers. Energy upgrades with new lights and boilers are now in over thirty municipal buildings.

I have spent the last several weeks walking the streets of our city listening as you voice your opinions about Quincy. I have been overwhelmed by your hospitality, your candor, your interest and your concern for others.

We are very lucky that Quincy is such a wonderful place to live, to work and to raise our families. Our continued quality of life depends on the delicate balance of neighborhood concerns, public safety, infrastructure, the environment and the quality of future development. With my experience in business, government and the community I feel I am uniquely qualified to continue to serve as your Councillor-at-Large.

With your help, I would like to continue my commitment to public service in the City of Quincy. You hear a lot today about politicians serving only the special interests. My promise: You will be my only special interest, and I mean it.

Working with people is what I do best. Please cast one of your three votes on Tuesday, November 6th for Mike McFarland, your Councillor-at-Large.

Thank you,

Mike

Forum Features Candidates For Mayor, School Committee, Council At-Large

Over 200 People Attend Ward 5 Candidates' Night

The Ward 5 Community Association recently held its largest Candidates' Night in 10 years as more than 200 people attended the event which featured candidates for mayor, school committee and council at-large.

The forum, originally scheduled for inside the media center at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, was moved to the school's gymnasium because of the large turnout.

Highlights included:

- Opening message delivered by Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro
- Moderator Mrs. Sandy Arabian asked the candidates pre-selected questions
- Each candidate gave a 2 minute opening statement, a 2 minute response to a question, and a 1 minute closing statement.
- Both Mayor William Phelan and challenger former Park Commissioner Thomas Koch spoke of their commitments to the neighborhoods. When asked about when the completion of the Merrymount fountain would take place, Phelan said that it would be completed but that there may be other projects that have priority over the fountain project.

Koch spoke about his 12 years as park commissioner and of the original vision to complete Merrymount Park as in the Olmstead style and provide open space. Koch assured the audience that the fountain project would be completed.

FIVE COUNCILLOR AT-LARGE candidates attended the recent Ward 5 Community Association's Candidates' Night at the Beechwood Knoll School gymnasium. From left are incumbent councillors Michael McFarland, John Keenan and Joseph Finn with challengers Jennifer McCauley Logue and Victor Ng.

• The school committee candidates spoke about increasing school funding without burdening the tax payer.

• Nick Puleo cited his budgetary experience in state government as a resource for developing programs to improve technology and the arts in the public school.

• Jo-Ann Bragg spoke of her previous experience on the school committee and her of her budgetary knowledge. She would involve teachers in the process of deciding what kind of technology is needed in the classroom. Bragg expressed confidence in the ability of Quincy teachers to provide quality professional development in technology to their peers.

• Elaine Dwyer described a program she introduced that saved the city money by having the city purchase school buses. The city now owns the buses. Dwyer said that she served on the current 5 year technology plan and would be willing to serve again on another 5 year plan.

• David McCarthy spoke about his dedication and commitment to Quincy's kids.

• Eileen Mullen was unable to attend.

Candidates for council at-large focused on the downtown connector, neighborhoods, and developing a family friendly successful downtown.

• Councillor John Keenan spoke about the downtown connector and the positive impact it would have for the future of Quincy. John Keenan will continue to use his financial expertise and management experience to serve Quincy's best interests.

• Jennifer McCauley Logue expressed the opinion that the downtown connector would be a highway used by people traveling to Hingham or trying to cut through Quincy.

• Victor Ng said he would focus on providing more family events in the downtown.

• Mike McFarland noted his financial background. He spoke about developing a long-term plan to support improvements in the Fire and Police Departments.

• Joseph Finn said he was proud of the achievements that have been made in the city. Finn said he has worked with community groups and city officials to improve the quality of life for Quincy.

Laurel Blanchard Photos On Display at Library

Photographs by Quincy native Laurel Blanchard will be displayed beginning Friday in the Coletti Reading Room on the first floor of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The public is invited to a reception Sunday, Nov. 4 from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. Blanchard's exhibit will be on display through November 30.

Blanchard grew up in Quincy Point and summered in New Hampshire. Both locations fed her interest in nature and small creatures and their habitats. She also photographed many city nightscapes during her 13 years as a professional drummer.

The library exhibit will display photos with locations familiar to New Englanders as well as other areas. Several images on display have won awards in the Quincy Art Association juried shows, and other contests.

For more information, call 617-376-1301.

Phelan Sees Residential Tax Rate Reduction

Mayor William Phelan says that Quincy will once again reduce the average single-family tax bill this upcoming year.

Phelan cited a number of reasons for the tax decrease:

Reducing taxpayers' exposure to increasing employee benefit costs by renegotiating with municipal unions; the Employee Benefit budget appropriation was decreased by $500,000 this year because of Phelan's stance on employee sharing a larger percentage of their health care.

Increases in the projected values of commercial properties in and around downtown Quincy, in large part because of the Phelan administration's efforts to rezone and revitalize downtown Quincy.

The switch to an Enterprise Fund for calculating water and sewer expenses, which better charges indirect costs to larger commercial users such as Quarry Hills Golf Course, the MWRA plant, Sithe Energy, and other major users.

Holding the line on municipal budget spending; Phelan reduced the municipal workforce by close to 100 employees and reduced expenditure lines by 10-20% in most departments.

A stronger concerted effort to identify commercial personal property such as computers, office equipment and other taxable items.

"We have worked extremely hard to keep the interests of our taxpayers in mind," said Phelan. "It isn't always a popular decision to say no on behalf of taxpayers but the financial health of our city is the foundation on which we build all of our successes; successes like all-day kindergarten, new streets and sidewalks, small class-size, and being categorized as the second safest city in Massachusetts. I will continue to stand up for our taxpayers in every decision that I make."

The City of Quincy's Assessors' Office is currently working with Vision Technologies to finalize the numbers to present to the Department of Revenue (DOR) for pre-certification.

"Due to a number of factors, everything we have seen is pointing toward another reduction in the average single-family tax bill for the upcoming year," said City Assessor Jolanta Briffett.

Quincy reduced the average single-family tax bill three years ago. Phelan said Quincy's increases are the lowest of any city in the state for the past three years according to a study completed by the Research Director for the Quincy Taxpayers Association.

✓ VOTE FOR JIMMY LIANG
WARD 6 CITY COUNCILLOR

Dear Friend and Neighbor,

My name is Jimmy Liang and I am a candidate for city councilor to represent Ward Six in Quincy. My family left communist China when I was a baby and came to the democratic United States of America in search of a better life. We found what we were looking for in Quincy, the city of Presidents. As an American, I have the freedom to run for public office. This would not be possible if I was still in China.

I am proud to be an American.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt taught our greatest generation the four freedoms:

"The first is freedom of speech and expression -- everywhere in the world.

The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way -- everywhere in the world.

The third is freedom from want . . . everywhere in the world.

The fourth is freedom from fear . . . anywhere in the world."

I am proud to stand for these freedoms and I am grateful for those who fought for them.

Our city has a history of immigrant populations settling here; and whether they be Italian, Irish, Chinese, or Vietnamese they all came to love and cherish this great country. Today, there is a communication problem in the City of Quincy. We need to understand that, for better or worse, cultural and racial diversity is reality for the present and future. This makes communication, tolerance and understanding more important than ever before. If we make communication a priority we can continue to improve the quality of life that our parents, grandparents and great grand parents sacrificed so much to achieve for us Quincy has remained Quincy through times of change and prospered as new populations assimilate into our society. I grew up here, my life and home is here. Quincy will always remain my home town.

I am proud to be from Quincy.

If you elect me your Ward Six city councilor, I will make sure that you are proud of me, Jimmy Liang.

Sincerely,

FOR A RIDE A TO THE POLLS, PLEASE CALL: 617-331-2081

Jewish War Veterans To Honor Larry Norton

Quincy's Jewish War Veterans will honor Lawrence M. "Larry" Norton with its Citizen of the Year Award Sunday, Nov. 4, at 9:30 a.m. at the Morrisette Legion Post, 81 Liberty St.

Norton, a past commander of the Morrisette Post and the Quincy Veterans Council, served nine months in Vietnam from Aug. 1966 to April 1967 suffering wounds from shrapnel.

He was a Marine corporal (or E-5) aboard the USS Guadalcanal, an LPH (landing platform helicopter), a small aircraft carrier, when he suffered mortar wounds in a firefight.

He joined the Marines in 1965 shortly after his graduation from Somerville Trade School and was discharged two years later, after which he became a union elevator constructor and taxi dispatcher.

Norton is a 39-year member of the Morrisette Legion Post and a life member of the Caddy Detachment Marine Corps League, the DAV and the Military Order of the Purple Heart.

He is president of the Vietnam Combat Veterans of Quincy, past commander of Norfolk County Legion District 6 and a member of the Second Marine Division Northeast Region and the Semper Fidelis Society of Boston.

He and his wife, Ruth Karen, have three children, Pamela, Kevin and Michael and a daughter-in-law, Julie.

Safety Advances Added To Quincy Ave. - Artery Crossing

The city has added a dedicated pedestrian-activated light and traffic stop to the complicated intersection of Quincy Avenue and Southern Artery as a safety measure for senior shoppers who cross at that point.

The new arrangement will prevent northbound motorists from making right turns from Quincy Avenue onto the Artery without stopping, enabling residents of 1000 Southern Artery to reach the stores on Falls Boulevard more safely.

"The issue was raised at a community meeting at 1000 Southern Artery and I think it will make a significant difference in allowing residents to go food shopping safely," said Mayor William Phelan.

"Many people that cross at this light are seniors who need a few seconds to cross this large intersection. The new pedestrian button will allow them the time and piece of mind that they deserve."

The work was performed by Bell Traffic Signal during the past month.

Other senior pedestrian safety improvements have been made around the city recently, including the continued installation of signage and street marking for the "senior safety zones."

City Councillor Kevin Coughlin has introduced legislation to reduce the speed limit around senior living complexes to 20 miles an hour.

"A key ingredient to improving our pedestrian safety is to invest in the necessary infrastructure," said Phelan.

"There's no magic wand to make these issues disappear; they take proper planning and investment. We will continue to do just that in order to make our city a safe and great place to live.

Erin Lapsley Fundraiser Friday

A fund-raiser for Erin (Horrigan) Lapsley will be held Friday, Nov. 2, 8 p.m. to midnight at IBEW Local 103 Union Hall, 256 Freeport St., Dorchester.

Vote for Common Sense
This November 6th

JOE FINN

Your Councillor at Large

“CAN YOU TELL IF THEY WORK?”

No one thinks too much about fire hydrants, until they have a fire. A fire hydrant not working is dangerous. It gives us a false sense of security. Can you imagine the Quincy Fire Department responding to a fire only to find out the fire hydrant closest to the fire is not working?

Councillor at Large Joe Finn led the charge to make sure that firefighters had the information about hydrants that were out of service. He brought the Fire Department together with the Department of Public Works to ensure that everyone was working from the same list of hydrants. The result has been not only the repair of hydrants across the city but also a new technology that can alert firefighters on their way to fight a fire about down hydrants. That's what being a City Councillor is sometimes about:

advocating for the common sense thing to do.

Council Honors Men Who Saved Squantum Boy

City councillors recently honored the two men who saved the life of a 10-year-old Houghs Neck boy who was nearly electrocuted in Squantum.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee presented official commendations to Paul Adamson of Squantum and Brian A. Smith of Hull for their heroic response to the Sept. 23 emergency.

The boy, Danny Marks, climbed a tree in Squantum and fell. As he fell, he hit live 8000-volt wires and his neck became stuck in the crook of the tree branches.

Danny's young friends went racing about the area for help. Adamson and Smith of Hull, responded and rushed to the scene where Danny was being strangled by the tree branches.

"To prevent his strangulation, you climbed into the tree, then, with strength and tremendous skill, dislodged the child's neck permitting the precious air, vital to his survival, to enter his lungs," said McNamee in the commendation.

"It's great to have citizens looking after other citizens," said Fire Chief Timothy Pettinelli whose men at the Squantum station responded to the emergency.

Lt. John Kinsley who headed the firefighters' unit that day noted that Adamson used lifesaving techniques that he'd learned from his brother, a firefighter in Ireland.

Karen Smith said her husband, Brian, stayed to see Danny placed in an ambulance, then left the scene. As a result, his name was not included in early reports.

"One guy couldn't have gotten that boy out of the tree," she said, adding that, on his return home, her husband "...was pretty shook up. He was practically in tears." He told her, "This boy's neck was wedged in the tree."

The Smith's two children, Natalie, 13, and Philip, 5, attended the City Council ceremony.

Danny spent some time in Shriners Burns Institute where doctors repaired his damaged hand, according to his grandmother, Marguerite Marks of Squantum.

Mrs. Marks said Danny will always have scars like the 10 inch by three inch scar on his leg but that he's resilient and doing fine, thanks to Smith and Adamson.

A Personal Letter to The Citizens of Quincy from Councilor-at-Large Candidate Victor Ng

My parents emigrated from China in 1966. I was the first child in my family to be born here in America. They named me Victor to celebrate the victory of having established our family here in the United States. My Chinese name, Kok Kong, translates to "Glory of the Country". Giving me a life in America meant so much to my parents.

I was raised in Boston's Chinatown. My father was a cook. My mother was a seamstress. My family worked very hard to make ends meet, and they taught me to work hard at a young age too.

At our house, boxing was top priority. Because of that, I was fortunate enough to attend Boston Latin School. I received a great education and also became involved in sports. I believe my athletic involvement is what kept me off the streets and out of trouble as a youth.

Dear Neighbors,

Over the course of my campaign, I have met many people and been asked many questions....

What's your background?

Why are you running?

What can you offer us?

What are your issues?

Well, this may come to you either as a relief or a disappointment, but I am not running for my issues.

The real truth is I've been given a great life.

My parents came all the way from China so that I could be born here in America. And because of that I have been given many wonderful opportunities that I would not have had otherwise.

- A Top Notch Education
- A Successful Career
- A Beautiful Wife and Kids
- A Home to Call My Own
- Great Friends and Family
- And Many Amazing Experiences

The city of Quincy has welcomed me with open arms, taken me in, and made my American Dream an American Reality.

Today many other Asian families have come to Quincy for the same reasons my family came here 20 years ago...

Because they know it is a place they can build a future for themselves and their families.

And that's the reason we are all here.

All types of families, regardless of background, all dream about the same things:

1. A safe and affordable home for their family.
2. Good employment opportunities provided by a strong economy.
3. Keeping their kids safe and off the streets.
4. A strong education for their children.
5. Quality time with their family
6. A comfortable retirement.

My life has been blessed with all of these things.

I am extremely grateful for all that I have received from this community and that is why I am running for City Council.

Plain and simple... I want to give something back.

I want to put my skills, knowledge, and experience to good use for our city.

To ensure that the many other residents and future generations of Quincy get the same opportunities I have received.

And that many other families in Quincy can make their American Dream a reality too.

I hope you will give me the opportunity to put my best foot forward for the community.

Sincerely,

I worked three jobs to put myself through college and earned my degree in Business Administration at Northeastern University.

My career has spanned both the private and public sectors including positions with:

- o H.P. Hood, Inc.
- o Office of the State Comptroller
- o The Board of Higher Education
- o International positions in France, Indonesia, and China.

Here I am in Nice on business.

I own a home in Quincy where I live with my wife, Sadie, and two daughters, Raven and Scarlett.

Bragg Would Survey Teachers For Needs

Jo-Ann Bragg, seeking to return to the School Committee in next week's election, has promised "if elected, I will survey every teacher asking them ... what they need to improve education."

"In the last three years, Quincy has hired hundreds of new teachers," said Bragg, who served 12 years on the School Committee before bowing out two years ago.

"We need to provide teachers with the resources they need to effectively do their jobs."

"I would like to strengthen the teacher mentor program, provide professional development on classroom management techniques and create teacher resource libraries within each school building, so new teachers can conduct the educational research necessary to bring creative lesson plans into their classrooms."

"I believe the School Committee needs to ask the teachers what they need to improve education. If elected, I will survey every teacher asking them this very question. So when it comes time to work on the school budget, their needs are taken into consideration."

During her previous tenure on the School Committee, Bragg was known as a strong advocate for the families of Quincy and as a leader who did her homework.

"I will work cooperatively with others to address today's significant issues such as building a new comprehensive Quincy High, finding solutions to the maintenance needs of all schools, particularly Central and Sterling, and finding ways to ensure our students are given every opportunity to be the best they can be," she said.

Bragg said she is proud of her record of working to keep class sizes small, expanding technology, and finding funds to begin the Literacy Specialist Program, which is now in all elementary schools. She was also instrumental in adding nine full-time nurses to every school and championed an increase in substitute pay.

In addition, she said, she helped create the Quincy Education Fund by working with the School Committee, the City Council and the Mayor. This fund allows a person to make a voluntary tax deductible donation that directly benefits the Quincy Public Schools and has raised thousands of dollars.

Bragg claims the support of the Quincy Education Association and the endorsement of the 9,000 member Service Employees Union Local 888 which represents Quincy Public School's bus drivers, paraprofessionals and food service workers and clerical staff.

She has also received support from the Quincy Public Schools Custodians and Maintenance Unions, Bridge and Structural Iron Workers Local 7 and Plumbers Union Local 12 and Sheet Metal Workers Local 17.

"I am proud to receive the support of our hard-working men and women," said Bragg.

Mad Science To Unveil Mysteries Of Chemistry

Registration will begin Monday, Nov. 5, for the Mad Science of Greater Boston workshop introducing children ages 4 to 8 into the world of chemistry through hands-on fun, discussions and demonstrations.

The workshop itself will be held Saturday, Nov. 24 at 10 a.m. in the large meeting room of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St. To register call 617-376-2411 or stop the Children's Room at the library.

The program will begin with a demonstration of the difference between physical and chemical reactions by watching Styrofoam reduced to a puddle of goo among other examples of chemistry in action.

The kids will get the opportunity to apply their new found knowledge of the chemical process by growing their own crazy crystal gardens and making their own "chemical" soda pop.

Registration is required and is limited to Quincy residents. The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Keenan Campaign Focused On Neighborhoods, Finance

City Councillor-at-Large John Keenan, a candidate for reelection, has cited two citywide issues — neighborhood preservation and finances — that he has focused his attention on during his days on the Council.

"One of the things I highlighted when I first ran for the City Council was preserving our neighborhoods," he told a candidates' forum hosted by the Ward 4 Community Association and the Quincy Environmental Network.

Keenan drafted and introduced the Residence B Moratorium, the measure that halted multi-family development that was out of character with the city's neighborhoods.

"It was clear that multi-unit developments were destroying the character of many of our neighborhoods," he said, "and the moratorium is giving us the opportunity to prepare reasonable zoning restrictions in order to preserve our neighborhoods."

The Council also passed a Keenan-sponsored ordinance that halted the paving of entire front yards.

"The unchecked paving of front yard was unsightly and was causing drainage problems," he said. "The ordinance which I introduced limits the amount of paving, prohibits the parking of vehicles on lawns and yet does provide for off-street parking."

Keenan also sponsored the resolve that called for a code enforcement officer who has focused on neighborhood issues.

As chair of the Finance Committee for the past four years, Keenan has been in the thick of the Council's efforts as a check on the city's finances.

"Given the expense of the new high school," he said, "I negotiated an agreement to increase the Stabilization Account by $4.5 million to reduce tax increases."

"The pension legislation which I drafted and introduced was passed by the City Council, the state legislature and was signed by the governor."

"According to the city's bond consultant, the program established by the legislation could save the city nearly $80 million over the next 20 years."

As chair of the Council's Special Committee on Energy, Keenan spearheaded passage of a $32 million Energy Management Plan, which provide for facility and energy upgrades in schools and public buildings.

The costs of the improvements will be paid by the energy savings. Keenan worked to ensure that the financing of the plan was structured as conservatively as possible for taxpayers.

"The work has been progressing," said Keenan, "and it's imperative that we now provide proper oversight to ensure the projected savings."

The Metro Suburban Recovery Learning Community (RLC) which focuses on mental health treatment, has opened at the Mental Health Center, 460 Quincy Ave.

Francesca Ricci is the new director, and along with her staff, they plan to provide support to those in recovery from mental health conditions through ongoing peer-led support groups, training and educational programs.

Programs will be held at the Quincy Mental Health Center Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For drop-in visits, call 1-888-RLC-5510 or 617-472-3237.

Investment Plan Considered For Seawall Maintenance

Mayor William Phelan plans to develop a Seawall Investment Plan, patterned after the successful Pavement Management Plan, to repair and replace the city's seawall system.

"A coastal community like Quincy needs to take great care of its seawalls," he said.

"I recognize that the best way to balance this infrastructure need with the interests of our taxpayers is to create a maintenance and repair plan that will maximize the dollars we have available and ensure the best investment possible."

Quincy relies on its seawalls for flood control along its 27 miles of coastline in Squantum, Merrymount, Adams Shore, Houghs Neck, Germantown and Quincy Point.

"We have saved millions of dollars with the Pavement Management Plan by using preventive maintenance and protecting infrastructure prior to the need for complete reconstruction," said Phelan.

"The plan will be emulated with the Seawall Investment Plan."

The mayor said the city will seek federal and state monies to complement the investment plan.

"I believe the creation of our plan also positions us to receive millions in additional outside funding. If we can show an investment plan to support our applications, I am confident that our chances will increase."

Phelan Endorsed By State Police Union

The State Police Association of Massachusetts (SPAM) has endorsed Mayor William Phelan for reelection.

The association represents 2,300 men and women.

"This is an honor to be recognized for the work we have done in making Quincy such a safe place to live," said Phelan.

"Working together with our own police department, we have worked hard to make Quincy the second safest city in the state."

"I will continue to pledge my support to improving public safety, recognizing that it is of paramount importance to a great community."

Phelan said statistics collected by the FBI show Quincy to be the second safest city in Massachusetts. Quincy ranks only behind Newton, the fourth safest city in the United States.

Phelan touted the improvement of regional police efforts, including cooperation among State Police, MBTA and other communities.

Phelan also highlighted the more than $2 million his administration leveraged in federal money for training and equipment for all public safety personnel.

The State Police Association of Massachusetts represents the sergeants and troopers of the Massachusetts State Police.

"The State Police play a vital role in our community; at Wollaston Beach, along Furnace Brook Parkway, and throughout the highway system that passes through Quincy," said Phelan.

"They are a top-notch professional outfit and I am extremely proud to have their endorsement."

Keenan Endorsed By Teamsters Local 1

Councillor-at-Large John F. Keenan has been endorsed for re-election by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters Local 1 - Boston Mailers Union #1.

Boston Mailers Union #1 represents mailing room employees at the Boston Herald and the Boston Globe and has its headquarters in Quincy at 79 Parkway.

"I am pleased to have received the endorsement of the IBT Local 1," said Keenan. "My father, now retired, was a newspaper mailer and a member of Local 1 for nearly 50 years, at the old Boston Record American and then the Boston Herald."

Keenan pointed out that he has a brother and several cousins still in the newspaper business, and that several uncles worked in the mailing room, pressrooms and as drivers for Boston newspapers for the past 75 years.

"I worked the overnight shift in the mailing room at the Boston Herald on Saturday nights throughout high school, college and law school," said Keenan. "So I am especially proud to receive this endorsement, and I thank the members of IBT Local 1 for their support."

Koch Endorsed By Firefighters, Patrolmen

The city's firefighters and police patrolmen have endorsed Tom Koch's candidacy for mayor.

"I'm proud and humbled to have the support of our men and women who serve on the front lines of public safety," Koch said. "I'm especially proud because their support is not based on contract issues, but something we've been talking so much about the last 10 months: Leadership."

For the police union, it is the first time it has ever endorsed a candidate for mayor, and Koch said he believes the endorsement was due to his plans to:

Start fighting a very real drug problem in our city.

Using existing resources to double the size of the drug unit.

Securing federal and state funding for additional tools, such as drug-sniffing dogs, restoring partnerships that once existed with drug teams led by the DEA and the Norfolk DA's Office.

Stop defying a clear directive from the FBI, which is prominently posted on its website, about using crime statistics for political reasons and acknowledge that crime is escalating in the city. (Those statistics our opponents tout? Two years old).

Increase patrols in the neighborhoods in part by shifting more existing resources to police work on the street.

Providing leadership on the turmoil that has infected the department. No more "no comments" from the mayor's office on the friction between command staff and patrol officers. "We'll fix the problems, and fix morale."

For firefighters, Koch said he believed their support is based on:

Plans to make training once again a priority in the department. We cannot force our first-responders to face 21st century challenges with 20th century tools and training.

Restoring our rescue engine to full service. And from the budget figures we've seen, this can be done within existing resources.

An open door, willingness to listen, and the ability to solve problems without resorting to personal attacks.

Protecting our students AND our firefighters by immediately fixing problems that have caused many of our school buildings to chronically fail fire safety inspections.

Police and firefighters join several other labor groups who have endorsed Koch's campaign, including teachers, the SEIU, and carpenters.

Sgt. Erik Mango Returns To U.S. After Iraq Deployment

Army National Guard Sgt. Erik D. Mango has returned to the U.S. after being deployed to Iraq in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Mango, a military policeman, is a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 101st Field Artillery based in Brockton. The guardsman has served in the military for 14 years.

He is the son of Jeanne Kilian and Emmanuel Mango of Sachem St., Quincy.

The sergeant is a 1993 graduate of Don Bosco Technical High School, Boston.

Operation Iraqi Freedom is the official name given to military operations involving members of the U.S. armed forces and coalition forces participating in efforts to free and secure Iraq.

Mission objectives focus on force protection, peace-keeping, stabilization, security and counter-insurgency operations as the Iraqi transitional governing bodies assume full sovereign powers to govern the peoples of Iraq.

Members from all branches of the U.S. military, multinational forces, and civilian federal employees are also assisting in rebuilding Iraq's economic and governmental infrastructure, and training and preparing Iraqi military and security forces to assume full authority and responsibility in defending and preserving Iraq's sovereignty and independence as a democracy.

Dwyer Endorsed By SEIU Local 888

Elaine Dwyer, vice-chairwoman of the School Committee has been endorsed for re-election by the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) Local 888.

The SEIU represents over 9,000 education and public sector workers providing a range of public services in Massachusetts. The working families of SEIU 888 are united for good jobs and quality public service.

Together with the 1.8 million members and 120,000 retirees of the SEIU International, they are committed to improving our jobs and our communities. "I am so honored to receive this endorsement and thank the SEIU for their support to my candidacy but for also the work they do for our city."

“...the best Quincy mayor in my memory.”

Francis X. Bellotti

October 12, 2007

Dear Friend,

As a taxpayer and voter in Quincy for more than fifty years, I would like to explain some of the reasons why I am voting for Mayor William Phelan.

Mayor Phelan is doing an outstanding job. He is the best Quincy Mayor in my memory.

After inheriting a fiscal situation so out of control that the State refused to certify the tax rate, Mayor Phelan went on to balance the budget, improve the bond ratings and hold the line on property taxes. As a result, our tax increases have been the lowest of any city in Massachusetts for the past three years.

As a former Massachusetts Attorney General for twelve years, I know first hand that crime and public safety are and should be matters of paramount concern to everyone. It is no small achievement that the FBI now ranks Quincy the second safest city in the State.

Mayor Phelan understands the debt we owe to our senior citizens who built this City. He has opened 200 units for seniors at Squantum Gardens and is planning a major new senior center.

Mayor Phelan not only led the fight to stop construction of the new Quincy High School on a toxic waste site, he has broken ground on a new state-of-the-art high school to give our children the first class education they deserve.

He has paid attention to our parks and beaches and worked hard to create more open space. He has improved our schools with smaller classes and literacy programs. His vision for smart business growth will mean tax relief for property owners and more jobs for Quincy residents.

I hope you will join me in voting to re-elect him on Tuesday, November 6th.

Sincerely,

Francis X Bellotti

On Tuesday November 6
Re-elect Mayor Bill Phelan
He always stands up for us!

Paid for by the Committee to Elect William J. Phelan

Keep a good Mayor working for us.

The insiders want City Hall back.

But we've come too far to let that happen.

Bill Phelan has stood up for us, for our seniors and for our kids.

Independent, effective, and tough minded, Bill has balanced the budget, held the line on taxes, and — according to FBI statistics — made Quincy the second safest city in the state.

Bill Phelan has created affordable housing for seniors, fixed up our parks and streets, and improved our schools with smaller classes and all-day kindergarten.

And his innovative vision for smart business growth at Crown Colony, Quincy Center, and the Shipyard will mean tax relief for homeowners and new business and good jobs for the future.

Bill Phelan is moving Quincy forward. Don't let the insiders turn back the clock to record deficits, sweetheart deals, and the old politics.

Help keep a good Mayor working for us.

Vote to re-elect Mayor Bill Phelan.

tered voters going to the polls Tuesday.

"We have an excellent mayor's race and the absentee ballots are coming in," he says.

"The turnout would be higher," he notes, "but there are five unopposed ward council seats. And ward contest bring out voters."

The only ward contest is in Ward 6 with incumbent Brian McNamee, 52, seeking a second term, opposed by Jimmy Liang, 30, restaurant owner who has twice run before.

In contrast, all three council at-large incumbents, Joseph G. Finn, 52, John F. Keenan, 43, and Michael E. McFarland, 53, are running for re-election.

Liang and Victor Ng, 42, Massachusetts Board of Higher Education financial specialist and candidate for city councillor at-large, bring diversity to this year's ballot.

Both are Asian Americans and if elected would be the first in the city's history to serve in elective office.

Quincy's Asian population is now 27,500 with 5,167 registered voters.

Also looking at history is Jennifer McCauley Logue, 42, former Discover Quincy executive director and daughter of former Mayor-Councillor Frank McCauley who is making her political debut as a candidate for councillor at-large.

If elected, she would be only the fifth woman in the city's history to serve on the city council.

There is only one open seat on the ballot; the one Linda is stepping down from after serving 16 years with distinction. She is retiring to enter a doctoral program at Lesley University in Cambridge.

Two incumbents and a former member are among the five candidates for three seats on the School Committee. Vice Chairwoman Elaine

F. Dwyer, 52, and David F. McCarthy are both seeking second terms.

Three contenders are former School Committee-woman Jo-Ann Bragg, 52, Eileen M. Mullen, 50 and Nicholas J. Puleo, 24.

Bragg left the School Committee in 2003 after serving three four-year terms to run for councillor at-large.

Mullen, an educational advocate and tutor, ran for the School Committee two years ago.

Puleo is a member and former president of the Ward 5 Community Association. He is senior budget analyst for the State Ways and Means Committee.

Ward councillors running unopposed:

Ward 1 Leo J. Kelly, 75, seeking his eighth term; Ward 2 Daniel G. Raymond, 60, 10th term; Ward 3 Kevin

F. Coughlin, 52, fourth term; Ward 4 James H. Davis, Jr., his third and Ward 5 Douglas S. Gutro, 42, a fourth term.

The city's 30 polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. next Tuesday.

Homeowners Must Pay To Remove Illegal Paving

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Local homeowners face thousands of dollars in new bills for paving over their property because they violated the city ordinance restricting such paving, according to Jay Duca, Director of Inspectional Services.

The homeowners paid for the paving; now they must pay to have the paving removed.

Duca and City Councillors said Monday at the Ordinance Committee meeting that those paving contractors should, also, share the blame and the expense when such violations occur.

In September, Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin submitted an amendment to the Municipal Code which would require the licensing of all paving contractors operating in the city.

The license would obligate the contractor to know the law and inform clients of the paving regulations. The amendment also regulates the hours for paving, prohibits paving on Sundays and provides a $100 fine per day for each violation.

"I'm sure it's expensive," Duca said of the six to eight homeowners he has cited for violating the city's paving ordinance.

These homeowners paid contractors thousands of dollars to install the paving. Now, under the law, the homeowners must pay to have paving removed.

Once the paving project is completed, no one seems to be able to locate the contractors, said Duca and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin.

Coughlin said that the contractors "have more deep pockets" to remedy such violations.

Coughlin described one homeowner who paved over two large contiguous lots on the property in his ward and must now remove all the paving.

"The contractors have already left the scene and the homeowners are stuck with it," said Duca.

Coughlin agreed. "Homeowners are left holding the bag," Coughlin acknowledged that the homeowners may be ignorant or at least claim ignorance of the law but that is no excuse. The paving must be removed.

The Ordinance Committee will consider a vote on the amendment at their meeting Dec. 3.

Whole Grain Bread Baking At Library Nov. 18

Anneli Johnson will demonstrate whole grain baking Sunday, Nov. 18 at 3 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Learn about the benefits and varieties of whole grains and how easy it is to incorporate them into your home baking. Whole grain breads are high in complex carbohydrates, B vitamins, and fiber, and low in fat and cholesterol. Discover how to bake wholesome and aromatic loaves and rolls for your family and friends and try your hand at some "dough rolling"!

Born in Finland, home-maker and nutritionist Johnson learned about bread baking while working in her family's restaurant and baking for her family at home. She has taught courses in Scandinavian cuisine, guest lectured for college events, and coordinated numerous local cooking demonstrations.

Registration is required for this program. For more information or to register, call 617-376-1316, or stop by the Main Library reference desk on the top floor. The event is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Firefighters Endorse Finn, Keenan And McFarland For Council At-Large

The Quincy Firefighters Association has announced their endorsement of incumbents Joe Finn, John Keenan and Michael McFarland for reelection to the at-large seats on the City Council.

"We would like to thank these men for the great job that they do representing the city of Quincy," said the statement from Firefighters Local 792.

"There have been many issues that have come in front of the City Council this past year dealing with public safety, and their decisions and votes were made keeping in mind the safety of the citizens and the public safety departments."

Liang Explains Vision Of 'Unity In Community'

For those who may be confused about his campaign theme to "bring unity back to the community," Jimmy Liang has spelled out the goal and vision of his run for City Council from Ward 6.

It means bringing the people of North Quincy together around common interests, regardless of their age, race, culture, religion or country of origin.

"When I talk about unity in the community, I am not talking about neighbors sitting on each other's porches or in their back yards or having each other over for Sunday dinner, even though that would be nice," said Liang.

"What I am talking about is people in Ward 6 coming together for the common good — understanding that we can find like interests and together have a better community."

"Everyone is affected if there is a natural disaster, electrical outage, severe snowstorm or heat wave," he continued.

"When there are fire code violations at North Quincy High School, it threatens the safety of all the students, whether they are Asian, Caucasian or African-American.

"Everyone, regardless of ethnicity, is affected if there are potholes, if roads aren't plowed, or if pedestrians are killed.

"If unsupervised teenagers with no place to go hang out on playgrounds harassing adults and other kids, it affects everyone."

Liang said if he is elected he would facilitate the first steps toward unity by bringing together a diverse group of North Quincy leaders to discuss at least two issues the people of the community have in common and outline steps to tackle any problems related to those issues.

The candidate encourages residents of Ward 6 to share their ideas with him by calling his campaign office at 617-331-2081.

'Living Green In Quincy' Demonstration At Library Tonight

Bob Botello and Jim Foster of Green Source Supply and Design in Braintree will show you how to make your home more environmentally friendly while saving money at a free Thursday, Nov. 1, seminar.

"Living Green in Quincy: Your Green Home" will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., to provide an overview and demonstrate practical alternative products and methods.

There will also be a presentation of the "Low Carbon Diet" concept, a plan for positive climate action change.

A variety of materials will be available to help you implement these ideas in your home, including reusable bags made by students of In Stitches, a local business that teach children to sew.

Lights refreshments will be served.

The program is presented by the Quincy Environmental Network Climate Action Committee in cooperation with the Quincy City Council Environmental Committee and the library.

Koch To Lead Effort To Restore Wollaston Theater As Cultural Center

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch announced plans Tuesday to lead an effort to help re-open the Wollaston Theater as a private non-profit community theater and cultural center.

"The Wolly is truly a gem of Quincy, and we're going to bring it back," Koch said. "We've talked to a lot of people, and there is a real desire to get something going."

Koch talked about the potential of helping form a non-profit company to lead fundraising efforts and the ultimate management of the theater. He said he would put the full support of the mayor's office, including private fundraising efforts, behind the movement to save the Wollaston Theater.

Koch said the historic theater has a "virtually limitless" potential as a renovated movie-house, community theater and potentially a home for any number of the city's cultural groups. He pointed to examples across the country of classic theaters being transformed for modern use.

"This is what Quincy is all about-bring all stakeholders together, coming up with a plan, and making it happen," Koch said. "It's going to take a lot of work, and the help of a lot of people, but I know we can get it done. And we can get it done without spending taxpayer money."

Koch's announcement was the last of his "Leadership Now" programs that he has detailed throughout the last several months of the campaign. Among previous "Leadership Now" plans, Koch outlined:

A plan to ease traffic congestion around the city by developing the first border-to-border traffic and parking plan for the city and fixing computerized traffic signals around the city that have not worked properly for the last several years.

A plan to limit development in the city by filing legislation that would require only one-or two-family homes in residential neighborhoods. A full overhaul of the city's building and zoning rules to steer long-term development in the city.

A plan to double the size of the police department's drug unit using existing resources, seek federal funding for additional tools, and provide leadership on the turmoil infecting the department.

A government restructuring plan to make City Hall more efficient, cost-effective and responsive.

A new citywide volunteer program to encourage civic pride among the city's young people.

A new program to make sure residents are kept informed of major projects and other issues affecting neighborhoods.

All of the plans are now available on Koch's website, www.kochforquincy.com, or by calling (617) 773-5624.

Sheriff's 'Are You Okay?' Program Helping Seniors Who Live Alone

For the second time in a little more than two weeks, Sheriff Michael Bellotti's "Are You OK?" program has saved an elderly woman from an uncertain fate.

This time it was an 83-year-old Quincy woman who lived by herself and appeared to need help quickly.

Each day, "Are You OK?" operators place phone calls to check on the well-being of people who have signed up for the free program. Most of the time, everyone is fine.

But on Sunday, Oct. 7, when operator James

Carabineris called, he thought the elderly lady sounded distressed. After a few seconds of conversation, he was sure of it.

He tried unsuccessfully to contact a relative or friend listed on her registration card. Then he called Quincy Police, who called an ambulance. In moments, she was being evaluated at Quincy Medical Center.

Two days of tests determined that she was healthy enough to be sent home with the recommendation that she have a home health aid in to see to her needs.

"This program works extremely well," said Bellotti, whose staff started asking "Are You OK?" in 2001 and now has 280 seniors participating in the program across Norfolk County.

"We only wish more people would take advantage of the added safety and peace of mind it provides. We especially encourage daughters or sons who are concerned about a parent to get them involved."

"We have the capability to help so many more people."

Since 2001, the Quincy woman was the 49th to be helped by a phone call that started by asking: "Are You OK?"

Anyone interested in signing up should call program coordinator Cheryl Bamberg at 781-751-3504.

Retirement Board Revokes Siciliano Pension

victed occurred had a "direct link" to his official position with the city. They are alleged to have happened in 1995 through 1998.

"I applaud the Retirement Board taking swift action in response to the verdict against Mr. Siciliano," said Mayor William Phelan, who fired him as head of Emergency Management in 2002.

"A man in such a position of authority found guilty of violating the trust of children is not worthy of deserving of a city pension."

Collins, however, charged that the Retirement Board "broadened the scope of Siciliano's official capacity by alleging that he was retired from two city positions. Neither position has anything to do with contact with civilians."

"Because there was no evidence of what actually happened, the Board ruled that the time and location of the crime is 'inconsequential,'" said Collins.

"The Board decided that Tony Siciliano was a well-known volunteer and that they could 'infer' that the volunteer activity by a city employee somehow constituted a 'direct link' between the conviction and city employment."

The attorney noted that "the Supreme Judicial Court has ruled that the pension forfeiture statute is a penal statute which is to be strictly construed. That means local Retirement Boards cannot broaden the scope of the statute to include volunteer activity."

George McCray, chairman of the Retirement Board, declined to comment, saying he would wait for a transcript of the revocation hearing before issuing a statement. The hearing was held Aug. 20 and the decision rendered in a little more than two months.

Collins said the Retirement Board failed to call any witnesses at the hearing and "acted before a transcript of the criminal trial was available."

"There was no 'substantial evidence' before the Board as that term is commonly used in legal proceedings. In fact, the Board relied on letters between lawyers in the criminal case and motions in the criminal case."

"Tony Siciliano has 30 days to appeal the decision to the Quincy District Court and Tony will do so," said Collins.

"Municipal employees are not on some form of lifetime probation that allows the city to forfeit pensions based on mere inferences and based on the claim that the time and location of the crime are 'inconsequential.'"

Committee Clears Newsrack Ordinance For Passage

Six of the 14 newsracks in front of the Post Office in Quincy Square would have to be removed under new regulations approved Monday by the Ordinance Committee.

The ordinance proposed in May by City Council President Douglas Gutro is scheduled for an official council vote on Dec. 3. Under the proposal, only eight newsracks would be allowed at any one location.

In addition, neglected, rusty or unsightly containers would be cited for removal and vendors would be fined for litter at their newsrack.

Gutro said this week that the newsrack ordinance fits in with other council actions this year to reduce blight, unsightly and broken hydrants, and double telephone poles.

The rules require vendors to apply for a location at City Hall where they would pay a fee for each newsrack location and a renewal fee each year. The vendor sites would be available on a first come, first served basis with no regard for the items' content.

"There's no preferential treatment," said Gutro of the ordinance prepared by City Solicitor Monica Conyngham, adding the law would be "silent on content."

Jay Duca, director of Inspectional Services, who would issue permits and oversee enforcement issues told councillors that he did not foresee any problems.

Councillors suggested that the newsracks of offenders be marked with stickers as soon as the violation is recorded.

Gutro noted that representatives of the Boston Globe, Patriot Ledger, and Boston Herald attended a September hearing on the issue and had no objections to the ordinance.

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly said that he wanted job newsletters available to the public through newsracks.

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis suggested that Duca use e-mail, whenever possible, to immediately notify vendors of violations. Davis said the e-mail could be used in addition to hard copy notices.

Davis is chairman of the Ordinance Committee which includes all City Councillors. Councillor Michael McFarland was absent.

In addition to volunteering for the Pack-A-Thon and assisting with the purchase of supplies, South Shore Savings Bank and their employees have donated $2,500 in the past to Cradles to Crayons for families in need to purchase pack and plays for their infants.

"South Shore Savings Bank is pleased to support Cradles to Crayons, an organization that helps the most vulnerable members of our society - low-income and homeless children," said South Shore Savings Bank President and CEO John Boucher. "It is particularly important that these children have the supplies necessary to help them succeed in school."

Cradles to Crayons is a Quincy-based non-profit whose mission is to provide clothing, books and basic essentials to low-income and homeless children across the state.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Preparing For Heating Season

I spoke with a firefighter who informed me that his oil burner malfunctioned. Apparently it had been operating incorrectly for sometime, and eventually a neighbor informed him that excessive black smoke was emanating from his chimney.

He contacted his oil burner technician, who arrived and surprised the firefighter, informing him that a portion of his chimney liner broke off and dislodged, partially blocking the chimney flue. Without a proper draft, the oil burner eventually malfunctioned.

Here's a situation where a partially occluded flue could have caused carbon dioxide to seep into the home while I neglected to ask him if his detector activated. He was fortunate enough to discover the flue issue through the inadequate oil burner performance while I believe there's a lesson here for all of us.

My first thought is to recommend that as this heating season approaches, all homeowners should comply with the Nicole Law. That law requires a carbon monoxide detector on each habitable level of your home. An unfinished basement does not require one while a detector is required on the first floor.

If there is no bedroom on this level, it can be installed anywhere, while if a bedroom exists, it must be placed within 10 feet of the bedroom door. Likewise, if the bedrooms are located on the second floor, a detector must be placed within 10 feet of those doors as well. All carbon monoxide detectors must be installed as per the manufacturer's instructions.

My second recommendation is that all oil burners should be cleaned and maintained at least once a year. At that time a technician will clean the inner chambers, turning the burner as well, assuring more efficient performance. He should clean the flue pipes while examining those and entry into the chimney itself. That visual inspection is important while a subsequent draft test will confirm adequate movement of combustion gases to the outside through the chimney. It's a prudent yearly effort to both optimize fuel efficiency and confirm an adequate flow of potentially dangerous combustion gases to the outside.

As I write I'm less familiar with gas furnaces. I defer to your plumber or one of our local plumbing inspectors for recommendations concerning their maintenance. As with an oil burner however, I can recommend an occasional inspection of the interior of the entire chimney to eliminate a concern about blockages and to determine the integrity of the chimney liner. This is especially important if fireplaces are frequently used, or if a coal or wood stove is vented through that chimney as well.

An intact flue liner can assure that heat, sparks and combustion gases remain within the chimney to be exhausted through the top into the outer environment. Cleaning a chimney flue can eliminate a blockage, including the removal of creosote, a tarry by-product of burning wood, which is combustible, while an excessive accumulation can occlude a flue as well.

This is a perfect time to allay your concerns and be proactive regarding furnace and chimney maintenance. Do so and have a safe and secure heating season.

City Applies For $936,000 Grant For Quarry Hills Drive

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The city recently applied for a $936,000 economic development grant from the state for improvements to Quarry Hills Drive and a study of Lyons Turning Mill, according to Planning Director Dennis Harrington.

Harrington said the application signed by Mayor William Phelan and approved by the City Council was filed under the state's PWED or Public Works Economic Development program.

If approved, the nearly million dollar grant will cover road and lighting improvements to Quarry Hills Drive which was accepted as a public road last May.

The PWED application also includes a request to allocate $52,000 for a study of the needed improvements for Lyons Turning Mill which is, also, located on Quarry Hills Drive.

At the top of Quarry Hills Drive, construction is expected to begin on a new Marian Manor nursing facility operated by the Carmelite Sisters for the Aged and Infirm. The nursing home, currently the largest in the state, will move from its current location in South Boston.

The $85 million Marian Manor project is expected to provide over 200 nursing beds and two dozen studio apartments for assisted living dementia patients. In addition, the complex will include 165 independent units.

It is this facility and Lyons Turning Mill which should qualify the roadway for an economic development grant, according to Harrington.

Harrington said that "hundreds of people will be involved in nursing and service" jobs at the Marian Manor facility. In addition, the apartments will provide tax benefits for the city.

And Lyons Turning Mills could become a major tourist attraction for the city once it is properly strengthened, lighted and fenced.

Harrington said there have been many studies of the Turning Mill over the years and this grant should allow the city to collate those studies.

The Turning Mill is the last building standing from the city's past as a leader in the granite industry, according to former Mayor Walter Hannon who sought approval of Quarry Hills Drive as a public road last May.

Hannon is currently Vice president of Granite Links Golf Club at Quarry Hills.

At the Turning Mill, the granite columns were perfected, rounded, and shined for the New York Stock Exchange building and many of the massive granite columns that adorn courthouses and custom houses in Boston, Savannah, New Orleans and San Francisco.

"Everybody talks about it and nobody does anything," Hannon said of improvements to Turning Mill which he compared to the Greek Acropolis.

Quincy attorney Robert Fleming last Spring described the Turning Mill building as "Quincy's Stonehenge" while Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly once likened it to a "Cathedral in the Wild."

"If one of those walls falls down, it's gone," Hannon said last week.

Lyons Turning Mill is on the National Historic Register but does "need to be structurally safe and accessible," said Harrington.

State approval of PWED grants generally take 18 months.

THE TURNING MILL on Quarry Hills Drive once produced the granite columns for buildings across the country. In the foreground lies one of the last granite columns polished and formed in Quincy. (Quincy Sun Photo/Laura Griffin)

Home Improvements

Five Tips To Prepare For A Home-Improvement Project

(NAPS) — While remodeling can be a rewarding way to improve your home value and lifestyle, many people are not sure where to start. The following five steps can help you manage the process and feel more confident about finishing your project on time and within budget.

1. Develop Your Plan: Before you talk to any professionals, have a sense of what you expect from the project. Take the time to sketch it out as fully as you can on your own. Draw the space on graph paper or make a "to do" list that includes elements to be moved or changed.

2. Establish Your Budget: Consider which products you'd like to use and do some preliminary research on price and availability so you're not envisioning models out of line with your financial resources. Decide how much you can spend. Include at least a 10 percent contingency fund for unforeseen expenses.

3. Assemble Your Team: Whether you're do-it-yourself, a hired or somewhere in between, finding the right people for the job is the most important stage of any home-improvement project. Your results will depend largely on the people doing the work, so take your time. This phase is too crucial to rush. Contractors have to squeeze consultations and estimates in between current jobs, and the most sought-after are often booked months in advance.

4. Define Your Goals: There's no surer path to remodeling success than plenty of time spent in the planning phase. In fact, the most successful homeowners spend as much time planning their projects as they do directing the actual work.

Careful preparation can facilitate a smooth, fast project. Begin by thinking about how you really want to change your home. You probably already have an idea, but now's the time to fine-tune your ideas.

Think about how your home already supports the way you live and which existing elements you really like (gorgeous architectural details, for instance, or a wide-open floor plan). This will not only help you prioritize which projects to take on first, it will also help you better define the details of each step and help you match them to your budget and your timeline.

5. Take Your Time: There's no reason to rush into a home-improvement project. Your home is probably your biggest investment and probably where your family lives. Start slowly and move deliberately.

Once you have your list of goals, take a break. Come back to the list in a week or so. Evaluate it to see if your ideas have changed.

If not, you're ready to move on with confidence.

Energy Matters

Getting Smart About Energy Bills

(NAPS) — Despite growing concerns over rising energy costs, a lightbulb hasn't exactly gone off in consumers' heads when it comes to understanding what their potentially less expensive options are.

And we're not just talking unplugging electronic equipment when it is not in use.

According to a new poll, a whopping 90 percent of consumers felt they had "limited or no control" over their home energy bills. That, of course, flies in the face of years of deregulation by state governments across the country that was specifically intended to empower consumers. The idea being, by forcing the traditional monopolies to suddenly compete with other utility companies—as is now the case in states such as New York, Michigan and Texas—consumers could seek out the best deals for themselves.

Atlas, most of those polled had never heard of deregulation.

And given the "extreme volatility" in energy prices that those like Jeff Mayer, president and chief executive officer of Mxenergy, predicts is "likely to continue," such unfamiliarity is likely to keep costing consumers. "It's important that people understand the steps they can take to keep costs under control," says Mayer, whose company provides deregulated energy.

Here are some tips for deciding which energy provider is right for you:

Fixed or Floating?: The big question is whether to lock in a fixed rate or choose one that floats with the market. Keep in mind that variable rates—just like variable-rate mortgages—rise and fall and don't provide price protection. But they do let you take advantage of lower rates in a declining market.

Locking in Prices: The duration of a fixed price protection is between one and three years. If you think prices may drop in the near future, choose a shorter term. If you think they'll continue climbing, go with a longer term.

Consider The Source: Price is important, but so is reputation. Locking in a fixed rate with a supplier that goes bankrupt only means trouble. So before signing up for a plan, check its balance sheet, access to financial capital and risk-management process that helps ensure it will be around to back up its advertised low, long-term rates.

How much of an impact are higher energy bills having on consumers? More than one-third reported they'd cut back on spending in other areas to offset the cost, according to the poll, which was conducted by Impulse Research.
